

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. ## PREFACE

The statutes collected in this Supplement connect, without break or duplication, with those contained in the 1918 Supplement. They are the general, permanent, and public acts passed by Congress between July 18, 1918, and January 1, 1920. These acts are classified according to the scheme of titles in the main work, and in using this Supplement the reader should examine the corresponding title to locate the late, amendatory, or repealing legislation upon the topic under consideration.

The latter part of the volume is devoted to the supplemental notes. These supplemental notes connect directly with and continue those in the 1918 Supplement, and present all the subsequent decisions construing the statutes contained in the prior volumes. The arrangement is by title, volume, page, and section as the statutes are found in preceding volumes, and the investigator has merely to turn to the corresponding title, volume, page and section as shown by the captions in this Supplement to find the late cases. The omission of a title or of page and section captions implies that no new cases have been found.

Tables of titles, Revised Statutes sections, and statutes chronologically arranged are included, together with a table connecting the notes with the first edition and supplements thereto.

The Eighteenth and the proposed Nineteenth Constitutional Amendments, with supplemental notes to the Constitution, are included in this volume.

An Act Making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen.

[Act of Oct. 1, 1918, ch. 178, 40 Stat. L. 973.]

* * * [Traveling expenses — official business.] Whenever, during the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, the Secretary of Agriculture shall find that the expenses of travel can be reduced thereby, he may, in lieu of actual traveling expenses, under such regulations as he may prescribe, authorize the payment of not to exceed 2 cents per mile for a motorcycle or 6 cents per mile for an automobile, used for necessary travel on official business: Provided, That there shall be no payment of mileage for the use or travel of motorcycle or automobile furnished or owned by or maintained by the Government of the United States. [40 Stat. L. 990.]

* * * [Georgia Experiment Station.] That hereafter the Secretary of Agriculture be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to certify to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment, and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to pay the appropriation for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and all future appropriations, to the Georgia Experiment Station, as authorized by the Act of March second, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven (Twenty-fourth Statutes, page four hundred and forty), commonly referred to as the Hatch Act, and the Act of March sixteenth, nineteen hundred and six (Thirty-fourth Statutes, page sixty-three), known as the Adams Act, and all amendments to said Acts, in accordance with the act of the General Assembly of Georgia, approved December twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight, establishing the Georgia Experiment Station, and the act of August eighteenth, nineteen hundred and six, accepting the benefits of the Adams Act (Georgia laws, nineteen hundred and six, page eleven hundred and sixty-one): Provided further, That nothing herein shall be construed as limiting the authority of the Secretary of Agriculture over and respecting the supervision of the operation of the said Georgia Experiment Station as set forth in said Acts of Congress. [40 Stat. L. 998.]

For the Adams Act, mentioned in the text, see 1 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 216; 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 3.

* * * [Perishable farm products—certificates as to quality and condition—evidence.] For enabling the Secretary of Agriculture to investigate and certify to shippers and other interested parties the quality and condition of fruits, vegetables, and other perishable farm products when received at such important central markets as the Secretary of Agriculture may from time to time designate, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, including payment of such fees as will be reasonable and as nearly as may be to cover the cost for the service rendered: Provided, That certificates issued by the authorized agents of the department shall be received in all courts of the United States as prima facie evidence of the truth of the statements therein contained, $113,000. [40 Stat. L. 1002.]

* * * [Nitrate of soda.] That any moneys heretofore or hereafter received by the United States for or in connection with the disposition of nitrate of soda pursuant to section twenty-seven of the Act entitled "An Act to provide further for the national security and defense by encouraging the production, conserving the supply, and controlling the distribution of food products and fuel," approved August tenth, nineteen hundred and seventeen (Public, Numbered Forty-one, Sixty-fifth Congress), are hereby appropriated and made immediately available as a revolving fund to be used at the discretion of the President for further carrying out the purposes of said section and extending its operation throughout the period of the existing war as ascertained and proclaimed in accordance with section twenty-four of said Act: Provided, That nothing herein shall be construed as prohibiting the sale or disposal of any nitrates remaining on hand at the time of, or contracted for previous to, such termination. [40 Stat. L. 1007.]

For Act of Aug. 10, 1917, sec. 27, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 46.

[SEC. 1.] * * * [Department of Agriculture — housing — requisition of buildings, etc.— compensation.] That the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized, for the official purposes of the Department of Agriculture, and within the limits of the appropriations for rent made by this or any other Act making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture, to requisition the use of, and take possession of, any building or any space in any building, and the appurtenances thereof which are now or heretofore have been used for such purposes, in the District of Columbia, other than a dwelling house occupied as such or a building occupied by any other branch of the United States Government; and he shall ascertain and pay just compensation for such use. If the amount of compensation so ascertained be not satisfactory to the person entitled to receive the same, such person shall be paid seventy-five per centum of such amount, and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as, added to said seventy-five per centum, will make up such amount as will be just compensation for such use in the manner provided by section twenty-four, paragraph twenty, and section one hundred and forty-five of the Judicial Code. [40 Stat. L. 1048.]

This is from the Act of Nov. 21, 1918, ch. 212, entitled "An Act To enable the Secretary of Agriculture to carry out, during the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, the purposes of the Act entitled 'An Act to provide further for the national security and defense by stimulating agriculture and facilitating the distribution of agricultural products,' and for other purposes."

An Act Making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920.

[Act of July 24, 1919, ch. 26, 41 Stat. L. 246.]

* * * [Distribution of seeds, etc.— congressional supply.] That the Secretary of Agriculture, after due advertisement and on competitive bids, is authorized to award the contract for the supplying of printed packets and envelopes and the packeting, assembling, and mailing of the seeds, bulbs, shrubs, vines, cuttings, and plants, or any part thereof, for a period of not more than five years nor less than one year, if by such action he can best protect the interests of the United States. An equal proportion of five-sixths of all seeds, bulbs, shrubs, vines, cuttings, and plants, shall upon their request, after due notification by the Secretary of Agriculture, that the allotment to their respective districts is ready for distribution, be supplied to Senators, Representatives, and Delegates in Congress for distribution among their constituents, or mailed by the department upon the receipt of their addressed franks, in packages of such weight as the Secretary of Agriculture and the Postmaster General may jointly determine: Provided, however, That upon each envelope or wrapper containing packages of seeds the contents thereof shall be plainly indicated, and the Secretary shall not distribute to any Senator, Representative, or Delegate seeds entirely unfit for the climate and locality he represents, but shall distribute the same so that each Member may have seeds of equal value, as near as may be, and the best adapted to the locality he represents: Provided also, That the seeds allotted to Senators and Representatives for distribution in the districts embraced within the twenty-fifth and thirty-fourth parallels of latitude shall be ready for delivery not later than the 10th day of January: Provided also, That any portion of the allotments to Senators, Representatives, and Delegates in Congress remaining uncalled for on the 1st day of April shall be distributed by the Secretary of Agriculture, giving preference to those persons whose names and addresses have been furnished by Senators and Representatives in Congress and who have not before during the same season been supplied by the departments: And provided also, That the Secretary shall report, as provided in this Act, the place, quantity, and price of seeds purchased, and the date of purchase; but nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to prevent the Secretary of Agriculture from sending seeds to those who apply for the same. And the amount herein appropriated shall not be diverted or used for any other purpose but for the purchase, testing, propagation, and distribution of valuable seeds, bulbs, mulberry and other rare and valuable trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings, and plants. [41 Stat. L. 246.]

A similar paragraph to the above has been contained in previous Agricultural Appropriation Acts.

* * * [Photographic films—sale or rental.] That the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized, under such rules and regulations and subject to such conditions as he may prescribe, to loan, rent, or sell copies of films: Provided, That in the sale or rental of films educational institutions or associations for agricultural education not organized for profit shall have preference; all moneys received from such rentals or sales to be covered into the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts. [41 Stat. L. 259.]

* * * [Leave of absence to employees in territorial possessions.] That hereafter employees of the Department of Agriculture assigned to permanent duty in the Virgin Islands shall be entitled to the same privileges as to leave of absence as are conferred upon employees assigned to Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, and Guam by the Act of June 30, 1914 (Thirty-eighth Statutes at Large, page 441), and if any employee of the agricultural experiment stations of the United States in Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, Guam, or the Virgin Islands shall elect to postpone the taking of any or all of the annual leave to which he may be entitled under the said Act of June 30, 1914, he may, in the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture, subject to the interests of the public service, be allowed to take at one time unused annual leave which may have accumulated within not to exceed four years, and be paid at the rate prevailing during the year such leave of absence has accumulated. [41 Stat. L. 262.]

For Act of June 30, 1914, mentioned in the text, see 1 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 206; 1916 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 2.

* * * [Bureau of markets—enforcement of acts—oaths—examination of witnesses—production of books and papers.] That hereafter, in the performance of the duties required of the Bureau of Markets in the administration or enforcement of provisions of Acts (United States Cotton Futures Act, Thirty-ninth Statutes at Large, page 476; United States Grain Standards Act, Thirty-ninth Statutes at Large, page 482; United States Warehouse Act, Thirty-ninth Statutes at Large, page 486; Standard Container Act, Thirty-ninth Statutes at Large, page 673; and the Acts making annual appropriations for the Department of Agriculture) relating to the Department of Agriculture, the Secretary of Agriculture, or any representative specifically authorized in writing by him for the purpose, shall have power to administer oaths, examine witnesses, and call for the production of books and papers. [41 Stat. L. 267.]

For Cotton Futures Act, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 359.

For Grain Standards Act, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 7.

For Warehouse Act, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 909; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 1057.

* * * [American bison — Secretary of Agriculture to supply.] That hereafter the Secretary of Agriculture may, in his discretion and under such conditions as he may prescribe, supply to any municipality or public institution not more than one American bison from any surplus which may exist in any herd under the control of the Department of Agriculture; and, in order to aid in the propagation of the species, animals may be loaned to or exchanged with other owners of American bison. [41 Stat. L. 270.]

* * * [Moneys contributed from outside sources for carrying on departmental activities — payment.] That hereafter in carrying on the activities of the Department of Agriculture involving cooperation with State, county and municipal agencies, associations of farmers, individual farmers, universities, colleges, boards of trade, chambers of commerce, or other local associations of business men, business organizations, and individuals within the State, Territory, district or insular possession in which such activities are to be carried on, moneys contributed from such outside sources, except in the case of the authorized activities of the Forest Service, shall be paid only through the Secretary of Agriculture or through State, county or municipal agencies, or local farm bureaus or like organizations, cooperating for the purpose with the Secretary of Agriculture. [41 Stat. L. 270.]

[SEC. 1.] * * * [Register and receiver at Juneau — consolidation of offices.] That the President is authorized to consolidate the offices of register and receiver at Juneau, Alaska, and to appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a register for said office. All the powers, duties, obligations, and penalties imposed by law upon both the register and receiver of said office shall be exercised by and imposed upon the register, whose compensation shall be a salary of $3,000 per annum; and all fees and commissions collected by said register, when earned, shall be paid into the Treasury without abatement or deduction. [41 Stat. L. 194.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 19, 1919, ch. 24.

An Act To amend an Act of Congress approved March 12, 1914, authorizing the President of the United States to locate, construct, and operate railroads in the Territory of Alaska, and for other purposes.

[Act of Oct. 18, 1919, 41 Stat. L. 293.]

[Government railroad — construction — amount of expenditures — original act amended.] That the Act entitled "An Act to authorize the President of the United States to locate, construct, and operate railroads in the Territory of Alaska, and for other purposes," be amended by inserting at the conclusion of section 2 the following:

"Provided, That in order to complete on or before December 31, 1922, the construction and equipment of the railroad between Seward and Fairbanks, together with necessary sidings, spurs, and lateral branches, the additional sum of $17,000,000 is hereby authorized to be appropriated, to be immediately and continuously available until expended." [41 Stat. L. 293.]

This Act became a law without the approval of the President. It was received by him October 7, 1919, and not returned to the house of Congress in which it originated within the time prescribed by the Constitution of the United States.

The name of this corporation shall be "The American Legion." [41 Stat. L. 284.]

SEC. 2. [Organization.] That said persons named in section 1 and such other persons as may be selected from among the membership of the American Legion, an unincorporated society of the soldiers, sailors, and marines of the Great War of 1917-1918, are hereby authorized to meet to complete the organization of said corporation by the selection of officers, the adoption of a constitution and by-laws, and to do all other things necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this Act, at which meeting any person duly accredited as a delegate from any local or State organization of the existing unincorporated organization known as the "American Legion" shall be permitted to participate in the proceedings thereof. [41 Stat. L. 284.]

SEC. 3. [Purpose.] That the purpose of this corporation shall be: To promote peace and good will among the peoples of the United States and all the nations of the earth; to preserve the memories and incidents of the Great War of 1917–1918; to cement the ties of love and comradeship born of service; and to consecrate the efforts of its members to mutual helpfulness and service to their country. [41 Stat. L. 285.]

SEC. 4. [Powers.] That the corporation created by this act shall have the following powers: To have perpetual succession with power to sue and be sued in courts of law and equity; to receive, hold, own, use, and dispose of such real estate and personal property as shall be necessary for its corporate purposes; to adopt a corporate seal and alter the same at pleasure; to adopt a constitution, by-laws, and regulations to carry out its purposes, not inconsistent with the laws of the United States or of any State; to use in carrying out the purposes of the corporation such emblems and badges as it may adopt; to establish and maintain offices for the conduct of its business; to establish State and Territorial organizations and local chapter or post organizations; to publish a magazine or other publications, and generally to do any and all such acts and things as may be necessary and proper in carrying into effect the purposes of the corporation. [41 Stat. L. 285.]

SEC. 5. [Membership — qualifications.] That no person shall be a member of this corporation unless he served in the naval or military service of the United States at some time during the period between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, both dates inclusive, or who, being citizens of the United States at the time of enlistment, served in the military or naval services of any of the Governments associated with the United States during the Great War. [41 Stat. L. 285.]

SEC. 6. [Organization as nonpolitical.] That the organization shall be non-political and, as an organization, shall not promote the candidacy of any person seeking public office. [41 Stat. L. 285.]

SEC. 7. [Acquisition of assets of similar unincorporated organization.] That said corporation may acquire any or all the assets of the existing unincorporated national organization known as the "American Legion" upon discharging or satisfactorily providing for the payment and discharge of all its liabilities. [41 Stat. L. 285.]

SEC. 8. [Exclusive right to use of name.] That said corporation and its State and local subdivisions shall have the sole and exclusive right to have and to use in carrying out its purposes the name "The American Legion." [41 Stat. L. 285.]

SEC. 9. [Report to Congress.] That the said corporation shall, on or before the 1st day of January in each year, make and transmit to the Congress a report of its proceedings for the preceding calendar year, including a full and complete report of its receipts and expenditures: Provided, however, That said report shall not be printed as public documents. [41 Stat. L. 285.]

SEC. 9½. [Authorized agent for service of process.] That as a condition precedent to the exercise of any power or privilege herein granted or conferred the American Legion shall file in the office of the secretary of state of each State the name and postoffice address of an authorized agent in such State upon whom legal process or demands against the American Legion may be served. [41 Stat. L. 285.]

SEC. 10. [Reservation of right to repeal or amend.] That the right to repeal, alter, or amend this act at any time is hereby expressly reserved. [41 Stat. L. 285.]

SEC. 3. [Tick-infested cattle — admission for immediate slaughter.] That the Act entitled "An Act to provide further for the national security and defense by stimulating agriculture and facilitating the distribution of agricultural products," approved August tenth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, be, and the same hereby is, amended so as to strike out, in section nine, after the words "Caribbean Sea," the following: "into those parts of the United States below the southern cattle quarantine line at such ports of entry as may be designated by said joint regulations and also," so that the section as amended will read as follows:

"SEC. 9. That the Act of August thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety, entitled 'An Act providing for an inspection of meats for exportation, prohibiting the importation of adulterated articles of food or drink, and authorizing the President to make proclamation in certain cases, and for other purposes' (Twenty-sixth Statutes at Large, page four hundred and fourteen), is hereby amended so as to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture, within his discretion and under such joint regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of the Treasury, to permit the admission into the United States for immediate slaughter at ports of entry to be designated in said joint regulations of tick-infested cattle which are otherwise free from disease and which have not been exposed to the infection of any other disease within sixty days next before their exportation from Mexico, South and Central America, the islands of the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea, subject to the provisions of sections seven, eight, nine, and ten of said Act of August thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety: Provided, That the importation of tick-infested cattle from any country referred to in this section in which foot-and-mouth disease exists, which existence shall be determined by the Secretary of Agriculture, is prohibited: Provided further, That all cattle imported under the provisions of this section shall be slaughtered in accordance with the provisions of the Act of June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and six (Thirty-fourth Statutes at Large, page six hundred and seventy-four), commonly called the meat-inspection amendment, and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder by the Secretary of Agriculture, and that their hides shall be disposed of under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture: And provided further, That the slaughter of all such cattle imported into the Territory of Porto Rico may be deferred for such time and under such restrictions as the Secretary of Agriculture may by regulation prescribe, and that the Secretary of Agriculture, within his discretion and under such joint regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of the Treasury, may permit the exportation of tick-infested cattle from the Virgin Islands to Porto Rico when said cattle are otherwise free from disease." [40 Stat. L. 1048.]

This is from the Act of Nov. 21, 1918, ch. 212, entitled "An Act To enable the Secretary of Agriculture to carry out, during the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, the purposes of the Act entitled 'An Act to provide further for the national security and defense by stimulating agriculture and facilitating the distribution of agricultural products,' and for other purposes."

An Act To provide for the fourteenth and subsequent decennial censuses.

[SEC. 1.] [Fourteenth and subsequent decennial censuses—provision for taking—territory included.] That a census of the population, agriculture, manufactures, forestry and forest products, and mines and quarries of the United States shall be taken by the Director of the Census in the year nineteen hundred and twenty and every ten years thereafter. The census herein provided for shall include each State, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico. A census of Guam and Samoa shall be taken in the same year by the respective governors of said islands and a census of the Panama Canal Zone by the governor of the Canal Zone in accordance with plans prescribed or approved by the Director of the Census. [40 Stat. L. 1291.]

SEC. 2. [Decennial census period—completion and publication of reports.] That the period of three years beginning the first day of July next preceding the census provided for in section one of this Act shall be known as the decennial census period, and the reports upon the inquiries provided for in said section shall be completed and published within such period. [40 Stat. L. 1292.]

SEC. 3. [Additional employees—enumeration—manner of appointment—preference to certain classes.] That during the decennial census period, and no longer, there may be employed in the Census Office, in addition to the force provided for by the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation Act for the fiscal year immediately preceding the decennial census period, an assistant director, who shall be an experienced practical statistician; a chief statistician, who shall be a person of known and tried experience in statistical work; a disbursing clerk; an appointment clerk; a private secretary to the director; four stenographers; eight expert chiefs of division; and ten statistical experts. The assistant director shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The chief statistician, the disbursing clerk, the appointment clerk, the chiefs of divisions, and the private secretary to the director shall be appointed without examination by the Secretary of Commerce upon the recommendation of the Director of the Census. The statistical experts and the stenographers shall be appointed in conformity with the civil service Act and rules: Provided, That whenever practicable women and honorably dis- charged soldiers and sailors shall be employed in the positions herein provided for. [40 Stat. L. 1292.]

SEC. 4. [Assistant director — appointment clerk — duties — disbursing clerk — bond.] That the assistant director shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by the Director of the Census. In the absence of the director, the assistant director shall serve as director, and in the absence of the director and assistant director, the chief clerk shall serve as director.

The appointment clerk shall perform the duties assigned him by the Director of the Census. The disbursing clerk of the Census Office shall, at the beginning of the decennial census period, give bond to the Secretary of the Treasury in the sum of $100,000, surety to be approved by the Solicitor of the Treasury, which bond shall be conditioned that the said officer shall render, quarter yearly, a true and faithful account to the proper accounting officers of the Treasury of all moneys and properties which shall be received by him by virtue of his office during the said decennial census period. Such bond shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury, to be by him put in suit upon any breach of the conditions thereof. [40 Stat. L. 1292.]

SEC. 5. [Compensation of officials.] That during the decennial census period the annual compensation of the officials of the Census Office shall be as follows: The Director of the Census, $7,500; the assistant director, $5,000; the chief clerk and three chief statisticians for the divisions of population, manufactures, and agriculture, respectively, $4,000 each; three other chief statisticians for the divisions of vital statistics and statistics of cities, and the chief statistician provided for in section three of this Act, $3,600 each; the geographer, $3,000; the disbursing clerk, $3,000; the appointment clerk, $2,750; the chiefs of division, $2,500 each; the private secretary to the director, $2,250; the statistical experts, $2,000 each; and the stenographers provided for in section three of this Act, $1,800 each. [40 Stat. L. 1292.]

SEC. 6. [Additional employees — enumeration — number — preference to certain classes.] That in addition to the force hereinbefore provided for and to that authorized by the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation Act for the fiscal year immediately preceding the decennial census period, there may be employed in the Census Office during the decennial census period, and no longer, as many clerks with salaries at the rates of $1,800, $1,680, $1,560, $1,440, $1,380, $1,320, $1,260, $1,200, $1,140, $1,080, $1,020, $960, and $900; one engineer at $1,200; and two photostat operators, at $1,200 each; as many skilled laborers, with salaries at the rate of not less than $720 nor more than $1,000 per annum; and as many messengers, assistant messengers, messenger boys, watchmen, unskilled laborers, and charwomen as may be found necessary for the proper and prompt performance of the duties herein required; these additional clerks and employees to be appointed by the Director of the Census: Provided, That the total number of such additional clerks with salaries at the rate of $1,440 or more per annum shall at no time exceed one hundred and fifty: Provided further, That employees engaged in the compilation or tabulation of statistics by the use of mechanical devices may be compensated on a piece-price basis to be fixed by the director: Provided, That hereafter in making appointments to clerical and other positions in the executive departments and in independent governmental establishments preference shall be given to honorably discharged soldiers, sailors, and marines, and widows of such, if they are qualified to hold such positions. [40 Stat. L. '1292.]

The last proviso of sec. 6 was amended by Act of July 11, 1919, ch. 6, set forth on p. 327, post.

SEC. 7. [Additional employees — test examinations — temporary employment — residence — transfers and promotions — term of service.] That the additional clerks and other employees provided for by section six shall be subject to such special test examinations as the Director of the Census may prescribe, subject to the approval of the United States Civil Service Commission, these examinations to be conducted by the United States Civil Service Commission, to be open to all applicants without regard to political party affiliations, and to be held at such places in each State as may be designated by the Civil Service Commission. Certifications shall be made by the Civil Service Commission upon request of the Director of the Census from the eligible registers so established, in conformity with the law of apportionment as now provided for the classified service, and selections therefrom shall be made by the Director of the Census, in the order of rating: Provided, That the requirement as to conformity with the law of apportionment shall not apply to messenger boys, unskilled laborers, and charwomen: Provided further, That hereafter all examinations of applicants for positions in the Government service, from any State or Territory, shall be had in the State or Territory in which such applicant resides, and no person shall be eligible for such examination or appointment unless he or she shall have been actually domiciled in such State or Territory for at least one year previous to such examination: Provided further, That the Civil Service Commission shall hold examinations of applicants temporarily absent from the places of their legal residence or domicile in the District of Columbia and elsewhere in the United States where examinations are usually held, upon proof satisfactory to the commission that such applicants are bona fide residents of the States or Territories in which such applicants claim to have legal residence or domicile: Provided further, That nothing herein shall be so construed as to abridge the existing law of apportionment or change the requirements of existing law as to legal residence or domicile of such applicants: And provided further, That no person afflicted with tuberculosis shall be appointed and that each applicant for appointment shall accompany his or her application with a certificate of health from some reputable physician: And provided further, That in no instance shall more than one person be appointed from the same family: And provided further, That when the exigencies of the service require, the director may appoint for temporary employment not exceeding six months' duration from the aforesaid list of eligibles those who, by reason of residence or other conditions, are immediately available; and may also appoint for not exceeding six months' duration persons having had previous experience in operating mechanical appliances in census work whose efficiency records in operating such appliances are satisfactory to him, and may accept such records in lieu of the civil-service examination: And provided further, That employees in other branches of the departmental classified service who have had previous experience in census work may be transferred without examination to the Census Office to serve during the whole or a part of the decennial census period, and at the end of such service the employees so transferred shall be eligible to appointment to positions in any department held by them at date of transfer to the Census Office without examination, but no employee so transferred shall within one year after such transfer receive higher salary than he is receiving at the time of the transfer: And provided further, That during the decennial census period and no longer the Director of the Census may fill vacancies in the permanent force of the Census Office by the promotion or transfer of clerks or other employees employed on the temporary force authorized by section six of this Act: And provided further, That at the expiration of the decennial census period the term of service of all employees so transferred and of all other temporary officers and employees appointed under the provisions of this Act shall terminate, and such officers and employees shall not be eligible to appointment or transfer into the classified service of the Government by virtue of their examination or appointment under this Act: And provided further, That in the selection of the additional clerks and employees provided for by section six the Director of the Census is authorized to use, so far as practicable, the reemployment registers established by Executive order of November twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, so far as the same applies to permanent appointments by competition. [40 Stat. L. 1293.]

SEC. 8. [Scope of Fourteenth Census — character of inquiries — statistics by whom collected.] That the Fourteenth Census shall be restricted to inquiries relating to population, to agriculture, to manufactures, to forestry and forest products, and to mines and quarries. The schedules relating to population shall include for each inhabitant the name, place of abode, relationship to head of family, color, sex, age, conjugal condition, place of birth, place of birth of parents, nationality or mother tongue of all persons born in foreign countries, nationality or mother tongue of parents of foreign birth, number of years in the United States, citizenship, occupation, whether or not employer or employee, whether or not engaged in agriculture, school attendance, literacy, tenure of home and the encumbrance thereon, and the name and address of each blind or deaf and dumb person.

The schedules relating to agriculture shall include name, color, sex, and country of birth of occupant of each farm, tenure, acreage of farm, acreage of woodland, value of farm and improvements, and the encumbrance thereon, value of farm implements, number of live stock on farms, ranges, and elsewhere, and the acreage of crops and the quantities of crops and other farm products for the year ending December thirty-first next preceding the enumeration. Inquiries shall be made as to the quantity of land reclaimed by irrigation and drainage and the crops produced; also as to the location and character of irrigation and drainage enterprises, and the capital invested in such enterprises.

The schedules of inquiries relating to manufactures, to forestry and forest products, and to mines and quarries shall include the name and location of each establishment; character of organization, whether individual, corporate, or other form; character of business or kind of goods manufactured; amount of capital actually invested; number of proprietors, firm members, copartners and officers, and the amount of their salaries; number of employees and the amount of their wages; quantity and cost of materials used in manufactures; principal miscellaneous expenses; quantity and value of products; time in operation during the year; character and quantity of power used; and character and number of machines employed.

The census of manufactures, of forestry and forest products, and of mines and quarries shall relate to the year ending December thirty-first, next preceding the enumeration of population, and shall be confined to manufacturing establishments and mines and quarries which were in active operation during all or a portion of that year. The census of manufactures shall furthermore be confined to manufacturing establishments conducted under what is known as the factory system, exclusive of the so-called neighborhood, household, and hand industries.

Whenever he shall deem it expedient, the Director of the Census may charge the collection of these statistics upon special agents or upon detailed employees, to be employed without respect to locality.

The number, form, and subdivision of inquiries provided for in section eight shall be determined by the Director of the Census. [40 Stat. L. 1294.]

SEC. 9. [Supervisors — designation — number — boundaries of districts — qualification of supervisors — vacancies.] That the Director of the Census shall, at least six months prior to the date fixed for commencing the enumeration at the fourteenth and each succeeding decennial census, designate the number, whether one or more, of supervisors of census for each State, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico, and shall define the districts within which they are to act; except that the Director of the Census, in his discretion, need not designate supervisors for Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico, but in lieu thereof may employ special agents as hereinafter provided. The supervisors shall be appointed by the Secretary of Commerce upon the recommendation of the Director of the Census: Provided, That the whole number of supervisors shall not exceed four hundred: Provided further, That so far as practicable and desirable the boundaries of the supervisors' districts shall conform to the boundaries of the congressional districts: And provided further, That if in any supervisor's district the supervisor has not been appointed and qualified ninety days preceding the date fixed for the commencement of the enumeration, or if any vacancy shall occur thereafter, either through death, removal, or resignation of a supervisor, or from any other cause, the Director of the Census may appoint a temporary supervisor or detail an employee of the Census Office to act as supervisor for that district. [40 Stat. L. 1295.]

SEC. 10. [Duties of supervisors — enumerators.] That each supervisor of census shall be charged with the performance within his own district of the following duties: To consult with the Director of Census in regard to the division of his district into subdivisions most convenient for the purpose of the enumeration, which subdivisions or enumeration districts shall be defined and the boundaries thereof fixed by the Director of the Census; to designate to the director suitable persons and with his consent to employ such persons as enumerators, one or more for each subdivision; to communicate to enumerators the necessary instructions and directions relating to their duties; to examine and scrutinize the returns of the enumerators, and in the event of discrepancies or deficiencies appearing in any of the said returns, to use all diligence in causing the same to be corrected or supplied; to forward the completed returns of the enumerators to the director at such time and in such manner as shall be prescribed, and to make up and forward to the director the accounts of each enumerator in his district for service rendered, which accounts shall be duly certified to by the enumerator, and the same shall be certified as true and correct if so found by the supervisor, and said accounts so certified shall be accepted and paid by the director. The duties imposed upon the supervisor by this Act shall be performed in any and all particulars in accordance with the orders and instructions of the Director of the Census. [40 Stat. L. 1295.]

SEC. 11. [Compensation of supervisors — allowances.] That each supervisor of the census shall, upon the completion of his duties to the satisfaction of the Director of the Census, receive the sum of $1,500, and in addition thereto $1 for each thousand or major fraction of a thousand of population enumerated in his district, such sums to be in full compensation for all services rendered and expenses incurred by him: Provided, That of the above-named compensation a sum not to exceed $600, in the discretion of the Director of the Census, may be paid to any supervisor prior to the completion of his duties in one or more payments, as the Director of the Census may determine: Provided further, That in emergencies arising in connection with the work of preparation for or during the progress of the enumeration in his district, or in connection with the reenumeration of any subdivision, a supervisor may, in the discretion of the Director of the Census, be allowed actual and necessary traveling expenses and an allowance in lieu of subsistence not exceeding $4 per day during his necessary absence from his usual place of residence: And provided further, That an appropriate allowance to supervisors for clerk hire may be made when deemed necessary by the Director of the Census. [40 Stat. L. 1296.]

SEC. 12. [Enumerators — duties — qualification.] That each enumerator shall be charged with the collection in his subdivision of the facts and statistics required by the population and agricultural schedules and such other schedules as the Director of the Census may determine shall be used by him in connection with the census, as provided in section eight of this Act. It shall be the duty of each enumerator to visit personally each dwelling house in his subdivision, and each family therein, and each individual living out of a family in any place of abode, and by inquiry made of the head of each family, or of the member thereof deemed most competent and trustworthy, or of such individual living out of a family, to obtain each and every item of information and all particulars required by this Act, as of date January first of the year in which the enumeration shall be made; and in case no person shall be found at the usual place of abode of such family, or individual living out of a family, competent to answer the inquiries made in compliance with the requirements of this Act, then it shall be lawful for the enumerator to obtain the required information as nearly as may be practicable from the family or families or person or persons living nearest to such place of abode who may be competent to answer such inquiries. It shall be the duty also of each enumerator to forward the original schedules, properly filled out and duly certified, to the supervisor of his district as his returns under the provisions of this Act; and in the event of discrepancies or deficiencies being discovered in these schedules he shall use all diligence in correcting or supplying the same. In case an enumeration district embraces all or any part of any incorporated borough, village, town, or city, and also other territory not included within the limits of such incorporated borough, village, town, or city, it shall be the duty of the enumerator to clearly and plainly distinguish and separate, upon the population schedules, the inhabitants of such borough, village, town, or city from the inhabitants of the territory not included therein. No enumerator shall be deemed qualified to enter upon his duties until he has received from the supervisor of the district to which he belongs a commission, signed by the supervisor, authorizing him to perform the duties of enumerator, and setting forth the boundaries of the subdivision within which such duties are to be performed. [40 Stat. L. 1296.]

SEC. 13. [Enumeration districts.] That the territory assigned to each supervisor shall be divided into as many enumeration districts as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act, and, in the discretion of the Director of the Census, two or more enumeration districts may be given to one enumerator, and the boundaries of all the enumeration districts shall be clearly described by civil divisions, rivers, roads, public surveys, or other easily distinguishable lines: Provided, That enumerators may be assigned for the special enumeration of institutions, when desirable, without reference to the number of inmates. [40 Stat. L. 1296.]

SEC. 14. [Removal of enumerators — incomplete or erroneous enumeration.] That any supervisor of census may, with the approval of the Director of the Census, remove any enumerator in his district and fill the vacancy thus caused or otherwise occurring. Whenever it shall appear that any portion of the census provided for in this Act has been negligently or improperly taken, and is by reason thereof incomplete or erroneous, the Director of the Census may cause such incomplete and unsatisfactory enumeration and census to be amended or made anew. [40 Stat. L. 1297.]

SEC. 15. [Interpreters to assist enumerators — duties — compensation.] That the Director of the Census may authorize and direct supervisors of census to employ interpreters to assist the enumerators of their respective districts in the enumeration of persons not speaking the English language, but no authorizations shall be given for such employment in any district until due and proper effort has been made to employ an enumerator who can speak the language or languages for which the services of an interpreter would otherwise be required. It shall be the duty of such interpreters to accompany the enumerators and faithfully translate the latter's inquiries and the replies thereto, but in no case shall any such interpreter perform the duties of the enumerator unless commissioned as such by the Director of the Census. The compensation of such interpreters shall be fixed by the Director of the Census in advance, and shall not exceed $5 per day for each day actually and necessarily employed. [40 Stat. L. 1297.]

SEC. 16. [Compensation of enumerators — determination — allowances — residence of supervisors and enumerators.] That the compensation of enumerators shall be determined by the Director of the Census as follows: In subdivisions where he shall deem such remuneration sufficient, an allowance of not less than 2 nor more than 4 cents for each inhabitant; not less than 20 nor more than 30 cents for each establishment of productive industry reported; not less than 20 nor more than 30 cents for each farm reported; not less than 20 nor more than 50 cents for each irrigation or drainage enterprise reported; and 10 cents for each barn and inclosure containing live stock not on farms. In other subdivisions the Director of the Census may fix a mixed rate of not less than $1 nor more than $2 per day and, in addition, an allowance of not less than 1 nor more than 3 cents for each inhabitant enumerated, and not less than 15 nor more than 20 cents for each farm and each establishment of productive industry reported. In other subdivisions per diem rates shall be fixed by the director according to the difficulty of enumeration, having special reference to the regions to be canvassed and the sparsity of settlement or other considerations pertinent thereto. The compensation allowed to an enumerator in any such district shall not be less than $3 nor more than $6 per day of eight hours' actual field work, and no payment shall be made for time in excess of eight hours for any one day. The subdivisions or enumeration districts to which the several rates of compensation shall apply shall be designated by the Director of the Census at least two weeks in advance of the enumeration. No claim for mileage or traveling expenses shall be allowed any enumerator in either class of subdivisions, except in extreme cases, and then only when authority has been previously granted by the Director of the Census; and the decision of the director as to the amount due any enumerator shall be final: Provided, That within the limits of continental United States each supervisor to be appointed or selected under this Act shall be an actual resident of the district, and each enumerator to be appointed or selected under this Act shall, so far as practicable, be an actual resident of the subdivision within which his duties are to be performed; but an enumerator may be appointed if he be an actual resident of the city, township, or other civil division of which the subdivision in which his duties are to be performed is a part. [40 Stat. L. 1297.]

SEC. 17. [Death of supervisor or enumerator — payment to widow or representative for services rendered.] That in the event of the death of any supervisor or enumerator after his appointment and entrance on his duties, the Director of the Census is authorized to pay to the widow or legal representative of such supervisor or enumerator such sum as he may deem just and fair for the services rendered by such supervisor or enumerator. [40 Stat. L. 1298.]

SEC. 18. [Special agents — appointment — duties — compensation and allowances.] That special agents may be appointed by the Director of the Census to carry out the provisions of this Act and of the Act to provide for a permanent Census Office, approved March sixth, nineteen hundred and two, and Acts amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto; and such special agents shall perform such duties in connection with the enforcement of said Acts as may be required of them by the Director of the Census. The special agents thus appointed shall receive compensation at rates to be fixed by the Director of the Census, such compensation, however, not to exceed $6 per diem except as hereinafter provided: Provided, That during the decennial census period the Director of the Census may fix the compensation of not to exceed twenty-five special agents, who shall be persons of known and tried experience in statistical work, at an amount not to exceed $10 per diem: Provided further, That the Director of the Census may, in his discretion, fix the compensation of special agents on a piece-price basis without limitation as to the amount earned per diem: And provided further, That the special agents appointed under this section shall be entitled to necessary traveling expenses and an allowance in lieu of subsistence not to exceed $4 per diem during necessary absence from their usual places of residence; but no pay or allowance in lieu of subsistence shall be allowed special agents when employed in the Census Office on other than the special work committed to them, and no appointments of special agents shall be made for clerical work: And provided further, That the Director of the Census shall have power, and is hereby authorized, to appoint special agents to assist the supervisors whenever he may deem it proper, in connection with the work of preparation for, or during the progress of, the enumeration or in connection with the reenumeration of any district or a part thereof; or he may, in his discretion, employ for this purpose any of the permanent or temporary employees of the Census Office; and the special agents and employees of the Census Office so appointed or employed shall perform such duties in connection with the enforcement of this Act as may be required of them by the Director of the Census or by the supervisors of the districts to which they are assigned, and when engaged in the work of enumeration or reenumeration shall have like authority with and perform the same duties as the enumerators in respect to the subjects committed to them under this Act. [40 Stat. L. 1298.]

For Act of March 6, 1902, mentioned in the text, see 2 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 29; 1 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 736.

SEC. 19. [Oath or affirmation—fitness as prerequisite to appointment of employees.] That every supervisor, supervisor's clerk, enumerator, interpreter, special agent, or other employee shall take and subscribe to an oath or affirmation, to be prescribed by the Director of the Census. All appointees and employees provided for in this Act shall be appointed or employed and examined, if examination is required by this Act, solely with reference to their fitness to perform the duties required of them by the provisions of this Act and without reference to their political party affiliations. [40 Stat. L. 1298.]

SEC. 20. [Enumeration taken as of what date—completion.] That the enumeration of the population required by section one of this Act shall be taken as of the first day of January, and it shall be the duty of each enumerator to commence the enumeration of his district on the day following, unless the Director of the Census in his discretion shall defer the enumeration in said district by reason of climatic or other conditions which would materially interfere with the proper conduct of the work; but in any event it shall be the duty of each enumerator to prepare the returns hereinbefore required to be made and to forward the same to the supervisor of his district within thirty days from the commencement of the enumeration of his district: Provided, That in any city having two thousand five hundred inhabitants or more under the preceding census the enumeration of the population shall be completed within two weeks from the commencement thereof. [40 Stat. L. 1298.]

SEC. 21. [Offenses—influencing appointments for consideration.] That if any person shall receive or secure to himself any fee, reward, or compensation as a consideration for the appointment or employment of any person as supervisor, enumerator, or clerk, or other employee, or shall in any way receive or secure to himself any part of the compensation paid to any supervisor, enumerator, clerk, or other employee, he shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $3,000 and be imprisoned not more than five years. [40 Stat. L. 1299.]

SEC. 22. [Offenses—neglect or refusal to perform duties—disclosing information received—perjury—false statements or information.] That any supervisor, supervisor's clerk, enumerator, interpreter, special agent, or other employee who, having taken and subscribed the oath of office required by this Act, shall, without justifiable cause, neglect or refuse to perform the duties enjoined on him by this Act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $500; or if he shall, without the authority of the Director of the Census, publish or communicate any information coming into his possession by reason of his employment under the provisions of this Act, or the Act to provide for a permanent Census Office or Acts amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto, he shall be guilty of a felony and shall upon conviction thereof be fined not to exceed $1,000 or be imprisoned not to exceed two years, or both so fined and imprisoned in the discretion of the court; or if he shall willfully and knowingly swear or affirm falsely as to the truth of any statement required to be made or subscribed by him under oath by or under authority of this Act or of the Act to provide for a permanent Census Office or Acts amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto, he shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $2,000 or imprisoned not exceeding five years, or both; or if he shall willfully and knowingly make a false certificate or a fictitious return he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction of either of the last-named offenses he shall be fined not exceeding $2,000 or be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or both; or if any person who is or has been an enumerator shall knowingly or willfully furnish or cause to be furnished, directly or indirectly, to the Director of the Census or to any supervisor of the census any false statement or false information with reference to any inquiry for which he was authorized and required to collect information he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $2,000 or be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or both. [40 Stat. L. 1299.]

SEC. 23. [Duty to furnish information to census takers — failure to furnish correct information.] That it shall be the duty of all persons over eighteen years of age when requested by the Director of the Census; or by any supervisor, enumerator, or special agent, or other employee of the Census Office, acting under the instructions of the said director, to answer correctly, to the best of their knowledge, all questions on the census schedules applying to themselves and to the families to which they belong or are related, and to the farm or farms of which they or their families are the occupants; and any person over eighteen years of age who, under the conditions hereinbefore stated, shall refuse or willfully neglect to answer any of these questions, or shall willfully give answers that are false, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $100.

And it is hereby made unlawful for any individual, committee, or other organization of any kind whatsoever, to offer or render to any supervisor, supervisor's clerk, enumerator, interpreter, special agent, or other officer or employee of the Census Office engaged in making an enumeration of population, either directly or indirectly, any suggestion, advice, or assistance of any kind, with the intent or purpose of causing an inaccurate enumeration of population to be made, either as to the number of persons resident in any district or community, or in any other respect; and any individual, or any officer or member of any committee or other organization of any kind whatsoever, who directly or indirectly offers or renders any such suggestion, advice, information, or assistance, with such unlawful intent or purpose, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $5,000.

And it shall be the duty of every owner, proprietor, manager, superintendent, or agent of a hotel, apartment house, boarding or lodging house, tenement, or other building, when requested by the Director of the Census, or by any supervisor, enumerator, special agent, or other employee of the Census Office, acting under the instructions of the said director, to furnish the names of the occupants of said hotel, apartment house, boarding or lodging house, tenement, or other building, and to give thereto free ingress and egress to any duly accredited representative of the Census Office, so as to permit of the collection of statistics for census purposes, including the proper and correct enumeration of all persons having their usual place of abode in said hotel, apartment house, boarding or lodging house, tenement, or other building; and any owner, proprietor, manager, superintendent, or agent of a hotel, apartment house, boarding or lodging house, tenement, or other building who shall refuse or willfully neglect to give such information or assistance under the conditions hereinbefore stated shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $500. [40 Stat. L. 1299.]

SEC. 24. [Owner, etc., of company or any kind of organization — duty to furnish information.] That it shall be the duty of every owner, official, agent, person in charge, or assistant to the person in charge, of any company, business, institution, establishment, religious body, or organization of any nature whatsoever, to answer completely and correctly to the best of his knowledge all questions relating to his respective company, business, institution, establishment, religious body, or other organization, or to records or statistics in his official custody, contained on any census schedule prepared by the Director of the Census under the authority of this Act, or of the Act to provide for a permanent Census Office, approved March sixth, nineteen hundred and two, or of Acts amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto; and any person violating the provisions of this section by refusing or willfully neglecting to answer any of said questions, or by willfully giving answers that are false, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $10,000, or imprisoned for a period not exceeding one year, or both so fined and imprisoned. [40 Stat. L. 1300.]

For Act of March 6, 1902, mentioned in the text, see 1 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 736; 2 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed) 29.

SEC. 25. [Restriction on use made of information furnished.] That the information furnished under the provisions of the next preceding section shall be used only for the statistical purposes for which it is supplied. No publication shall be made by the Census Office whereby the data furnished by any particular establishment can be identified, nor shall the Director of the Census permit anyone other than the sworn employees of the Census Office to examine the individual reports. [40 Stat. L. 1300.]

SEC. 26. [Fines and penalties — enforcement.] That all fines and penalties imposed by this Act may be enforced by indictment or information in any court of competent jurisdiction. [40 Stat. L. 1300.]

SEC. 27. [Authorization of expenditures for expenses.] That the Director of the Census may authorize the expenditure of necessary sums for the actual and necessary traveling expenses of the officers and employees of the Census Office, including an allowance in lieu of subsistence not exceeding $4 per day during their necessary absence from the Census Office, or, instead of such an allowance, their actual subsistence expenses, not to exceed $5 per day; and he may authorize the incidental, miscellaneous, and contingent expenses necessary for the carrying out of this Act, as herein provided, and not otherwise, including advertising in newspapers, the purchase of manuscripts, books of reference, and periodicals, the rental of sufficient quarters in the District of Columbia and elsewhere and the furnishing thereof, and expenditures necessary for compiling, printing, publishing, and distributing the results of the census, the purchase of necessary paper and other supplies, the purchase, rental, exchange, construction, and repair of mechanical appliances, the compensation of such permanent and temporary clerks as may be employed under the provisions of this Act and the Act establishing the permanent Census Office and Acts amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto, and all other expenses incurred under authority conveyed in this Act. [40 Stat. L. 1300.]

SEC. 28. [Printing—requisition on public printer.] That the Director of the Census is hereby authorized to make requisition upon the Public Printer for such printing as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act, to wit: Blanks, schedules, circulars, pamphlets, envelopes, work sheets, and other items of miscellaneous printing; that he is further authorized to have printed by the Public Printer, in such editions as the director may deem necessary, preliminary and other census bulletins, and final reports of the results of the several investigations authorized by this Act or by the Act to establish a permanent Census Office and Acts amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto, and to publish and distribute said bulletins and reports. [40 Stat. L. 1301.]

SEC. 29. [Mail matter—free postage—abuse of privilege—penalty.] That all mail matter, of whatever class or weight, relating to the census and addressed to the Census Office, or to any official thereof, and indorsed "Official business, Census Office," shall be transmitted free of postage, and by registered mail if necessary, and so marked: Provided, That if any person shall make use of such indorsement to avoid the payment of postage or registry fee on his or her private letter, package, or other matter in the mail, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to a fine of $300, to be prosecuted in any court of competent jurisdiction. [40 Stat. L. 1301.]

SEC. 30. [Information furnished by different departments of government.] That the Secretary of Commerce, whenever he may deem it advisable, on request of the Director of the Census, is hereby authorized to call upon any other department or office of the Government for information pertinent to the work herein provided for. [40 Stat. L. 1301.]

SEC. 31. [Census of agriculture and live stock—provisions for taking—scope.] That there shall be in the year nineteen hundred and twenty-five, and once every ten years thereafter, a census of agriculture and live stock, which shall show the acreage of farm land, the acreage of the principal crops, and the number and value of domestic animals on the farms and ranges of the country. The schedule employed in this census shall be prepared by the Director of the Census. Such census shall be taken as of the first day of January and shall relate to the preceding calendar year. The Director of the Census may appoint enumerators or special agents for the purpose of this census in accordance with the provisions of the permanent census Act. [40 Stat. L. 1301.]

SEC. 32. [Statistics of products of manufacturing industries—collection and publication.] That the Director of the Census be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to collect and publish, for the years nineteen hundred and twenty-one, nineteen hundred and twenty-three, nineteen hundred and twenty-five, and nineteen hundred and twenty-seven, and for every tenth year after each of said years, statistics of the products of manufacturing industries; and the director is hereby authorized to prepare such schedules as in his judgment may be necessary. [40 Stat. L. 1301.]

SEC. 33. [Population or agricultural returns — certified copies to states or courts of record — individuals furnished data— statistical compilations.] That the Director of the Census be, and he is hereby, authorized, at his discretion, upon the written request of the governor of any State or Territory or of a court of record, to furnish such governor or court of record with certified copies of so much of the population or agricultural returns as may be requested, upon the payment of the actual cost of making such copies and $1 additional for certification; and that the Director of the Census is further authorized, in his discretion, to furnish to individuals such data from the population schedules as may be desired for genealogical or other proper purposes, upon payment of the actual cost of searching the records and $1 for supplying a certificate; and that the Director of the Census is authorized to furnish transcripts of tables and other records and to prepare special statistical compilations for State or local officials, private concerns, or individuals upon the payment of the actual cost of such work: Provided, however, That in no case shall information furnished under the authority of this Act be used to the detriment of the person or persons to whom such information relates. All moneys hereafter received by the Bureau of the Census in payment for labor and materials used in furnishing transcripts of census records or special statistical compilations from such records shall be deposited to the credit of the appropriation for collecting statistics. [40 Stat. L. 1301.]

SEC. 34. [Prior statutes how affected by Act.] That the Act establishing the permanent Census Office, approved March sixth, nineteen hundred and two, and Acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, except as are herein amended, shall remain in full force. That the Act entitled "An Act to provide for the thirteenth and subsequent decennial censuses," approved July second, nineteen hundred and nine, and Acts amendatory thereof, and all other laws and parts of laws inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, are hereby repealed. [40 Stat. L. 1302.]

[Purchase of metal for minor coinage — minor coinage profit fund — R. S. sec. 3528 amended.] That section thirty-five hundred and twenty-eight of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 3528. For the purchase of metal for the minor coinage, authorized by this Act, a sum not exceeding $400,000 in lawful money of the United States shall, upon the recommendation of the Director of the Mint and in such sums as he may designate, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, be transferred to the credit of the superintendents of the mints at Philadelphia, San Francisco, and Denver, at which establishments, until otherwise provided by law, such coinage shall be carried on. The superintendents, with the approval of the Director of the Mint as to price, terms, and quantity shall purchase the metal required for such coinage by public advertisement, and the lowest and best bid shall be accepted, the fineness of the metals to be determined on the mint assay. The gain arising from the coinage of such metals into coin of a nominal value, exceeding the cost thereof, shall be credited to the special fund denominated the minor coinage profit fund; and this fund shall be charged with the wastage incurred in such coinage, and with the cost of distributing said coins, as hereinafter provided. The balance remaining to the credit of this fund, and any balance of the profits accrued from minor coinage under former Acts, shall be, from time to time, and at least twice a year, covered into the Treasury of the United States." SEC. 1303. [Legislative Drafting Service—creation—membership—compensation, etc.—duties—appropriation.] (a) That there is hereby created a Legislative Drafting Service under the direction of two draftsmen, one of whom shall be appointed by the President of the Senate, and one by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, without reference to political affiliations and solely on the ground of fitness to perform the duties of the office. Each draftsman shall receive a salary of $5,000 a year, payable monthly. The draftsmen shall, subject to the approval of the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, employ and fix the compensation of such assistant draftsmen, clerks, and other employees, and purchase such furniture, office equipment, books, stationery, and other supplies, as may be necessary for the proper performance of the duties of the service and as may be appropriated for by Congress.

(b) The Drafting Service shall aid in drafting public bills and resolutions or amendments thereto on the request of any committee of either House of Congress, but the Library Committee of the Senate and the Library Committee of the House of Representatives, respectively, may determine the preference, if any, to be given to such requests of the committees of either House, respectively. The draftsmen shall, from time to time, prescribe rules and regulations for the conduct of the work of the service for the committees of each House, subject to the approval of the Library Committee of each House, respectively.

(c) For the remainder of the current fiscal year there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $25,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the establishment and maintenance of the service, including the payment of salaries herein authorized. One-half of all appropriations for the service shall be disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate and one-half by the Clerk of the House of Representatives. [40 Stat. L. 1141.]

An Act To amend sections 8 and 21 of the Copyright Act, approved March 4, 1909.

[Act of Dec. 18, 1919, ch. —, 41 Stat. L. —.]

[Persons entitled to copyright — aliens — ad interim protection of book published abroad — sections 8 and 21 amended.] That sections 8 and 21 of the Act entitled "An Act to amend and consolidate the Acts respecting copyright," approved March 4, 1909, be amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 8. That the author or proprietor of any work made the subject of copyright by this Act, or his executors, administrators, or assigns, shall have copyright for such work under the conditions and for the terms specified in this Act: Provided, however, That the copyright secured by this Act shall extend to the work of an author or proprietor who is a citizen or subject of a foreign State or nation only:

"(a) When an alien author or proprietor shall be domiciled within the United States at the time of the first publication of his work; or

"(b) When the foreign State or nation of which such author or proprietor is a citizen or subject grants, either by treaty, convention, agreement, or law, to citizens of the United States the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as to its own citizens, or copyright protection substantially equal to the protection secured to such foreign author under this Act or by treaty; or when such foreign State or nation is a party to an international agreement which provides for reciprocity in the granting of copyright, by the terms of which agreement the United States may, at its pleasure, become a party thereto.

"The existence of the reciprocal conditions aforesaid shall be determined by the President of the United States, by proclamation made from time to time, as the purposes of this Act may require: Provided, however, That all works made the subject of copyright by the laws of the United States first produced or published abroad after August 1, 1914, and before the date of the President's proclamation of peace, of which the authors or proprietors are citizens or subjects of any foreign State or nation granting similar protection for works by citizens of the United States, the existence of which shall be determined by a copyright proclamation issued by the President of the United States, shall be entitled to the protection conferred by the copyright laws of the United States from and after the accomplishment, before the expiration of fifteen months after the date of the President's proclamation of peace, of the conditions and formalities prescribed with respect to such works by the copyright laws of the United States: Provided further, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to deprive any person of any right which he may have acquired by the republication of such foreign work in the United States prior to the approval of this Act.

"SEC. 21. That in the case of a book first published abroad in the English language on or after the date of the President's proclamation of peace, the deposit in the copyright office, not later than sixty days after its publication abroad, of one complete copy of the foreign edition, with a request for the reservation of the copyright and a statement of the name and nationality of the author and of the copyright proprietor and of the date of publication of the said book, shall secure to the author or proprietor an ad interim copyright, which shall have all the force and effect given to copyright by this Act, and shall endure until the expiration of four months after such deposit in the copyright office." [41 Stat. L. —.]

SEC. 9. [War Finance Corporation — advances to promote commerce with foreign nations — to whom made — conditions and limitations.] That the War Finance Corporation Act is hereby amended by adding to Title I thereof a new section, to read as follows:

“SEC. 21. (a) That the Corporation shall be empowered and authorized, in order to promote commerce with foreign nations through the extension of credits, to make advances upon such terms, not inconsistent with the provisions of this section, as it may prescribe, for periods not exceeding five years from the respective dates of such advances:

“(1) To any person, firm, corporation, or association engaged in the business in the United States of exporting therefrom domestic products to foreign countries, if such person, firm, corporation, or association is, in the opinion of the board of directors of the Corporation, unable to obtain funds upon reasonable terms through banking channels. Any such advance shall be made only for the purpose of assisting in the exportation of such products, and shall be limited in amount to not more than the contract price therefor, including insurance and carrying or transportation charges to the foreign point of destination if and to the extent that such insurance and carrying or transportation charges are payable in the United States by such exporter to domestic insurers and carriers. The rate of interest charged on any such advance shall not be less than 1 per centum per annum in excess of the rate of discount for ninety-day commercial paper prevailing at the time of such advance at the Federal reserve bank of the district in which the borrower is located; and

“(2) To any bank, banker, or trust company in the United States which after this section takes effect makes an advance to any such person, firm, corporation, or association for the purpose of assisting in the exportation of such products. Any such advance shall not exceed the amount remaining unpaid of the advances made by such bank, banker, or trust company to such person, firm, corporation, or association for such purpose.

“(b) The aggregate of the advances made by the Corporation under this section remaining unpaid shall never at any time exceed the sum of $1,000,000,000.

“(c) Notwithstanding the limitation of section 1 the advances provided for by this section may be made until the expiration of one year after the termination of the war between the United States and the German Government as fixed by proclamation of the President. Any such advance made by the Corporation shall be made upon the promissory note or notes of the borrower, with full and adequate security in each instance by indorsement, guaranty, or otherwise. The Corporation shall retain power to require additional security at any time. The Corporation in its discretion may upon like security extend the time of payment of any such advance through renewals, the substitution of new obligations, or otherwise, but the time for the payment of any such advance shall not be extended beyond five years from the date on which it was originally made." [40 Stat. L. 1313.]

This and section 10, which follows, are from the Act of March 3, 1919, ch. 100, entitled "An Act To amend the Liberty Bond Acts and the War Finance Corporation Act, and for other purposes."

The War Finance Corporation Act here amended will be found in 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 107 et seq.

SEC. 10. [Earnings — reserve fund — Federal Reserve Banks as depositaries and fiscal agents — liquidation of assets — winding up affairs.] That section 15 of the War Finance Corporation Act is hereby amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 15. That all net earnings of the Corporation not required for its operations shall be accumulated as a reserve fund until such time as the Corporation liquidates under the terms of this title. Such reserve fund shall, upon the direction of the board of directors, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, be invested in bonds and obligations of the United States, issued or converted after September 24, 1917, or upon like direction and approval may be deposited in member banks of the Federal Reserve System, or in any of the Federal reserve banks, or be used from time to time, as well as any other funds of the Corporation, in the purchase or redemption of any bonds issued by the Corporation. The Federal reserve banks are hereby authorized to act as depositaries for and as fiscal agents of the Corporation in the general performance of the powers conferred by this title. Beginning twelve months after the termination of the war, the date of such termination to be fixed by a proclamation of the President of the United States, the directors of the Corporation shall proceed to liquidate its assets and to wind up its affairs, but the directors of the Corporation, in their discretion, may, from time to time, prior to such date, sell and dispose of any securities or other property acquired by the Corporation. Any balance remaining after the payment of all its debts shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts, and thereupon the Corporation shall be dissolved." [40 Stat. L. 1314.]

SEC. 5. [War Finance Corporation — advances to banks and trust companies — power to make — amount — security.] That the proviso to paragraph two, section seven, of the Act approved April fifth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, entitled "An Act to provide further for the national security and defense, and for the purpose of assisting in the prosecution of the war to provide credits for industries and enterprises in the United States necessary or contributory to the prosecution of the war, and to supervise the issuance of securities, and for other purposes," be, and is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"Provided, That every such advance shall be secured in the manner described in the preceding part of this section and (except in the case of an advance secured by a loan for agricultural purposes or a loan based on live stock) in addition thereto by collateral security, to be furnished by the bank, banker, or trust company of such character as shall be prescribed by the board of directors of a value at the time of such advance (as estimated and determined by the board of directors of the Corporation) equal to at least thirty-three per centum of the amount advanced by the Corporation. The Corporation shall retain power to require additional security at any time." [40 Stat. L. 1049.]

This is from the Act of Nov. 21, 1918, ch. 212, entitled "An Act To enable the Secretary of Agriculture to carry out, during the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, the purposes of the Act entitled 'An Act to provide further for the national security and defense by stimulating agriculture and facilitating the distribution of agricultural products,' and for other purposes."

TITLE II.—DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA RENTS.<sup>1</sup>

SEC. 101. [Terms defined — “rental property” — “person” — “hotel” — “apartment” — “owner” — “tenant” — “service” — “commission.”] When used in this title, unless the context indicates otherwise —

The term “rental property” means any building or part thereof or land appurtenant thereto in the District of Columbia rented or hired and the service agreed or required by law or by determination of the commission to be furnished in connection therewith; but does not include an hotel or apartment.

The term “person” includes an individual, partnership, association, or corporation.

The term “hotel” or “apartment” means any hotel or apartment or part thereof, in the District of Columbia, rented or hired and the land and out-buildings appurtenant thereto, and the service agreed or required by law or by determination of the commission to be furnished in connection therewith.

The term “owner” includes a lessor or sublessor, or other person entitled to receive rent or charges for the use or occupancy of any rental property, hotel or apartment, or any interest therein, or his agent.

The term “tenant” includes a subtenant, lessee, sublessee or other person, not the owner, entitled to the use or occupancy of any rental property, hotel or apartment.

The term “service” includes the furnishing of light, heat, water, telephone or elevator service, furniture, furnishings, window shades, screens, awnings, storage, kitchen, bath and laundry facilities and privileges, maid service, janitor service, removal of refuse, making all repairs suited to the type of building or necessitated by ordinary wear and tear, and any other privilege or service connected with the use or occupancy of any rental property, apartment, or hotel.

The term “commission” means the Rent Commission of the District of Columbia. [41 Stat. L. 298.]

SEC. 102. [Rent Commission — creation — appointment of commissioners — term — vacancies — organization — seal.] A commission is hereby created and established, to be known as the Rent Commission of the District of Columbia, which shall be composed of three commissioners, none of whom shall be directly or indirectly engaged in, or in any manner interested in or connected with, the real estate or renting business in the District of Columbia. The commissioners shall be appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The term of each commissioner shall be two years, except that any person chosen to fill a vacancy shall be appointed only for the unexpired term of the commissioner whom he succeeds. The commission shall at the time of its organization and annually thereafter elect a chairman from its own membership. The commission may make such regulations as may be necessary to carry this title into effect.

All powers and duties of the commission may be exercised by a majority of its members. A vacancy in the commission shall not impair the right of the remaining commissioners to exercise all the powers of the commission. The commission shall have an official seal, which shall be judicially noticed. [41 Stat. L. 299.]

SEC. 103. [Salaries and expenditures — employees.] Each commissioner shall receive a salary of $5,000 a year, payable monthly. The commission shall appoint a secretary, who shall receive a salary of $3,000 a year, payable in like manner; and, subject to the provisions of the civil-service laws, it may appoint and remove such officers, employees, and agents and make such expenditures for rent, printing, telegrams, telephone, law books, books of reference, periodicals, furniture, stationery, office equipment, and other supplies and expenses as may be necessary to the administration of this title. All of the expenditures of the commission shall upon the presentation of itemized vouchers therefor approved by the chairman of the commission be audited and paid in the same manner as other expenditures for the District of Columbia.

With the exception of the secretary, all employees of the commission shall be appointed from lists of eligibles supplied by the Civil Service Commission and in accordance with the civil-service law. [41 Stat. L. 299.]

SEC. 104. [Advisory assistant to commission — data supplied commission by Government employees.] The assessor of the District of Columbia shall serve ex officio as an advisory assistant to the commission, but he shall have none of the powers or duties of a commissioner. He shall attend the meetings and hearings of the commission. Every officer or employee of the United States or of the District of Columbia, whenever requested by the commission, shall supply to the commission any data or information pertaining to the administration of this title which may be contained in the records of his office. The assessor shall receive for the performance of the duties required by this section a salary of $1,000 per annum, payable monthly, in addition to such other salary as may be prescribed for his office by law. [4v Stat. L. 299.]

SEC. 105. [Access to records — attendance and testimony of witnesses — production of books, etc.] For the purposes of this title the commission or any officer, employee, or agent duly authorized in writing by it, shall at all reasonable times have access to, for the purpose of examination, and the right to copy, any books, accounts, records, papers, or correspondence relating to any matter which the commission is authorized to consider or investigate; and the commission shall have power to require by subpoena the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of all such books, accounts, records, papers, and correspondence relating to any such matter. Any member of the commission may sign subpoenas, administer oaths and affirmations, examine witnesses, and receive evidence.

Such attendance of witnesses and the production of such books, accounts, records, papers, and correspondence may be required from any place in the United States at any designated place of hearing. In case of disobedience to a subpoena or of the contumacy of any witness appearing before the commission, the commission may invoke the aid of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia or of any district court of the United States. Such court may thereupon issue an order requiring the person subpoenaed to obey the subpoena, or to give evidence touching the matter in question. Any failure to obey such order of the court may be punished by such court as a contempt thereof. No officer or employee of the commission shall, unless authorized by the commission or by a court of competent jurisdiction, make public any information obtained by the commission. [41 Stat. L. 300.]

SEC. 106. [Rents to be reasonable—determination by commission.] For the purposes of this title it is declared that all (a) rental property and (b) apartments and hotels are affected with a public interest, and that all rents and charges therefor, all service in connection therewith, and all other terms and conditions of the use or occupancy thereof, shall be fair and reasonable; and any unreasonable or unfair provision of a lease or other contract for the use or occupancy of such rental property, apartment, or hotel with respect to such rents, charges, service, terms, or conditions is hereby declared to be contrary to public policy. The commission upon its own initiative may, or upon complaint shall, determine whether the rent, charges, service, and other terms or conditions of a lease or other contract for the use or occupancy of any such rental property, hotel, or apartment are fair and reasonable. Such complaints may be made (a) by or on behalf of any tenant, and (b) by any owner except where the tenant is in possession under a lease or other contract, the term specified in which has not expired, and the fairness and reasonableness of which has not been determined by the commission.

In all such cases the commission shall give notice personally or by registered mail and afford an opportunity to be heard to all parties in interest. The commission shall promptly hear and determine the issues involved in all complaints submitted to it. All hearings before the commission shall be open to the public. If the commission determines that such rents, charges, service, or other terms or conditions are unfair or unreasonable, it shall determine and fix such fair and reasonable rent or charges therefor, and fair and reasonable service, terms, and conditions of use or occupancy. In any suit in any court of the United States or the District of Columbia involving any question arising out of the relation of landlord and tenant with respect to any rental property, apartment, or hotel, except on appeal from the commission's determination as provided in this title, such court shall determine the rights and duties of the parties in accordance with the determination and regulations of the commission relevant thereto. [41 Stat. L. 300.]

SEC. 107. [Determination of commission fixing reasonable rent—when effective—adjustment of any differences in rent.] A determination of the commission fixing a fair and reasonable rent or charge made in a proceeding begun by complaint shall be effective from the date of the filing of the complaint. The difference between the amount of rent and charges paid for the period from the filing of the complaint to the date of the commission's determination and the amount that would have been payable for such period at the fair and reasonable rate fixed by the commission may be added to or subtracted from, as the case demands, future rent payments, or after the final decision of an appeal from the commission's determination may be sued for and recovered in an action in the Municipal Court of the District of Columbia. [41 Stat. L. 300.]

commission shall be final and conclusive. If such an appeal is taken from the determination of the commission, the record before the commission or such part thereof as the court may order shall be certified by it to the court and shall constitute the record before the court, and the commission's determination shall not be modified or set aside by the court, except for error of law. If any party applies to the court for leave to adduce additional evidence and shows to the satisfaction of the court that such additional evidence is material and that there were reasonable grounds for the failure to adduce such evidence in the proceeding before the commission, the court may order such additional evidence to be taken before the commission and to be adduced upon the hearing in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as the court may deem proper. The commission may modify its findings as to the facts, or make new findings, by reason of the additional evidence so taken, and it shall file such modified or new findings, which shall be conclusive, and its recommendations if any for the modification or setting aside of its original determination, with the return of such additional evidence. In the proceedings before such court on appeal from a determination of the commission, the commission shall appear by its counsel or other representative and submit oral or written arguments to support the findings and the determination of the commission. [41 Stat. L. 301.]

SEC. 109. [Rights of tenant on expiration of term — effect of sale of leased property.] The right of a tenant to the use or occupancy of any rental property, hotel or apartment, existing at the time this Act takes effect, or thereafter acquired, under any lease or other<sup>1</sup> contract for such use or occupancy or under any extension thereof by operation of law, shall, notwithstanding the expiration of the term fixed by such lease or contract, continue at the option of the tenant subject, however, to any determination or regulation of the commission relevant thereto; and such tenant shall not be evicted or dispossessed so long as he pays the rent and performs the other terms and conditions of the tenancy as fixed by such lease or contract, or in case such lease or contract is modified by any determination or regulation of the commission, then as fixed by such modified lease or contract. All remedies of the owner at law or equity, based on any provision of any such lease or contract to the effect that such lease or contract shall be determined or forfeited if the premises are sold, are hereby suspended so long as this title is in force. Every purchaser shall take conveyance of any rental property, hotel, or apartment subject to the rights of tenants as provided in this title. The rights of the tenant under this title shall be subject to the limitation that the bona fide owner of any rental property, apartment, or hotel shall have the right to possession thereof for actual and bona fide occupancy by himself, or his wife, children, or dependents, or for the purpose of tearing down or razing the same in order immediately to construct new rental property, hotel, or apartment if approved by the commission, upon giving thirty days' notice in writing, served in the manner provided by section 1223 of the Act entitled "An Act to establish a code of laws for the District of Columbia," approved May 3, 1901, as amended, which notice shall contain a full and correct statement of the facts and circumstances upon which the same is based; but in no case shall possession be demanded or obtained by such owner in contravention of the terms of any such lease or contract. If there is a dispute between the owner and the tenant as to the accuracy or sufficiency of the statement set forth in such notice, as to the good faith of such demand, or as the service of notice, the matters in dispute shall be determined by the commission upon complaint as provided in section 106 of this title. [41 Stat. L. 301.]

SEC. 110. [Determination of commission as affected by pendency of appeal.] Pending the final decision on appeal from a determination of the commission, the commission's determination shall be in full force and effect and the appeal shall not operate as a supersedeas or in any manner stay or postpone the enforcement of the determination appealed from. Immediately upon the entry of a final decision on the appeal the commission shall, if necessary, modify its determination in order to make it conform to such decision. The difference, if any, between the amount of rent and charges paid for the period from the date of the filing by the commission of the determination appealed from and the amount that would have been payable for such period under the determination as modified in accordance with the final decision on appeal may be added to or allowed on account of, as the case demands, future rent payments or may be sued for and recovered in an action in the Municipal Court in the District of Columbia. [41 Stat. L. 302.]

SEC. 111. [Determination of commission fixing reasonable rates — effect — change in ownership or tenancy.] The determination of the commission in a proceeding begun by complaint or upon its own initiative fixing fair and reasonable rents, charges, service, and other terms and conditions of use or occupancy of any rental property, hotel, or apartment shall constitute the commission's determination of the fairness and reasonableness of such rents, charges, service, terms, or conditions for the rental property, hotel, or apartment affected, and shall remain in full force and effect notwithstanding any change in ownership or tenancy thereof, unless and until the commission modifies or sets aside such determination upon complaint either of the owner or of the tenant. [41 Stat. L. 302.]

SEC. 112. [Noncompliance with determination of commission — collection of excess rent — penalty.] If the owner of any rental property, apartment, or hotel collects any rent or charge therefor in excess of the amount fixed in a determination of the commission made and in full force and effect in accordance with the provisions of this title, he shall be liable for and the commission is hereby authorized and directed to commence an action in the Municipal Court in the District of Columbia to recover double the amount of such excess, together with the costs of the proceeding which shall include an attorney's fee of $50, to be taxed as part of the costs. Out of any sums received on account of such recovery the commission shall pay over to the tenant the amount of the excess so paid by him and the balance shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia: Provided, That if the commission finds that such excess was paid by the tenant voluntarily and with knowledge of the commission's determination, the whole amount of such recovery shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia. [41 Stat. L. 302.]

the commission, begun by complaint or on the commission's own initiative, and involving any lease or other contract for the use or occupancy of any rental property, hotel, or apartment the commission finds that at any time after the passage of this Act but during the tenancy the owner has, directly or indirectly, willfully withdrawn from the tenant any service agreed or required by a determination of the commission to be furnished, or has by act, neglect, or omission contrary to such lease or contract or to the law or any ordinance or regulation made in pursuance of law, or of a determination of the commission, exposed the tenant, directly or indirectly, to any unsafe or insanitary condition or imposed upon him any burden, loss, or unusual inconvenience in connection with his use or occupancy of such rental property, hotel, or apartment, the commission shall determine the sum which in its judgment will fairly and reasonably compensate or reimburse the tenant therefor. In any such proceeding involving a lease or other contract, the term specified in which had not expired at the time the proceeding was begun, the commission shall likewise determine the amount or value of any bonus or other consideration in excess of the rental named in such lease or contract received at any time directly or indirectly by the owner in connection with such lease or contract. The tenant may recover any amount so determined by the commission in an action in the Municipal Court of the District of Columbia. [41 Stat. L. 302.]

SEC. 114. [Duty of commission to sue in behalf of tenant — costs.] Whenever under this title a tenant is entitled to bring suit to recover any sum due him under any determination of the commission, the commission shall, upon application by the tenant and without expense to him, commence and prosecute in the municipal court of the District of Columbia an action on behalf of the tenant for the recovery of the amount due, and in such case the court shall include in any judgment rendered in favor of the tenant the costs of the action, including a reasonable attorney's fee, to be fixed by the court. Such costs and attorney's fee when recovered shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia. [41 Stat. L. 302.]

SEC. 115. [Procedure before commission.] The commission shall, by general order, from time to time prescribe the procedure to be followed in all proceedings under its jurisdiction. Such procedure shall be as simple and summary as may be practicable, and the commission and parties appearing before it shall not be bound by technical rules of evidence or of pleading. [41 Stat. L. 302.]

SEC. 116. [Avoidance of provisions of title — penalty.] Any person who with intent to avoid the provisions of this title enters into any agreement or arrangement for the payment of any bonus or other consideration in connection with any lease or other contract for the use or occupancy of any rental property, hotel, or apartment, or who participates in any fictitious sale or other device or arrangement the purpose of which is to grant or obtain the use or occupancy of any rental property, hotel, or apartment without subjecting such use or occupancy to the provisions of this title or to the jurisdiction of the commission shall upon conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000 or by imprisonment for not exceeding one year or by both. [41 Stat. L. 303.]

forms of leases and other contracts for the use or occupancy of any rental property, hotel, or apartment and shall require their use by the owner thereof. Every such lease or contract entered into after the commission has prescribed and promulgated a form for the tenancy provided by such lease or contract shall be deemed to accord with such standard form; and any such lease or contract in any proceeding before the commission or in any court of the United States or of the District of Columbia shall be interpreted, applied, and enforced in the same manner as if it were in the form and contained the stipulations of such standard form.

The owner of an hotel or apartment shall file with the commission plans and other data in such detail as the commission requires, descriptive of the rooms, accommodations and service in connection with such hotel or apartment, and a schedule of rates and charges therefor. The commission shall, after consideration of such plans, schedules, data, or other information, determine and fix a schedule of fair and reasonable rates and charges for such hotels or apartments; and the rates and charges stated in such schedule shall thereafter constitute the fair and reasonable rates and charges for such hotel or apartment. The commission's determination in such case shall be made after such notice and hearing and shall have the same force and effect and be subject to appeal in the same manner as a determination of the commission under section 106 of this title. [41 Stat. L. 303.]

SEC. 118. [Assignment of leases — subletting of leased property — rate of rent.] No tenant shall assign his lease of or sublet any rental property or apartment at a rate in excess of the rate paid by him under his lease without the consent of the commission upon application in a particular case, and in such case the commission shall determine a fair and reasonable rate of rent or charge for such assignment or sublease. [41 Stat. L. 304.]

SEC. 119. [Conflicting laws — repeal or suspension.] The public resolution entitled "Joint resolution to prevent [rent] profiteering in the District of Columbia," approved May 31, 1918, as amended, is hereby repealed, to take effect sixty days after the date of the confirmation by the Senate of the commissioners first nominated by the President under the provisions of this title; but a determination by the commission made within such period of sixty days shall be enforced in accordance with the provisions of this title, notwithstanding the provisions of such public resolution. All laws or parts of laws in conflict with any provisions of this title are hereby suspended so long as this title is in force to the extent that they are in such conflict. [41 Stat. L. 304.]

For resolution of May 31, 1918, affected by the text see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 151. The resolution was amended by the District of Columbia Appropriation Act of July 11, 1919, sec. 13, which provided as follows: "That the provisions of the joint resolution entitled 'Joint resolution to prevent rent profiteering in the District of Columbia,' approved May 31, 1918, are extended and continued in full force and effect for a period of ninety days following the definite conclusion of a treaty of peace between the United States and the Imperial German Government."

SEC. 120. [Appropriation to carry out provisions of title.] The sum of $50,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated and made immediately available to carry out the provisions of this title, one-half thereof to be paid out of money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated and the other one-half out of the revenues of the District of Columbia, [41 Stat. L. 304.]

SEC. 121. [Invalidity of part of act — effect as to remainder.] If any clause, sentence, paragraph, or part of this title shall be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair, or invalidate the remainder thereof but shall be confined in its operations to the clause, sentence, paragraph, or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment shall have been rendered. [41 Stat. L. 304.]

SEC. 122. [Declaration of reason for act — termination.] It is hereby declared that the provisions of this title are made necessary by emergencies growing out of the war with the Imperial German Government, resulting in rental conditions in the District of Columbia dangerous to the public health and burdensome to public officers and employees whose duties require them to reside within the District and other persons whose activities are essential to the maintenance and comfort of such officers and employees, and thereby embarrassing the Federal Government in the transaction of the public business. It is also declared that this title shall be considered temporary legislation, and that it shall terminate on the expiration of two years from the date of the passage of this Act, unless sooner repealed. L. 1348.]*

For Act of Aug. 10, 1917, sec. 14, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 187.

SEC. 2. [Authority of President how exercised.] That, in carrying out the provisions of this Act, the President is authorized to make such regulations and issue such orders as may be necessary, to enter into any voluntary arrangements or agreements, to use any existing agency or agencies, to accept the services of any person without compensation, to cooperate with any agency or person, to utilize any department or agency of the Government, including the Food Administration Grain Corporation, and to coordinate their activities so as to avoid any preventable loss or duplication of effort or funds. [40 Stat. L. 1348.]

SEC. 3. [Purchase of wheat by President—transportation and storage.] That whenever the President shall find it essential, in order to carry out the guaranties aforesaid or to protect the United States against undue enhancement of its liabilities thereunder, he is authorized to buy, or contract for the purchase of, wheat of said crops of nineteen hundred and eighteen and nineteen hundred and nineteen at the places designated for the delivery of the same by the President's proclamations or such other places as he may designate, for cash at the said guaranteed prices and he is authorized thereafter to buy or contract for the purchase of, for cash, or sell, consign, or contract for the sale of, for cash or on credit, wheat of the said crops of nineteen hundred and eighteen and nineteen hundred and nineteen and flour produced therefrom at the said guaranteed prices or at such other prices and on such terms or conditions as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act and to enable the people of the United States to purchase wheat products at a reasonable price; to make reasonable compensation for handling, transportation, insurance, and other charges with respect to wheat and wheat flour of said crops, and for storage thereof in elevators, on farms, and elsewhere; to take such steps, to make such arrangements, and to adopt such methods as may be necessary to maintain and assure an adequate and continuous flow of wheat and wheat flour in the channels of trade, including the protection or indemnification of millers, wholesalers, jobbers, bakers, and retail merchants who purchase in carload lots against actual loss by them on account of abnormal fluctuations in the price of wheat and wheat flour of said crops due to the action of the Government; to borrow such sums of money as may be secured by the property or other assets acquired under this Act; to lease and utilize storage facilities for, and to store, such wheat and wheat flour; and to requisition storage facilities therefor. He shall ascertain and pay a just compensation for facilities so requisitioned. If the compensation so ascertained by the President be not satisfactory to the person entitled to receive the same, such person shall be paid seventy-five per centum of such amount and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as, added to said seventy-five per centum, will make up such amount as will be just compensation for such facilities; and jurisdiction is hereby conferred on the United States district courts to hear and determine all such controversies. [40 Stat. L. 1348.]

SEC. 4. [Unjust market manipulations, etc.—regulations—open market.] That whenever the President shall find that operations, practices, or transactions, at, on, in, or under the rules of any exchange, board of trade, or similar institution or place of business cause or are likely to cause unjust market manipulation, or unfair and misleading market quotations, or undue depression or fluctuation of the prices of, or injurious speculation in, wheat or wheat flour, hereafter in this section called evil practices, calculated or likely to enhance unduly the liabilities of the United States under the said guaranties, he is authorized to prescribe such regulations governing, or may either wholly or partly prohibit, operations, practices, and transactions in wheat or wheat flour at, on, in, or under the rules of any exchange, board of trade, or similar institution or place of business as he may find essential in order to prevent, correct, or remove such evil practices. Such regulations may require all persons coming within their provisions to keep such records and statements of account, and may require such persons to make such returns, verified under oath or otherwise, as will fully and correctly disclose all transactions in wheat or wheat flour at, in, on, or under the rules of any such exchange, board of trade, or similar institution or place of business, including the making, execution, settlement, and fulfillment thereof.

He may also require all persons acting in the capacity of a clearing house, clearing association, or similar institution, for the purpose of clearing, settling, or adjusting transactions in wheat or wheat flour at, in, on, or under the rules of any such exchange, board of trade, or similar institution or place of business, to keep such records and to make such returns as will fully and correctly disclose all facts in their possession relating to such transactions, and he may appoint agents to conduct all investigations necessary to enforce the provisions of this section and all regulations made by him in pursuance thereof, and may fix and pay the compensation of such agents. Any person who intentionally and willfully violates any regulation made pursuant to this section, or who knowingly engages in any operation, practice, or transaction prohibited pursuant to this section, or who intentionally and willfully aids or abets in such violation, or any such prohibited operation, practice, or transaction, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000. The President shall take seasonable steps to provide for and to permit the establishment of a free and open market for the purchase, sale, and handling of wheat and wheat products upon the expiration of this Act. [40 Stat. L. 1349.]

SEC. 5. [Licenses to persons in business affecting wheat — regulations — unfair practices — revocation of licenses.] That, from time to time, whenever the President shall find it essential to license any business of importation, exportation, manufacture, storage, or distribution of wheat or wheat flour in order to carry into effect any of the purposes of this Act, and shall publicly so announce: Provided, That as between the two articles mentioned preference shall be given to the exportation of flour, except when the public interest would, in the judgment of the President, be injuriously affected thereby, no person shall, after a date fixed in the announcement, engage in or carry on any such business specified in the announcement unless he shall secure and hold a license issued pursuant to this section. The regulations prescribed pursuant to this Act may include requirements with respect to the issuance of licenses, systems of accounts, and the auditing of accounts to be kept by licensees, submission of reports by them, with or without oath or affirmation, and the entry and inspection by the President's duly authorized agents of the places of business of licensees. It shall be unlawful for any licensee to engage in any unfairly discriminatory or deceptive practice or device, or to make any unjust or unreasonable rate, commission, or charge, or to exact an unreasonable profit or price, in handling or dealing in or with wheat, wheat flour, bran, and shorts. Whenever the President shall find that any practice, device, rate, commission, charge, profit, or price of any licensee is unfairly discriminatory, deceptive, unjust, or unreasonable, and shall order such licensee, within a reasonable time fixed in the order, to discontinue the same, unless such order, which shall recite the facts found, is revoked or suspended, such licensee shall, within the time prescribed in the order, discontinue such unfairly discriminatory, deceptive, unjust, or unreasonable practice, device, rate, commission, charge, profit, or price. The President may, in lieu of any such unfairly discriminatory, deceptive, unjust, or unreasonable practice, device, rate, commission, charge, profit, or price, find what is a fair, just, or reasonable practice, device, rate, commission, charge, profit, or price, and in any proceeding brought in any court such order of the President shall be prima facie evidence. Any person who, without a license issued pursuant to this section, or whose license shall have been suspended or revoked after opportunity to be heard has been afforded him, intentionally and knowingly engages in or carries on any business for which a license is required under this section, or intentionally and willfully fails or refuses to discontinue any unfairly discriminatory, deceptive, unjust, or unreasonable practice, device, rate, commission, charge, profit, or price, in accordance with the requirement of an order issued under this section, or intentionally and willfully violates any regulation prescribed under this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000: Provided, That this section shall not apply to any farmer or cooperative association of farmers or other person with respect to the products of any farm or other land owned, leased, or cultivated by him, nor to any common carrier. [40 Stat. L. 1350.]

SEC. 6. [Imports and exports — regulations — preference given to ports of one State over those of another — additional customs duty.] That whenever the President shall find it essential in carrying out the guaranties aforesaid, or to protect the United States against undue enhancement of its liabilities thereunder, and shall make proclamation thereof, it shall be unlawful to import into the United States from any country named in such proclamation, or to export from or ship from or take out of the United States to any country named in such proclamation, wheat, semolina, or wheat flour, except at such time or times, and under such regulations or orders, and subject to such limitations and exceptions as the President shall prescribe, until otherwise ordered by the President or by Congress: Provided, That no preference shall be given to the ports of one State over those of another. Any person who shall import, export, ship, or take out of the United States, or attempt to import, export, ship, or take out of the United States, any wheat, semolina, or wheat flour in violation of this section or of any regulation or order made hereunder, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000: Provided further, That when the President finds that the importation into the United States of any wheat, semolina, or wheat flour produced outside of the United States materially enhances or is likely materially to enhance the liabilities of the United States under guaranties of prices therefor made pursuant to law, and ascertains what rate of duty, added to the then existing rate of duty on wheat and to the value of wheat, semolina, or wheat flour at the time of importation, would be sufficient to bring the price thereof at which imported up to the price fixed or prevailing under the direction of the President under or pursuant to this Act, he shall proclaim such facts, and thereafter there shall be levied, collected, and paid upon wheat, semolina, or wheat flour when imported in addition to the then existing rate of duty the rate of duty so ascertained; but in no case shall any such rate of duty be fixed at an amount which will effect a reduction of the rate of duty upon wheat, semolina, or wheat flour under any then existing tariff law of the United States. * * * [40 Stat. L. 1350.]

This section also contained at the end thereof an amendment to the Cotton Futures Act, which amendment is set out, infra, p. 195.

Presidential Proclamations.—On June 24, 1919, the President, by virtue of the first sentence of this section, issued a proclamation that it was essential in carrying out the guaranties aforesaid and to protect the United States against undue enhancement of its liabilities thereunder, that wheat and wheat flour on and after July 1, 1919, should not be imported into the United States, or exported from, or shipped from, or taken out of the United States, except at such time or times and under such regulations or orders and subject to such limitations and exceptions as should be prescribed until otherwise ordered by the President of the United States or by Congress. But on November 21, 1919, another proclamation was issued annulling the earlier proclamation. After referring to the earlier proclamation it continued as follows: "And whereas conditions relating to the necessity of maintaining an import and export embargo on wheat and wheat flour for the purposes above stated, have changed since the promulgation of the aforesaid Proclamation of June 24, 1919. Now therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, by virtue of the powers conferred upon me by said Act of Congress of March 4, 1919, and of all other Acts giving me power in the premises, do hereby find and determine and by this Proclamation do announce that it is not now essential in carrying out the guaranties aforesaid, or to protect the United States against undue enhancement of its liabilities thereunder, to continue the prohibitions and limitations on the importation and exportation of wheat and wheat flour into and from the United States, as prescribed in the above mentioned Proclamation of June 24, 1919, and I order and direct that such prohibitions and limitations on the importation and exportation of wheat and wheat flour be discontinued and cancelled, effective December 15, 1919."

SEC. 7. [False statements or representations.] That any person who intentionally and knowingly makes any false statement or representation to any officer, agent, or employee of the United States engaged in the performance of any duty under this Act, or falsely represents to any of said persons that the wheat he offers for sale was grown as a part of the nineteen hundred and eighteen or nineteen hundred and nineteen crops for the purpose of securing any of the benefits of the aforesaid guaranties, or any person who willfully assaults, resists, impedes, or interferes with any officer, agent, or employee of the United States in the execution of any duty authorized to be performed by or pursuant to this Act, or any person who intentionally and knowingly violates any regulation issued pursuant to this Act, except as otherwise made punishable in this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000. [40 Stat. L. 1352.]

SEC. 8. [Appropriation — receipts and disbursements — revolving fund.] That for carrying out the aforesaid guaranties and otherwise for the purposes of this Act, there is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be available during the time this Act is in effect, the sum of $1,000,000,000, of which not to exceed $3,000,000 may be used for such administrative expenses, including the payment of such rent, the expense, including postage, of such printing and publications, the purchase of such material and equipment, and the employment of such persons and means, in the District of Columbia and elsewhere, as the President may deem essential. Any moneys received by the United States from or in connection with the disposal by the United States of wheat or wheat flour under this Act may, in the discretion of the President, be used as a revolving fund for further carrying out the purposes of this Act. Any balance of such moneys not used as part of such revolving fund shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts: Provided, That no part of this appropriation shall be used to pay rent in the District of Columbia. [40 Stat. L. 1352.]

SEC. 9. [Report to Congress — contents.] That an itemized statement, covering all receipts and disbursements under this Act, shall be filed with the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives on or before the twenty-fifth day of each month after the taking effect of this Act, covering the business of the preceding month, and such statement shall be subject to public inspection. Not later than the expiration of sixty days after this Act shall cease to be in effect the President shall cause a detailed report to be made to the Congress of all proceedings had under this Act. Such report shall, in addition to other matters, contain an account of all persons appointed or employed, the salary or compensation paid or allowed each, the aggregate amount of the different kinds of property purchased or requisitioned, the use and disposition made of such property, and a statement of all receipts and expenditures, together with a statement showing the general character and estimated value of all property then on hand, and the aggregate amount and character of all claims against the United States growing out of this Act. [40 Stat. L. 1353.]

SEC. 10. [Construction of Act.] That words used in this Act shall be construed to import the plural or singular, as the case demands; the word "person," wherever used in this Act, shall include individuals, partnerships, associations, and corporations. When construing and enforcing the provisions of this Act, the act, omission, or failure of any official, agent, or other person acting for or employed by any individual, partnership, association, or corporation, within the scope of his employment or office, shall in every case also be deemed the act, omission, or failure of such individual, partnership, association, or corporation, as well as that of the person. [40 Stat. L. 1353.]

SEC. 11. [Termination of Act — enforcement of rights and liabilities arising before termination.] That the provisions of this Act shall cease to be in effect whenever the President shall find that the emergency growing out of the war with Germany has passed and that the further execution of the provisions of this Act is no longer necessary for its purposes, the date of which termination shall be ascertained and proclaimed by the President; but the date when this Act shall cease to be in effect shall not be later than the first day of June, nineteen hundred and twenty: Provided, That after June first, nineteen hundred and twenty, neither the President nor any agency acting for him shall purchase or contract for the purchase of wheat or flour. The termination of this Act shall not affect any act done, or any right or obligation accruing or accrued, or any suit or proceeding had or commenced in any civil case before the said termination pursuant to this Act; but all rights and liabilities under this Act arising before its termination shall continue and may be enforced in the same manner as if the Act had not terminated. Any offense committed and all penalties or liabilities incurred prior to such termination may be prosecuted or punished in the same manner and with the same effect as if this Act had not been terminated. [40 Stat. L. 1353.]

An Act To amend an Act entitled “An Act to provide further for the national security and defense by encouraging the production, conserving the supply, and controlling the distribution of food products and fuel,” approved August 10, 1917, and to regulate rents in the District of Columbia.

That this Act may be cited as “The Food Control and the District of Columbia Rents Act.”<sup>1</sup>

TITLE I.—FOOD CONTROL ACT AMENDMENTS.

[SEC. 1.] [Food, fuel, etc.—encouraging production, conserving supply and controlling distribution—authority of President.] That section one of the Act entitled “An Act to provide further for the national security and defense by encouraging the production, conserving the supply, and controlling the distribution of food products and fuel,” approved August 10, 1917, is hereby amended to read as follows:

“That by reason of the existence of a state of war, it is essential to the national security and defense, for the successful prosecution of the war and for the support and maintenance of the Army and Navy, to assure an adequate supply and equitable distribution, and to facilitate the movement of foods, feeds, wearing apparel, containers primarily designed or intended for containing foods, feeds, or fertilizers; fuel, including fuel oil and natural gas, and fertilizer and fertilizer ingredients, tools, utensils, implements, machinery, and equipment required for the actual production of foods, feeds, and fuel, hereafter in this Act called necessities; to prevent, locally or generally, scarcity, monopolization, hoarding, injurious speculation, manipulation, and private controls affecting such supply, distribution, and movement; and to establish and maintain governmental control of such necessities during the war. For such purposes the instrumentalities, means, methods, powers, authorities, duties, obligations, and prohibitions hereinafter set forth are created, established, conferred, and prescribed. The President is authorized to make such regulations and to issue such orders as are essential effectively to carry out the provisions of this Act.” [41 Stat. L. 297.]

For section 1 of the Act of Aug. 10, 1917, here amended, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 181.

SEC. 2. [Necessaries—destroying, restricting supply, or monopolizing—penalty—collective bargaining.] That section 4 of such Act of August 10, 1917, is hereby amended to read as follows:

“That it is hereby made unlawful for any person willfully to destroy any necessities for the purpose of enhancing the price or restricting the supply thereof; knowingly to commit waste or willfully to permit preventable deterioration of any necessities in or in connection with their production, manufacture, or distribution; to hoard, as defined in section 6 of this Act, any necessities; to monopolize or attempt to monopolize, either locally or generally, any necessities; to engage in any discriminatory and unfair, or any deceptive or wasteful practice or device, or to make any unjust or unreasonable rate or charge in handling or dealing in or with any necessities; to conspire, combine, agree, or arrange with any other person, (a) to limit the facilities for transporting, producing, harvesting, manufacturing, supplying, storing, or dealing in any necessities; (b) to restrict the supply of any necessities; (c) to restrict distribution of any necessities; (d) to prevent, limit, or lessen the manufacture or production of any necessities in order to enhance the price thereof; or (e) to exact excessive prices for any necessities, or to aid or abet the doing of any act made unlawful by this section. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $5,000 or be imprisoned for not more than two years, or both: Provided, That this section shall not apply to any farmer, gardener, horticulturist, vineyardist, planter, ranchman, dairyman, stockman, or other agriculturist, with respect to the farm products produced or raised upon land owned, leased, or cultivated by him: Provided further, That nothing in this Act shall be construed to forbid or make unlawful collective bargaining by any cooperative association or other association of farmers, dairymen, gardeners, or other producers of farm products with respect to the farm products produced or raised by its members upon land owned, leased, or cultivated by them." [41 Stat. L. 298.]

For section 4 here amended, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 183.

SEC. 3. [Certain sections of original act repealed.] That sections 8 and 9 of the Act entitled "An Act to provide further for the national security and defense by encouraging the production, conserving the supply, and controlling the distribution of food products and fuel," approved August 10, 1917, be, and the same are hereby repealed: Provided, That any offense committed in violation of said sections 8 and 9, prior to the passage of this Act, may be prosecuted and the penalties prescribed therein enforced in the same manner and with the same effect as if this Act had not been passed. [41 Stat. L. 298.]

For sections 8, 9, here repealed, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 185.

An Act To provide for the national welfare by continuing the United States Sugar Equalization Board until December 31, 1920, and for other purposes.

[United States Sugar Equalization Board—continuance—distribution of sugar—Act of Aug. 10, 1917, amended.] That the President is authorized to continue during the year ending December 31, 1920, the United States Sugar Equalization Board (Incorporated), a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Delaware, and to vote or use the stock in such corporation held by him for the benefit of the United States, or otherwise exercise his control over the corporation and its directors, in such a manner as to authorize and require them to adopt and carry out until December 31, 1920, plans and methods of securing, if found necessary for the public good, an adequate supply and an equitable distribution of sugar at a fair and reasonable price to the people of the United States. Sections 5 and 10 of the Act entitled "An Act to further provide for the national security and defense by encouraging the production, conserving the supply, and controlling the distribution of food products and fuel," approved August 10, 1917, as far as the same relates to raw or refined sugar, syrups, or molasses, are hereby continued in full force and effect until December 31, 1920, notwithstanding the provisions of section 24 of said Act: Provided, That the provisions of this Act shall expire as to the domestic product June 30, 1920: And provided further, That the zone system of sale and distribution of sugars heretofore established by the said United States Sugar Equalization Board shall be abolished and shall not be reestablished or maintained, and that sugars shall be permitted to be sold and to circulate freely in every portion of the United States. The termination of this Act shall not affect any act done, or any right or obligation accruing or accrued, or any suit or proceeding had or commenced in any civil case before the said termination pursuant to this Act; but all rights and liabilities under this Act arising before its termination shall continue and may be enforced in the same manner as if the Act had not terminated. Any offense committed and all penalties, forfeitures, or liabilities incurred prior to such termination may be prosecuted or punished in the same manner and with the same effect as if this Act had not been terminated. [41 Stat. L. —.]

Act so had in possession, bought, sold, exposed for sale, or had in possession for the purpose of sale shall constitute a separate offense. [41 Stat. L. —.]

SEC. 3. [Sale of certain birds for propagating purposes.] That nothing in this Act shall prevent the sale at any time of Hungarian partridges, English, ring-necked, Mongolian or Chinese pheasants, when the same shall have been raised in captivity, or the sale of birds mentioned in this Act alive, for propagating purposes, under such regulations and requirements as shall be prescribed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. [41 Stat. L. —.]

SEC. 4. [Conflicting Acts — repeal.] That all Acts or parts of Acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [41 Stat. L. —.]

GUANO ISLANDS

Presidential Proclamation.—On February 25, 1919, the President by virtue of this section issued a proclamation as follows:

"Whereas, the Congress of the United States has provided by act of August 18, 1856 (11 U. S. Statutes at Large, page 119; Secs. 5570 to 5578 U. S. Revised Statutes), that whenever any citizen of the United States, after the passage of the act, discovers a deposit of guano on any island, rock, or key, not within the lawful jurisdiction of any other government and shall take peaceable possession thereof and occupy the same, the island rock or key may, at the discretion of the President of the United States, be considered as appertaining to the United States.

"And whereas, pursuant to the foregoing act of Congress, Serrana and Quita Sueño Banks in the western part of the Caribbean Sea are now under the sole and exclusive jurisdiction of the United States and out of the jurisdiction of any other government.

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, by virtue of the power in me vested, do hereby declare, proclaim, and make known that the southwest cay of Serrana Banks and the north, or other suitable portion of Quita Sueña Banks, including any small detached cays surrounding either of these banks, which the Department of Commerce may desire, be and the same are reserved for lighthouse purposes, such reservations being deemed necessary in the public interests, subject to such legislative action as the Congress of the United States may take with respect thereto."

An Act To authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to provide hospital and sanatorium facilities for discharged sick and disabled soldiers, sailors, and marines.

[SEC. 1.] [Soldiers, sailors, marines, nurses, etc.—additional hospital and sanatorium facilities.] That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized to provide immediate additional hospital and sanatorium facilities for the care and treatment of discharged sick and disabled soldiers, sailors, and marines, Army and Navy nurses (male and female), patients of the War Risk Insurance Bureau, and the following persons only: Merchant marine seamen, seamen on boats of the Mississippi River Commission, officers and enlisted men of the United States Coast Guard, officers and employees of the Public Health Service, certain keepers and assistant keepers of the United States Lighthouse Service, seamen of the Engineer Corps of the United States Army, officers and enlisted men of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, civilian employees entitled to treatment under the United States Employees' Compensation Act, and employees on Army transports not officers or enlisted men of the Army, now entitled by law to treatment by the Public Health Service. [40 Stat. L. 1302.]

SEC. 2. [Properties and equipment transferred for hospital or sanatoria or other uses.] There are hereby permanently transferred to the Treasury Department for the use of the Public Health Service for hospital or sanatoria or other uses the following properties, with their present equipment, including sites and leases, or so much thereof as may be required by the Public Health Service, including mechanical equipment in connection therewith, and approaches thereto, with authority to lease or purchase sites not owned by the Government, as follows: Hospitals, with such other buildings and land as may be required, at Camp Cody (New Mexico), Camp Hancock (Georgia), Camp Joseph E. Johnston (Florida), Camp Beauregard (Louisiana), Camp Logan (Texas), Camp Fremont (California), and nitrate plant, Perryville (Maryland), and such hospitals, with other necessary buildings, hereafter vacated by the War Department, as may be required and found suitable for the needs of the Public Health Service for hospital or sanatoria purposes. And for the purpose of such remodeling of or additions to the above-named plants as may be required to adapt them to the needs and uses of the Public Health Service, the sum of $750,000 is hereby authorized. [40 Stat. L. 1302.]

SEC. 3. [Other properties and equipment transferred for use of Public Health Service.] The Secretary of War is hereby authorized and directed to transfer without charge to the Secretary of the Treasury for the use of the Public Health Service such hospital furniture and equipment, including hospital and medical supplies, motor trucks, and other motor-driven vehicles, in good condition, not required by the War Department, as may be required by the Public Health Service for its hospitals, and the President is authorized to direct the transfer to the Treasury Department of the use of such lands or parts of lands, buildings, fixtures, appliances, furnishings, or furniture under the control of any other department of the Government not required for the purposes of such department and suitable for the uses of the Public Health Service. [40 Stat. L. 1303.]

SEC. 4. [Battle Mountain Sanatorium — National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers.] So much of the Battle Mountain Sanatorium at Hot Springs, South Dakota, the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, with its present equipment, as is not required for the purposes for which these facilities were provided, is hereby made available for the use of the Public Health Service for a period of five years from the approval of this Act, unless sooner released by the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service. [40 Stat. L. 1303.]

SEC. 5. [Contracts with existing hospitals or sanatoriums — immediate use.] The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to contract with any existing hospital or sanatorium, by lease or otherwise, for immediate use, in whole or in part, of their present facilities, so as to provide bed capacity and facilities for not exceeding one thousand patients, and for such purposes the sum of $300,000 is hereby authorized. [40 Stat. L. 1303.]

SEC. 6. [Hospital facilities at Corpus Christi, Texas—emergency fund created for hospital purposes.] The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized, if in his judgment the same will be for the best interests of the Government from the standpoint of cost, location, and of the emergency needs of the Public Health Service, to purchase the site, buildings, and hospital facilities and appurtenances, at Corpus Christi, Texas, known as General Hospital Numbered 15, and for such purpose the sum of $150,000 is hereby authorized.

The sum of $1,500,000 is hereby authorized to be held as an emergency fund for the purchase of land and the erection thereon of buildings or for the purchase of land and buildings, and the remodeling thereof, suitable for hospital and sanatoria purposes, which the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to select and locate for the uses of the United States Public Health Service, if in his judgment the emergency requires it. [40 Stat. L. 1303 as amended by 41 Stat. L. 45.]

The second paragraph of this section was amended to read as above by the "Third Deficiency Appropriation Act" of July 11, 1919, ch. 6.

SEC. 7. [Appropriations for specific hospital projects.] By the construction of new hospitals and sanatoria, to include the necessary buildings with their appropriate mechanical and other equipment and approach work, including roads leading thereto, for the accommodation of patients, officers, nurses, attendants, storage, laundries, vehicles, and live stock on sites now owned by the Government, or on new sites to be acquired by purchase or otherwise, at the places hereinafter named: Provided, That if the Secretary of the Treasury shall make a finding that any hospital project hereinafter specifically authorized is not to the best interest of the Government from the standpoint of cost, location, and of the emergency needs of the Public Health Service, he is hereby authorized to reject such project or projects and to locate, construct, or acquire hospitals at such other locations as would best subserve the interest of the Government and the emergency needs of the Public Health Service within the limits of cost of such authorization.

a. At Cook County, Illinois, by taking over the land and executing the contract for the construction thereon of hospital buildings specified therein of a certain proposed contract executed by the Shank Company, August thirty-first, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and in accordance with such contract and the plans and specifications, identified in connection therewith August thirty-first, nineteen hundred and eighteen, by the signature and initials of Brigadier General R. C. Marshall, junior, Construction Division, Quartermaster Department, United States Army, by Lieutenant Colonel C. C. Wright, and the Shank Company, by George H. Shank, president, at the cost stated therein, namely $2,500,000, with such changes in said plans and specifications as may be required by the Secretary of the Treasury to adapt said specified buildings to the needs and purposes of the Public Health Service, at a total limit of cost not to exceed $3,000,000.

b. In carrying the foregoing authorization into effect, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to execute the contract with The Shank Company herein before specified, with such verbal changes as are made necessary by a change in the contracting officers, and to assume all obligations in said contract contained, and to purchase materials and labor in the open market, or otherwise, and to employ laborers and mechanics for the construction of such buildings and their equipment as in his judgment shall best meet the public exigencies, within the limits of cost herein authorized.

c. At Dawson Springs, Kentucky, on land to be acquired by gift, the necessary buildings for a sanatorium having a capacity of not less than five hundred beds. The sum of $1,500,000 is hereby authorized for the construction of such sanatorium.

d. The sum of $900,000 is hereby authorized for the construction, including site, of a hospital plant complete at Norfolk, Virginia.

e. The sum of $550,000 is hereby authorized for the construction, on land owned by the Government, on a site to be selected by the Secretary of the Treasury with the approval of the President, of a hospital plant complete in the District of Columbia or vicinity.

f. The sum of $190,000 is hereby authorized for additional hospital accommodations, including such minor alteration in and remodeling of existing and authorized buildings as may be necessary to economically adapt them to the additional accommodations herein authorized for the Marine Hospital at Stapleton, Staten Island, New York, the sum appropriated for additions to the said hospital by the Act approved March twenty-eighth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, is authorized to be expended in full without the construction of psychiatric units. [40 Stat. L. 1303.]

SEC. 8. [Construction work — authority of Secretary of Treasury as to contracts.] In carrying the foregoing authorization into effect, all new construction work herein authorized shall, as far as feasible, be of fire resisting character, and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to enter into contracts for the construction, equipment, and so forth, of such buildings on Government owned lands, or lands acquired for such purpose, to purchase materials and labor in the open market, or otherwise, and to employ laborers and mechanics for the construction of such buildings and their equipment as in his judgment shall best meet the public exigencies, within the limits of cost herein authorized. [40 Stat. L. 1304.]

SEC. 9. [Appropriations for carrying out purposes of Act.] For the purpose of carrying the foregoing authorization into effect, there is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be immediately available and remain available until expended, the sum of $8,840,000, and for furniture and equipment not otherwise provided for, the sum of $210,000; in all, $9,050,000. [40 Stat. L. 1304.]

SEC. 10. [Technical and clerical services — employment — traveling expenses — printing — supervision of work.] And the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized, in his discretion, to employ, for service within or without the District of Columbia, without regard to civil-service laws, rules, and regulations, and to pay from the sums hereby authorized and appropriated for construction purposes, at customary rates of compensation, such additional technical and clerical services as may be necessary, exclusively to aid in the preparation of the drawings and specifications for the above-named objects and supervision of the execution thereof, for traveling expenses, and printing incident thereto, at a total limit of cost for such additional technical and clerical services and traveling expenses, and so forth, of not exceeding $210,000 of the above-named limit of cost. All of the above-mentioned work shall be under the direction and supervision of the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. [40 Stat. L. 1304.]

SEC. 11. [Additional appropriation out of unappropriated moneys.] There is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for necessary personnel, including regular and reserve commissioned officers of the Public Health Service and clerical help in the District of Columbia and elsewhere, and maintenance, hospital supplies and equipment, leases, fuel, lights, and water, and freight, transportation, and travel, and reasonable burial expenses (not exceeding $100 for any patient dying in hospital), $785,333 for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen. [40 Stat. L. 1305.]

[SEC. 1.] * * * [Marine Hospitals — admission of persons for study.] That there may be admitted into said hospitals for study persons with infectious or other diseases affecting the public health, and not to exceed ten cases in any one hospital at one time. [41 Stat. L. 175.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 19, 1919, ch. 24.

This paragraph follows an appropriation for marine hospitals to which the words "said hospitals" refer. Identical paragraphs have appeared in previous Sundry Civil Appropriation Acts.

An Act To exclude and expel from the United States aliens who are members of the anarchistic and similar classes.

[Act of Oct. 16, 1918, ch. 186, 40 Stat. L. 1012.]

[SEC. 1.] [Alien members of anarchistic and similar classes — exclusion.] That aliens who are anarchists; aliens who believe in or advocate the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of the United States or of all forms of law; aliens who disbelieve in or are opposed to all organized government; aliens who advocate or teach the assassination of public officials; aliens who advocate or teach the unlawful destruction of property; aliens who are members of or affiliated with any organization that entertains a belief in, teaches, or advocates the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of the United States or of all forms of law, or that entertains or teaches disbelief in or opposition to all organized government, or that advocates the duty, necessity, or propriety of the unlawful assaulting or killing of any officer or officers, either of specific individuals or of officers generally, of the Government of the United States or of any other organized government, because of his or their official character, or that advocates or teaches the unlawful destruction of property shall be excluded from admission into the United States. [40 Stat. L. 1012.]

Scope of Act.—In Ex p. Pettine, (D. C. Mass. 1919) 259 Fed. 733, the court said:

"The act of October 16, 1918 (40 Stat. 1012, c. 186), is comprehensive and emphatic in declaring against all aliens who are anarchists; and, so far as anarchists are concerned, it would seem that no result depends upon varying degrees of anarchy. Indeed, in enumerating the offensive classes, the enactment at once declares generally against aliens who are anarchists, and then, after separating by a semicolon the sweeping declaration against all anarchists from what follows, Congress proceeds to enumerate special classes of offensive aliens, who may or may not be anarchists, such as those who advocate the overthrow of government by force or violence, or who disbelieve in or are opposed to all organized government and who teach assassination of public officials. But these special designations cannot be accepted as in any way detracting from the general enactment against all aliens who are anarchists.

"The act applies itself, not only to aliens who came with offensive theories, but to aliens who have become offensive, and it expressly confers upon the Secretary of Labor authority to take them into custody, and provides for deportation in the manner provided in the Immigration Act of February 5, 1917, and this irrespective of the time of their entry into the United States.

"The point is taken by counsel for the petitioners that they are only philosophical anarchists, who do not teach violence. But this point only goes to the degree of offensiveness, and cannot be accepted as an answer to the authority of the executive branch of the government to deport, because, as said in 194 U. S. 279, 294, 24 Sup. Ct. 719, 724 (48 L. ed. 979): 'If the word "anarchist" should be interpreted as including aliens whose anarchistic views are professed as those of political philosophers innocent of evil intent, it would follow that Congress was of opinion that the tendency of the general exploitation of such views is so dangerous to the public weal that aliens who hold and advocate them would be undesirable additions to our population, whether permanently or temporarily, whether many or few, and, in the light of previous decisions, the act even in this aspect would not be unconstitutional.'

"The point is also taken that, by treaty between the government of the United States and Italy, Italians stand on a level with native-born citizens, who, it is said, under the right of freedom of speech, may teach anarchistic theories with immunity; and that as a consequence the deportation of alien philosophical anarchists would be in violation of the treaty between the United States and Italy.

"Passing all discussion as to the right of freedom of speech as not germane to executive proceedings for deportation under the recent acts of Congress, this view cannot be accepted, because, as said in 149 U. S. 698, 720, 13 Sup. Ct. 1016, 1025 (37 L. Ed. 905):

"In our jurisprudence, it is well settled that the provisions of an act of Congress, passed in the exercise of its constitutional authority, on this as on any other subject, if clear and explicit, must be upheld by the courts, even in contravention of express stipulations in an earlier treaty."

"Congress, through the act approved October 16, 1918, having clearly declared against all aliens who are anarchists, the declaration must be accepted as meaning that Congress was of opinion that the presence of alien anarchists is offensive to our society and dangerous to the government, and it must be assumed that the enactment in this respect was based upon the idea that the government possesses the right to determine who shall be members of its community—a right which may be exercised by all nations, and a right which may be exercised both in peace and war.

"For further discussion of the acts of Congress and of executive authority, see opinion of Judge Knox of December 9, 1918, in the Southern District of New York, in the Lopez Case; also the recent opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in the same case (259 Fed. 401) in affirmance thereof."

SEC. 2. [Deportation.] That any alien who, at any time after entering the United States, is found to have been at the time of entry, or to have become thereafter, a member of any one of the classes of aliens enumerated in section one of this Act, shall, upon the warrant of the Secretary of Labor, be taken into custody and deported in the manner provided in the immigration Act of February fifth, nineteen hundred and seventeen. The provisions of this section shall be applicable to the classes of aliens mentioned in this Act irrespective of the time of their entry into the United States. [40 Stat. L. 1012.]

For Act of Feb. 5, 1917, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 211.

SEC. 3. [Return or attempted return — punishment.] That any alien who shall, after he has been excluded and deported or arrested and deported in pursuance of the provisions of this Act, thereafter return to or enter the United States or attempt to return to or to enter the United States shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment for a term of not more than five years; and shall, upon the termination of such imprisonment, be taken into custody, upon the warrant of the Secretary of Labor, and deported in the manner provided in the immigration Act of February fifth, nineteen hundred and seventeen. [40 Stat. L. 1012.]

For Act of Feb. 5, 1917, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 211.

Joint Resolution Authorizing the readmission to the United States of certain aliens who have been conscripted or have volunteered for service with the military forces of the United States or cobelligerent forces.

[Res. of Oct. 19, 1918, No. 44, ch. 190, 40 Stat. L. 1014.]

[Aliens in military or naval service — readmission into United States.] That, notwithstanding the provisions of section three of the immigration Act of February fifth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, excluding from the United States aliens who are likely to become a public charge, or who are physically defective, or who are contract laborers, or who have come in consequence of advertisements for labor printed, published, or distributed in a foreign country, or who are assisted by others to come, or whose ticket or passage is paid for with the money of another or by any corporation, association, society, municipality, or foreign government, or who are stowaways, or who are illiterate, aliens lawfully resident in the United States when heretofore or hereafter enlisted or conscripted for the military or naval service of the United States, or of any one of the nations cobelligerent of the United States in the present war; and aliens lawfully resident in the United States who have enlisted for service with Czecho-Slovak, Polish, or other independent forces attached to the United States Army or to the army or navy of any one of the cobelligerents of the United States in the present war, who may during or within one year after the termination of the war apply for readmission to this country, after being honorably discharged or granted furlough abroad by the proper military or naval authorities, or after being rejected on final examination in connection with their enlistment or conscription shall, within two years after the termination of the war, be readmitted; and that any alien of either of the foregoing descriptions who would otherwise be excluded under said section of the immigration Act on the ground that he is idiotic, imbecile, feeble-minded, epileptic, insane, or has had one or more attacks of insanity, or on the ground that he is afflicted with constitutional psychopathic inferiority, tuberculosis, a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease, or mental defect, shall be readmitted if it is proved that the disability was acquired while the alien was serving in the military or naval forces of the United States or of any one of the nations cobelligerent of the United States in the present war or in an independent force of the kind hereinbefore described, if such alien returns to a port of the United States within two years after the termination of the war; and that the head tax provided in the immigration Act of February fifth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, shall not be collected from aliens readmitted into the United States under the provisions of this resolution. [40 Stat. L. 1014.]

For Act of Feb. 5, 1917, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 211.

An Act To regulate further the entry of aliens into the United States.

[SEC. 1.] * * * [Entry of aliens — regulations by President — passports — false statements — forgery, etc.] That if the President shall find that the public safety requires that restrictions and prohibitions in addition to those provided otherwise than by this Act be imposed upon the entry of aliens into the United States, and shall make public proclamation thereof, it shall, until otherwise ordered by the President or Congress, be unlawful —

(a) For any alien to enter or attempt to enter the United States except under such reasonable rules, regulations, and orders, and subject to such passport, visé, or other limitations and exceptions as the President shall prescribe;

(b) For any person to transport or attempt to transport into the United States another person with knowledge or reasonable cause to believe that the entry of such other person is forbidden by this Act;

(c) For any person knowingly to make any false statement in an application for a passport or other permission to enter the United States with intent to induce or secure the granting of such permission, either for himself or for another;

(d) For any person knowingly to furnish or attempt to furnish or assist in furnishing to another a viséed passport or other permit or evidence of permission to enter, not issued and designed for such other person's use;

(e) For any person knowingly to use or attempt to use any viséed passport or other permit or evidence of permission to enter not issued and designated for his use;

(f) For any person to forge, counterfeit, mutilate, or alter, or cause or procure to be forged, counterfeited, mutilated, or altered, any passport, visé or other permit or evidence of permission to enter the United States;

(g) For any person knowingly to use or attempt to use or furnish to another for use any false, forged, counterfeited, mutilated, or altered passport, permit, or evidence of permission, or any passport, permit, or evidence of permission which, though originally valid, has become or been made void or invalid. [41 Stat. L. 353.]

SEC. 2. [Penalties and forfeitures.] That any person who shall willfully violate any of the provisions of this Act, or of any order or proclamation of the President promulgated, or of any permit, rule, or regulation issued thereunder, shall, upon conviction, be fined not more than $5,000, or, if a natural person, imprisoned for not more than five years, or both; and the officer, director, or agent of any corporation who knowingly participates in such violation shall be punished by like fine or imprisonment, or both; and any vehicle or any vessel, together with its or her appurtenances, equipment, tackle, apparel, and furniture, concerned in any such violation, shall be forfeited to the United States. [41 Stat. L. 353.]

SEC. 3. [Definitions — “United States” — “person.”] That the term “United States” as used in this Act includes the Canal Zone and all territory and waters, continental or insular, subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

The word “person” as used herein shall be deemed to mean any individual, partnership, association, company, or other unincorporated body of individuals, or corporation, or body politic. [41 Stat. L. 354.]

SEC. 4. [Appropriation.] That in order to carry out the purposes and provisions of this Act the sum of $600,000 is hereby appropriated. [41 Stat. L. 354.]

Act of Dec. 24, 1919, provided as follows: “That so much of the sum of $600,000 appropriated by section 4 of Public Act Numbered 79 of the Sixty-sixth Congress, entitled ‘An Act to regulate further the entry of aliens into the United States,’ as may be necessary is hereby made immediately available for expenses of regulating entry into the United States, in accordance with the provisions of the Act approved May 22, 1918: Provided, That not more than $450,000 of said sum shall be used during the remainder of the fiscal year 1920.”

SEC. 5. [Act when in effect.] That this Act shall take effect upon the date when the provisions of the Act of Congress approved the 22d day of May, 1918, entitled “An Act to prevent in time of war departure from and entry into the United States, contrary to the public safety,” shall cease to be operative, and shall continue in force and effect until and including the 4th day of March, 1921. An Act Conferring jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims to hear, consider, and determine certain claims of the Cherokee Nation against the United States.

[Claims of Cherokee Indians — jurisdiction of Court of Claims.] That jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon the Court of Claims to hear, consider, and determine the claim of the Cherokee Nation against the United States for interest, in addition to all other interest heretofore allowed and paid, alleged to be owing from the United States to the Cherokee Nation on the funds arising from the judgment of the Court of Claims of May eighteenth, nineteen hundred and five (Fortieth Court of Claims Report, page two hundred and fifty-two), in favor of the Cherokee Nation. The said court is authorized, empowered, and directed to carefully examine all laws, treaties, or agreements, and especially the agreement between the United States and the Cherokee Nation of December nineteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-one, ratified by the United States March third, eighteen hundred and ninety-three (Twenty-seventh Statutes at Large, page six hundred and forty, section ten), in any manner affecting or relating to the question of interest on said funds, as the same shall be brought to the attention of the court by the Cherokee Nation under this Act. And if it shall be found that under any of the said treaties, laws, or agreements interest on one or more of the said funds, either in whole or in part, has not been paid and is rightfully owing from the United States to the Cherokee Nation, the court shall render final judgment therefor against the United States and in favor of the Cherokee Nation, either party to have the right to appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States as in other cases. The said claim shall be presented within one year after the passage of this Act by petition in the Court of Claims by the Cherokee Nation as plaintiff against the United States as defendant, and the petition shall be verified by the attorney employed to prosecute said claim by the Cherokee Nation acting through its principal chief. A copy of the petition shall be served upon the Attorney General of the United States, and he, or some attorney from the Department of Justice to be designated by him, is hereby directed to appear and defend the interests of the United States in said cause. The law and practice and rules of procedure in said courts shall be the practice and law in this case.

The attorney for the Cherokee Nation shall be paid such fee as the Court of Claims may find reasonable, the same to be approved by the Secretary of the Interior: Provided, That in no case shall the fee decreed by said Court of Claims be in excess of the amount stipulated in his contract of employment, nor amount to more than ten per centum of the sum, if any, to which the Cherokee Nation shall be found entitled. The amount recovered, if any, for the Cherokee Nation shall be disbursed under the supervision of the Secretary of the Interior to the parties entitled thereto in the manner prescribed by the Court of Claims. [40 Stat. L. 1316.]

An Act Making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes, and for other purposes, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920.

[SEC. 1.] * * * [Intoxicating liquors — possession — punishment.] That on and after July 1, 1919, possession by a person of intoxicating liquors in the Indian country or where the introduction is or was prohibited by treaty or Federal statute shall be an offense and punished in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of July 23, 1892 (Twenty-seventh Statutes at Large, page 260), and January 30, 1897 (Twenty-ninth Statutes at Large, page 506). [41 Stat. L. 4.]

For the acts mentioned in the text see 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 913; 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. 383 note, 384.

* * * [Employees in Indian Service — heat and light.] That the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to allow employees in the Indian Service, who are furnished quarters, necessary heat and light for such quarters without charge, such heat and light to be paid for out of the fund chargeable with the cost of heating and lighting other buildings at the same place: And provided further, That the amount so expended for agency purposes shall not be included in the maximum amounts for compensation of employees prescribed by section 1, Act of August 24, 1912. [41 Stat. L. 5.]

For Act of Aug. 24, 1912, mentioned in the text, see 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 763; 1914 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 170.

[Expenditures for pupils in Indian schools — per capita.] That hereafter, except for pay of superintendents and for transportation of goods and supplies and transportation of pupils, not more than $225 shall be expended from appropriations made in this Act, or any other Act, for the annual support and education of any one pupil in any Indian school, unless the attendance in any school shall be less than two hundred pupils, in which case the Secretary of the Interior may authorize a per capita expenditure of not to exceed $250: Provided, That the total amount appropriated for the support of such school shall not be exceeded: Provided further, That the number of pupils in any school entitled to the per capita allowance hereby provided for shall be based upon average attendance, determined by dividing the total daily attendance by the number of days the school is in session: Provided further, That all moneys appropriated for school purposes among the Indians for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, may be expended, without restriction as to per capita expenditure, for the annual support and education of any one pupil in any school. [41 Stat. L. 6.]

* * * [Segregation of tribal funds — membership of tribes — rolls.] That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized, wherever in his discretion such action would be for the best interest of the Indians, to cause a final roll to be made of the membership of any Indian tribe; such rolls shall contain the ages and quantum of Indian blood, when approved by the said Secretary are hereby declared to constitute the legal membership of the respective tribes for the purpose of segregating the tribal funds as provided in section 28 of the Indian Appropriation Act approved May 25, 1918 (Fortieth Statutes at Large, pages 591 and 592), and shall be conclusive both as to ages and quantum of Indian blood: Provided, That the foregoing shall not apply to the Five Civilized Tribes or to the Osage Tribe of Indians, or to the Chippewa Indians of Minnesota, or the Menominee Indians of Wisconsin. [41 Stat. L. 9.]

For Act of May 25, 1918, sec. 28, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 266.

* * * [Penalty for removing cattle from Indian country — R. S. sec. 2138 amended.] That section 2138 of the Revised Statutes of the United States is hereby amended so as to read as follows: "That where restricted Indians are in possession or control of live stock purchased for or issued to them by the Government, or the increase therefrom, such stock shall not be sold, transferred, mortgaged, or otherwise disposed of, except with the consent in writing of the superintendent or other officer in charge of the tribe to which the owner or possessor of the live stock belongs, and all transactions in violation of this provision shall be void. All such live stock so purchased or issued and the increase therefrom belonging to restricted Indians and grazed in the Indian country shall be branded with the I D or reservation brand of the jurisdiction to which the owners of such stock belong, and shall not be removed from the Indian country except with the consent in writing of the superintendent or other officer in charge of the tribe to which the owner or possessor of such live stock belongs, or by order of the Secretary of War, in connection with the movement of troops. Every person who violates the provisions of this section by selling or otherwise disposing of such stock, purchasing, or otherwise acquiring an interest therein, or by removing such stock from the Indian country, shall be fined in any sum not more than $1,000, or imprisoned for not more than six months, or both such fine and imprisonment." [41 Stat. L. 9.]

For R. S. sec. 2138, amended by the text, see 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 809; 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. 382.

SEC. 26. [Indian reservations — unallotted lands — leases — mining claims.] That the Secretary of the Interior be, and hereby is, authorized and empowered, under general regulations to be fixed by him and under such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, not inconsistent with the terms of this section, to lease to citizens of the United States or to any association of such persons or to any corporation organized under the laws of the United States or of any State or Territory thereof, any part of the unallotted lands within any Indian reservation within the States of Arizona, California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Washington, or Wyoming, heretofore withdrawn from entry under the mining laws for the purpose of mining for deposits of gold, silver, copper, and other valuable metalliferous minerals, which leases shall be irrevocable, except as herein provided, but which may be declared null and void upon breach of any of their terms.

That after the passage and approval of this section, unallotted lands, or such portion thereof as the Secretary of the Interior shall determine, within Indian reservations heretofore withheld from disposition under the mining laws may be declared by the Secretary of the Interior to be subject to exploration for the discovery of deposits of gold, silver, copper, and other valuable metalliferous minerals by citizens of the United States, and after such declaration mining claims may be located by such citizens in the same manner as mining claims are located under the mining laws of the United States: Provided, That the locators of all such mining claims, or their heirs, successors, or assigns, shall have a preference right to apply to the Secretary of the Interior for a lease, under the terms and conditions of this section, within one year after the date of the location of any mining claim, and any such locator who shall fail to apply for a lease within one year from the date of location shall forfeit all rights to such mining claim: Provided further, That duplicate copies of the location notice shall be filed within sixty days with the superintendent in charge of the reservation on which the mining claim is located, and that application for a lease under this section may be filed with such superintendent for transmission through official channels to the Secretary of the Interior: And provided further, That lands containing springs, water holes, or other bodies of water needed or used by the Indians for watering live stock, irrigation, or water-power purposes shall not be designated by the Secretary of the Interior as subject to entry under this section.

That leases under this section shall be for a period of twenty years, with the preferential right in the lessee to renew the same for successive periods of ten years upon such reasonable terms and conditions as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, unless otherwise provided by law at the time of the expiration of such periods: Provided, That the lessee, may in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior, be permitted at any time to make written relinquishment of all rights under such a lease and upon acceptance thereof be thereby relieved of all future obligations under said lease.

That in addition to areas of mineral land to be included in leases under this section the Secretary of the Interior, in his discretion, may grant to the lessee the right to use, during the life of the lease, subject to the payment of an annual rental of not less than $1 per acre, a tract of unoccupied land, not exceeding forty acres in area, for camp sites, milling, smelting, and refining works, and for other purposes connected with and necessary to the proper development and use of the deposits covered by the lease.

That the Secretary of the Interior, in his discretion, in making any lease under this section, may reserve to the United States the right to lease for a term not exceeding that of the mineral lease, the surface of the lands embraced within such lease under existing law or laws hereafter enacted, in so far as said surface is not necessary for use of the lessee in extracting and removing the deposits therein: Provided, That the said Secretary, during the life of the lease, is hereby authorized to issue such permits for easements herein provided to be reserved.

That any successor in interest or assignee of any lease granted under this section, whether by voluntary transfer, judicial sale, foreclosure sale, or otherwise, shall be subject to all the conditions of the lease under which such rights are held and also subject to all the provisions and conditions of this section to the same extent as though such successor or assign were the original lessee hereunder.

That any lease granted under this section may be forfeited and canceled by appropriate proceedings in the United States district court for the district in which said property or some part thereof is situated whenever the lessee, after reasonable notice in writing, as prescribed in the lease, shall fail to comply with the terms of this section or with such conditions not inconsistent herewith as may be specifically recited in the lease.

That for the privilege of mining or extracting the mineral deposits in the ground covered by the lease the lessee shall pay to the United States, for the benefit of the Indians, a royalty which shall not be less than 5 per centum of the net value of the output of the minerals at the mine, due and payable at the end of each month succeeding that of the extraction of the minerals from the mine, and an annual rental, payable at the date of such lease and annually thereafter on the area covered by such lease, at the rate of not less than 25 cents per acre for the first calendar year thereafter; not less than 50 cents per acre for the second, third, fourth, and fifth years, respectively; and not less than $1 per acre for each and every year thereafter during the continuance of the lease, except that such rental for any year shall be credited against the royalties as they accrue for that year.

That in addition to the payment of the royalties and rentals as herein provided the lessee shall expend annually not less than $100 in development work for each mining claim located or leased in the same manner as an annual expenditure for labor or improvements is required to be made under the mining laws of the United States: Provided, That the lessee shall also agree to pay all damages occasioned by reason of his mining operations to the land or allotment of any Indian or to the crops or improvements thereon: And provided further, That no timber shall be cut upon the reservation by the lessee except for mining purposes and then only after first obtaining a permit from the superintendent of the reservation and upon payment of the fair value thereof.

That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to examine the books and accounts of lessees, and to acquire them to submit statements, representations, or reports, including information as to cost of mining, all of which statements, representations, or reports so required shall be upon oath, unless otherwise specified, and in such form and upon such blanks as the Secretary of the Interior may require; and any person making any false statement, representation, or report under oath shall be subject to punishment as for perjury.

That all moneys received from royalties and rentals under the provisions of this section shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the Indians belonging and having tribal rights on the reservation where the leased land is located, which moneys shall be at all times subject to appropriation by Congress for their benefit, unless otherwise provided by treaty or agreement ratified by Congress: Provided, That such moneys shall be subject to the laws authorizing the pro rata distribution of Indian tribal funds.

That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to perform any and all acts and to make such rules and regulations not inconsistent with this section as may be necessary and proper for the protection of the interests of the Indians and for the purpose of carrying the provisions of this section into full force and effect: Provided, That nothing in this section shall be construed or held to affect the right of the States or other local authority to exercise any rights which they may have to levy and collect taxes upon improvements, output of mines, or other rights, property, or assets of any lessee.

That mining locations, under the terms of this section, may be made on unallotted lands within Indian reservations by Indians who have heretofore or may hereafter be declared by the Secretary of the Interior to be competent to manage their own affairs; and the said Secretary is hereby authorized and empowered to lease such lands to such Indians in accordance with the provisions of this section: Provided, That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized to permit other Indians to make locations and obtain leases under the provisions of this section, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe in regard to the working, developing, disposition, and selling of the products, and the disposition of the proceeds thereof of any such mine by such Indians. [41 Stat. L. 31.]

SEC. 27. [Withdrawal of public lands for Indian reservation — act of Congress.] That hereafter no public lands of the United States shall be withdrawn by Executive Order, proclamation, or otherwise, for or as an Indian reservation except by act of Congress. [41 Stat. L. 34.]

SEC. 28. [Bureau of Indian affairs — investigations by Congress.] That during this Congress those members of the Committee on Indian Affairs of the House of Representatives, not less than five in number, who are members of the Sixty-sixth Congress, are authorized to conduct hearings and investigate the conduct of the Indian Service, at Washington, District of Columbia, and elsewhere, and the sum of $15,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be immediately available, is hereby appropriated for expenses incident thereto. The said committee is hereby authorized and empowered to examine into the conduct and management of the Bureau of Indian Affairs and all its branches and agencies, their organization and administration, to examine all books, documents, and papers in the said Bureau of Indian Affairs, its branches or agencies, relating to the administration of the business of said bureau, and shall have and is hereby granted authority to subpoena witnesses, compel their attendance, administer oaths, and to demand any and all books, documents, and papers of whatever nature relating to the affairs of Indians as conducted by said bureau, its branches, and agencies. Said committee is hereby authorized to employ such clerical and other assistance, including stenographers, as said committee may deem necessary in the proper prosecution of its work: Provided, That stenographers so employed shall not receive for their services exceeding $1 per printed page. * * * [Packing and marking oleomargarine — penalty.] That section six of the Act entitled “An Act defining butter, also imposing a tax upon and regulating the manufacture, sale, importation, and exportation of oleomargarine,” approved August second, eighteen hundred and eighty-six, be amended so as to read as follows:

“SEC. 6. That all oleomargarine shall be packed by the manufacturer thereof in firkins, tubs, or other wooden or paper packages not before used for that purpose, each containing not less than ten pounds, and marked, stamped, and branded as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall prescribe; and all sales made by the manufacturers of oleomargarine, and wholesale dealers in oleomargarine shall be in original stamped packages.

“Retail dealers in oleomargarine must sell only from original stamped packages, in quantities not exceeding ten pounds, and shall pack the oleomargarine sold by them in suitable wooden or paper packages, which shall be marked and branded as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall prescribe.

“Every person who knowingly sells or offers for sale, or delivers or offers to deliver, any oleomargarine in any other form than in new wooden or paper packages as above described, or who packs in any package any oleomargarine in any manner contrary to law, or who falsely brands any packages or affixes a stamp on any package denoting a less amount of tax than that required by law, shall be fined for each offense not more than $1,000, and be imprisoned not more than two years.” [40 Stat. L. 1008.]

TITLE II.—INCOME TAX.

Part I.—General Provisions.

SEC. 200. Definitions. That when used in this title —

The term “taxable year” means the calendar year, or the fiscal year ending during such calendar year, upon the basis of which the net income is computed under section 212 or section 232. The term “fiscal year” means an accounting period of twelve months ending on the last day of any month other than December. The first taxable year, to be called the taxable year 1918, shall be the calendar year 1918 or any fiscal year ending during the calendar year 1918;

The term “fiduciary” means a guardian, trustee, executor, administrator, receiver, conservator, or any person acting in any fiduciary capacity for any person, trust or estate;

The term “withholding agent” means any person required to deduct and withhold any tax under the provisions of section 221 or section 237;

The term “personal service corporation” means a corporation whose income is to be ascribed primarily to the activities of the principal owners or stockholders who are themselves regularly engaged in the active conduct of the affairs of the corporation and in which capital (whether invested or borrowed) is not a material income-producing factor; but does not include any foreign corporation, nor any corporation 50 per centum or more of whose gross income consists either (1) of gains, profits or income derived from trading as a principal, or (2) of gains, profits, commissions, or other income, derived from a Government contract or contracts made between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, both dates inclusive;

The term “paid,” for the purposes of the deductions and credits under this title, means “paid or accrued” or “paid or incurred,” and the terms “paid or incurred” and “paid or accrued” shall be construed according to the method of accounting upon the basis of which the net income is computed under section 212. [40 Stat. L. 1058.]

SEC. 201. Dividends. (a) That the term “dividend” when used in this title (except in paragraph (10) of subdivision (a) of section 234) means (1) any distribution made by a corporation, other than a personal service corporation, to its shareholders or members, whether in cash or in other property or in stock of the corporation, out of its earnings or profits accumulated since February 28, 1913, or (2) any such distribution made by a personal service corporation out of its earnings or profits accumulated since February 28, 1913, and prior to January 1, 1918.

(b) Any distribution shall be deemed to have been made from earnings or profits unless all earnings and profits have first been distributed. Any distribution made in the year 1918 or any year thereafter shall be deemed to have been made from earnings or profits accumulated since February 28, 1913, or, in the case of a personal service corporation, from the most recently accumulated earnings or profits; but any earnings or profits accumulated prior to March 1, 1913, may be distributed in stock dividends or otherwise, exempt from the tax, after the earnings and profits accumulated since February 28, 1913, have been distributed.

(c) A dividend paid in stock of the corporation shall be considered income to the amount of the earnings or profits distributed. Amounts distributed in the liquidation of a corporation shall be treated as payments in exchange for stock or shares, and any gain or profit realized thereby shall be taxed to the distributee as other gains or profits.

(d) If any stock dividend (1) is received by a taxpayer between January 1 and November 1, 1918, both dates inclusive, or (2) is during such period bona fide authorized or declared, and entered on the books of the corporation, and is received by a taxpayer after November 1, 1918, and before the expiration of thirty days after the passage of this Act, then such dividend shall, in the manner provided in section 206, be taxed to the recipient at the rates prescribed by law for the years in which the corporation accumulated the earnings or profits from which such dividend was paid, but the dividend shall be deemed to have been paid from the most recently accumulated earnings or profits.

(e) Any distribution made during the first sixty days of any taxable year shall be deemed to have been made from earnings or profits accumulated during preceding taxable years; but any distribution made during the remainder of the taxable year shall be deemed to have been made from earnings or profits accumulated between the close of the preceding taxable year and the date of distribution, to the extent of such earnings or profits, and if the books of the corporation do not show the amount of such earnings or profits, the earnings or profits for the accounting period within which the distribution was made shall be deemed to have been accumulated ratably during such period. [40 Stat. L. 1059.]

SEC. 202. Basis for determining gain or loss. (a) That for the purpose of ascertaining the gain derived or loss sustained from the sale or other disposition of property, real, personal, or mixed, the basis shall be —

(1) In the case of property acquired before March 1, 1913, the fair market price or value of such property as of that date; and

(2) In the case of property acquired on or after that date, the cost thereof; or the inventory value, if the inventory is made in accordance with section 203.

(b) When property is exchanged for other property, the property received in exchange shall for the purpose of determining gain or loss be treated as the equivalent of cash to the amount of its fair market value, if any; but when in connection with the reorganization, merger, or consolidation of a corporation a person receives in place of stock or securities owned by him new stock or securities of no greater aggregate par or face value, no gain or loss shall be deemed to occur from the exchange, and the new stock or securities received shall be treated as taking the place of the stock, securities, or property exchanged.

When in the case of any such reorganization, merger or consolidation the aggregate par or face value of the new stock or securities received is in excess of the aggregate par or face value of the stock or securities exchanged, a like amount in par or face value of the new stock or securities received shall be treated as taking the place of the stock or securities exchanged, and the amount of the excess in par or face value shall be treated as a gain to the extent that the fair market value of the new stock or securities is greater than the cost (or if acquired prior to March 1, 1913, the fair market value as of that date) of the stock or securities exchanged. [40 Stat. L. 1060.]

SEC. 203. Inventories. That whenever in the opinion of the Commissioner the use of inventories is necessary in order clearly to determine the income of any taxpayer, inventories shall be taken by such taxpayer upon such basis as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe as conforming as nearly as may be to the best accounting practice in the trade or business and as most clearly reflecting the income. [40 Stat. L. 1060.]

SEC. 204. Net losses. (a) That as used in this section the term "net loss" refers only to net losses resulting from either (1) the operation of any business regularly carried on by the taxpayer, or (2) the bona fide sale by the taxpayer of plant, buildings, machinery, equipment or other facilities, constructed, installed or acquired by the taxpayer on or after April 6, 1917, for the production of articles contributing to the prosecution of the present war; and when so resulting means the excess of the deductions allowed by law (excluding in the case of corporations amounts allowed as a deduction under paragraph (6) of subdivision (a) of section 234) over the sum of the gross income plus any interest received free from taxation both under this title and under Title III.

(b) If for any taxable year beginning after October 31, 1918, and ending prior to January 1, 1920, it appears upon the production of evidence satisfactory to the Commissioner that any taxpayer has sustained a net loss, the amount of such net loss shall under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary be deducted from the net income of the taxpayer for the preceding taxable year; and the taxes imposed by this title and by Title III for such preceding taxable year shall be redetermined accordingly. Any amount found to be due to the taxpayer upon the basis of such redetermination shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of section 252. If such net loss is in excess of the net income for such preceding taxable year, the amount of such excess shall under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary be allowed as a deduction in computing the net income for the succeeding taxable year.

(c) The benefit of this section shall be allowed to the members of a partnership and the beneficiaries of an estate or trust under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary. [40 Stat. L. 1060.]

SEC. 205. Fiscal year with different rates. (a) That if a taxpayer makes return for a fiscal year beginning in 1917 and ending in 1918, his tax under this title for the first taxable year shall be the sum of: (1) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under Title I of the Revenue Act of 1916 as amended by the Revenue Act of 1917 and under Title I of the Revenue Act of 1917, which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1917 is of the entire period, and (2) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under this title at the rates for the calendar year 1918 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1918 is of the entire period: Provided, That in the case of a personal service corporation the amount to be paid shall be only that specified in clause (1).

Any amount heretofore or hereafter paid on account of the tax imposed for such fiscal year by Title I of the Revenue Act of 1916 as amended by the Revenue Act of 1917, and by Title I of the Revenue Act of 1917, shall be credited towards the payment of the tax imposed for such fiscal year by this act, and if the amount so paid exceeds the amount of such tax imposed by this act, or, in the case of a personal service corporation, the amount specified in clause (1), the excess shall be credited or refunded in accordance with the provisions of section 252.

(b) If a taxpayer makes a return for a fiscal year beginning in 1918 and ending in 1919, the tax under this title for such fiscal year shall be the sum of: (1) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under this title at the rates specified for the calendar year 1918 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1918 is of the entire period, and (2) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under this title at the rates specified for the calendar year 1919 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1919 is of the entire period.

(c) If a fiscal year of a partnership begins in 1917 and ends in 1918 or begins in 1918 and ends in 1919, then notwithstanding the provisions of subdivision (b) of section 218, (1) the rates for the calendar year during which such fiscal year begins shall apply to an amount of each partner's share of such partnership net income (determined under the law applicable to such year) equal to the proportion which the part of such fiscal year falling within such calendar year bears to the full fiscal year, and (2) the rates for the calendar year during which such fiscal year ends shall apply to an amount of each partner's share of such partnership net income (determined under the law applicable to such calendar year) equal to the proportion which the part of such fiscal year falling within such calendar year bears to the full fiscal year: Provided, That in the case of a personal service corporation with respect to a fiscal year beginning in 1917 and ending in 1918, the amount specified in clause (1) shall not be subject to normal tax. [40 Stat. L. 1061.]

For Revenue Acts of 1916 and 1917, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 273.

SEC. 206. Parts of income subject to rates for different years. That whenever parts of a taxpayer's income are subject to rates for different calendar years, the part subject to the rates for the most recent calendar year shall be placed in the lower brackets of the rate schedule provided in this title, the part subject to the rates for the next preceding calendar year shall be placed in the next higher brackets of the rate schedule applicable to that year, and so on until the entire net income has been accounted for. In determining the income, any deductions, exemptions or credits of a kind not plainly and properly chargeable against the income taxable at rates for a preceding year shall first be applied against the income subject to rates for the most recent calendar year; but any balance thereof shall be applied against the income subject to the rates of the next preceding year or years until fully allowed. [40 Stat. L. 1062.]

Part II.—Individuals.

SEC. 210. Normal tax. That, in lieu of the taxes imposed by subdivision (a) of section 1 of the Revenue Act of 1916 and by section 1 of the Revenue Act of 1917, there shall be levied, collected, and paid for each taxable year upon the net income of every individual a normal tax at the following rates:

(a) For the calendar year 1918, 12 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of the credits provided in section 216: Provided, That in the case of a citizen or resident of the United States the rate upon the first $4,000 of such excess amount shall be 6 per centum;

(b) For each calendar year thereafter, 8 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of the credits provided in section 216: Provided, That in the case of a citizen or resident of the United States the rate upon the first $4,000 of such excess amount shall be 4 per centum. [40 Stat. L. 1062.]

For Revenue Acts of 1916 and 1917, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 273.

SEC. 211. Surtax. (a) That, in lieu of the taxes imposed by subdivision (b) of section 1 of the Revenue Act of 1916 and by section 2 of the Revenue Act of 1917, but in addition to the normal tax imposed by section 210 of this Act, there shall be levied, collected, and paid for each taxable year upon the net income of every individual, a surtax equal to the sum of the following:

1 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $5,000 and does not exceed $6,000;

2 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $6,000 and does not exceed $8,000;

3 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $8,000 and does not exceed $10,000;

4 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $10,000 and does not exceed $12,000;

5 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $12,000 and does not exceed $14,000;

6 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $14,000 and does not exceed $16,000;

7 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $16,000 and does not exceed $18,000;

8 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $18,000 and does not exceed $20,000;

9 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $20,000 and does not exceed $22,000;

10 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $22,000 and does not exceed $24,000;

11 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $24,000 and does not exceed $26,000;

12 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $26,000 and does not exceed $28,000;

13 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $28,000 and does not exceed $30,000;

14 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $30,000 and does not exceed $32,000;

15 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $32,000 and does not exceed $34,000;

16 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $34,000 and does not exceed $36,000;

17 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $36,000 and does not exceed $38,000;

18 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $38,000 and does not exceed $40,000;

19 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $40,000 and does not exceed $42,000;

20 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $42,000 and does not exceed $44,000;

21 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $44,000 and does not exceed $46,000;

22 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $46,000 and does not exceed $48,000;

23 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $48,000 and does not exceed $50,000;

24 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $50,000 and does not exceed $52,000;

25 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $52,000 and does not exceed $54,000;

26 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $54,000 and does not exceed $56,000;

27 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $56,000 and does not exceed $58,000;

28 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $58,000 and does not exceed $60,000;

29 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $60,000 and does not exceed $62,000;

30 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $62,000 and does not exceed $64,000;

31 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $64,000 and does not exceed $66,000;

32 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $66,000 and does not exceed $68,000;

33 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $68,000 and does not exceed $70,000;

34 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $70,000 and does not exceed $72,000;

35 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $72,000 and does not exceed $74,000;

36 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $74,000 and does not exceed $76,000;

37 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $76,000 and does not exceed $78,000;

38 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $78,000 and does not exceed $80,000;

39 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $80,000 and does not exceed $82,000;

40 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $82,000 and does not exceed $84,000;

41 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $84,000 and does not exceed $86,000;

42 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $86,000 and does not exceed $88,000;

43 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $88,000 and does not exceed $90,000;

44 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $90,000 and does not exceed $92,000;

45 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $92,000 and does not exceed $94,000;

46 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $94,000 and does not exceed $96,000;

47 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $96,000 and does not exceed $98,000;

48 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $98,000 and does not exceed $100,000;

52 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $100,000 and does not exceed $150,000.

56 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $150,000 and does not exceed $200,000;

60 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $200,000 and does not exceed $300,000;

63 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $300,000 and does not exceed $500,000;

64 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $500,000 and does not exceed $1,000,000;

65 per centum of the amount by which the net income exceeds $1,000,000.

(b) In the case of a bona fide sale of mines, oil or gas wells, or any interest therein, where the principal value of the property has been demonstrated by prospecting or exploration and discovery work done by the taxpayer, the portion of the tax imposed by this section attributable to such sale shall not exceed 20 per centum of the selling price of such property or interest. [40 Stat. L. 1062.]

For Revenue Acts of 1916 and 1917, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 273.

SEC. 212. Net income defined. (a) That in the case of an individual the term "net income" means the gross income as defined in section 213, less the deductions allowed by section 214.

(b) The net income shall be computed upon the basis of the taxpayer's annual accounting period (fiscal year or calendar year, as the case may be) in accordance with the method of accounting regularly employed in keeping the books of such taxpayer; but if no such method of accounting has been so employed, or if the method employed does not clearly reflect the income, the computation shall be made upon such basis and in such manner as in the opinion of the Commissioner does clearly reflect the income. If the taxpayer's annual accounting period is other than a fiscal year as defined in section 200 or if the taxpayer has no annual accounting period or does not keep books, the net income shall be computed on the basis of the calendar year.

If a taxpayer changes his accounting period from fiscal year to calendar year, from calendar year to fiscal year, or from one fiscal year to another, the net income shall, with the approval of the Commissioner, be computed on the basis of such new accounting period, subject to the provisions of section 226. [40 Stat. L. 1064.]

SEC. 213. Gross income defined. That for the purposes of this title (except as otherwise provided in section 233) the term "gross income" —

(a) Includes gains, profits, and income derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service (including in the case of the President of the United States, the judges of the Supreme and inferior courts of the United States, and all other officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, Alaska, Hawaii, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, the compensation received as such), of whatever kind and in whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, businesses, commerce, or sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership or use of or interest in such property; also from interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the transaction of any business carried on for gain or profit, or gains or profits and income derived from any source whatever. The amount of all such items shall be included in the gross income for the taxable year in which received by the taxpayer, unless, under methods of accounting permitted under subdivision (b) of section 212, any such amounts are to be properly accounted for as of a different period; but

(b) Does not include the following items, which shall be exempt from taxation under this title:

(1) The proceeds of life insurance policies paid upon the death of the insured to individual beneficiaries or to the estate of the insured;

(2) The amount received by the insured as a return of premium or premiums paid by him under life insurance, endowment, or annuity contracts, either during the term or at the maturity of the term mentioned in the contract or upon surrender of the contract;

(3) The value of property acquired by gift, bequest, devise, or descent (but the income from such property shall be included in gross income);

(4) Interest upon (a) the obligations of a State, Territory, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia; or (b) securities issued under the provisions of the Federal Farm Loan Act of July 17, 1916; or (c) the obligations of the United States or its possessions; or (d) bonds issued by the War Finance Corporation: Provided, That every person owning any of the obligations, securities or bonds enumerated in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (d) shall, in the return required by this title, submit a statement showing the number and amount of such obligations, securities and bonds owned by him and the income received therefrom, in such form and with such information as the Commissioner may require. In the case of obligations of the United States issued after September 1, 1917, and in the case of bonds issued by the War Finance Corporation, the interest shall be exempt only if and to the extent provided in the respective Acts authorizing the issue thereof as amended and supplemented, and shall be excluded from gross income only if and to the extent it is wholly exempt from taxation to the taxpayer both under this title and under Title III;

(5) The income of foreign governments received from investments in the United States in stocks, bonds, or other domestic securities, owned by such foreign governments, or from interest on deposits in banks in the United States of moneys belonging to such foreign governments, or from any other source within the United States;

(6) Amounts received, through accident or health insurance or under workmen's compensation acts, as compensation for personal injuries or sickness, plus the amount of any damages received whether by suit or agreement on account of such injuries or sickness;

(7) Income derived from any public utility or the exercise of any essential governmental function and accruing to any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or any political subdivision of a State or Territory, or income accruing to the government of any possession of the United States, or any political subdivision thereof.

Whenever any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or any political subdivision of a State or Territory, prior to September 8, 1916, entered in good faith into a contract with any person, the object and purpose of which is to acquire, construct, operate, or maintain a public utility, no tax shall be levied under the provisions of this title upon the income derived from the operation of such public utility, so far as the payment thereof will impose a loss or burden upon such State, Territory, District of Columbia, or political subdivision; but this provision is not intended to confer upon such person any financial gain or exemption or to relieve such person from the payment of a tax as provided for in this title upon the part or portion of such income to which such person is entitled under such contract;

(8) So much of the amount received during the present war by a person in the military or naval forces of the United States as salary or compensation in any form from the United States for active services in such forces, as does not exceed $3,500.

(c) In the case of nonresident alien individuals, gross income includes only the gross income from sources within the United States, including interest on bonds, notes, or other interest-bearing obligations of residents, corporate or otherwise, dividends from resident corporations, and including all amounts received (although paid under a contract for the sale of goods or otherwise) representing profits on the manufacture and disposition of goods within the United States. [40 Stat. L. 1065.]

For Federal Farm Loan Act of July 17, 1916, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 14.

SEC. 214. Deductions allowed. (a) That in computing net income there shall be allowed as deductions:

(1) All the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in carrying on any trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services actually rendered, and including rentals or other payments required to be made as a condition to the continued use or possession, for purposes of the trade or business, of property to which the taxpayer has not taken or is not taking title or in which he has no equity;

(2) All interest paid or accrued within the taxable year on indebtedness, except on indebtedness incurred or continued to purchase or carry obligations or securities (other than obligations of the United States issued after September 24, 1917), the interest upon which is wholly exempt from taxation under this title as income to the taxpayer, or, in the case of a nonresident alien individual, the proportion of such interest which the amount of his gross income from sources within the United States bears to the amount of his gross income from all sources within and without the United States;

(3) Taxes paid or accrued within the taxable year imposed (a) by the authority of the United States, except income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes; or (b) by the authority of any of its possessions, except the amount of income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes allowed as a credit under section 222; or (c) by the authority of any State or Territory, or any county, school district, municipality, or other taxing subdivision of any State or Territory, not including those assessed against local benefits of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed; or (d) in the case of a citizen or resident of the United States, by the authority of any foreign country, except the amount of income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes allowed as a credit under section 222; or (e) in the case of a nonresident alien individual, by the authority of any foreign country (except income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes, and taxes assessed against local benefits of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed), upon property or business;

(4) Losses sustained during the taxable year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, if incurred in trade or business;

(5) Losses sustained during the taxable year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, if incurred in any transaction entered into for profit, though not connected with the trade or business; but in the case of a nonresident alien individual only as to such transactions within the United States;

(6) Losses sustained during the taxable year of property not connected with the trade or business (but in the case of a nonresident alien individual only property within the United States) if arising from fires, storms, shipwreck, or other casualty, or from theft, and if not compensated for by insurance or otherwise;

(7) Debts ascertained to be worthless and charged off within the taxable year;

(8) A reasonable allowance for the exhaustion, wear and tear of property used in the trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for obsolescence;

(9) In the case of buildings, machinery, equipment, or other facilities, constructed, erected, installed, or acquired, on or after April 6, 1917, for the production of articles contributing to the prosecution of the present war, and in the case of vessels constructed or acquired on or after such date for the transportation of articles or men contributing to the prosecution of the present war, there shall be allowed a reasonable deduction for the amortization of such part of the cost of such facilities or vessels as has been borne by the taxpayer, but not again including any amount otherwise allowed under this title or previous Acts of Congress as a deduction in computing net income. At any time within three years after the termination of the present war, the Commissioner may, and at the request of the taxpayer shall, reexamine the return, and if he then finds as a result of an appraisal or from other evidence that the deduction originally allowed was incorrect, the taxes imposed by this title and by Title III for the year or years affected shall be redetermined; and the amount of tax due upon such redetermination, if any, shall be paid upon notice and demand by the collector, or the amount of tax overpaid, if any, shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of section 252;

(10) In the case of mines, oil and gas wells, other natural deposits, and timber, a reasonable allowance for depletion and for depreciation of improvements, according to the peculiar conditions in each case, based upon cost including cost of development not otherwise deducted: Provided, That in the case of such properties acquired prior to March 1, 1913, the fair market value of the property (or the taxpayer's interest therein) on that date shall be taken in lieu of cost up to that date: Provided further, That in the case of mines, oil and gas wells, discovered by the taxpayer, on or after March 1, 1913, and not acquired as the result of purchase of a proven tract or lease, where the fair market value of the property is materially disproportionate to the cost, the depletion allowance shall be based upon the fair market value of the property at the date of the discovery, or within thirty days thereafter; such reasonable allowance in all the above cases to be made under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary. In the case of leases the deductions allowed by this paragraph shall be equitably apportioned between the lessor and lessee;

(11) Contributions or gifts made within the taxable year to corporations organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual, or to the special fund for vocational rehabilitation, authorized by section 7 of the Vocational Rehabilitation Act, to an amount not in excess of 15 per centum of the taxpayer's net income as computed without the benefit of this paragraph. Such contributions or gifts shall be allowable as deductions only if verified under rules and regulations prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary. In the case of a nonresident alien individual this deduction shall be allowed only as to contributions or gifts made to domestic corporations, or to such vocational rehabilitation fund;

(12) (a) At the time of filing return for the taxable year 1918 a taxpayer may file a claim in abatement based on the fact that he has sustained a substantial loss (whether or not actually realized by sale or other disposition) resulting from any material reduction (not due to temporary fluctuation) of the value of the inventory for such taxable year, or from the actual payment after the close of such taxable year of rebates in pursuance of contracts entered into during such year upon sales made during such year. In such case payment of the amount of the tax covered by such claim shall not be required until the claim is decided, but the taxpayer shall accompany his claim with a bond in double the amount of the tax covered by the claim, with sureties satisfactory to the Commissioner, conditioned for the payment of any part of such tax found to be due, with interest. If any part of such claim is disallowed then the remainder of the tax due shall on notice and demand by the collector be paid by the taxpayer with interest at the rate of 1 per centum per month from the time the tax would have been due had no such claim been filed. If it is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that such substantial loss has been sustained, then in computing the tax imposed by this title the amount of such loss shall be deducted from the net income. (b) If no such claim is filed, but it is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that during the taxable year 1919 the taxpayer has sustained a substantial loss of the character above described then the amount of such loss shall be deducted from the net income for the taxable year 1918 and the tax imposed by this title for such year shall be redetermined accordingly. Any amount found to be due to the taxpayer upon the basis of such redetermination shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of section 252.

(b) In the case of a nonresident alien individual the deductions allowed in paragraphs (1), (4), (7), (8), (9), (10), and (12), and clause (e) of paragraph (3), of subdivision (a) shall be allowed only if and to the extent that they are connected with income arising from a source within the United States; and the proper apportionment and allocation of the deductions with respect to sources of income within and without the United States shall be determined under rules and regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary. [40 Stat. L. 1066.]

SEC. 215. Items not deductible. That in computing net income no deduction shall in any case be allowed in respect of —

(a) Personal, living, or family expenses;

(b) Any amount paid out for new buildings or for permanent improvements or betterments made to increase the value of any property or estate;

(c) Any amount expended in restoring property or in making good the exhaustion thereof for which an allowance is or has been made; or

(d) Premiums paid on any life insurance policy covering the life of any officer or employee, or of any person financially interested in any trade or business carried on by the taxpayer, when the taxpayer is directly or indirectly a beneficiary under such policy. [40 Stat. L. 1069.]

SEC. 216. Credits allowed. That for the purpose of the normal tax only there shall be allowed the following credits:

(a) The amount received as dividends from a corporation which is taxable under this title upon its net income, and amounts received as dividends from a personal service corporation out of earnings or profits upon which income tax has been imposed by Act of Congress;

(b) The amount received as interest upon obligations of the United States and bonds issued by the War Finance Corporation, which is included in gross income under section 213;

(c) In the case of a single person, a personal exemption of $1,000, or in the case of the head of a family or a married person living with husband or wife, a personal exemption of $2,000. A husband and wife living together shall receive but one personal exemption of $2,000 against their aggregate net income; and in case they make separate returns, the personal exemption of $2,000 may be taken by either or divided between them;

(d) $200 for each person (other than husband or wife) dependent upon and receiving his chief support from the taxpayer, if such dependent person is under eighteen years of age or is incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective.

(e) In the case of a nonresident alien individual who is a citizen or subject of a country which imposes an income tax, the credits allowed in subdivisions (c) and (d) shall be allowed only if such country allows a similar credit to citizens of the United States not residing in such country. [40 Stat. L. 1069.]

SEC. 217. Nonresident aliens—Allowance of deductions and credits. That a nonresident alien individual shall receive the benefit of the deductions and credits allowed in this title only by filing or causing to be filed with the collector a true and accurate return of his total income received from all sources corporate or otherwise in the United States, in the manner prescribed by this title, including therein all the information which the Commissioner may deem necessary for the calculation of such deductions and credits: Provided, That the benefit of the credits allowed in subdivisions (c) and (d) of section 216 may, in the discretion of the Commissioner, and except as otherwise provided in subdivision (e) of that section, be received by filing a claim therefor with the withholding agent. In case of failure to file a return, the collector shall collect the tax on such income, and all property belonging to such nonresident alien individual shall be liable to distraint for the tax. [40 Stat. L. 1069.]

SEC. 218. Partnerships and personal service corporations. (a) That individuals carrying on business in partnership shall be liable for income tax only in their individual capacity. There shall be included in computing the net income of each partner his distributive share, whether distributed or not, of the net income of the partnership for the taxable year, or, if his net income for such taxable year is computed upon the basis of a period different from that upon the basis of which the net income of the partnership is computed, then his distributive share of the net income of the partnership for any accounting period of the partnership ending within the fiscal or calendar year upon the basis of which the partner's net income is computed.

The partner shall, for the purpose of the normal tax, be allowed as credits, in addition to the credits allowed to him under section 216, his proportionate share of such amounts specified in subdivisions (a) and (b) of section 216 as are received by the partnership.

(b) If a fiscal year of a partnership ends during a calendar year for which the rates of tax differ from those for the preceding calendar year, then (1) the rates for such preceding calendar year shall apply to an amount of each partner's share of such partnership net income equal to the proportion which the part of such fiscal year falling within such calendar year bears to the full fiscal year, and (2) the rates for the calendar year during which such fiscal year ends shall apply to the remainder.

(c) In the case of an individual member of a partnership which makes return for a fiscal year beginning in 1917 and ending in 1918, his proportionate share of any excess-profits tax imposed upon the partnership under the Revenue Act of 1917 with respect to that part of such fiscal year falling in 1917, shall, for the purpose of determining the tax imposed by this title, be credited against that portion of the net income embraced in his personal return for the taxable year 1918 to which the rates for 1917 apply.

(d) The net income of the partnership shall be computed in the same manner and on the same basis as provided in section 212 except that the deduction provided in paragraph (11) of subdivision (a) of section 214 shall not be allowed.

(e) Personal service corporations shall not be subject to taxation under this title, but the individual stockholders thereof shall be taxed in the same manner as the members of partnerships. All the provisions of this title relating to partnerships and the members thereof shall so far as practicable apply to personal service corporations and the stockholders thereof: Provided, That for the purpose of this subdivision amounts distributed by a personal service corporation during its taxable year shall be accounted for by the distributees; and any portion of the net income remaining undistributed at the close of its taxable year shall be accounted for by the stockholders of such corporation at the close of its taxable year in proportion to their respective shares. [40 Stat. L. 1070.]

For Revenue Act of 1917, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 273.

SEC. 219. Estates and trusts. (a) That the tax imposed by sections 210 and 211 shall apply to the income of estates or of any kind of property held in trust, including —

(1) Income received by estates of deceased persons during the period of administration or settlement of the estate;

(2) Income accumulated in trust for the benefit of unborn or unascertained persons or persons with contingent interests;

(3) Income held for future distribution under the terms of the will or trust; and

(4) Income which is to be distributed to the beneficiaries periodically, whether or not at regular intervals, and the income collected by a guardian of an infant to be held or distributed as the court may direct.

(b) The fiduciary shall be responsible for making the return of income for the estate or trust for which he acts. The net income of the estate or trust shall be computed in the same manner and on the same basis as provided in section 212, except that there shall also be allowed as a deduction (in lieu of the deduction authorized by paragraph (11) of subdivision (a) of section 214) any part of the gross income which, pursuant to the terms of the will or deed creating the trust, is during the taxable year paid to or permanently set aside for the United States, any State, Territory, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any corporation organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual; and in cases under paragraph (4) of subdivision (a) of this section the fiduciary shall include in the return a statement of each beneficiary's distributive share of such net income, whether or not distributed before the close of the taxable year for which the return is made.

(c) In cases under paragraph (1), (2), or (3) of subdivision (a) the tax shall be imposed upon the net income of the estate or trust and shall be paid by the fiduciary, except that in determining the net income of the estate of any deceased person during the period of administration or settlement there may be deducted the amount of any income properly paid or credited to any legatee, heir or other beneficiary. In such cases the estate or trust shall, for the purpose of the normal tax, be allowed the same credits as are allowed to single persons under section 216.

(d) In cases under paragraph (4) of subdivision (a), and in the case of any income of an estate during the period of administration or settlement permitted by subdivision (c) to be deducted from the net income upon which tax is to be paid by the fiduciary, the tax shall not be paid by the fiduciary, but there shall be included in computing the net income of each beneficiary his distributive share, whether distributed or not, of the net income of the estate or trust for the taxable year, or, if his net income for such taxable year is computed upon the basis of a period different from that upon the basis of which the net income of the estate or trust is computed, then his distributive share of the net income of the estate or trust for any accounting period of such estate or trust ending within the fiscal or calendar year upon the basis of which such beneficiary's net income is computed. In such cases the beneficiary shall, for the purpose of the normal tax, be allowed as credits in addition to the credits allowed to him under section 216, his proportionate share of such amounts specified in subdivisions (a) and (b) of section 216 as are received by the estate or trust. [40 Stat. L. 1071.]

SEC. 220. Profits of corporations taxable to stockholders. That if any corporation, however created or organized, is formed or availed of for the purpose of preventing the imposition of the surtax upon its stockholders or members through the medium of permitting its gains and profits to accumulate instead of being divided or distributed, such corporation shall not be subject to the tax imposed by section 230, but the stockholders or members thereof shall be subject to taxation under this title in the same manner as provided in subdivision (e) of section 218 in the case of stockholders of a personal service corporation, except that the tax imposed by Title III shall be deducted from the net income of the corporation before the computation of the proportionate share of each stockholder or member. The fact that any corporation is a mere holding company, or that the gains and profits are permitted to accumulate beyond the reasonable needs of the business, shall be prima facie evidence of a purpose to escape the surtax; but the fact that the gains and profits are in any case permitted to accumulate and become surplus shall not be construed as evidence of a purpose to escape the tax in such case unless the Commissioner certifies that in his opinion such accumulation is unreasonable for the purposes of the business. When requested by the Commissioner, or any collector, every corporation shall forward to him a correct statement of such gains and profits and the names and addresses of the individuals or shareholders who would be entitled to the same if divided or distributed, and of the amounts that would be payable to each. [40 Stat. L. 1072.]

SEC. 221. Payment of tax at source. (a) That all individuals, corporations and partnerships, in whatever capacity acting, including lessees or mortgagors of real or personal property, fiduciaries, employers, and all officers and employees of the United States, having the control, receipt, custody, disposal, or payment, of interest, rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, or other fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits, and income, of any nonresident alien individual (other than income received as dividends from a corporation which is taxable under this title upon its net income) shall (except in the cases provided for in subdivision (b) and except as otherwise provided in regulations prescribed by the Commissioner under section 217) deduct and withhold from such annual or periodical gains, profits, and income a tax equal to 8 per centum thereof: Provided, That the Commissioner may authorize such tax to be deducted and withheld from the interest upon any securities the owners of which are not known to the withholding agent.

(b) In any case where bonds, mortgages, or deeds of trust, or other similar obligations of a corporation contain a contract or provision by which the obligor agrees to pay any portion of the tax imposed by this title upon the obligee, or to reimburse the obligee for any portion of the tax, or to pay the interest without deduction for any tax which the obligor may be required or permitted to pay thereon or to retain therefrom under any law of the United States, the obligor shall deduct and withhold a tax equal to 2 per centum of the interest upon such bonds, mortgages, deeds of trust, or other obligations, whether such interest is payable annually or at shorter or longer periods and whether payable to a nonresident alien individual or to an individual citizen or resident of the United States or to a partnership: Provided, That the Commissioner may authorize such tax to be deducted and withheld in the case of interest upon any such bonds, mortgages, deeds of trust or other obligations, the owners of which are not known to the withholding agent. Such deduction and withholding shall not be required in the case of a citizen or resident entitled to receive such interest, if he files with the withholding agent on or before February 1, a signed notice in writing claiming the benefit of the credits provided in subdivisions (c) and (d) of section 216; nor in the case of a nonresident alien individual if so provided for in regulations prescribed by the Commissioner under section 217.

(c) Every individual, corporation, or partnership required to deduct and withhold any tax under this section shall make return thereof on or before March first of each year and shall on or before June fifteenth pay the tax to the official of the United States Government authorized to receive it. Every such individual, corporation, or partnership is hereby made liable for such tax and is hereby indemnified against the claims and demands of any individual, corporation, or partnership for the amount of any payments made in accordance with the provisions of this section.

(d) Income upon which any tax is required to be withheld at the source under this section shall be included in the return of the recipient of such income, but any amount of tax so withheld shall be credited against the amount of income tax as computed in such return.

(e) If any tax required under this section to be deducted and withheld is paid by the recipient of the income, it shall not be re-collected from the withholding agent; nor in cases in which the tax is so paid shall any penalty be imposed upon or collected from the recipient of the income or the withholding agent for failure to return or pay the same, unless such failure was fraudulent and for the purpose of evading payment. [40 Stat. L. 1072.]

SEC. 222. Credit for taxes. (a) That the tax computed under Part II of this title shall be credited with:

(1) In the case of a citizen of the United States, the amount of any income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes paid during the taxable year to any foreign country, upon income derived from sources therein, or to any possession of the United States; and

(2) In the case of a resident of the United States, the amount of any such taxes paid during the taxable year to any possession of the United States; and

(3) In the case of an alien resident of the United States who is a citizen or subject of a foreign country, the amount of any such taxes paid during the taxable year to such country, upon income derived from sources therein, if such country, in imposing such taxes, allows a similar credit to citizens of the United States residing in such country; and

(4) In the case of any such individual who is a member of a partnership or a beneficiary of an estate or trust, his proportionate share of such taxes of the partnership or the estate or trust paid during the taxable year to a foreign country or to any possession of the United States, as the case may be.

(b) If accrued taxes when paid differ from the amounts claimed as credits by the taxpayer, or if any tax paid is refunded in whole or in part, the taxpayer shall notify the Commissioner who shall redetermine the amount of the tax due under Part II of this title for the year or years affected, and the amount of tax due upon such redetermination, if any, shall be paid by the taxpayer upon notice and demand by the collector, or the amount of tax overpaid, if any, shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of section 252. In the case of such a tax accrued but not paid, the Commissioner as a condition precedent to the allowance of this credit may require the taxpayer to give a bond with sureties satisfactory to and to be approved by the Commissioner in such penal sum as the Commissioner may require, conditioned for the payment by the taxpayer of any amount of tax found due upon any such redetermination; and the bond herein prescribed shall contain such further conditions as the Commissioner may require.

(c) These credits shall be allowed only if the taxpayer furnishes evidence satisfactory to the Commissioner showing the amount of income derived from sources within such foreign country or such possession of the United States, and all other information necessary for the computation of such credits. [40 Stat. L. 1073.]

SEC. 223. Individual returns. That every individual having a net income for the taxable year of $1,000 or over if single or if married and not living with husband or wife, or of $2,000 or over if married and living with husband or wife, shall make under oath a return stating specifically the items of his gross income and the deductions and credits allowed by this title. If a husband and wife living together have an aggregate net income of $2,000 or over, each shall make such a return unless the income of each is included in a single joint return.

If the taxpayer is unable to make his own return, the return shall be made by a duly authorized agent or by the guardian or other person charged with the care of the person or property of such taxpayer. [40 Stat. L. 1074.]

SEC. 224. Partnership returns. That every partnership shall make a return for each taxable year, stating specifically the items of its gross income and the deductions allowed by this title, and shall include in the return the names and addresses of the individuals who would be entitled to share in the net income if distributed and the amount of the distributive share of each individual. The return shall be sworn to by any one of the partners. [40 Stat. L. 1074.]

SEC. 225. Fiduciary returns. That every fiduciary (except receivers appointed by authority of law in possession of part only of the property of an individual) shall make under oath a return for the individual, estate or trust for which he acts (1) if the net income of such individual is $1,000 or over if single or if married and not living with husband or wife, or $2,000 or over if married and living with husband or wife, or (2) if the net income of such estate or trust is $1,000 or over or if any beneficiary of such estate or trust is a non-resident alien, stating specifically the items of the gross income and the deductions and credits allowed by this title. Under such regulations as the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary may prescribe, a return made by one of two or more joint fiduciaries and filed in the office of the collector of the district where such fiduciary resides shall be a sufficient compliance with the above requirement. The fiduciary shall make oath that he has sufficient knowledge of the affairs of such individual, estate or trust to enable him to make the return, and that the same is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, true and correct.

Fiduciaries required to make returns under this Act shall be subject to all the provisions of this Act which apply to individuals. [40 Stat. L. 1074.]

SEC. 226. Returns when accounting period changed. That if a taxpayer, with the approval of the Commissioner, changes the basis of computing net income from fiscal year to calendar year a separate return shall be made for the period between the close of the last fiscal year for which return was made and the following December thirty-first. If the change is from calendar year to fiscal year, a separate return shall be made for the period between the close of the last calendar year for which return was made and the date designated as the close of the fiscal year. If the change is from one fiscal year to another fiscal year a separate return shall be made for the period between the close of the former fiscal year and the date designated as the close of the new fiscal year. If a taxpayer making his first return for income tax keeps his accounts on the basis of a fiscal year he shall make a separate return for the period between the beginning of the calendar year in which such fiscal year ends and the end of such fiscal year.

In all of the above cases the net income shall be computed on the basis of such period for which separate return is made, and the tax shall be paid thereon at the rate for the calendar year in which such period is included; and the credits provided in subdivisions (c) and (d) of section 216 shall be reduced respectively to amounts which bear the same ratio to the full credits provided in such subdivisions as the number of months in such period bears to twelve months. [40 Stat. L. 1075.]

SEC. 227. Time and place for filing returns. (a) That returns shall be made on or before the fifteenth day of the third month following the close of the fiscal year, or, if the return is made on the basis of the calendar year, then the return shall be made on or before the fifteenth day of March. The Commissioner may grant a reasonable extension of time for filing returns whenever in his judgment good cause exists and shall keep a record of every such extension and the reason therefor. Except in the case of taxpayers who are abroad, no such extension shall be for more than six months.

(b) Returns shall be made to the collector for the district in which is located the legal residence or principal place of business of the person making the return, or, if he has no legal residence or principal place of business in the United States, then to the collector at Baltimore, Maryland. [40 Stat. L. 1075.]

SEC. 228. Understatement in returns. That if the collector or deputy collector has reason to believe that the amount of any income returned is understated, he shall give due notice to the taxpayer making the return to show cause why the amount of the return should not be increased, and upon proof of the amount understated, may increase the same accordingly. Such taxpayer may furnish sworn testimony to prove any relevant facts and if dissatisfied with the decision of the collector may appeal to the Commissioner for his decision, under such rules of procedure as may be prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary. [40 Stat. L. 1075.]

Part III.—Corporations.

SEC. 230. Tax on corporations. (a) That, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 10 of the Revenue Act of 1916, as amended by the Revenue Act of 1917, and by section 4 of the Revenue Act of 1917, there shall be levied, collected, and paid for each taxable year upon the net income of every corporation a tax at the following rates:

(1) For the calendar year 1918, 12 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of the credits provided in section 236; and

(2) For each calendar year thereafter, 10 per centum of such excess amount.

(b) For the purposes of the Act approved March 21, 1918, entitled "An Act to provide for the operation of transportation systems while under Federal control, for the just compensation of their owners, and for other purposes," five-sixths of the tax imposed by paragraph (1) of subdivision (a) and four-fifths of the tax imposed by paragraph (2) of subdivision (a) shall be treated as levied by an Act in amendment of Title I of the Revenue Act of 1917. [40 Stat. L. 1075.]

For Revenue Acts of 1916 and 1917, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 273. For Act of March 21, 1918, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 757.

SEC. 231. Conditional and other exemptions. That the following organizations shall be exempt from taxation under this title —

- (1) Labor, agricultural, or horticultural organizations;
- (2) Mutual savings banks not having a capital stock represented by shares;
- (3) Fraternal beneficiary societies, orders, or associations, (a) operating under the lodge system or for the exclusive benefit of the members of a fraternity itself operating under the lodge system, and (b) providing for the payment of life, sick, accident, or other benefits to the members of such society, order, or association or their dependents;
- (4) Domestic building and loan associations and cooperative banks without capital stock organized and operated for mutual purposes and without profit;
- (5) Cemetery companies owned and operated exclusively for the benefit of their members;
- (6) Corporations organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual;
- (7) Business leagues, chambers of commerce, or boards of trade, not organized for profit and no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual;
- (8) Civic leagues or organizations not organized for profit but operated exclusively for the promotion of social welfare;
- (9) Clubs organized and operated exclusively for pleasure, recreation, and other nonprofitable purposes, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or member;
- (10) Farmers' or other mutual hail, cyclone, or fire insurance companies, mutual ditch or irrigation companies, mutual or cooperative telephone companies, or like organizations of a purely local character, the income of which consists solely of assessments, dues, and fees collected from members for the sole purpose of meeting expenses;
- (11) Farmers', fruit growers', or like associations, organized and operated as sales agents for the purpose of marketing the products of members and turning back to them the proceeds of sales, less the necessary selling expenses, on the basis of the quantity of produce furnished by them;
- (12) Corporations organized for the exclusive purpose of holding title to property, collecting income therefrom; and turning over the entire amount thereof, less expenses, to an organization which itself is exempt from the tax imposed by this title;
- (13) Federal land banks and national farm-loan associations as provided in section 26 of the Act approved July 17, 1916, entitled "An Act to provide capital for agricultural development, to create standard forms of investment based upon farm mortgage, to equalize rates of interest upon farm loans, to furnish a market for United States bonds, to create Government depositaries and financial agents for the United States, and for other purposes";

(14) Personal service corporations. [40 Stat. L. 1076.]

For Act of July 17, 1916, § 26, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 36.

SEC. 232. Net income defined. That in the case of a corporation subject to the tax imposed by section 230 the term "net income" means the gross income as defined in section 233 less the deductions allowed by section 234, and the net income shall be computed on the same basis as is provided in subdivision (b) of section 212 or in section 226. [40 Stat. L. 1077.]

SEC. 233. Gross income defined. (a) That in the case of a corporation subject to the tax imposed by section 230 the term "gross income" means the gross income as defined in section 213, except that:

(1) In the case of life insurance companies there shall not be included in gross income such portion of any actual premium received from any individual policyholder as is paid back or credited to or treated as an abatement of premium of such policyholder within the taxable year.

(2) Mutual marine insurance companies shall include in gross income the gross premiums collected and received by them less amounts paid for reinsurance.

(b) In the case of a foreign corporation gross income includes only the gross income from sources within the United States, including the interest on bonds, notes, or other interest-bearing obligations of residents, corporate or otherwise, dividends from resident corporations, and including all amounts received (although paid under a contract for the sale of goods or otherwise) representing profits on the manufacture and disposition of goods within the United States. [40 Stat. L. 1077.]

SEC. 234. Deductions allowed. (a) That in computing the net income of a corporation subject to the tax imposed by section 230 there shall be allowed as deductions:

(1) All the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in carrying on any trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services actually rendered, and including rentals or other payments required to be made as a condition to the continued use or possession of property to which the corporation has not taken or is not taking title, or in which it has no equity;

(2) All interest paid or accrued within the taxable year on its indebtedness, except on indebtedness incurred or continued to purchase or carry obligations or securities (other than obligations of the United States issued after September 24, 1917) the interest upon which is wholly exempt from taxation under this title as income to the taxpayer, or, in the case of a foreign corporation, the proportion of such interest which the amount of its gross income from sources within the United States bears to the amount of its gross income from all sources within and without the United States;

(3) Taxes paid or accrued within the taxable year imposed (a) by the authority of the United States, except income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes; or (b) by the authority of any of its possessions, except the amount of income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes allowed as a credit under section 238; or (c) by the authority of any State or Territory, or any county, school district, municipality, or other taxing subdivision of any State or Territory, not including those assessed against local benefits of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed; or (d) in the case of a domestic corporation, by the authority of any foreign country, except the amount of income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes allowed as a credit under section 238; or (e) in the case of a foreign corporation, by the authority of any foreign country (except income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes, and taxes assessed against local benefits of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed), upon the property or business: Provided, That in the case of obligors specified in subdivision (b) of section 221 no deduction for the payment of the tax imposed by this title or any other tax paid pursuant to the contract or provision referred to in that subdivision, shall be allowed;

(4) Losses sustained during the taxable year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise;

(5) Debts ascertained to be worthless and charged off within the taxable year;

(6) Amounts received as dividends from a corporation which is taxable under this title upon its net income, and amounts received as dividends from a personal service corporation out of earnings or profits upon which income tax has been imposed by Act of Congress;

(7) A reasonable allowance for the exhaustion, wear and tear of property used in the trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for obsolescence;

(8) In the case of buildings, machinery, equipment, or other facilities, constructed, erected, installed, or acquired, on or after April 6, 1917, for the production of articles contributing to the prosecution of the present war, and in the case of vessels constructed or acquired on or after such date for the transportation of articles or men contributing to the prosecution of the present war, there shall be allowed a reasonable deduction for the amortization of such part of the cost of such facilities or vessels as has been borne by the taxpayer, but not again including any amount otherwise allowed under this title or previous Acts of Congress as a deduction in computing net income. At any time within three years after the termination of the present war the Commissioner may, and at the request of the taxpayer shall, reexamine the return, and if he then finds as a result of an appraisal or from other evidence that the deduction originally allowed was incorrect, the taxes imposed by this title and by Title III for the year or years affected shall be redetermined and the amount of tax due upon such redetermination, if any, shall be paid upon notice and demand by the collector, or the amount of tax overpaid, if any, shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of section 252;

(9) In the case of mines, oil and gas wells, other natural deposits, and timber, a reasonable allowance for depletion and for depreciation of improvements, according to the peculiar conditions in each case, based upon cost including cost of development not otherwise deducted: Provided, That in the case of such properties acquired prior to March 1, 1913, the fair market value of the property (or the taxpayer's interest therein) on that date shall be taken in lieu of cost up to that date: Provided further, That in the case of mines, oil and gas wells, discovered by the taxpayer, on or after March 1, 1913, and not acquired as the result of purchase of a proven tract or lease, where the fair market value of the property is materially disproportionate to the cost, the depletion allowance shall be based upon the fair market value of the property at the date of the discovery, or within thirty days thereafter; such reasonable allowance in all the above cases to be made under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary. In the case of leases the deductions allowed by this paragraph shall be equitably apportioned between the lessor and lessee;

(10) In the case of insurance companies, in addition to the above: (a) The net addition required by law to be made within the taxable year to reserve funds (including in the case of assessment insurance companies the actual deposit of sums with State or Territorial officers pursuant to law as additions to guarantee or reserve funds); and (b) the sums other than dividends paid within the taxable year on policy and annuity contracts;

(11) In the case of corporations issuing policies covering life, health, and accident insurance combined in one policy issued on the weekly premium payment plan continuing for life and not subject to cancellation, in addition to the above, such portion of the net addition (not required by law) made within the taxable year to reserve funds as the Commissioner finds to be required for the protection of the holders of such policies only;

(12) In the case of mutual marine insurance companies, there shall be allowed, in addition to the deductions allowed in paragraphs (1) to (10), inclusive, amounts repaid to policyholders on account of premiums previously paid by them, and interest paid upon such amounts between the ascertainment and the payment thereof;

(13) In the case of mutual insurance companies (other than mutual life or mutual marine insurance companies) requiring their members to make premium deposits to provide for losses and expenses, there shall be allowed, in addition to the deductions allowed in paragraphs (1) to (10), inclusive, (unless otherwise allowed under such paragraphs) the amount of premium deposits returned to their policyholders and the amount of premium deposits retained for the payment of losses, expenses, and reinsurance reserves;

(14) (a) At the time of filing return for the taxable year 1918 a taxpayer may file a claim in abatement based on the fact that he has sustained a substantial loss (whether or not actually realized by sale or other disposition) resulting from any material reduction (not due to temporary fluctuation) of the value of the inventory for such taxable year, or from the actual payment after the close of such taxable year of rebates in pursuance of contracts entered into during such year upon sales made during such year. In such case payment of the amount of the tax covered by such claim shall not be required until the claim is decided, but the taxpayer shall accompany his claim with a bond in double the amount of the tax covered by the claim, with sureties satisfactory to the Commissioner, conditioned for the payment of any part of such tax found to be due, with interest. If any part of such claim is disallowed then the remainder of the tax due shall on notice and demand by the collector be paid by the taxpayer with interest at the rate of 1 per centum per month from the time the tax would have been due had no such claim been filed. If it is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that such substantial loss has been sustained, then in computing the taxes imposed by this title and by Title III the amount of such loss shall be deducted from the net income. (b) If no such claim is filed, but it is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that during the taxable year 1919 the taxpayer has sustained a substantial loss of the character above described then the amount of such loss shall be deducted from the net income for the taxable year 1918 and the taxes imposed by this title and by Title III for such year shall be redetermined accordingly. Any amount found to be due to the taxpayer upon the basis of such redetermination shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of section 252.

(b) In the case of a foreign corporation the deductions allowed in subdivision (a), except those allowed in paragraph (2) and in clauses (a), (b), and (c) of paragraph (3), shall be allowed only if and to the extent that they are connected with income arising from a source within the United States; and the proper apportionment and allocation of the deductions with respect to sources of income within and without the United States shall be determined under rules and regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary. [40 Stat. L. 1077.]

SEC. 235. Items not deductible. That in computing net income no deduction shall in any case be allowed in respect of any of the items specified in section 215. [40 Stat. L. 1080.]

SEC. 236. Credits allowed. That for the purpose only of the tax imposed by section 230 there shall be allowed the following credits:

(a) The amount received as interest upon obligations of the United States and bonds issued by the War Finance Corporation, which is included in gross income under section 233;

(b) The amount of any taxes imposed by Title III for the same taxable year: Provided, That in the case of a corporation which makes return for a fiscal year beginning in 1917 and ending in 1918, in computing the tax as provided in subdivision (a) of section 205, the tax computed for the entire period under Title II of the Revenue Act of 1917 shall be credited against the net income computed for the entire period under Title I of the Revenue Act of 1916 as amended by the Revenue Act of 1917 and under Title I of the Revenue Act of 1917, and the tax computed for the entire period under Title III of this Act at the rates prescribed for the calendar year 1918 shall be credited against the net income computed for the entire period under this title; and

(c) In the case of a domestic corporation, $2,000. [40 Stat. L. 1080.]

For Revenue Acts of 1916 and 1917, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 273.

SEC. 237. Payment of tax at source. That in the case of foreign corporations subject to taxation under this title not engaged in trade or business within the United States and not having any office or place of business therein, there shall be deducted and withheld at the source in the same manner and upon the same items of income as is provided in section 221 a tax equal to 10 per centum thereof, and such tax shall be returned and paid in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as provided in that section: Provided, That in the case of interest described in subdivision (b) of that section the deduction and withholding shall be at the rate of 2 per centum. [40 Stat. L. 1080.]

SEC. 238. Credit for taxes. (a) That in the case of a domestic corporation the total taxes imposed for the taxable year by this title and by Title III shall be credited with the amount of any income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes paid during the taxable year to any foreign country, upon income derived from sources therein, or to any possession of the United States.

If accrued taxes when paid differ from the amounts claimed as credits by the corporation, or if any tax paid is refunded in whole or in part, the corporation shall at once notify the Commissioner who shall redetermine the amount of the taxes due under this title and under Title III for the year or years affected, and the amount of taxes due upon such redetermination, if any, shall be paid by the corporation upon notice and demand by the collector, or the amount of taxes overpaid, if any, shall be credited or refunded to the corporation in accordance with the provisions of section 252. In the case of such a tax accrued but not paid, the Commissioner as a condition precedent to the allowance of this credit may require the corporation to give a bond with sureties satisfactory to and to be approved by him in such penal sum as he may require, conditioned for the payment by the taxpayer of any amount of taxes found due upon any such redetermination; and the bond herein prescribed shall contain such further conditions as the Commissioner may require.

(b) This credit shall be allowed only if the taxpayer furnishes evidence satisfactory to the Commissioner showing the amount of income derived from sources within such foreign country or such possession of the United States, as the case may be, and all other information necessary for the computation of such credit.

(c) If a domestic corporation makes a return for a fiscal year beginning in 1917 and ending in 1918, only that proportion of this credit shall be allowed which the part of such period within the calendar year 1918 bears to the entire period. [40 Stat. L. 1080.]

SEC. 239. Corporation returns. That every corporation subject to taxation under this title and every personal service corporation shall make a return, stating specifically the items of its gross income and the deductions and credits allowed by this title. The return shall be sworn to by the president, vice president, or other principal officer and by the treasurer or assistant treasurer. If any foreign corporation has no office or place of business in the United States but has an agent in the United States, the return shall be made by the agent. In cases where receivers, trustees in bankruptcy, or assignees are operating the property or business of corporations, such receivers, trustees, or assignees shall make returns for such corporations in the same manner and form as corporations are required to make returns. Any tax due on the basis of such returns made by receivers, trustees, or assignees shall be collected in the same manner as if collected from the corporations of whose business or property they have custody and control.

Returns made under this section shall be subject to the provisions of sections 226 and 228. When return is made under section 226 the credit provided in subdivision (c) of section 236 shall be reduced to an amount which bears the same ratio to the full credit therein provided as the number of months in the period for which such return is made bears to twelve months. [40 Stat. L. 1081.]

SEC. 240. Consolidated returns. (a) That corporations which are affiliated within the meaning of this section shall, under regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, make a consolidated return of net income and invested capital for the purposes of this title and Title III, and the taxes thereunder shall be computed and determined upon the basis of such return: Provided, That there shall be taken out of such consolidated net income and invested capital, the net income and invested capital of any such affiliated corporation organized after August 1, 1914, and not successor to a then existing business, 50 per centum or more of whose gross income consists of gains, profits, commissions, or other income, derived from a Government contract or contracts made between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, both dates inclusive. In such case the corporation so taken out shall be separately assessed on the basis of its own invested capital and net income and the remainder of such affiliated group shall be assessed on the basis of the remaining consolidated invested capital and net income.

In any case in which a tax is assessed upon the basis of a consolidated return, the total tax shall be computed in the first instance as a unit and shall then be assessed upon the respective affiliated corporations in such proportions as may be agreed upon among them, or, in the absence of any such agreement, then on the basis of the net income properly assignable to each. There shall be allowed in computing the income tax only one specific credit of $2,000 (as provided in section 236); in computing the war-profits credit (as provided in section 311) only one specific exemption of $3,000; and in computing the excess-profits credit (as provided in section 312) only one specific exemption of $3,000.

(b) For the purpose of this section two or more domestic corporations shall be deemed to be affiliated (1) if one corporation owns directly or controls through closely affiliated interests or by a nominee or nominees substantially all the stock of the other or others, or (2) if substantially all the stock of two or more corporations is owned or controlled by the same interests.

(c) For the purposes of section 238 a domestic corporation which owns a majority of the voting stock of a foreign corporation shall be deemed to have paid the same proportion of any income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes paid (but not including taxes accrued) by such foreign corporation during the taxable year to any foreign country or to any possession of the United States upon income derived from sources without the United States, which the amount of any dividends (not deductible under section 234) received by such domestic corporation from such foreign corporation during the taxable year bears to the total taxable income of such foreign corporation upon or with respect to which such taxes were paid: Provided, That in no such case shall the amount of the credit for such taxes exceed the amount of such dividends (not deductible under section 234) received by such domestic corporation during the taxable year. [40 Stat. L. 1081.]

SEC. 241. Time and place for filing returns. (a) That returns of corporations shall be made at the same time as is provided in subdivision (a) of section 227.

(b) Returns shall be made to the collector of the district in which is located the principal place of business or principal office or agency of the corporation, or, if it has no principal place of business or principal office or agency in the United States, then to the collector at Baltimore, Maryland. [40 Stat. L. 1082.]

Part IV.—Administrative Provisions.

SEC. 250. Payment of taxes. (a) That except as otherwise provided in this section and sections 221 and 237 the tax shall be paid in four installments, each consisting of one-fourth of the total amount of the tax. The first installment shall be paid at the time fixed by law for filing the return, and the second installment shall be paid on the fifteenth day of the third month, the third installment on the fifteenth day of the sixth month, and the fourth installment on the fifteenth day of the ninth month, after the time fixed by law for filing the return. Where an extension of time for filing a return is granted the time for payment of the first installment shall be postponed until the date of the expiration of the period of the extension, but the time for payment of the other installments shall not be postponed unless the Commissioner so provides in granting the extension. In any case in which the time for the payment of any installment is at the request of the taxpayer thus postponed, there shall be added as part of such installment interest thereon at the rate of  $\frac{1}{2}$  of 1 per centum per month from the time it would have been due if no extension had been granted, until paid. If any installment is not paid when due, the whole amount of the tax unpaid shall become due and payable upon notice and demand by the collector.

The tax may at the option of the taxpayer be paid in a single payment instead of in installments, in which case the total amount shall be paid on or before the time fixed by law for filing the return, or, where an extension of time for filing the return has been granted, on or before the expiration of the period of such extension.

(b) As soon as practicable after the return is filed, the Commissioner shall examine it. If it then appears that the correct amount of the tax is greater or less than that shown in the return, the installments shall be recomputed. If the amount already paid exceeds that which should have been paid on the basis of the installments as recomputed, the excess so paid shall be credited against the subsequent installments; and if the amount already paid exceeds the correct amount of the tax, the excess shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of section 252.

If the amount already paid is less than that which should have been paid, the difference shall, to the extent not covered by any credits then due to the taxpayer under section 252, be paid upon notice and demand by the collector. In such case if the return is made in good faith and the understatement of the amount in the return is not due to any fault of the taxpayer, there shall be no penalty because of such understatement. If the understatement is due to negligence on the part of the taxpayer, but without intent to defraud, there shall be added as part of the tax 5 per centum of the total amount of the deficiency, plus interest at the rate of 1 per centum per month on the amount of the deficiency of each installment from the time the installment was due.

If the understatement is false or fraudulent with intent to evade the tax, then, in lieu of the penalty provided by section 3176 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, for false or fraudulent returns willfully made, but in addition to other penalties provided by law for false or fraudulent returns, there shall be added as part of the tax 50 per centum of the amount of the deficiency.

(c) If the return is made pursuant to section 3176 of the Revised Statutes as amended, the amount of tax determined to be due under such return shall be paid upon notice and demand by the collector.

(d) Except in the case of false or fraudulent returns with intent to evade the tax, the amount of tax due under any return shall be determined and assessed by the Commissioner within five years after the return was due or was made, and no suit or proceeding for the collection of any tax shall be begun after the expiration of five years after the date when the return was due or was made. In the case of such false or fraudulent returns, the amount of tax due may be determined at any time after the return is filed, and the tax may be collected at any time after it becomes due.

(e) If any tax remains unpaid after the date when it is due, and for ten days after notice and demand by the collector, then, except in the case of estates of insane, deceased, or insolvent persons, there shall be added as part of the tax the sum of 5 per centum on the amount due but unpaid, plus interest at the rate of 1 per centum per month upon such amount from the time it became due: Provided, That as to any such amount which is the subject of a bona fide claim for abatement such sum of 5 per centum shall not be added and the interest from the time the amount was due until the claim is decided shall be at the rate of  $\frac{1}{2}$  of 1 per centum per month.

In the case of the first installment provided for in subdivision (a) the instructions printed on the return shall be deemed sufficient notice of the date when the tax is due and sufficient demand, and the taxpayer's computation of the tax on the return shall be deemed sufficient notice of the amount due.

(f) In any case in which in order to enforce payment of a tax it is necessary for a collector to cause a warrant of distraint to be served, there shall also be added as part of the tax the sum of $5.

(g) If the Commissioner finds that a taxpayer designs quickly to depart from the United States or to remove his property therefrom, or to conceal himself or his property therein, or to do any other act tending to prejudice or to render wholly or partly ineffectual proceedings to collect the tax for the taxable year then last past or the taxable year then current unless such proceedings be brought without delay, the Commissioner shall declare the taxable period for such taxpayer terminated at the end of the calendar month then last past and shall cause notice of such finding and declaration to be given the taxpayer, together with a demand for immediate payment of the tax for the taxable period so declared terminated and of the tax for the preceding taxable year or so much of said tax as is unpaid, whether or not the time otherwise allowed by law for filing return and paying the tax has expired; and such taxes shall thereupon become immediately due and payable. In any action or suit brought to enforce payment of taxes made due and payable by virtue of the provisions of this subdivision the finding of the Commissioner, made as herein provided, whether made after notice to the taxpayer or not, shall be for all purposes presumptive evidence of the taxpayer's design. A taxpayer who is not in default in making any return or paying income, war-profits, or excess-profits tax under any Act of Congress may furnish to the United States, under regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, security approved by the Commissioner that he will duly make the return next thereafter required to be filed and pay the tax next thereafter required to be paid. The Commissioner may approve and accept in like manner security for return and payment of taxes made due and payable by virtue of the provisions of this subdivision, provided the taxpayer has paid in full all other income, war-profits, or excess-profits taxes due from him under any Act of Congress. If security is approved and accepted pursuant to the provisions of this subdivision and such further or other security with respect to the tax or taxes covered thereby is given as the Commissioner shall from time to time find necessary and require, payment of such taxes shall not be enforced by any proceedings under the provisions of this subdivision prior to the expiration of the time otherwise allowed for paying such respective taxes. [40 Stat. L. 1082.]

For R. S. sec. 3176 as amended, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 282.

SEC. 251. Receipts for taxes. That every collector to whom any payment of any tax is made under the provisions of this title shall upon request give to the person making such payment a full written or printed receipt, stating the amount paid and the particular account for which such payment was made; and whenever any debtor pays taxes on account of payments made or to be made by him to separate creditors the collector shall, if requested by such debtor, give a separate receipt for the tax paid on account of each creditor in such form that the debtor can conveniently produce such receipts separately to his several creditors in satisfaction of their respective demands up to the amounts stated in the receipts; and such receipt shall be sufficient evidence in favor of such debtor to justify him in withholding from his next payment to his creditor the amount therein stated; but the creditor may, upon giving to his debtor a full written receipt acknowledging the payment to him of any sum actually paid and accepting the amount of tax paid as aforesaid (specifying the same) as a further satisfaction of the debt to that amount, require the surrender to him of such collector's receipt. [40 Stat. L. 1084.]

SEC. 252. Refunds. That if, upon examination of any return of income made pursuant to this Act, the Act of August 5, 1909, entitled "An Act to provide revenue, equalize duties, and encourage the industries of the United States, and for other purposes," the Act of October 3, 1913, entitled "An Act to reduce tariff duties and to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes," the Revenue Act of 1916, as amended, or the Revenue Act of 1917, it appears that an amount of income, war-profits or excess-profits tax has been paid in excess of that properly due, then, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3228 of the Revised Statutes, the amount of the excess shall be credited against any income, war-profits or excess-profits taxes, or installment thereof, then due from the taxpayer under any other return, and any balance of such excess shall be immediately refunded to the taxpayer: Provided, That no such credit or refund shall be allowed or made after five years from the date when the return was due; unless before the expiration of such five years a claim therefor is filed by the taxpayer. [40 Stat. L. 1085.]

For Act of Aug. 5, 1909, see 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 726.

For Act of Oct. 3, 1913, see 2 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 724; 1914 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 59.

For Revenue Acts of 1916 and 1917, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 273.

For R. S. sec. 3228, see 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 603; 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1037.

SEC. 253. Penalties. That any individual, corporation, or partnership required under this title to pay or collect any tax, to make a return or to supply information, who fails to pay or collect such tax, to make such return, or to supply such information at the time or times required under this title, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than $1,000. Any individual, corporation, or partnership, or any officer or employee of any corporation or member or employee of a partnership, who willfully refuses to pay or collect such tax, to make such return, or to supply such information at the time or times required under this title, or who willfully attempts in any manner to defeat or evade the tax imposed by this title, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both, together with the costs of prosecution. [40 Stat. L. 1085.]

SEC. 254. Returns of payments of dividends. That every corporation subject to the tax imposed by this title and every personal service corporation shall, when required by the Commissioner, render a correct return duly verified under oath, of its payments of dividends, stating the name and address of each stockholder, the number of shares owned by him, and the amount of dividends paid to him. [40 Stat. L. 1085.]

SEC. 255. Returns of brokers. That every individual, corporation, or partnership doing business as a broker shall, when required by the Commissioner, render a correct return duly verified under oath, under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, showing the names of customers for whom such individual, corporation, or partnership has transacted any business, with such details as to the profits, losses, or other information which the Commissioner may require, as to each of such customers, as will enable the Commissioner to determine whether all income tax due on profits or gains of such customers has been paid. [40 Stat. L. 1085.]

SEC. 256. Information at source. That all individuals, corporations, and partnerships, in whatever capacity acting, including lessees or mortgagors of real or personal property, fiduciaries, and employers, making payment to another individual, corporation, or partnership, of interest, rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, or other fixed or determinable gains, profits, and income (other than payments described in sections 254 and 255), of $1,000 or more in any taxable year, or, in the case of such payments made by the United States, the officers or employees of the United States having information as to such payments and required to make returns in regard thereto by the regulations hereinafter provided for, shall render a true and accurate return to the Commissioner, under such regulations and in such form and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by him with the approval of the Secretary, setting forth the amount of such gains, profits, and income, and the name and address of the recipient of such payment.

Such returns may be required, regardless of amounts, (1) in the case of payments of interest upon bonds, mortgages, deeds of trust, or other similar obligations of corporations, and (2) in the case of collections of items (not payable in the United States) of interest upon the bonds of foreign countries and interest upon the bonds of and dividends from foreign corporations by individuals, corporations, or partnerships, undertaking as a matter of business or for profit the collection of foreign payments of such interest or dividends by means of coupons, checks, or bills of exchange.

When necessary to make effective the provisions of this section the name and address of the recipient of income shall be furnished upon demand of the individual, corporation, or partnership paying the income.

The provisions of this section shall apply to the calendar year 1918 and each calendar year thereafter, but shall not apply to the payment of interest on obligations of the United States. [40 Stat. L. 1086.]

SEC. 257. Returns to be public records. That returns upon which the tax has been determined by the Commissioner shall constitute public records; but they shall be open to inspection only upon order of the President and under rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary and approved by the President: Provided, That the proper officers of any State imposing an income tax may, upon the request of the governor thereof, have access to the returns of any corporation, or to an abstract thereof showing the name and income of the corporation, at such times and in such manner as the Secretary may prescribe: Provided further, That all bona fide stockholders of record owning 1 per centum or more of the outstanding stock of any corporation shall, upon making request of the Commissioner, be allowed to examine the annual income returns of such corporation and of its subsidiaries. Any stockholder who pursuant to the provisions of this section is allowed to examine the return of any corporation, and who makes known in any manner whatever not provided by law the amount or source of income, profits, losses, expenditures, or any particular thereof, set forth or disclosed in any such return, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

The Commissioner shall as soon as practicable in each year cause to be prepared and made available to public inspection in such manner as he may determine, in the office of the collector in each internal-revenue district and in such other places as he may determine, lists containing the names and the post-office addresses of all individuals making income-tax returns in such district. [40 Stat. L. 1086.]

SEC. 258. Publication of statistics. That the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, shall prepare and publish annually statistics reasonably available with respect to the operation of the income, war-profits and excess-profits-tax laws, including classifications of taxpayers and of income, the amounts allowed as deductions, exemptions, and credits, and any other facts deemed pertinent and valuable. [40 Stat. L. 1087.]

SEC. 259. Collection of foreign items. That all individuals, corporations, or partnerships undertaking as a matter of business or for profit the collection of foreign payments of interest or dividends by means of coupons, checks, or bills of exchange shall obtain a license from the Commissioner and shall be subject to such regulations enabling the Government to obtain the information required under this title as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, shall prescribe; and whoever knowingly undertakes to collect such payments without having obtained a license therefor, or without complying with such regulations, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not more than $5,000, or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both. [40 Stat. L. 1087.]

SEC. 260. Citizens of United States possessions. That any individual who is a citizen of any possession of the United States (but not otherwise a citizen of the United States) and who is not a resident of the United States, shall be subject to taxation under this title only as to income derived from sources within the United States, and in such case the tax shall be computed and paid in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as in the case of other persons who are taxable only as to income derived from such sources. [40 Stat. L. 1087.]

SEC. 261. Porto Rico and Philippine Islands. That in Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands the income tax shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid in accordance with the provisions of the Revenue Act of 1916 as amended.

Returns shall be made and taxes shall be paid under Title I of such Act in Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands, as the case may be, by (1) every individual who is a citizen or resident of Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands or derives income from sources therein, and (2) every corporation created or organized in Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands or deriving income from sources therein. An individual who is neither a citizen nor a resident of Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands but derives income from sources therein, shall be taxed in Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands as a nonresident alien individual, and a corporation created or organized outside Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands and deriving income from sources therein shall be taxed in Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands as a foreign corporation. For the purposes of section 216 and of paragraph (6) of subdivision (a) of section 234 a tax imposed in Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands upon the net income of a corporation shall not be deemed to be a tax under this title.

The Porto Rican or Philippine Legislature shall have power by due enactment to amend, alter, modify, or repeal the income tax laws in force in Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands, respectively. [40 Stat. L. 1087.]

For Revenue Act of 1916, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 273.

TITLE III — WAR-PROFITS AND EXCESS-PROFITS TAX

Part I.—General Definitions.

SEC. 300. [Terms used in title defined.] That when used in this title the terms "taxable year," "fiscal year," "personal service corporation," "paid or accrued," and "dividends" shall have the same meaning as provided for the purposes of income tax in sections 200 and 201. The first taxable year for the purposes of this title shall be the same as the first taxable year for the purposes of the income tax under Title II. [40 Stat. L. 1088.]

Part II.—Imposition of Tax.

SEC. 301. [Rate of tax.] (a) That in lieu of the tax imposed by Title II of the Revenue Act of 1917, but in addition to the other taxes imposed by this Act, there shall be levied, collected, and paid for the taxable year 1918 upon the net income of every corporation a tax equal to the sum of the following:

FIRST BRACKET.

30 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of the excess-profits credit (determined under section 312) and not in excess of 20 per centum of the invested capital;

SECOND BRACKET.

65 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of 20 per centum of the invested capital;

THIRD BRACKET.

The sum, if any, by which 80 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of the war-profits credit (determined under section 311) exceeds the amount of the tax computed under the first and second brackets.

(b) For the taxable year 1919 and each taxable year thereafter there shall be levied, collected, and paid upon the net income of every corporation (except corporations taxable under subdivision (c) of this section) a tax equal to the sum of the following:

FIRST BRACKET.

20 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of the excess-profits credit (determined under section 312) and not in excess of 20 per centum of the invested capital;

SECOND BRACKET.

40 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of 20 per centum of the invested capital.

(c) For the taxable year 1919 and each taxable year thereafter there shall be levied, collected, and paid upon the net income of every corporation which derives in such year a net income of more than $10,000 from any Government contract or contracts made between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, both dates inclusive, a tax equal to the sum of the following:

(1) Such a portion of a tax computed at the rates specified in subdivision (a) as the part of the net income attributable to such Government contract or contracts bears to the entire net income. In computing such tax the excess-profits credit and the war-profits credit applicable to the taxable year shall be used;

(2) Such a portion of a tax computed at the rates specified in subdivision (b) as the part of the net income not attributable to such Government contract or contracts bears to the entire net income.

For the purpose of determining the part of the net income attributable to such Government contract or contracts, the proper apportionment and allocation of the deductions with respect to gross income derived from such Government contract or contracts and from other sources, respectively, shall be determined under rules and regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary.

(d) In any case where the full amount of the excess-profit credit is not allowed under the first bracket of subdivision (a) or (b), by reason of the fact that such credit is in excess of 20 per centum of the invested capital, the part not so allowed shall be deducted from the amount in the second bracket.

(e) For the purposes of the Act approved March 21, 1918, entitled "An Act to provide for the operation of transportation systems while under Federal control, for the just compensation of their owners, and for other purposes," the tax imposed by this title shall be treated as levied by an Act in amendment of Title II of the Revenue Act of 1917. [40 Stat. L. 1088.]

For Act of March 21, 1918, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 757.

SEC. 302. [Tax limitations.] That the tax imposed by subdivision (a) of section 301 shall in no case be more than 30 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of $3,000 and not in excess of $20,000, plus 80 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of $20,000; the tax imposed by subdivision (b) of section 301 shall in no case be more than 20 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of $3,000 and not in excess of $20,000, plus 40 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of $20,000; and the above limitations shall apply to the taxes computed under subdivisions (a) and (b) of section 301, respectively, when used in subdivision (c) of that section. Nothing in this section shall be construed in such manner as to increase the tax imposed by section 301. [40 Stat. L. 1089.]

SEC. 303. [Net income derived from different sources — computation.] That if part of the net income of a corporation is derived (1) from a trade or business (or a branch of a trade or business) in which the employment of capital is necessary, and (2) a part (constituting not less than 30 per centum of its total net income) is derived from a separate trade or business (or a distinctly separate branch of the trade or business) which if constituting the sole trade or business would bring it within the class of "personal service corporations," then (under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary) the tax upon the first part of such net income shall be separately computed (allowing in such computation only the same proportionate part of the credits authorized in sections 311 and 312), and the tax upon the second part shall be the same percentage thereof as the tax so computed upon the first part is of such first part: Provided, That the tax upon such second part shall in no case be less than 20 per centum thereof, unless the tax upon the entire net income, if computed without benefit of this section, would constitute less than 20 per centum of such entire net income, in which event the tax shall be determined upon the entire net income, without reference to this section, as other taxes are determined under this title. The total tax computed under this section shall be subject to the limitations provided in section 302. [40 Stat. L. 1089.]

SEC. 304. [Corporations when exempt from taxation.] (a) That the corporations enumerated in section 231 shall, to the extent that they are exempt from income tax under Title II, be exempt from taxation under this title.

(b) Any corporation whose net income for the taxable year is less than $3,000 shall be exempt from taxation under this title.

(c) In the case of any corporation engaged in the mining of gold, the portion of the net income derived from the mining of gold shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this title, and the tax on the remaining portion of the net income shall be the proportion of a tax computed without the benefit of this subdivision which such remaining portion of the net income bears to the entire net income. [40 Stat. L. 1090.]

SEC. 305. [Period of computation as affecting amount of exemption.] That if a tax is computed under this title for a period of less than twelve months, the specific exemption of $3,000, wherever referred to in this title, shall be reduced to an amount which is the same proportion of $3,000 as the number of months in the period is of twelve months. [40 Stat. L. 1090.]

Part III.—Credits.

SEC. 310. ["Prewar period" defined.] That as used in this title the term "prewar period" means the calendar years 1911, 1912, and 1913, or, if a corporation was not in existence during the whole of such period, then as many of such years during the whole of which the corporation was in existence. [40 Stat. L. 1090.]

SEC. 311. [War-profits credit—computation.] (a) That the war-profits credit shall consist of the sum of:

(1) A specific exemption of $3,000; and

(2) An amount equal to the average net income of the corporation for the prewar period, plus or minus, as the case may be, 10 per centum of the difference between the average invested capital for the prewar period and the invested capital for the taxable year. If the tax is computed for a period of less than twelve months such amount shall be reduced to the same proportion thereof as the number of months in the period is of twelve months.

(b) If the corporation had no net income for the prewar period, or if the amount computed under paragraph (2) of subdivision (a) is less than 10 per centum of its invested capital for the taxable year, then the war-profits credit shall be the sum of:

(1) A specific exemption of $3,000; and

(2) An amount equal to 10 per centum of the invested capital for the taxable year.

(c) If the corporation was not in existence during the whole of at least one calendar year during the prewar period, then, except as provided in subdivision

(d), the war-profits credit shall be the sum of:

(1) A specific exemption of $3,000; and

(2) An amount equal to the same percentage of the invested capital of the taxpayer for the taxable year as the average percentage of net income to invested capital, for the prewar period, of corporations engaged in a trade or business of the same general class as that conducted by the taxpayer; but such amount shall in no case be less than 10 per centum of the invested capital of the taxpayer for the taxable year. Such average percentage shall be determined by the Commissioner on the basis of data contained in returns made under Title II of the Revenue Act of 1917, and the average known as the median shall be used. If such average percentage has not been determined and published at least 30 days prior to the time when the return of the taxpayer is due, then for purposes of such return 10 per centum shall be used in lieu thereof; but such average percentage when determined shall be used for the purposes of section 250 in determining the correct amount of the tax.

(d) The war-profits credit shall be determined in the manner provided in subdivision (b) instead of in the manner provided in subdivision (c), in the case of any corporation which was not in existence during the whole of at least one calendar year during the prewar period, if (1) a majority of its stock at any time during the taxable year is owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by a corporation which was in existence during the whole of at least one calendar year during the prewar period, or if (2) 50 per centum or more of its gross income (as computed under section 233 for income tax purposes) consists of gains, profits, commissions, or other income, derived from a government contract or contracts made between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, both dates inclusive.

(e) A foreign corporation shall not be entitled to a specific exemption of $3,000. [40 Stat. L. 1090.]

For Revenue Act of 1917, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 274.

SEC. 312. [Excess-profits credit.] That the excess-profits credit shall consist of a specific exemption of $3,000 plus an amount equal to 8 per centum of the invested capital for the taxable year.

A foreign corporation shall not be entitled to the specific exemption of $3,000. [40 Stat. L. 1091.]

Part IV.—Net Income.

SEC. 320. [Basis of ascertainment.] (a) That for the purpose of this title the net income of a corporation shall be ascertained and returned —

(1) For the calendar years 1911 and 1912 upon the same basis and in the same manner as provided in section 38 of the Act entitled "An Act to provide revenue, equalize duties, and encourage the industries of the United States, and for other purposes," approved August 5, 1909, except that taxes imposed by such section and paid by the corporation within the year shall be included;

(2) For the calendar year 1913 upon the same basis and in the same manner as provided in Section II of the Act entitled "An Act to reduce tariff duties and to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes," approved October 3, 1913, except that taxes imposed by section 38 of such Act of August 5, 1909, and paid by the corporation within the year shall be included, and except that the amounts received by it as dividends upon the stock or from the net earnings of other corporations subject to the tax imposed by Section II of such Act of October 3, 1913, shall be deducted; and

(3) For the taxable year upon the same basis and in the same manner as provided for income tax purposes in Title II of this Act.

(b) The average net income for the prewar period shall be determined by dividing the number of years within that period during the whole of which the corporation was in existence into the sum of the net income for such years, even though there may have been no net income for one or more of such years. [40 Stat. L. 1091.]

For Act of Aug. 5, 1909, § 38, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 255; 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 829.

For Act of Oct. 3, 1913, § II, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 236; 1914 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 185.

Part V.—Invested Capital.

SEC. 325. [Certain terms defined.] (a) That as used in this title—

The term "intangible property" means patents, copyrights, secret processes and formulæ, good will, trade-marks, trade-brands, franchises, and other like property;

The term "tangible property" means stocks, bonds, notes, and other evidences of indebtedness, bills and accounts receivable, leaseholds, and other property other than intangible property;

The term "borrowed capital" means money or other property borrowed, whether represented by bonds, notes, open accounts, or otherwise;

The term "inadmissible assets" means stocks, bonds, and other obligations (other than obligations of the United States), the dividends or interest from which is not included in computing net income, but where the income derived from such assets consists in part of gain or profit derived from the sale or other disposition thereof, or where all or part of the interest derived from such assets is in effect included in the net income because of the limitation on the deduction of interest under paragraph (2) of subdivision (a) of section 234, a corresponding part of the capital invested in such assets shall not be deemed to be inadmissible assets;

The term "admissible assets" means all assets other than inadmissible assets, valued in accordance with the provisions of subdivision (a) of section 326, section 330, and section 331.

(b) For the purposes of this title, the par value of stock or shares shall, in the case of stock or shares issued at a nominal value or having no par value, be deemed to be the fair market value as of the date or dates of issue of such stock or shares. [40 Stat. L. 1091.]

SEC. 326. [“Invested capital” — Meaning and scope of term.] (a) That as used in this title the term “invested capital” for any year means (except as provided in subdivisions (b) and (c) of this section):

(1) Actual cash bona fide paid in for stock or shares;

(2) Actual cash value of tangible property, other than cash, bona fide paid in for stock or shares, at the time of such payment, but in no case to exceed the par value of the original stock or shares specifically issued therefor, unless the actual cash value of such tangible property at the time paid in is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner to have been clearly and substantially in excess of such par value, in which case such excess shall be treated as paid-in surplus: Provided, That the Commissioner shall keep a record of all cases in which tangible property is included in invested capital at a value in excess of the stock or shares issued therefor, containing the name and address of each taxpayer, the business in which engaged, the amount of invested capital and net income shown by the return, the value of the tangible property at the time paid in, the par value of the stock or shares specifically issued therefor, and the amount included under this paragraph as paid-in surplus. The Commissioner shall furnish a copy of such record and other detailed information with respect to such cases when required by resolution of either House of Congress, without regard to the restrictions contained in section 257;

(3) Paid-in or earned surplus and undivided profits; not including surplus and undivided profits earned during the year;

(4) Intangible property bona fide paid in for stock or shares prior to March 3, 1917, in an amount not exceeding (a) the actual cash value of such property at the time paid in, (b) the par value of the stock or shares issued therefor, or (c) in the aggregate 25 per centum of the par value of the total stock or shares of the corporation outstanding on March 3, 1917, whichever is lowest;

(5) Intangible property bona fide paid in for stock or shares on or after March 3, 1917, in an amount not exceeding (a) the actual cash value of such property at the time paid in, (b) the par value of the stock or shares issued therefor, or (c) in the aggregate 25 per centum of the par value of the total stock or shares of the corporation outstanding at the beginning of the taxable year, whichever is lowest: Provided, That in no case shall the total amount included under paragraphs (4) and (5) exceed in the aggregate 25 per centum of the par value of the total stock or shares of the corporation outstanding at the beginning of the taxable year; but

(b) As used in this title the term “invested capital” does not include borrowed capital.

(c) There shall be deducted from invested capital as above defined a percentage thereof equal to the percentage which the amount of inadmissible assets is of the amount of admissible and inadmissible assets held during the taxable year.

(d) The invested capital for any period shall be the average invested capital for such period, but in the case of a corporation making a return for a fractional part of a year, it shall (except for the purpose of paragraph (2) of subdivision (a) of section 311) be the same fractional part of such average invested capital.

The average invested capital for the prewar period shall be determined by dividing the number of years within that period during the whole of which the corporation was in existence into the sum of the average invested capital for such years. [40 Stat. L. 1092.]

SEC. 327. [Enumeration of cases specially considered for purposes of taxation.] That in the following cases the tax shall be determined as provided in section 328:

(a) Where the Commissioner is unable to determine the invested capital as provided in section 326;

(b) In the case of a foreign corporation;

(c) Where a mixed aggregate of tangible property and intangible property has been paid in for stock or for stock and bonds and the Commissioner is unable satisfactorily to determine the respective values of the several classes of property at the time of payment, or to distinguish the classes of property paid in for stock and for bonds, respectively;

(d) Where upon application by the corporation the Commissioner finds and so declares of record that the tax if determined without benefit of this section would, owing to abnormal conditions affecting the capital or income of the corporation, work upon the corporation an exceptional hardship evidenced by gross disproportion between the tax computed without benefit of this section and the tax computed by reference to the representative corporations specified in section 328. This subdivision shall not apply to any case (1) in which the tax (computed without benefit of this section) is high merely because the corporation earned within the taxable year a high rate of profit upon a normal invested capital, nor (2) in which 50 per centum or more of the gross income of the corporation for the taxable year (computed under section 233 of Title II) consists of gains, profits, commissions, or other income, derived on a cost-plus basis from a Government contract or contracts made between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, both dates inclusive. [40 Stat. L. 1093.]

SEC. 328. [Determination of tax of specially considered cases.] (a) In the cases specified in section 327 the tax shall be the amount which bears the same ratio to the net income of the taxpayer (in excess of the specific exemption of $3,000) for the taxable year, as the average tax of representative corporations engaged in a like or similar trade or business, bears to their average net income (in excess of the specific exemption of $3,000) for such year. In the case of a foreign corporation the tax shall be computed without deducting the specific exemption of $3,000 either for the taxpayer or the representative corporations.

In computing the tax under this section the Commissioner shall compare the taxpayer only with representative corporations whose invested capital can be satisfactorily determined under section 326 and which are, as nearly as may be, similarly circumstanced with respect to gross income, net income, profits per unit of business transacted and capital employed, the amount and rate of war profits or excess profits, and all other relevant facts and circumstances.

(b) For the purposes of subdivision (a) the ratios between the average tax and the average net income of representative corporations shall be determined by the Commissioner in accordance with regulations prescribed by him with the approval of the Secretary.

In cases in which the tax is to be computed under this section, if the tax as computed without the benefit of this section is less than 50 per centum of the net income of the taxpayer, the installments shall in the first instance be computed upon the basis of such tax; but if the tax so computed is 50 per centum or more of the net income, the installments shall in the first instance be computed upon the basis of a tax equal to 50 per centum of the net income. In any case, the actual ratio when ascertained shall be used in determining the correct amount of the tax. If the correct amount of the tax when determined exceeds 50 per centum of the net income, any excess of the correct installments over the amounts actually paid shall on notice and demand be paid together with interest at the rate of  $\frac{1}{2}$  of 1 per centum per month on such excess from the time the installment was due.

(c) The Commissioner shall keep a record of all cases in which the tax is determined in the manner prescribed in subdivision (a), containing the name and address of each taxpayer, the business in which engaged, the amount of invested capital and net income shown by the return, and the amount of invested capital as determined under such subdivision. The Commissioner shall furnish a copy of such record and other detailed information with respect to such cases when required by resolution of either House of Congress, without regard to the restrictions contained in section 257. [40 Stat. L. 1093.]

Part VI.—Reorganizations.

SEC. 330. [Reorganizations, consolidations and changes of ownership — net income and invested capital.] That in the case of the reorganization, consolidation, or change of ownership after January 1, 1911, of a trade or business now carried on by a corporation, the corporation shall for the purposes of this title be deemed to have been in existence prior to that date, and the net income and invested capital of such predecessor trade or business for all or any part of the prewar period prior to the organization of the corporation now carrying on such trade or business shall be deemed to have been the net income and invested capital of such corporation.

If such predecessor trade or business was carried on by a partnership or individual the net income for the prewar period shall, under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, be ascertained and returned as nearly as may be upon the same basis and in the same manner as provided for corporations in Title II, including a reasonable deduction for salary or compensation to each partner or the individual for personal services actually rendered.

In the case of the organization as a corporation before July 1, 1919, of any trade or business in which capital is a material income-producing factor and which was previously owned by a partnership or individual, the net income of such trade or business from January 1, 1918, to the date of such reorganization may at the option of the individual or partnership be taxed as the net income of a corporation is taxed under Titles II and III; in which event the net income and invested capital of such trade or business shall be computed as if such corporation had been in existence on and after January 1, 1918, and the undistributed profits or earnings of such trade or business shall not be subject to the surtax imposed in section 211, but amounts distributed on or after January 1, 1918, from the earnings of such trade or business shall be taxed to the recipients as dividends, and all the provisions of Titles II and III relating to corporations shall so far as practicable apply to such trade or business: Provided, That this paragraph shall not apply to any trade or business the net income of which for the taxable year 1918 was less than 20 per centum of its invested capital for such year: Provided further, That any taxpayer who takes advantage of this paragraph shall pay the tax imposed by section 1000 of this Act and by the first subdivision of section 407 of the Revenue Act of 1916, as if such taxpayer had been a corporation on and after January 1, 1918, with a capital stock having no par value.

If any asset of the trade or business in existence both during the taxable year and any prewar year is included in the invested capital for the taxable year but is not included in the invested capital for such prewar year, or is valued on a different basis in computing the invested capital for the taxable year and such prewar year, respectively, then under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary such readjustments shall be made as are necessary to place the computation of the invested capital for such prewar year on the basis employed in determining the invested capital for the taxable year. [40 Stat. L. 1094.]

For Revenue Act of 1916, § 407, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 282.

SEC. 331. [Reorganizations, etc., subsequent to March 3, 1917.] In the case of the reorganization, consolidation, or change of ownership of a trade or business, or change of ownership of property, after March 3, 1917, if an interest or control in such trade or business or property of 50 per centum or more remains in the same persons, or any of them, then no asset transferred or received from the previous owner shall, for the purpose of determining invested capital, be allowed a greater value than would have been allowed under this title in computing the invested capital of such previous owner if such asset had not been so transferred or received: Provided, That if such previous owner was not a corporation, then the value of any asset so transferred or received shall be taken at its cost of acquisition (at the date when acquired by such previous owner) with proper allowance for depreciation, impairment, betterment or development, but no addition to the original cost shall be made for any charge or expenditure deducted as expense or otherwise on or after March 1, 1913, in computing the net income of such previous owner for purposes of taxation. [40 Stat. L. 1095.]

Part VII.—Miscellaneous.

SEC. 335. [Period covered by return of corporation as affecting amount of tax—refund of tax of partnership or personal service corporation.] (a) That if a corporation (other than a personal service corporation) makes return for a fiscal year beginning in 1917 and ending in 1918, the tax for the first taxable year under this title shall be the sum of: (1) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under Title II of the Revenue Act of 1917 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1917 is of the entire period, and (2) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under this title at the rates specified in subdivision (a) of section 301 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1918 is of the entire period. Any amount heretofore or hereafter paid on account of the tax imposed for such fiscal year by Title II of the Revenue Act of 1917 shall be credited toward the payment of the tax imposed for such fiscal year by this title, and if the amount so paid exceeds the amount of the tax imposed by this title, the excess shall be credited or refunded to the corporation in accordance with the provisions of section 252.

(b) If a corporation makes return for a fiscal year beginning in 1918 and ending in 1919, the tax for such fiscal year under this title shall be the sum of: (1) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under subdivision (a) of section 301 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1918 is of the entire period, and (2) the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under subdivision (b) or (c) of section 301 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1919 is of the entire period.

(c) If a partnership or a personal service corporation makes return for a fiscal year beginning in 1917 and ending in 1918, it shall pay the same proportion of a tax for the entire period computed under Title II of the Revenue Act of 1917 which the portion of such period falling within the calendar year 1917 is of the entire period.

Any tax paid by a partnership or personal service corporation for any period beginning on or after January 1, 1918, shall be immediately refunded to the partnership or corporation as a tax erroneously or illegally collected. [40 Stat. L. 1095.]

For Revenue Act of 1917, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 274.

SEC. 336. [Corporations required to make returns under title — laws affecting returns and payment of taxes.] That every corporation, not exempt under section 304, shall make a return for the purposes of this title. Such returns shall be made, and the taxes imposed by this title shall be paid, at the same times and places, in the same manner, and subject to the same conditions, as is provided in the case of returns and payment of income tax by corporations for the purposes of Title II, and all the provisions of that title not inapplicable, including penalties, are hereby made applicable to the taxes imposed by this title. [40 Stat. L. 1096.]

SEC. 337. [Sales of mines, oil or gas wells — amount of tax.] That in the case of a bona fide sale of mines, oil or gas wells, or any interest therein, where the principal value of the property has been demonstrated by prospecting or exploration and discovery work done by the taxpayer, the portion of the tax imposed by this title attributable to such sale shall not exceed 20 per centum of the selling price of such property or interest. [40 Stat. L. 1096.]

TITLE IV.— ESTATE TAX.

SEC. 400. [Definitions — “executor” — “collector.”] That when used in this title —

The term “executor” means the executor or administrator of the decedent, or, if there is no executor or administrator, any person who takes possession of any property of the decedent; and

The term “collector” means the collector of internal revenue of the district in which was the domicile of the decedent at the time of his death, or, if there was no such domicile in the United States, then the collector of the district in which is situated the part of the gross estate of the decedent in the United States, or, if such part of the gross estate is situated in more than one district, then the collector of internal revenue of such district as may be designated by the Commissioner. [40 Stat. L. 1096.]

SEC. 401. [Imposition of tax — amount — persons dying in military or naval service.] That (in lieu of the tax imposed by Title II of the Revenue Act of 1916, as amended, and in lieu of the tax imposed by Title IX of the Revenue Act of 1917) a tax equal to the sum of the following percentages of the value of the net estate (determined as provided in section 403) is hereby imposed upon the transfer of the net estate of every decedent dying after the passage of this Act, whether a resident or nonresident of the United States:

- 1 per centum of the amount of the net estate not in excess of $50,000;
- 2 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $50,000 and does not exceed $150,000;
- 3 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $150,000 and does not exceed $250,000;
- 4 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $250,000 and does not exceed $450,000;
- 6 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $450,000 and does not exceed $750,000;
- 8 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $750,000 and does not exceed $1,000,000;
- 10 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $1,000,000 and does not exceed $1,500,000;
- 12 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $1,500,000 and does not exceed $2,000,000;
- 14 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $2,000,000 and does not exceed $3,000,000;
- 16 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $3,000,000 and does not exceed $4,000,000;
- 18 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $4,000,000 and does not exceed $5,000,000;
- 20 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $5,000,000 and does not exceed $8,000,000;
- 22 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $8,000,000 and does not exceed $10,000,000; and
- 25 per centum of the amount by which the net estate exceeds $10,000,000.

The taxes imposed by this title or by Title II of the Revenue Act of 1916 (as amended by the Act entitled "An Act to provide increased revenue to defray the expenses of the increased appropriations for the Army and Navy and the extensions of fortifications, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1917) or by Title IX of the Revenue Act of 1917, shall not apply to the transfer of the net estate of any decedent who has died or may die while serving in the military or naval forces of the United States in the present war or from injuries received or disease contracted while in such service, and any such tax collected upon such transfer shall be refunded to the executor. [40 Stat. L. 1096.]

For Revenue Acts of 1916 and 1917, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 270 et seq.

SEC. 402. [Value of gross estate — determination.] That the value of the gross estate of the decedent shall be determined by including the value at the time of his death of all property, real or personal, tangible or intangible, wherever situated —

(a) To the extent of the interest therein of the decedent at the time of his death which after his death is subject to the payment of the charges against his estate and the expenses of its administration and is subject to distribution as part of his estate;

(b) To the extent of any interest therein of the surviving spouse, existing at the time of the decedent's death as dower, courtesy, or by virtue of a statute creating an estate in lieu of dower or courtesy;

(c) To the extent of any interest therein of which the decedent has at any time made a transfer, or with respect to which he has at any time created a trust, in contemplation of or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment at or after his death (whether such transfer or trust is made or created before or after the passage of this Act), except in case of a bona fide sale for a fair consideration in money or money's worth. Any transfer of a material part of his property in the nature of a final disposition or distribution thereof, made by the decedent within two years prior to his death without such a consideration, shall, unless shown to the contrary, be deemed to have been made in contemplation of death within the meaning of this title;

(d) To the extent of the interest therein held jointly or as tenants in the entirety by the decedent and any other person, or deposited in banks or other institutions in their joint names and payable to either or the survivor, except such part thereof as may be shown to have originally belonged to such other person and never to have belonged to the decedent;

(e) To the extent of any property passing under a general power of appointment exercised by the decedent (1) by will, or (2) by deed executed in contemplation of, or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment at or after, his death, except in case of a bona fide sale for a fair consideration in money or money's worth; and

(f) To the extent of the amount receivable by the executor as insurance under policies taken out by the decedent upon his own life; and to the extent of the excess over $40,000 of the amount receivable by all other beneficiaries as insurance under policies taken out by the decedent upon his own life. [40 Stat. L. 1097.]

SEC. 403. [Value of net estate — determination.] That for the purpose of the tax the value of the net estate shall be determined —

(a) In the case of a resident, by deducting from the value of the gross estate —

(1) Such amounts for funeral expenses, administration expenses, claims against the estate, unpaid mortgages, losses incurred during the settlement of the estate arising from fires, storms, shipwreck, or other casualty, or from theft, when such losses are not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, and such amounts reasonably required and actually expended for the support during the settlement of the estate of those dependent upon the decedent, as are allowed by the laws of the jurisdiction, whether within or without the United States, under which the estate is being administered, but not including any income taxes upon income received after the death of the decedent, or any estate, succession, legacy, or inheritance taxes;

(2) An amount equal to the value at the time of the decedent's death of any property, real, personal, or mixed, which can be identified as having been received by the decedent as a share in the estate of any person who died within five years prior to the death of the decedent, or which can be identified as having been acquired by the decedent in exchange for property so received, if an estate tax under the Revenue Act of 1917 or under this Act was collected from such estate, and if such property is included in the decedent's gross estate;

(3) The amount of all bequests, legacies, devises, or gifts, to or for the use of the United States, any State, Territory, any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, for exclusively public purposes, or to or for the use of any corporation organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual, or to a trustee or trustees exclusively for such religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes. This deduction shall be made in case of the estates of all decedents who have died since December 31, 1917; and

(4) An exemption of $50,000;

(b) In the case of a nonresident, by deducting from the value of that part of his gross estate which at the time of his death is situated in the United States—

(1) That proportion of the deductions specified in paragraph (1) of subdivision (a) of this section which the value of such part bears to the value of his entire gross estate, wherever situated, but in no case shall the amount so deducted exceed 10 per centum of the value of that part of his gross estate which at the time of his death is situated in the United States;

(2) An amount equal to the value at the time of the decedent's death of any property, real, personal, or mixed, which can be identified as having been received by the decedent as a share in the estate of any person who died within five years prior to the death of the decedent, or which can be identified as having been acquired by the decedent in exchange for property so received, if an estate tax under the Revenue Act of 1917 or under this Act was collected from such estate, and if such property is included in that part of the decedent's gross estate which at the time of his death is situated in the United States; and

(3) The amount of all bequests, legacies, devises, or gifts, to or for the use of the United States, any State, Territory, any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, for exclusively public purposes, or to or for the use of any domestic corporation organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual, or to a trustee or trustees exclusively for such religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes within the United States. This deduction shall be made in case of the estates of all decedents who have died since December 31, 1917; and

No deduction shall be allowed in the case of a nonresident unless the executor includes in the return required to be filed under section 404 the value at the time of his death of that part of the gross estate of the nonresident not situated in the United States.

For the purpose of this title stock in a domestic corporation owned and held by a nonresident decedent, and the amount receivable as insurance upon the life of a nonresident decedent where the insurer is a domestic corporation, shall be deemed property within the United States, and any property of which the decedent has made a transfer or with respect to which he has created a trust, within the meaning of subdivision (c) of section 402, shall be deemed to be situated in the United States, if so situated either at the time of the transfer or the creation of the trust, or at the time of the decedent's death.

In the case of any estate in respect to which the tax under existing law has been paid, if necessary to allow the benefit of the deduction under paragraph

(3) of subdivision (a) or (b) the tax shall be redetermined and any excess of tax paid shall be refunded to the executor. [40 Stat. L. 1098.]

For Revenue Acts of 1916 and 1917, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 270.

SEC. 404. [Duty of executor — notice — return — assessment of tax.] That the executor, within sixty days after qualifying as such, or after coming into possession of any property of the decedent, whichever event first occurs, shall give written notice thereof to the collector. The executor shall also, at such times and in such manner as may be required by regulations made pursuant to law, file with the collector a return under oath in duplicate, setting forth (a) the value of the gross estate of the decedent at the time of his death, or, in case of a nonresident, of that part of his gross estate situated in the United States; (b) the deductions allowed under section 403; (c) the value of the net estate of the decedent as defined in section 403; and (d) the tax paid or payable thereon; or such part of such information as may at the time be ascertainable and such supplemental data as may be necessary to establish the correct tax.

Return shall be made in all cases where the gross estate at the death of the decedent exceeds $50,000, and in the case of the estate of every nonresident any part of whose gross estate is situated in the United States. If the executor is unable to make a complete return as to any part of the gross estate of the decedent, he shall include in his return a description of such part and the name of every person holding a legal or beneficial interest therein, and upon notice from the collector such person shall in like manner make a return as to such part of the gross estate. The Commissioner shall make all assessments of the tax under the authority of existing administrative special and general provisions of law relating to the assessment and collection of taxes. [40 Stat. L. 1099.]

SEC. 405. [Return when required to be made by collector.] That if no administration is granted upon the estate of a decedent, or if no return is filed as provided in section 404, or if a return contains a false or incorrect statement of a material fact, the collector or deputy collector shall make a return and the Commissioner shall assess the tax thereon. [40 Stat. L. 1099.]

SEC. 406. [Payment of tax — time — interest.] That the tax shall be due one year after the decedent's death; but in any case where the Commissioner finds that payment of the tax within one year after the decedent's death would impose undue hardship upon the estate, he may grant an extension of time for the payment of the tax for a period not to exceed three years from the due date. If the tax is not paid within one year and 180 days after the decedent's death, interest at the rate of 6 per centum per annum from the expiration of one year after the decedent's death shall be added as part of the tax. [40 Stat. L. 1099.]

SEC. 407. [Payment of tax — to whom made — amount undetermined — receipts.] That the executor shall pay the tax to the collector or deputy collector. If the amount of the tax can not be determined, the payment of a sum of money sufficient, in the opinion of the collector, to discharge the tax shall be deemed payment in full of the tax, except as in this section otherwise provided. If the amount so paid exceeds the amount of the tax as finally determined, the Commissioner shall refund such excess to the executor. If the amount of the tax as finally determined exceeds the amount so paid, the collector shall notify the executor of the amount of such excess and demand payment thereof. If such excess part of the tax is not paid within thirty days after such notification, interest shall be added thereto at the rate of 10 per centum per annum from the expiration of such thirty days' period until paid, and the amount of such excess shall be a lien upon the entire gross estate, except such part thereof as may have been sold to a bona fide purchaser for a fair consideration in money or money's worth.

The collector shall grant to the person paying the tax duplicate receipts, either of which shall be sufficient evidence of such payment, and shall entitle the executor to be credited and allowed the amount thereof by any court having jurisdiction to audit or settle his accounts. [40 Stat. L. 1100.]

SEC. 408. [Unpaid taxes — collection — satisfaction of tax out of distributed portion of estate — proceeds of insurance policies.] That if the tax herein imposed is not paid within 180 days after it is due, the collector shall, unless there is reasonable cause for further delay, proceed to collect the tax under the provisions of general law, or commence appropriate proceedings in any court of the United States, in the name of the United States, to subject the property of the decedent to be sold under the judgment or decree of the court. From the proceeds of such sale the amount of the tax, together with the costs and expenses of every description to be allowed by the court, shall be first paid, and the balance shall be deposited according to the order of the court, to be paid under its direction to the person entitled thereto.

If the tax or any part thereof is paid by, or collected out of that part of the estate passing to or in the possession of, any person other than the executor in his capacity as such, such person shall be entitled to reimbursement out of any part of the estate still undistributed or by a just and equitable contribution by the persons whose interest in the estate of the decedent would have been reduced if the tax had been paid before the distribution of the estate or whose interest is subject to equal or prior liability for the payment of taxes, debts, or other charges against the estate, it being the purpose and intent of this title that so far as is practicable and unless otherwise directed by the will of the decedent the tax shall be paid out of the estate before its distribution. If any part of the gross estate consists of proceeds of policies of insurance upon the life of the decedent receivable by a beneficiary other than the executor, the executor shall be entitled to recover from such beneficiary such portion of the total tax paid as the proceeds, in excess of $40,000, of such policies bear to the net estate. If there is more than one such beneficiary the executor shall be entitled to recover from such beneficiaries in the same ratio. [40 Stat. L. 1100.]

SEC. 409. [Unpaid tax as lien — transfers of property in anticipation of death — innocent purchasers for value.] That unless the tax is sooner paid in full, it shall be a lien for ten years upon the gross estate of the decedent, except that such part of the gross estate as is used for the payment of charges against the estate and expenses of its administration, allowed by any court having jurisdiction thereof, shall be divested of such lien. If the Commissioner is satisfied that the tax liability of an estate has been fully discharged or provided for, he may, under regulations prescribed by him with the approval of the Secretary, issue his certificate releasing any or all property of such estate from the lien herein imposed.

If (a) the decedent makes a transfer of, or creates a trust with respect to, any property in contemplation of or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment at or after his death (except in the case of a bona fide sale for a fair consideration in money or money's worth) or (b) if insurance passes under a contract executed by the decedent in favor of a specific beneficiary, and if in either case the tax in respect thereto is not paid when due, then the transferee, trustee, or beneficiary shall be personally liable for such tax, and such property, to the extent of the decedent's interest therein at the time of such transfer, or to the extent of such beneficiary's interest under such contract of insurance, shall be subject to a like lien equal to the amount of such tax. Any part of such property sold by such transferee or trustee to a bona fide purchaser for a fair consideration in money or money's worth shall be divested of the lien and a like lien shall then attach to all the property of such transferee or trustee, except any part sold to a bona fide purchaser for a fair consideration in money or money's worth. [40 Stat. L. 1100.]

SEC. 410. [Violations of act — penalties.] That whoever knowingly makes any false statement in any notice or return required to be filed under this title shall be liable to a penalty of not exceeding $5,000, or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

Whoever fails to comply with any duty imposed upon him by section 404, or, having in his possession or control any record, file, or paper, containing or supposed to contain any information concerning the estate of the decedent, or, having in his possession or control any property comprised in the gross estate of the decedent, fails to exhibit the same upon request to the Commissioner or any collector or law officer of the United States, or his duly authorized deputy or agent, who desires to examine the same in the performance of his duties under this title, shall be liable to a penalty of not exceeding $500, to be recovered, with costs of suit, in a civil action in the name of the United States. [40 Stat. L. 1101.]

TITLE V.—TAX ON TRANSPORTATION AND OTHER FACILITIES, AND ON INSURANCE.

SEC. 500. [Amount of tax—transportation of persons and property—messages and telephone conversations.] That from and after April 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 500 of the Revenue Act of 1917—

(a) A tax equivalent to 3 per centum of the amount paid for the transportation on or after such date, by rail or water or by any form of mechanical motor power when in competition with carriers by rail or water, of property by freight transported from one point in the United States to another; and a like tax on the amount paid for such transportation within the United States of property transported from a point without the United States to a point within the United States;

(b) A tax of 1 cent for each 20 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid to any person for the transportation on or after such date, by rail or water or by any form of mechanical motor power when in competition with express by rail or water, of any package, parcel, or shipment, by express, transported from one point in the United States to another; and a like tax on the amount paid for such transportation within the United States of property transported from a point without the United States to a point within the United States;

(c) A tax equivalent to 8 per centum of the amount paid for the transportation on or after such date of persons by rail or water, or by any form of mechanical motor power on a regular established line when in competition with carriers by rail or water, from one point in the United States to another or to any point in Canada or Mexico, where the ticket or order therefor is sold or issued in the United States, not including the amount paid for commutation or season tickets for trips less than thirty miles, or for transportation the fare for which does not exceed 42 cents; Provided, That where such water transportation lines are in competition between American ports with foreign water transportation lines from adjacent foreign ports, the tax imposed under this subdivision on amounts paid for water transportation between American ports shall not exceed the amount of the transportation tax to which such foreign water transportation lines are subjected by their government corresponding to this tax;

(d) A tax equivalent to 8 per centum of the amount paid for seats, berths, and staterooms in parlor cars, sleeping cars, or on vessels, used on or after such date in connection with transportation upon which tax is imposed by subdivision (c);

(e) A tax equivalent to 8 per centum of the amount paid for the transportation on or after such date of oil by pipe line;

(f) In the case of each telegraph, telephone, cable, or radio, dispatch, message, or conversation, which originates on or after such date within the United States, and for the transmission of which the charge is more than 14 cents and not more than 50 cents, a tax of 5 cents; and if the charge is more than 50 cents, a tax of 10 cents: Provided, That only one payment of such tax shall be required, notwithstanding the lines or stations of one or more persons are used for the transmission of such dispatch, message, or conversation; and

(g) A tax equivalent to 10 per centum of the amount paid after such date to any telegraph or telephone company for any leased wire or talking circuit special service furnished after such date. This subdivision shall not apply to the amount paid for so much of such service as is utilized (1) in the collection and dissemination of news through the public press, or (2) in the conduct, by a common carrier or telegraph or telephone company, of its business as such;

(h) No tax shall be imposed under this section upon any payment received for services rendered to the United States or to any State or Territory or the District of Columbia. The right to exemption under this subdivision shall be evidenced in such manner as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulation prescribe. [40 Stat. L. 1101.]

TITLE V.—TAX ON TRANSPORTATION AND OTHER FACILITIES, AND ON INSURANCE.

SEC. 500. [Amount of tax—transportation of persons and property—messages and telephone conversations.] That from and after April 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 500 of the Revenue Act of 1917—

(a) A tax equivalent to 3 per centum of the amount paid for the transportation on or after such date, by rail or water or by any form of mechanical motor power when in competition with carriers by rail or water, of property by freight transported from one point in the United States to another; and a like tax on the amount paid for such transportation within the United States of property transported from a point without the United States to a point within the United States;

(b) A tax of 1 cent for each 20 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid to any person for the transportation on or after such date, by rail or water or by any form of mechanical motor power when in competition with express by rail or water, of any package, parcel, or shipment, by express, transported from one point in the United States to another; and a like tax on the amount paid for such transportation within the United States of property transported from a point without the United States to a point within the United States;

(c) A tax equivalent to 8 per centum of the amount paid for the transportation on or after such date of persons by rail or water, or by any form of mechanical motor power on a regular established line when in competition with carriers by rail or water, from one point in the United States to another or to any point in Canada or Mexico, where the ticket or order therefor is sold or issued in the United States, not including the amount paid for commutation or season tickets for trips less than thirty miles, or for transportation the fare for which does not exceed 42 cents; Provided, That where such water transportation lines are in competition between American ports with foreign water transportation lines from adjacent foreign ports, the tax imposed under this subdivision on amounts paid for water transportation between American ports shall not exceed the amount of the transportation tax to which such foreign water transportation lines are subjected by their government corresponding to this tax;

(d) A tax equivalent to 8 per centum of the amount paid for seats, berths, and staterooms in parlor cars, sleeping cars, or on vessels, used on or after such date in connection with transportation upon which tax is imposed by subdivision (c);

(e) A tax equivalent to 8 per centum of the amount paid for the transportation on or after such date of oil by pipe line;

(f) In the case of each telegraph, telephone, cable, or radio, dispatch, message, or conversation, which originates on or after such date within the United States, and for the transmission of which the charge is more than 14 cents and not more than 50 cents, a tax of 5 cents; and if the charge is more than 50 cents, a tax of 10 cents: Provided, That only one payment of such tax shall be required, notwithstanding the lines or stations of one or more persons are used for the transmission of such dispatch, message, or conversation; and

(g) A tax equivalent to 10 per centum of the amount paid after such date to any telegraph or telephone company for any leased wire or talking circuit special service furnished after such date. This subdivision shall not apply to the amount paid for so much of such service as is utilized (1) in the collection and dissemination of news through the public press, or (2) in the conduct, by a common carrier or telegraph or telephone company, of its business as such;

(h) No tax shall be imposed under this section upon any payment received for services rendered to the United States or to any State or Territory or the District of Columbia. The right to exemption under this subdivision shall be evidenced in such manner as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulation prescribe. [40 Stat. L. 1101.]

For Revenue Act of 1917, sec. 500, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 355.

SEC. 501. (a) [Tax by whom paid.] That the taxes imposed by section 500 shall be paid by the person paying for the services or facilities rendered. [40 Stat. L. 1102.]

such manner and at such times as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe; if a ticket (other than a mileage book) was bought and partially used before November 1, 1917, it shall not be taxed, but if bought but not so used before section 500 takes effect, it shall not be valid for passage until the tax has been paid and such payment evidenced on the ticket in such manner as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulation prescribe. [40 Stat. L. 1102.]

[SEC. 501 continued.] (d) [Transportation of oil by pipe line.] The tax imposed by subdivision (c) of section 500 shall apply to all transportation of oil by pipe line. In case no charge for transportation is made, by reason of ownership of the commodity transported, or for any other reason, the person transporting by pipe line shall pay a tax equivalent to the tax which would be imposed if such person received payment for such transportation, and if the tax can not be computed from actual bona fide rates or tariffs, it shall be computed (1) on the basis of the rates or tariffs of other pipe lines for like services, as determined by the Commissioner, or (2) if no such rates or tariffs exist, on the basis of a reasonable charge for such transportation, as determined by the Commissioner. [40 Stat. L. 1103.]

SEC. 502. [Collection of tax — by whom made — returns — duty of carrier — refund of payment — time for payment — penalty for non-payment.] That each person receiving any payments referred to in section 500 shall collect the amount of the tax, if any, imposed by such section from the person making such payments, and shall make monthly returns under oath, in duplicate, and pay the taxes so collected and the taxes imposed upon it under subdivision (c) or

(d) of section 501 to the collector of the district in which the principal office or place of business is located.

No carrier collecting the taxes imposed by subdivision (a) or (b) of section 500 shall be required to list the amount of such tax separately in any bill of lading, freight or express receipt, or other similar document, if the total amount of the transportation charge and the tax is stated therein.

Any person making a refund of any payment upon which tax is collected under this section may repay therewith the amount of the tax collected on such payment; and the amount so repaid may be credited against amounts included in any subsequent monthly return.

The returns required under this section shall contain such information, and be made at such times and in such manner, as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulation prescribe.

The tax shall, without assessment by the Commissioner or notice from the collector, be due and payable to the collector at the time so fixed for filing the return. If the tax is not paid when due, there shall be added as part of the tax a penalty of 5 per centum, together with interest at the rate of 1 per centum for each full month, from the time when the tax became due. [40 Stat. L. 1103.]

INSURANCE.

SEC. 503. [Insurance policies — tax on issuance — exemptions.] That from and after April 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 504 of the Revenue Act of 1917, the following taxes on the issuance of insurance policies, including, in the case of policies issued outside the United States (except those taxable under subdivision 15 of Schedule A of Title XI), their delivery within the United States by any agent or broker, whether acting for the insurer or the insured; such taxes to be paid by the insurer, or by such agent or broker:

(a) Life insurance: A tax equivalent to 8 cents on each $100 or fractional part thereof of the amount for which any life is insured under any policy of insurance, or other instrument, by whatever name the same is called: Provided, That on all policies for life insurance only by which a life is insured not in excess of $500, issued on the industrial or weekly or monthly payment plan of insurance, the tax shall be 40 per centum of the amount of the first weekly premium or 20 per centum of the amount of the first monthly premium, as the case may be: Provided further, That on policies of group life insurance, covering groups of not less than 25 lives in the employ of the same person, for the benefit of persons other than the employer, the tax shall be equivalent to 4 cents on each $100 of the aggregate amount for which the group policy is issued and of any net increase in the amount of the insurance under such policy: And provided further, That on all policies covering life, health, and accident insurance combined in one policy by which a life is insured not in excess of $500, issued on the industrial, or weekly or monthly payment plan of insurance, the tax shall be 40 per centum of the amount of the first weekly premium or 20 per centum of the amount of the first monthly premium, as the case may be;

(b) Marine, inland, and fire insurance: A tax equivalent to 1 cent on each dollar or fractional part thereof of the premium charged under each policy of insurance or other instrument by whatever name the same is called whereby insurance is made or renewed upon property of any description (including rents or profits), whether against peril by sea or inland waters, or by fire or lightning, or other peril;

(c) Casualty insurance: A tax equivalent to 1 cent on each dollar or fractional part thereof of the premium charged under each policy of insurance or obligation of the nature of indemnity for loss, damage, or liability (except bonds and policies taxable under subdivision 2 of schedule A of Title XI) issued or executed or renewed by any person transacting the business of employer's liability, workmen's compensation, accident, health, tornado, plate glass, steam boiler, elevator, burglary, automatic sprinkler, automobile, or other branch of insurance (except life insurance, and insurance described and taxed in the preceding subdivision): Provided, That in case of policies of insurance issued on the industrial or weekly or monthly payment plan the tax shall be 40 per centum of the amount of the first weekly premium or 20 per centum of the amount of the first monthly premium, as the case may be;

(d) Policies issued by any corporation enumerated in section 231, and policies of reinsurance, shall be exempt from the taxes imposed by this section. [40 Stat. L. 1104.]

For Revenue Act of 1917, sec. 504, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 357.

SEC. 504. [Returns by insurance companies — payment of tax — penalty for non-payment.] That every person issuing policies of insurance upon the issuance of which a tax is imposed by section 503 shall make monthly returns under oath, in duplicate, and pay such tax to the collector of the district in which the principal office or place of business of such person is located. Such returns shall contain such information and be made at such times and in such manner as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulation prescribe.

The tax shall, without assessment by the Commissioner or notice from the collector, be due and payable to the collector at the time so fixed for filing the return. If the tax is not paid when due, there shall be added as part of the tax a penalty of 5 per centum, together with interest at the rate of 1 per centum for each full month, from the time when the tax became due. [40 Stat. L. 1104.]

TITLE VI.—TAX ON BEVERAGES

SEC. 600. (a) [Distilled spirits — amount of tax — when due.] That there shall be levied and collected on all distilled spirits now in bond or that have been or that may be hereafter produced in or imported into the United States, except such distilled spirits as are subject to the tax provided in section 604, in lieu of the internal-revenue taxes now imposed thereon by law, a tax of $2.20 (or, if withdrawn for beverage purposes or for use in the manufacture or production of any article used or intended for use as a beverage, a tax of $6.40) on each proof gallon, or wine gallon when below proof, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such proof or wine gallon, to be paid by the distiller or importer when withdrawn, and collected under the provisions of existing law. [40 Stat. L. 1105.]

[SEC. 600 continued.] (b) [Spirits in storage — payment of tax as affected by prohibition ban — withdrawal of spirits — leakage, etc.—imported spirits, wines or other liquor.] That the tax imposed by subdivision (a) on distilled spirits intended for beverage purposes shall not be due or payable on such spirits while stored in any distillery, bonded warehouse, or special or general bonded warehouse, and which, pursuant to any Act of Congress or proclamation of the President of the United States, can not be lawfully sold or removed from any such warehouse during the period of prohibition fixed by such Act or proclamation; and all warehousing bonds or transportation and warehousing bonds conditioned for the payment of tax on any such spirits so stored on the date such prohibition takes effect shall as to all such spirits actually so stored be canceled and discharged, provided the distiller of such spirits shall in lieu of such bonds and prior to their cancellation execute a bond in a penal sum of not less than $10,000, with sureties satisfactory to the collector of the district, conditioned that the principal shall, during the period of such prohibition, safely keep or cause to be kept in good condition all such spirits and the warehouse in which the same are stored, and shall not remove or suffer to be removed from warehouse, contrary to law, any such spirits during the period of such prohibition; and the bond herein prescribed shall be in such further sum and shall contain such further conditions as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulations require. The distiller may, subject to the provisions of this section, be permitted to retain in any such bonded warehouse distilled spirits on which, under the terms of any existing bond, the tax imposed thereon becomes due and payable prior to the date such prohibition takes effect: Provided, That on the removal of such prohibition the distiller shall, as to all spirits as to which the bonded period fixed by law has not expired and which remain stored in warehouse, execute new and satisfactory bond in the form required by existing law, conditioned for the payment of the tax on all such spirits; and all provisions of existing law relating to such bonded warehouses, or the storage of spirits therein, or to the execution of new or additional bonds, so far as applicable, shall continue in force as to all distilled spirits rebonded under the provisions of this section.

Upon the withdrawal of distilled spirits from bonded warehouse, after the period of prohibition has ended, and under the conditions imposed by section 50 of an Act entitled "An Act to reduce taxation, to provide revenue for the support of the Government, and for other purposes," approved August 28 [27], 1894, an allowance for loss by leakage or other unavoidable cause, not exceeding one proof gallon as to packages of a capacity of not less than 40 wine gallons, may be made in addition to that provided in said section 50, as amended; and a like additional allowance of one proof gallon as to each package withdrawn may be made for each period of four months, or fraction thereof, for such spirits as shall have remained in warehouse during the period of prohibition and after the expiration of the maximum leakage period fixed by that section.

Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, any imported distilled spirits, wines or other liquors which may be in any customs bonded warehouse under the customs laws on the date such prohibition takes effect shall be permitted to remain therein without payment of any taxes or duties thereon, beyond the three-year period provided in section 2971 of the Revised Statutes, during such period of prohibition; and may be exported at any time during such extended period. Any imported spirits, wines or other liquors as to which the three-year bonded period may expire after the passage of this Act and prior to the date such prohibition takes effect may at the option of the owner remain in bond during such period of prohibition. [40 Stat. L. 1105.]

For Act of Aug. 27, 1894, sec. 50, mentioned in the text, see 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. 669; 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 106.

For R. S. sec. 2971, mentioned in the text, see 2 Fed. Stat. Ann. 699; 2 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1100.

[SEC. 600 continued.] (c) [Perfumes — amount of tax — collection.] In lieu of the internal-revenue tax now imposed thereon by law there shall be levied and collected upon all perfumes hereafter imported into the United States containing distilled spirits, a tax of $1.10 per wine gallon, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such wine gallon. Such tax shall be collected by the collector of customs and deposited as internal-revenue collections, under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe. [40 Stat. L. 1106.]

SEC. 601. [Importation of distilled spirits.] That no distilled spirits produced after October 3, 1917, shall be imported into the United States from any foreign country, or from the Virgin Islands (unless produced from products the growth of such islands, and not then into any State or Territory or District of the United States in which the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquor is prohibited), or from Porto Rico, or the Philippine Islands. Under such rules, regulations, and bonds as the Secretary may prescribe, the provisions of this section shall not apply to distilled spirits imported for other than (1) beverage purposes or (2) use in the manufacture or production of any article used or intended for use as a beverage. [40 Stat. L. 1106.]

SEC. 602. [Alcohol and other high proof spirits — bonded and distillery warehouses — withdrawals — application of Revised Statutes sections to ethyl and denatured alcohol.] That at registered distilleries producing alcohol, or other high-proof spirits, packages may be filled with such spirits reduced to not less than one hundred proof from the receiving cisterns and tax paid without being entered into bonded warehouse. Such spirits may be also transferred from the receiving cisterns at such distilleries, by means of pipe lines, direct to storage tanks in the bonded warehouse and may be warehoused in such storage tanks. Such spirits may be also transferred in tanks or tank cars to general bonded warehouses for storage therein, either in storage tanks in such warehouses or in the tanks in which they were transferred. Such spirits may also be transferred from receiving cisterns or warehouse storage tanks to barrels, drums, tanks, tank cars, or other approved containers, and may be transported in such containers for exportation or other lawful purposes. The Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, is hereby empowered to prescribe all necessary regulations relating to the drawing off, transferring, gauging, storing, and transporting of such spirits; the records to be kept and returns to be made; the size and kind of packages and tanks to be used; the marking, branding, numbering, and stamping of such packages and tanks; the kinds of stamps, if any, to be used; and the time and manner of paying the tax; the kind of bond and the penal sum of same. The tax prescribed by law must be paid before such spirits are removed from the distillery premises, or from general bonded warehouse in the case of spirits transferred thereto, except as otherwise provided by law.

Under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, distilled spirits may hereafter be drawn from receiving cisterns and deposited in distillery warehouses without having affixed to the packages containing the same, distillery warehouse stamps, and such packages, when so deposited in warehouse, may be withdrawn therefrom on the original gauge where the same have remained in such warehouse for a period not exceeding thirty days from the date of deposit.

Under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, the manufacture, warehousing, withdrawal, and shipment, under the provisions of existing law, of ethyl alcohol for other than (1) beverage purposes or (2) use in the manufacture or production of any article used or intended for use as a beverage, and denatured alcohol, may be exempted from the provisions of section 3283 of the Revised Statutes.

The Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulations exempt distillers of ethyl alcohol, for use in the production of munitions of war, or for other nonbeverage purposes, from so much of the provisions of sections 3264, 3285, or 3309 of the Revised Statutes, and Acts amendatory thereof, respecting the survey of distilleries, the period of fermentation, the filling and emptying of fermenting tubs, and assessments, as, in his judgment, may be expedient: Provided, That the bond prescribed in section 3260 of the Revised Statutes shall, in the cases herein provided, be in such sum and contain such further conditions as the Commissioner may require. [40 Stat. L. 1106.]

For R. S. sec. 3260, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 26; 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 638.

SEC. 603. [Ethyl alcohol — denaturation — shipments for war purposes — exemption from taxation — leakage and loss.] That under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, ethyl alcohol of not less than 180 degrees proof, produced at any central distilling and denaturing plant established under the provisions of subsection 2, paragraph N, of section IV of the Act entitled "An Act to reduce tariff duties and to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes," approved October 3, 1913, may be removed from such plant to any central denaturing bonded warehouse for denaturation, or may, before or after denaturation, be removed from such plant or from such denaturing bonded warehouse, free of tax, for use of the United States or for shipment to any nation while engaged against the German Government in the present war, and the removal herein authorized may be made in such tank vessels, tank cars, drums, casks, or other containers as may be approved by the Commissioner. It shall be lawful, under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, for an allowance to be made for leakage or loss by unavoidable accident and without fault or negligence of the distiller, owner, carrier, or his agents or employees, which may occur during the transportation of such spirits or while the same are lawfully stored on either of the premises herein described. [40 Stat. L. 1107.]

For Act of Oct. 3, 1913, sec. IV, N, 2, mentioned in the text, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 121; 1914 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 200.

SEC. 604. [Distilled spirits on which tax has been paid — additional tax.] That upon all distilled spirits produced in or imported into the United States upon which the internal-revenue tax now imposed by law has been paid, and which, on the day after the passage of this Act, are held by any person and intended for sale or for use in the manufacture or production of any article intended for sale, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid a floor tax of $3.20 (if intended for sale for beverage purposes or for use in the manufacture or production of any article used or intended for use as a beverage) on each proof gallon, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such proof gallon. [40 Stat. L. 1107.]

SEC. 605. [Distilled spirits and wines hereafter rectified — additional tax — cordials and liqueurs — blends — rectifiers — penalty for violation of section.] That in addition to the tax imposed by this Act on distilled spirits and wines, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid, in lieu of the tax imposed by section 304 of the Revenue Act of 1917, a tax of 30 cents on each proof gallon and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such proof gallon on all distilled spirits or wines hereafter rectified, purified, or refined in such manner, and on all mixtures hereafter produced in such manner, that the person so rectifying, purifying, refining, or mixing the same is a rectifier within the meaning of section 3244 of the Revised Statutes, as amended: Provided, That this tax shall not apply to gin produced by the redistillation of a pure spirit over juniper berries and other aromatics.

Upon all such articles heretofore produced, and which on the day after the passage of this Act are held by any person and intended for sale, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid a floor tax of 15 cents on each proof gallon, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of each proof gallon; and all such distilled spirits so held and not contained in the distillers' original stamped packages, or in bottles or other containers bearing the distillers' original labels, shall for the purpose of this section be regarded as rectified spirits.

When the process of rectification is completed and the taxes prescribed by this section have been paid, it shall be unlawful for the rectifier or other dealer to reduce in proof or increase in volume such spirits or wine by the addition of water or other substance; nothing herein contained shall, however, prevent a rectifier from using again in the process of rectification spirits already rectified and upon which the taxes have theretofore been paid.

The taxes imposed by this section shall not attach to cordials or liqueurs on which a tax is imposed and paid under section 611 or 613, nor to the mixing and blending of wines, where such blending is for the sole purpose of perfecting such wines according to commercial standards, nor to blends made exclusively of two or more pure straight whiskies aged in wood for a period not less than four years and without the addition of coloring or flavoring matter or any other substance than pure water and if not reduced below ninety proof: Provided, That such blended whiskies shall be exempt from tax under this section only when compounded under the immediate supervision of a revenue officer, in such tanks and under such conditions and supervision as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe.

All distilled spirits or wines taxable under this section shall be subject to uniform regulations concerning the use thereof in the manufacture, blending, compounding, mixing, marking, branding, and sale of whisky and rectified spirits, and no discrimination whatsoever shall be made by reason of a difference in the character of the material from which same may have been produced.

The business of a rectifier of spirits shall be carried on, and the tax on rectified spirits shall be paid, under such rules, regulations, and bonds as may be prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary.

Whoever violates any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed to be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than two years, and shall, in addition, be liable to double the tax evaded, together with the tax, to be collected by assessment or on any bond given. [40 Stat. L. 1108.]

For Act of Oct. 3, 1917, sec. 304, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 298.
For R. S. sec. 3244, mentioned in the text, see 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1045; 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 613.

SEC. 606. [Stamps—exchange—discontinuing issuance.] That hereafter collectors shall not furnish wholesale liquor dealer's stamps in lieu of and in exchange for stamps for rectified spirits unless the package covered by stamp for rectified spirits is to be broken into smaller packages.

The Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, is authorized to discontinue the use of the following stamps whenever in his judgment the interests of the Government will be subserved thereby:

Distillery warehouse, special bonded warehouse, special bonded rewarehouse, general bonded warehouse, general bonded retransfer, transfer brandy, export tobacco, export cigars, export oleomargarine, and export fermented-liquor stamps. [40 Stat. L. 1108.]

SEC. 607. [Distilleries, breweries and rectifying houses—installation of meters, etc., to protect revenue.] That the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, is hereby authorized to require at distilleries, breweries, rectifying houses, and wherever else in his judgment such action may be deemed advisable, the installation of meters, tanks, pipes, or any other apparatus for the purpose of protecting the revenue, and such meters, tanks, and pipes and all necessary labor incident thereto shall be at the expense of the person on whose premises the installation is required. Any such person refusing or neglecting to install such apparatus when so required by the Commissioner shall not be permitted to conduct business on such premises. [40 Stat. L. 1109.]

SEC. 608. [Beer, ale, porter and other fermented liquor—amount of tax.] That there shall be levied and collected on all beer, lager beer, ale, porter, and other similar fermented liquor, containing one-half of one per centum, or more, of alcohol, brewed or manufactured and hereafter sold, or removed for consumption or sale, within the United States, by whatever name such liquors may be called, in lieu of the internal-revenue taxes now imposed thereon by law, a tax of $6.00 for every barrel containing not more than thirty-one gallons, and at a like rate for any other quantity or for the fractional parts of a barrel authorized and defined by law, to be collected under the provisions of existing law. [40 Stat. L. 1109.]

SEC. 609. [Fermented liquors—conveyances to industrial distilleries—exemption from payment of tax.] That from and after the passage of this Act taxable fermented liquors may be conveyed without payment of tax from the brewery premises where produced to a contiguous industrial distillery of either class established under the Act entitled "An Act to reduce tariff duties and to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes," approved October 3, 1913, to be used as distilling material, and the residue from such distillation, containing less than one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume, which is to be used in making beverages, may be manipulated by cooling, flavoring, carbonating, settling, and filtering on the distillery premises or elsewhere.

The removal of the taxable fermented liquor from the brewery to the distillery and the operation of the distillery and removal of the residue therefrom shall be under the supervision of such officer or officers as the Commissioner shall deem proper, and the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, is hereby authorized to make such regulations from time to time as may be necessary to give force and effect to this section and to safeguard the revenue. [40 Stat. L. 1109.]

For Act of Oct. 3, 1913, mentioned in the text, see 2 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 724; 1914 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 59.

SEC. 610. [Wine—meaning as used in Act.] That natural wine within the meaning of this Act shall be deemed to be the product made from the normal alcoholic fermentation of the juice of sound, ripe grapes, without addition or abstraction, except such as may occur in the usual cellar treatment of clarifying and aging: Provided, however, That the product made from the juice of sound, ripe grapes by complete fermentation of the must under proper cellar treatment and corrected by the addition (under the supervision of a gauger or storekeeper-gauger in the capacity of gauger) of a solution of water and pure cane, beet, or dextrose sugar (containing, respectively, not less than 95 per centum of actual sugar, calculated on a dry basis) to the must or to the wine, to correct natural deficiencies, when such addition shall not increase the volume of the resultant product more than 35 per centum, and the resultant product does not contain less than five parts per thousand of acid before fermentation and not more than 13 per centum of alcohol after complete fermentation, shall be deemed to be wine within the meaning of this Act, and may be labeled, transported, and sold as "wine," qualified by the name of the locality where produced, and may be further qualified by the name of its own particular type or variety: And provided further, That wine as defined in this section may be sweetened with cane sugar or beet sugar or pure condensed grape must and fortified under the provisions of this Act, and wines so sweetened or fortified shall be considered sweet wine within the meaning of this Act. [40 Stat. L. 1109.]

SEC. 611. [Still wines, etc.—vermouth—amount of tax.] That upon all still wines, including vermouth, and all artificial or imitation wines or compounds sold as still wine, which are hereafter produced in or imported into the United States, or which on the day after the passage of this Act are on any winery premises or other bonded premises or in transit thereto or at any customhouse, there shall be levied, collected, and paid, in lieu of the internal-revenue taxes now imposed thereon by law, taxes at rates as follows, when sold, or removed for consumption or sale:

On wines containing not more than 14 per centum of absolute alcohol, 16 cents per wine gallon, the per centum of alcohol taxable under this section to be reckoned by volume and not by weight;

On wines containing more than 14 per centum and not exceeding 21 per centum of absolute alcohol, 40 cents per wine gallon;

On wines containing more than 21 per centum and not exceeding 24 per centum of absolute alcohol, $1 per wine gallon;

All such wines containing more than 24 per centum of absolute alcohol by volume shall be classed as distilled spirits and shall pay tax accordingly. [40 Stat. L. 1110.]

SEC. 612. [Fortification of wines — grape brandy or wine spirits — withdrawal — tax.] That under such regulations and official supervision and upon the giving of such notices, entries, bonds, and other security as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, any producer of wines defined under the provisions of this title, may withdraw from any fruit distillery or special bonded warehouse grape brandy, or wine spirits, for the fortification of such wines on the premises where actually made: Provided, That there shall be levied and assessed against the producer of such wines a tax (in lieu of the internal-revenue tax now imposed thereon by law) of 60 cents per proof gallon of grape brandy or wine spirits whenever withdrawn and hereafter so used by him in the fortification of such wines during the preceding month, which assessment shall be paid by him within ten months from the date of notice thereof: Provided further, That nothing contained in this section shall be construed as exempting any wines, cordials, liqueurs, or similar compounds from the payment of any tax provided for in this title. [40 Stat. L. 1110.]

SEC. 613. [Champagne — sparkling and carbonated wines — liqueurs, etc. — amount of tax.] That upon the following articles which are hereafter produced in or imported into the United States, or which on the day after the passage of this Act are on any winery premises or other bonded premises or in transit thereto or at any customhouse, there shall be levied, collected, and paid taxes at rates as follows, when sold, or removed for consumption or sale:

On each bottle or other container of champagne or sparkling wine, 12 cents on each one-half pint or fraction thereof;

On each bottle or other container of artificially carbonated wine, 6 cents on each one-half pint or fraction thereof;

On each bottle or other container of liqueurs, cordials, or similar compounds, by whatever name sold or offered for sale, containing sweet wine fortified with grape brandy, 6 cents on each one-half pint or fraction thereof.

The tax imposed by this section shall, in the case of any article upon which a corresponding internal-revenue tax is now imposed by law, be in lieu of such tax. [40 Stat. L. 1110.]

SEC. 614. [Champagne, wines, liqueurs, etc., on which tax has been paid — additional tax.] That upon all articles specified in section 611 or 613 upon which the internal-revenue tax now imposed by law has been paid and which are on the day after the passage of this Act held by any person and intended for sale, there shall be levied, collected, and paid a floor tax equal to the difference between the tax imposed by this Act and the tax so paid. [40 Stat. L. 1111.]

SEC. 615. [Sweet wines — grape brandy or wine spirits used in fortification — amount of tax.] That upon all sweet wines held for sale by the producer thereof upon the day after the passage of this Act there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid a floor tax equivalent to 30 cents per proof gallon upon the grape brandy or wine spirits used in the fortification of such wine. [40 Stat. L. 1111.]

SEC. 616. [Payment of taxes on wines — stamps — prerequisites to sale or removal.] That the taxes imposed by section 611 or 613 shall be paid by stamp on removal of the wines from the customhouse, winery, or other bonded place of storage for consumption or sale, and every person hereafter producing, or having in his possession or under his control when this title takes effect, any wines subject to the tax imposed in section 611 or 613 shall file such notice, describing the premises on which such wines are produced or stored; shall execute a bond in such form; shall make such inventories under oath; and shall, prior to sale or removal for consumption, affix to each cask or vessel containing such wine such marks, labels, or stamps as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may from time to time prescribe; and the premises described in such notice shall, for the purpose of this Act, be regarded as bonded premises. But the provisions of this section, except as to payment of tax and the affixing of the required stamps or labels, shall not apply to wines held by retail dealers, as defined in section 3244 of the Revised Statutes, nor, subject to regulations prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, shall the tax imposed by section 611 apply to wines produced for the family use of the duly registered producer thereof and not sold or otherwise removed from the place of manufacture and not exceeding in any case two hundred gallons per year. [40 Stat. L. 1111.]

SEC. 617. [Wine spirits for fortifying sweet wines—use—withdrawals.] That sections 42, 43, and 45 of the Act entitled “An Act to reduce the revenue and equalize duties on imports, and for other purposes,” approved October 1, 1890, as amended by section 68 of the Act entitled “An Act to reduce taxation, to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes,” approved August 27, 1894, are further amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 42. That any producer of pure sweet wines may use in the preparation of such sweet wines, under such regulations and after the filing of such notices and bonds, together with the keeping of such records and the rendition of such reports as to materials and products as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may prescribe, wine spirits produced by any duly authorized distiller, and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, in determining the liability of any distiller of wine spirits to assessment under section 3309 of the Revised Statutes, is authorized to allow such distiller credit in his computations for the wine spirits withdrawn to be used in fortifying sweet wines under this Act.

aforesaid: Provided, however, That the cane or beet sugar, or pure dextrose sugar added for sweetening purposes shall not be in excess of 11 per centum of the weight of the wine to be fortified: And provided further, That the addition of water herein authorized shall be under such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may from time to time prescribe: Provided, however, That records kept in accordance with such regulations as to the percentage of saccharine, acid, alcoholic, and added water content of the wine offered for fortification shall be open to inspection by any official of the Department of Agriculture thereto duly authorized by the Secretary of Agriculture; but in no case shall such wines to which water has been added be eligible for fortification under the provisions of this Act, where the same, after fermentation and before fortification, have an alcoholic strength of less than 5 per centum of their volume.

“SEC. 45. That under such regulations and official supervision, and upon the execution of such entries and the giving of such bonds, bills of lading, and other security as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall prescribe, any producer of pure sweet wines as defined by this Act may withdraw wine spirits from any special bonded warehouse in original packages or from any registered distillery in any quantity not less than eighty wine gallons, and may use so much of the same as may be required by him under such regulations, and after the filing of such notices and bonds and the keeping of such records and the rendition of such reports as to materials and products and the disposition of the same as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall prescribe, in fortifying the pure sweet wines made by him, and for no other purpose, in accordance with the foregoing limitations and provisions; and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, is authorized whenever he shall deem it to be necessary for the prevention of violations of this law to prescribe that wine spirits withdrawn under this section shall not be used to fortify wines except at a certain distance prescribed by him from any distillery, rectifying house, winery, or other establishment used for producing or storing distilled spirits, or for making or storing wines other than wines which are so fortified, and that in the building in which such fortification of wines is practiced no wines or spirits other than those permitted by this regulation shall be stored in any room or part of the building in which fortification of wines is practiced. The use of wine spirits for the fortification of sweet wines under this Act shall be under the immediate supervision of an officer of internal revenue, who shall make returns describing the kinds and quantities of wine so fortified, and shall affix such stamps and seals to the packages containing such wines as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury; and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall provide by regulations the time within which wines so fortified with the wine spirits so withdrawn may be subject to inspection, and for final accounting for the use of such wine spirits and for rewarehousing or for payment of the tax on any portion of such wine spirits which remain not used in fortifying pure sweet wines.” [40 Stat. L. 1111.]

SEC. 618. [Withdrawal of domestic wines for storage—exemption from tax—use as distilling material.] (a) That under such regulations and upon the execution of such notices, entries, bonds, and other security as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, domestic wines subject to the tax imposed by section 611 may be removed from the winery where produced, free of tax, for storage on other bonded premises or from such premises to other bonded premises (but not more than one such additional removal shall be allowed), or for exportation from the United States or for use as distilling material at any regularly registered distillery: Provided, however, That the distiller using any such wine as material shall, subject to the provisions of section 3309 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, be held to pay the tax on the product of such wines as will include both the alcoholic strength therein produced by fermentation and that obtained from the brandy or wine spirits added to such wines at the time of fortification.

(b) Under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, it shall be lawful to produce grape wines on bonded winery premises by the usual method, and to transport and use the same, and like wines heretofore produced and now stored on bonded winery premises, as distilling material for the production of nonbeverage spirits in the production of non-alcoholic wines, containing less than  $\frac{1}{2}$  of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume, in any fruit brandy or industrial distillery: Provided, That all alcoholic spirits so obtained at any industrial distillery shall be denatured, and all spirits so obtained at any fruit distillery shall be removed and used only for nonbeverage purposes or for denaturation. [40 Stat. L. 1113.]

SEC. 619. [Imported wines, vermouth, liqueurs, etc.—collection of tax—assessment.] That the collection of the tax on imported still wines, including vermouth, and sparkling wines, including champagne, and on imported liqueurs, cordials, and similar compounds, may be made within the discretion of the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, by assessment instead of by stamps. [40 Stat. L. 1113.]

SEC. 620. [Violation of statutes affecting wines, etc.—penalties—exceptions—mixing or blending wines—materials used in fortification of sweet wines.] That whoever evades or attempts to evade any tax imposed by sections 611 to 615, both inclusive, or any requirement of sections 610 to 621, both inclusive, or regulation issued pursuant thereto, or whoever, otherwise than as provided in such sections, recovers or attempts to recover any spirits from domestic or imported wine, or whoever rectifies, mixes, or compounds with distilled spirits any domestic wines, other than in the manufacture of liqueurs, cordials, or similar compounds, shall, on conviction, be punished for each such offense by a fine of not exceeding $5,000, or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both, and in addition thereto by a penalty of double the tax evaded, or attempted to be evaded, to be assessed and collected in the same manner as taxes are assessed and collected, and all wines, spirits, liqueurs, cordials, or similar compounds as to which such violation occurs shall be forfeited to the United States. But the provisions of this section and the provisions of section 3244 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, relating to rectification, or other internal-revenue laws of the United States, shall not be held to apply to or prohibit the mixing or blending of wines subject to tax under the provisions of sections 611 to 615, both inclusive, with each other or with other wines for the sole purpose of perfecting such wines according to commercial standards: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed as prohibiting the use of tax-paid grain or other ethyl alcohol in the fortification of sweet wines as defined in section 610 of this Act and section 43 of the Act entitled "An Act to reduce the revenue and equalize duties on imports, and for other purposes," approved October 1, 1890, as amended by this Act. [40 Stat. L. 1113.]

SEC. 621. [Distilleries and wineries — spirit meters, locks and seals — gaugers.] That the Commissioner, by regulations to be approved by the Secretary, may require the use at each fruit distillery of such spirit meters, and such locks and seals to be affixed to fermenters, tanks, or other vessels and to such pipe connections as may in his judgment be necessary or expedient, and is hereby authorized to assign to any such distillery and to each winery where wines are to be fortified such number of gaugers or storekeeper-gaugers in the capacity of gaugers as may be necessary for the proper supervision of the manufacture of brandy or the making or fortifying of wines subject to tax imposed by this section; and the compensation of such officers shall not exceed $5 per diem while so assigned, together with their actual and necessary traveling expenses, and also a reasonable allowance for their board bills, to be fixed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, but not to exceed $2.50 per diem for such board bills. [40 Stat. L. 1114.]

SEC. 622. [Allowances for unavoidable loss of wines.] That the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, is hereby authorized to make such allowances for unavoidable loss of wines while on storage or during cellar treatment as in his judgment may be just and proper. [40 Stat. L. 1114.]

SEC. 623. [Surveys — basis of capacity — amount of water — R. S. sec. 3264 amended.] That the second paragraph of section 3264 of the Revised Statutes, as amended by section 5 of the Act of March 1, 1879, and as further amended by the Act of June 22, 1910, be amended so as to read as follows:

"In all surveys forty-five gallons of mash or beer brewed or fermented from grain shall represent not less than one bushel of grain, and seven gallons of mash or beer brewed or fermented from molasses shall represent not less than one gallon of molasses, except in distilleries operated on the sour-mash principle, in which distilleries sixty gallons of beer brewed or fermented from grain shall represent not less than one bushel of grain, and except that in distilleries where the filtration-aeration process is used, with the approval of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; that is, where the mash after it leaves the mash tub is passed through a filtering machine before it is run into the fermenting tub, and only the filtered liquor passes into the fermenting tub, there shall hereafter be no limitation upon the number of gallons of water which may be used in the process of mashing or filtration for fermentation; but the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, in order to protect the revenue, shall be authorized to prescribe by regulation, to be made by him, such character of survey as he may find suitable for distilleries using such filtration-aeration process. The provisions hereof relating to filtration-aeration process shall apply only to sweet-mash distilleries." [40 Stat. L. 1114.]

For R. S. sec. 3264, amended by this section, see 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 642; 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 31.

SEC. 624. [Exportation of distilled spirits — withdrawals — laws governing.] That under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, alcohol or other distilled spirits of a proof strength of not less than one hundred and eighty degrees intended for export free of tax may be drawn from receiving cisterns at any distillery, or from storage tanks in any distillery warehouse, for transfer to tanks or tank cars for export from the United States, and all provisions of existing law relating to the exportation of distilled spirits not inconsistent herewith shall apply to spirits removed for export under the provisions of this Act. [40 Stat. L. 1114.]

SEC. 625. [Distillers of fruit brandy — statutory exemptions — distilling material — R. S. sec. 3255 amended.] That section 3255 of the Revised Statutes as amended by the Act of June 3, 1896, and as further amended by the Act of March 2, 1911, be further amended so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 3255. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may exempt distillers of brandy made exclusively from apples, peaches, grapes, pears, pineapples, oranges, apricots, berries, plums, pawpaws, persimmons, prunes, figs, or cherries from any provision of this title relating to the manufacture of spirits, except as to the tax thereon, when in his judgment it may seem expedient to do so: Provided, That where, in the manufacture of wine, artificial sweetening has been used the wine or the fruit pomace residuum may be used in the distillation of brandy, and such use shall not prevent the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, from exempting such distiller from any provision of this title relating to the manufacture of spirits, except as to the tax thereon, when in his judgment it may seem expedient to do so: And provided further, That the distillers mentioned in this section may add to not less than five hundred gallons (or ten barrels) of grape cheese not more than five hundred gallons of a sugar solution made from cane, beet, starch, or corn sugar, 95 per centum pure, such solution to have a saccharine strength of not to exceed 10 per centum, and may ferment the resultant mixture on a winery or distillery premises, and such fermented product shall be regarded as distilling material." [40 Stat. L. 1114.]

For R. S. sec. 3255, before this amendment, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 22; 1912 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 109.

SEC. 626. [Gin — bottling in bond for export — exemption from tax.] That distilled spirits known commercially as gin of not less than 80 per centum proof may at any time within eight years after entry in bond at any distillery be bottled in bond at such distillery for export without the payment of tax, under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe. [40 Stat. L. 1115.]

sec. 3354 amended.] That section 3354 of the Revised Statutes as amended by the Act approved June 18, 1890, be, and is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 3354. Every person who withdraws any fermented liquor from any hogshead, barrel, keg, or other vessel upon which the proper stamp has not been affixed for the purpose of bottling the same, or who carries on or attempts to carry on the business of bottling fermented liquor in any brewery or other place in which fermented liquor is made, or upon any premises having communication with such brewery, or any warehouse, shall be liable to a fine of $500, and the property used in such bottling or business shall be liable to forfeiture: Provided, however, That this section shall not be construed to prevent the withdrawal and transfer of unfermented, partially fermented, or fermented liquors from any of the vats in any brewery by way of a pipe line or other conduit to another building or place for the sole purpose of bottling the same, such pipe line or conduit to be constructed and operated in such manner and with such cisterns, vats, tanks, valves, cocks, faucets, and gauges, or other utensils or apparatus, either on the premises of the brewery or the bottling house, and with such changes or additions thereto, and such locks, seals, or other fastenings, and under such rules and regulations as shall be from time to time prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, and all locks and seals prescribed shall be provided by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at the expense of the United States: Provided further, That the tax imposed in section 3339 of the Revised Statutes shall be paid on all fermented liquor removed from a brewery to a bottling house by means of a pipe or conduit, at the time of such removal, by the cancellation and defacement, by the collector of the district or his deputy, in the presence of the brewer, of the number of stamps denoting the tax on the fermented liquor thus removed. The stamps thus canceled and defaced shall be disposed of and accounted for in the manner directed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. And any violation of the rules and regulations hereafter prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, in pursuance of these provisions, shall be subject to the penalties above provided by this section. Every owner, agent, or superintendent of any brewery or bottling house who removes, or connives at the removal of, any fermented liquor through a pipe line or conduit, without payment of the tax thereon, or who attempts in any manner to defraud the revenue as above, shall forfeit all the liquors made by and for him, and all the vessels, utensils, and apparatus used in making the same." [40 Stat. L. 1115.]

SEC. 628. [Bottled soft drinks and mineral water—tax on manufacturer, producer or importer—amount.] That there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid in lieu of the taxes imposed by sections 313 and 315 of the Revenue Act of 1917—

(a) Upon all beverages derived wholly or in part from cereals or substitutes therefor, and containing less than one-half of one per centum of alcohol, sold by the manufacturer, producer, or importer, in bottles or other closed containers, a tax equivalent to 15 per centum of the price for which so sold; and upon all

unfermented grape juice, ginger ale, root beer, sarsaparilla, pop, artificial mineral waters (carbonated or not carbonated), other carbonated waters or beverages, and other soft drinks, sold by the manufacturer, producer, or importer, in bottles or other closed containers, a tax equivalent to 10 per centum of the price for which so sold; and

(b) Upon all natural mineral waters or table waters, sold by the producer, bottler, or importer thereof, in bottles or other closed containers, at over 10 cents per gallon, a tax of 2 cents per gallon. [40 Stat. L. 1116.]

For Act of Oct. 3, 1917, secs. 313, 315, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 302.

SEC. 629. [Bottled soft drinks—monthly returns—payment of tax—penalty for failure to pay.] That each manufacturer, producer, bottler, or importer of any of the articles enumerated in section 628 shall make monthly returns under oath in duplicate and pay the taxes imposed in respect to such articles by such section to the collector for the district in which is located the principal place of business, containing such information necessary for the assessment of the tax, and at such times and in such manner as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulation prescribe.

The tax shall, without assessment by the Commissioner or notice from the collector, be due and payable to the collector at the time so fixed for filing the return. If the tax is not paid when due, there shall be added as part of the tax a penalty of 5 per centum, together with interest at the rate of 1 per centum for each full month, from the time when the tax became due. [40 Stat. L. 1116.]

SEC. 630. [Soda fountains, ice cream parlors, and similar places—payment of tax to person conducting—amount.] That on and after May 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid a tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid to any person conducting a soda fountain, ice-cream parlor, or other similar place of business, for drinks commonly known as soft drinks, compounded or mixed at such place of business, or for ice cream, ice-cream sodas, sundaes, or other similar articles of food or drink, when any of the above are sold on or after such date for consumption in or in proximity to such place of business. Such tax shall be paid by the purchaser to the vendor at the time of the sale and shall be collected, returned, and paid to the United States by such vendor in the same manner as provided in section 502. [40 Stat. L. 1116.]

TITLE VII.—TAX ON CIGARS, TOBACCO, AND MANUFACTURES THEREOF.

SEC. 700. (a) [Cigars and cigarettes—tax—amount.] That upon cigars and cigarettes manufactured in or imported into the United States, and hereafter sold by the manufacturer or importer, or removed for consumption or sale, there shall be levied, collected, and paid under the provisions of existing law, in lieu of the internal-revenue taxes now imposed thereon by law, the following taxes, to be paid by the manufacturer or importer thereof—

On cigars of all descriptions made of tobacco, or any substitute therefor, and weighing not more than three pounds per thousand, $1.50 per thousand;

On cigars made of tobacco, or any substitute therefor, and weighing more than three pounds per thousand, if manufactured or imported to retail at not more than 5 cents each, $4 per thousand;

If manufactured or imported to retail at more than 5 cents each and not more than 8 cents each, $6 per thousand;

If manufactured or imported to retail at more than 8 cents each and not more than 15 cents each, $9 per thousand;

If manufactured or imported to retail at more than 15 cents each and not more than 20 cents each, $12 per thousand;

If manufactured or imported to retail at more than 20 cents each, $15 per thousand;

On cigarettes made of tobacco, or any substitute therefor, and weighing not more than three pounds per thousand, $3 per thousand;

Weighing more than three pounds per thousand, $7.20 per thousand. [40 Stat. L. 1116.]

[SEC. 700 continued.] (b) [Price of cigars how fixed.] Whenever in this section reference is made to cigars manufactured or imported to retail at not over a certain price each, then in determining the tax to be paid regard shall be had to the ordinary retail price of a single cigar. [40 Stat. L. 1117.]

[SEC. 700 continued.] (c) [Labels on boxes, etc.] The Commissioner may, by regulation, require the manufacturer or importer to affix to each box, package, or container a conspicuous label indicating the clause of this section under which the cigars therein contained have been tax-paid, which must correspond with the tax-paid stamp on such box or container. [40 Stat. L. 1117.]

[SEC. 700 continued.] (d) [Cigarettes and small cigars—packing and stamping.] Every manufacturer of cigarettes (including small cigars weighing not more than three pounds per thousand) shall put up all the cigarettes and such small cigars that he manufactures or has manufactured for him, and sells or removes for consumption or sale, in packages or parcels containing five, eight, ten, twelve, fifteen, sixteen, twenty, twenty-four, forty, fifty, eighty, or one hundred cigarettes each, and shall securely affix to each of such packages or parcels a suitable stamp denoting the tax thereon and shall properly cancel the same prior to such sale or removal for consumption or sale under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, shall prescribe; and all cigarettes imported from a foreign country shall be packed, stamped, and the stamps canceled in a like manner, in addition to the import stamp indicating inspection of the customhouse before they are withdrawn therefrom. [40 Stat. L. 1117.]

SEC. 701. (a) [Tobacco and snuff—tax—amount.] That upon all tobacco and snuff manufactured in or imported into the United States, and hereafter sold by the manufacturer or importer, or removed for consumption or sale, there shall be levied, collected, and paid, in lieu of the internal-revenue taxes now imposed thereon by law, a tax of 18 cents per pound, to be paid by the manufacturer or importer thereof. [40 Stat. L. 1117.]

“Sec. 3362. All manufactured tobacco shall be put up and prepared by the manufacturer for sale, or removal for sale or consumption, in packages of the following description and in no other manner:

"All smoking tobacco, snuff, fine-cut chewing tobacco, all cut and granulated tobacco, all shorts, the refuse of fine-cut chewing, which has passed through a riddle of thirty-six meshes to the square inch, and all refuse scraps, clippings, cuttings, and sweepings of tobacco, and all other kinds of tobacco not otherwise provided for, in packages containing one-eighth of an ounce, three-eighths of an ounce, and further packages with a difference between each package and the one next smaller of one-eighth of an ounce up to and including two ounces, and further packages with a difference between each package and the one next smaller of one-fourth of an ounce up to and including four ounces, and packages of five ounces, six ounces, seven ounces, eight ounces, ten ounces, twelve ounces, fourteen ounces, and sixteen ounces: Provided, That snuff may, at the option of the manufacturer, be put up in bladders and in jars containing not exceeding twenty pounds.

"All cavendish, plug, and twist tobacco, in wooden packages not exceeding two hundred pounds net weight.

"And every such wooden package shall have printed or marked thereon the manufacturer's name and place of manufacture, the registered number of the manufactory, and the gross weight, the tare, and the net weight of the tobacco in each package: Provided, That these limitations and descriptions of packages shall not apply to tobacco and snuff transported in bond for exportation and actually exported: And provided further, That perique tobacco, snuff flour, fine-cut shorts, the refuse of fine-cut chewing tobacco, refuse scraps, clippings, cuttings, and sweepings of tobacco, may be sold in bulk as material, and without the payment of tax, by one manufacturer directly to another manufacturer, or for export, under such restrictions, rules, and regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may prescribe: And provided further, That wood, metal, paper, or other materials may be used separately or in combination for packing tobacco, snuff, and cigars, under such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may establish." [40 Stat. L. 1117.]

For R. S. sec. 3362, before the above amendment, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 141; 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 726.

SEC. 702. [Tobacco and snuff removed from factory or customhouse prior to Act—additional tax.] That upon all the articles enumerated in section 700 or 701, which were manufactured or imported, and removed from factory or customhouse on or prior to the date of the passage of this Act, and upon which the tax imposed by existing law has been paid, and which are, on the day after the passage of this Act, held by any person and intended for sale, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid a floor tax equal to the difference between (a) the tax imposed by this Act upon such articles according to the class in which they are placed by this title, and (b) the tax imposed upon such articles by existing law other than section 4003 of the Revenue Act of 1917. [40 Stat. L. 1118.]

For Act of Oct. 3, 1917, sec. 403, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 304.

SEC. 703. [Cigarette papers — tax — amount — bond — records — return.] That there shall be levied, collected, and paid, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 404 of the Revenue Act of 1917, upon cigarette paper made up into packages, books, sets, or tubes, made up in or imported into the United States and hereafter sold by the manufacturer or importer to any person (other than to a manufacturer of cigarettes for use by him in the manufacture of cigarettes) the following taxes, to be paid by the manufacturer or importer: On each package, book, or set, containing more than twenty-five but not more than fifty papers,  $\frac{1}{2}$  cent; containing more than fifty but not more than one hundred papers, 1 cent; containing more than one hundred papers,  $\frac{1}{2}$  cent for each fifty papers or fractional part thereof; and upon tubes, 1 cent for each fifty tubes or fractional part thereof.

Every manufacturer of cigarettes purchasing any cigarette paper made up into tubes (a) shall give bond in an amount and with sureties satisfactory to the Commissioner that he will use such tubes in the manufacture of cigarettes or pay thereon a tax equivalent to the tax imposed by this section, and (b) shall keep such records and render under oath such returns as the Commissioner finds necessary to show the disposition of all tubes purchased or imported by such manufacturer of cigarettes. [40 Stat. L. 1118.]

For Act of Oct. 3, 1917, § 404, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 305.

SEC. 704. [Leaf tobacco — tax — requirements imposed on dealers — R. S. sec. 3360 amended.] That section 35 of the Act entitled "An Act to provide revenue, equalize duties and encourage the industries of the United States, and for other purposes," approved August 5, 1909, be, and is hereby, repealed, to take effect April 1, 1919.

That section 3360 of the Revised Statutes be, and is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 3360. (a) Every dealer in leaf tobacco shall file with the collector of the district in which his business is carried on, a statement in duplicate, subscribed under oath, setting forth the place, and, if in a city, the street and number of the street, where his business is to be carried on, and the exact location of each place where leaf tobacco is held by him on storage, and, whenever he adds to or discontinues any of his leaf tobacco storage places, he shall give immediate notice to the collector of the district in which he is registered.

"Every such dealer shall give a bond with surety, satisfactory to, and to be approved by, the collector of the district, in such penal sum as the collector may require, not less than $500; and a new bond may be required in the discretion of the collector or under instructions of the Commissioner.

"Every such dealer shall be assigned a number by the collector of the district, which number shall appear in every inventory, invoice and report rendered by the dealer, who shall also obtain certificates from the collector of the district setting forth the place where his business is carried on and the places designated by the dealer as the places of storage of his tobacco, which certificates shall be posted conspicuously within the dealer's registered place of business, and within each designated place of storage.

"(b) Every dealer in leaf tobacco shall make and deliver to the collector of the district a true inventory of the quantity of the different kinds of tobacco held or owned, and where stored by him, on the first day of January of each year, or at the time of commencing and at the time of concluding business, if before or after the first day of January, such inventory to be made under oath and rendered in such form as may be prescribed by the Commissioner.

"Every dealer in leaf tobacco shall render such invoices and keep such records as shall be prescribed by the Commissioner, and shall enter therein, day by day, and upon the same day on which the circumstance, thing or act to be recorded is done or occurs, an accurate account of the number of hogsheads, tierces, cases and bales, and quantity of leaf tobacco contained therein, purchased or received by him, on assignment, consignment, for storage, by transfer or otherwise, and of whom purchased or received, and the number of hogsheads, tierces, cases and bales, and the quantity of leaf tobacco contained therein, sold by him, with the name and residence in each instance of the person to whom sold, and if shipped, to whom shipped, and to what district; such records shall be kept at his place of business at all times and preserved for a period of two years, and the same shall be open at all hours for the inspection of any internal-revenue officer or agent.

"Every dealer in leaf tobacco on or before the tenth day of each month, shall furnish to the collector of the district a true and complete report of all purchases, receipts, sales and shipments of leaf tobacco made by him during the month next preceding, which report shall be verified and rendered in such form as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, shall prescribe.

"(c) Sales or shipments of leaf tobacco by a dealer in leaf tobacco shall be in quantities of not less than a hogshead, tierce, case, or bale, except loose leaf tobacco comprising the breaks on warehouse floors, and except to a duly registered manufacturer of cigars for use in his own manufactory exclusively.

"Dealers in leaf tobacco shall make shipments of leaf tobacco only to other dealers in leaf tobacco, to registered manufacturers of tobacco, snuff, cigars or cigarettes, or for export.

"(d) Upon all leaf tobacco sold, removed or shipped by any dealer in leaf tobacco in violation of the provisions of subdivision (c), or in respect to which no report has been made by such dealer in accordance with the provisions of subdivision (b), there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid a tax equal to the tax then in force upon manufactured tobacco, such tax to be assessed and collected in the same manner as the tax on manufactured tobacco.

"(e) Every dealer in leaf tobacco

"(1) who neglects or refuses to furnish the statement, to give bond, to keep books, to file inventory or to render the invoices, returns or reports required by the Commissioner, or to notify the collector of the district of additions to his places of storage; or

"(2) who ships or delivers leaf tobacco, except as herein provided; or

"(3) who fraudulently omits to account for tobacco purchased, received, sold, or shipped; shall be fined not less than $100 or more than $500, or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

"(f) For the purposes of this section a farmer or grower of tobacco shall not be regarded as a dealer in leaf tobacco in respect to the leaf tobacco produced by him." [40 Stat. L. 1118.]

TITLE VIII.—TAX ON ADMISSIONS AND DUES.

SEC. 800. (a) [Admissions—tax—amount—theatres—roof gardens—cabarets.] That from and after April 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 700 of the Revenue Act of 1917—

(1) A tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid for admission to any place on or after such date, including admission by season ticket or subscription, to be paid by the person paying for such admission;

(2) In the case of persons (except bona fide employees, municipal officers on official business, persons in the military or naval forces of the United States when in uniform, and children under twelve years of age) admitted free or at reduced rates to any place at a time when and under circumstances under which an admission charge is made to other persons, a tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof of the price so charged to such other persons for the same or similar accommodations, to be paid by the person so admitted;

(3) Upon tickets or cards of admission to theaters, operas, and other places of amusement, sold at news stands, hotels, and places other than the ticket offices of such theaters, operas, or other places of amusement, at not to exceed 50 cents in excess of the sum of the established price therefor at such ticket offices plus the amount of any tax imposed under paragraph (1), a tax equivalent to 5 per centum of the amount of such excess; and if sold for more than 50 cents in excess of the sum of such established price plus the amount of any tax imposed under paragraph (1), a tax equivalent to 50 per centum of the whole amount of such excess, such taxes to be returned and paid, in the manner provided in section 903, by the person selling such tickets;

(4) A tax equivalent to 50 per centum of the amount for which the proprietors, managers, or employees of any opera house, theater, or other place of amusement sell or dispose of tickets or cards of admission in excess of the regular or established price or charge therefor, such tax to be returned and paid, in the manner provided in section 903, by the person selling such tickets;

(5) In the case of persons having the permanent use of boxes or seats in an opera house or any place of amusement or a lease for the use of such box or seat in such opera house or place of amusement (in lieu of the tax imposed by paragraph (1)), a tax equivalent to 10 per centum of the amount for which a similar box or seat is sold for each performance or exhibition at which the box or seat is used or reserved by or for the lessee or holder, such tax to be paid by the lessee or holder; and

(6) A tax of  $1\frac{1}{2}$  cents for each 10 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid for admission to any public performance for profit at any roof garden, cabaret, or other similar entertainment, to which the charge for admission is wholly or in part included in the price paid for refreshment, service, or merchandise; the amount paid for such admission to be deemed to be 20 per centum of the amount paid for refreshment, service, and merchandise; such tax to be paid by the person paying for such refreshment, service, or merchandise. [40 Stat. L. 1120.]

[SEC. 800 continued.] (b) [Tax exempt entertainments.] No tax shall be levied under this title in respect to any admissions all the proceeds of which inure exclusively to the benefit of religious, educational, or charitable institutions, societies, or organizations, societies for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, or exclusively to the benefit of organizations conducted for the sole purpose of maintaining symphony orchestras and receiving substantial support from voluntary contributions, none of the profits of which are distributed to members of such organizations, or exclusively to the benefit of persons in the military or naval forces of the United States, or admissions to agricultural fairs none of the profits of which are distributed to stockholders or members of the association conducting the same. [40 Stat. L. 1121.]

[SEC. 800 continued.] (c) ["Admission" defined.] The term "admission" as used in this title includes seats and tables, reserved or otherwise, and other similar accommodations, and the charges made therefor. [40 Stat. L. 1121.]

SEC. 801. [Club dues—membership fees.] That from and after April 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 701 of the Revenue Act of 1917, a tax equivalent to 10 per centum of any amount paid on or after such date, for any period after such date, (a) as dues or membership fees (where the dues or fees of an active resident annual member are in excess of $10 per year) to any social, athletic, or sporting club or organization; or (b) as initiation fees to such a club or organization, if such fees amount to more than $10, or if the dues or membership fees (not including initiation fees) of an active resident annual member are in excess of $10 per year; such taxes to be paid by the person paying such dues or fees: Provided, That there shall be exempted from the provisions of this section all amounts paid as dues or fees to a fraternal society, order, or association, operating under the lodge system. In the case of life memberships a life member shall pay annually, at the time for the payment of dues by active resident annual members, a tax equivalent to the tax upon the amount paid by such a member, but shall pay no tax upon the amount paid for life membership. [40 Stat. L. 1121.]

For Act of Oct. 3, 1917, § 701, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 355.

SEC. 802. [Collection of tax on admissions, dues or fees—returns.] That every person (a) receiving any payments for such admission, dues, or fees shall collect the amount of the tax imposed by section 800 or 801 from the person making such payments, or (b) admitting any person free to any place for admission to which a charge is made, shall collect the amount of the tax imposed by section 800 from the person so admitted. Every club or organization having life members, shall collect from such members the amount of the tax imposed by section 801. In all the above cases returns and payments of the amount so collected shall be made at the same time and in the same manner as provided in section 502. [40 Stat. L. 1121.]

TITLE IX.—EXCISE TAXES.

SEC. 900. [Enumeration of articles taxed—amount of tax.] That there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid upon the following articles sold or leased by the manufacturer, producer, or importer, a tax equivalent to the following percentages of the price for which so sold or leased —

(1) Automobile trucks and automobile wagons (including tires, inner tubes, parts, and accessories therefor, sold on or in connection therewith or with the sale thereof), 3 per centum;

(2) Other automobiles and motorcycles (including tires, inner tubes, parts, and accessories therefor, sold on or in connection therewith or with the sale thereof), except tractors, 5 per centum;

(3) Tires, inner tubes, parts, or accessories, for any of the articles enumerated in subdivision (1) or (2), sold to any person other than a manufacturer or producer of any of the articles enumerated in subdivision (1) or (2), 5 per centum;

(4) Pianos, organs (other than pipe organs), piano players, graphophones, phonographs, talking machines, music boxes, and records used in connection with any musical instrument, piano player, graphophone, phonograph, or talking machine, 5 per centum;

(5) Tennis rackets, nets, racket covers and presses, skates, snowshoes, skis, toboggans, canoe paddles and cushions, polo mallets, baseball bats, gloves, masks, protectors, shoes and uniforms, football helmets, harness and goals, basket-ball goals and uniforms, golf bags and clubs, lacrosse sticks, balls of all kinds, including baseballs, footballs, tennis, golf, lacrosse, billiard and pool balls, fishing rods and reels, billiard and pool tables, chess and checker boards and pieces, dice, games and parts of games (except playing cards and children's toys and games), and all similar articles commonly or commercially known as sporting goods, 10 per centum;

(6) Chewing gum or substitutes therefor, 3 per centum;

(7) Cameras, weighing not more than 100 pounds, 10 per centum;

(8) Photographic films and plates, other than moving-picture films, 5 per centum;

(9) Candy, 5 per centum;

(10) Firearms, shells, and cartridges, except those sold for the use of the United States, any State, Territory, or possession of the United States, any political subdivision thereof, the District of Columbia, or any foreign country while engaged against the German Government in the present war, 10 per centum;

(11) Hunting and bowie knives, 10 per centum;

(12) Dirk knives, daggers, sword canes, stillettos, and brass or metallic knuckles, 100 per centum;

(13) Portable electric fans, 5 per centum;

(14) Thermos and thermostatic bottles, carafes, jugs, or other thermostatic containers, 5 per centum;

(15) Cigar or cigarette holders and pipes, composed wholly or in part of meerschaum or amber, humidors, and smoking stands, 10 per centum;

(16) Automatic slot-device vending machines, 5 per centum, and automatic, slot-device weighing machines, 10 per centum; if the manufacturer, producer, or importer of any such machine operates it for profit, he shall pay a tax in respect to each such machine put into operation equivalent to 5 per centum of its fair market value in the case of a vending machine, and 10 per centum of its fair market value in the case of a weighing machine;

(17) Liveries and livery boots and hats, 10 per centum;

- (18) Hunting and shooting garments and riding habits, 10 per centum;
- (19) Articles made of fur on the hide or pelt, or of which any such fur is the component material of chief value, 10 per centum;
- (20) Yachts and motor boats not designed for trade, fishing, or national defense; and pleasure boats and pleasure canoes if sold for more than $15, 10 per centum; and
- (21) Toilet soaps and toilet soap powders, 3 per centum.

If any manufacturer, producer, or importer of any of the articles enumerated in this section customarily sells such articles both at wholesale and at retail, the tax in the case of any article sold by him at retail shall be computed on the price for which like articles are sold by him at wholesale.

The taxes imposed by this section shall, in the case of any article in respect to which a corresponding tax is imposed by section 600 of the Revenue Act of 1917, be in lieu of such tax. [40 Stat. L. 1122.]

SEC. 901. [Articles subject to tax sold or leased at less than fair market price — effect.] That if any person manufactures, produces or imports any article enumerated in section 900, or leases or licenses for exhibition any positive motion-picture film containing a picture ready for projection, and, whether through any agreement, arrangement, or understanding, or otherwise, sells, leases or licenses such article at less than the fair market price obtainable therefor, either (a) in such manner as directly or indirectly to benefit such person or any person directly or indirectly interested in the business of such person, or (b) with intent to cause such benefit, the amount for which such article is sold, leased or licensed shall be taken to be the amount which would have been received from the sale, lease or license of such article if sold, leased or licensed at the fair market price. [40 Stat. L. 1123.]

SEC. 902. [Sculpture and other art articles — tax — amount.] That there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid upon sculpture, painting, statuary, art porcelains, and bronzes, sold by any person other than the artist, a tax equivalent to 10 per centum of the price for which so sold. This section shall not apply to the sale of any such article to an educational institution or public art museum. [40 Stat. L. 1123.]

SEC. 903. [Returns — payment of tax — penalty for nonpayment.] That every person liable for any tax imposed by section 900, 902, or 906, shall make monthly returns under oath in duplicate and pay the taxes imposed by such sections to the collector for the district in which is located the principal place of business. Such returns shall contain such information and be made at such times and in such manner as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulations prescribe.

The tax shall, without assessment by the Commissioner or notice from the collector, be due and payable to the collector at the time so fixed for filing the return. If the tax is not paid when due, there shall be added as part of the tax a penalty of 5 per centum, together with interest at the rate of 1 per centum for each full month, from the time when the tax became due. [40 Stat. L. 1123.]

SEC. 904. [Luxury tax — articles affected — payment.] (a) That on and after May 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid a tax equivalent to 10 per centum of so much of the amount paid for any of the following articles as is in excess of the price hereinafter specified as to each such article, when such article is sold by or for a dealer or his estate on or after such date for consumption or use —

(1) Carpets and rugs, including fiber, except imported and American rugs made principally of wool, on the amount in excess of $5 per square yard;

(2) Picture frames, on the amount in excess of $10 each;

(3) Trunks, on the amount in excess of $50 each;

(4) Valises, traveling bags, suit cases, hat boxes used by travelers, and fitted toilet cases, on the amount in excess of $25 each;

(5) Purses, pocketbooks, shopping and hand bags, on the amount in excess of $7.50 each;

(6) Portable lighting fixtures, including lamps of all kinds and lamp shades, on the amount in excess of $25 each;

(7) Umbrellas, parasols, and sun shades, on the amount in excess of $4 each;

(8) Fans, on the amount in excess of $1 each;

(9) House or smoking coats or jackets, and bath or lounging robes, on the amount in excess of $7.50 each;

(10) Men's waistcoats, sold separately from suits, on the amount in excess of $5 each;

(11) Women's and misses' hats, bonnets, and hoods, on the amount in excess of $15 each;

(12) Men's and boys' hats, on the amount in excess of $5 each;

(13) Men's and boys' caps, on the amount in excess of $2 each;

(14) Men's, women's, misses', and boys' boots, shoes, pumps, and slippers, not including shoes or appliances made to order for any person having a crippled or deformed foot or ankle, on the amount in excess of $10 per pair;

(15) Men's and boys' neckties and neckwear, on the amount in excess of $2 each;

(16) Men's and boys' silk stockings or hose, on the amount in excess of $1 per pair;

(17) Women's and misses' silk stockings or hose, on the amount in excess of $2 per pair;

(18) Men's shirts, on the amount in excess of $3 each;

(19) Men's, women's, misses', and boys' pajamas, night gowns, and underwear, on the amount in excess of $5 each; and

(20) Kimonos, petticoats, and waists, on the amount in excess of $15 each.

(b) The tax imposed by this section shall not apply (1) to any article enumerated in paragraphs (2) to (8), both inclusive, of subdivision (a), if such article is made of, or ornamented, mounted, or fitted with, precious metals or imitations thereof or ivory, or (2) to any article made of fur on the hide or pelt, or of which any such fur is the component material of chief value, or to (3) any article enumerated in subdivision (17) or (18) of section 900.

(c) The taxes imposed by this section shall be paid by the purchaser to the vendor at the time of the sale and shall be collected, returned, and paid to the United States by such vendor in the same manner as provided in section 502. [40 Stat. L. 1123.]

SEC. 905. [Jewelry — precious stones — time pieces — glasses — amount of tax — returns — payment of tax.] That on and after April 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid (in lieu of the tax imposed by subdivision

(e) of section 600 of the Revenue Act of 1917) upon all articles commonly or commercially known as jewelry, whether real or imitation; pearls, precious and semiprecious stones, and imitations thereof; articles made of, or ornamented, mounted or fitted with, precious metals or imitations thereof or ivory (not including surgical instruments); watches; clocks; opera glasses; lorgnettes; marine glasses; field glasses; and binoculars; upon any of the above when sold by or for a dealer or his estate for consumption or use, a tax equivalent to 5 per centum of the price for which so sold.

Every person selling any of the articles enumerated in this section shall make returns under oath in duplicate (monthly or quarterly as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe) and pay the taxes imposed in respect to such articles by this section to the collector for the district in which is located the principal place of business. Such returns shall contain such information and be made at such times and in such manner as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may by regulations prescribe.

The tax shall, without assessment by the Commissioner or notice from the collector, be due and payable to the collector at the time so fixed for filing the return. If the tax is not paid when due, there shall be added as part of the tax a penalty of 5 per centum, together with interest at the rate of 1 per centum for each full month, from the time when the tax became due. [40 Stat. L. 1124.]

For Act of Oct. 3, 1917, sec. 600, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 339.

SEC. 906. [Motion-picture films — tax on owners, etc.] That on and after the 1st day of May, 1919, any person engaged in the business of leasing or licensing for exhibition positive motion-picture films containing pictures ready for projection shall pay monthly an excise tax in respect to carrying on such business equal to 5 per centum of the total rentals earned from each such lease or license during the preceding month. If a person owning such a film exhibits it for profit he shall pay a tax equivalent to 5 per centum of the fair rental or license value of such film at the time and place where and for the period during which exhibited. If any such person has, prior to December 6, 1918, made a bona fide contract with any person for the lease or licensing, after the tax imposed by this section takes effect, of such a film for exhibition for profit, and if such contract does not permit the adding of the whole of the tax imposed by this section to the amount to be paid under such contract, then the lessee or licensee shall, in lieu of the lessor or licensor, pay so much of such tax as is not so permitted to be added to the contract price. The tax imposed by this section shall be in lieu of the tax imposed by subdivisions (c) and (d) of section 600 of the Revenue Act of 1917. [40 Stat. L. 1125.]

For Act of Oct. 3, 1917, sec. 600, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 339.

SEC. 907. [Toilet articles — medicines — collection of tax — methods.] (a) That on and after May 1, 1919, there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid (in lieu of the taxes imposed by subdivisions (g) and (h) of section 600 of the Revenue Act of 1917) a tax of 1 cent for each 25 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid for any of the following articles when sold by or for a dealer or his estate on or after such date for consumption or use:

(1) Perfumes, essences, extracts, toilet waters, cosmetics, petroleum jellies, hair oils, pomades, hair dressings, hair restoratives, hair dyes, tooth and mouth washes, dentrifices, tooth pastes, aromatic cachous, toilet powders (other than soap powders), or any similar substance, article, or preparation by whatsoever name known or distinguished, any of the above which are used or applied or intended to be used or applied for toilet purposes;

(2) Pills, tablets, powders, tinctures, troches or lozenges, sirups, medicinal cordials or bitters, anodynes, tonics, plasters, liniments, salves, ointments, pastes, drops, waters (except those taxed under section 628 of this Act), essences, spirits, oils, and other medicinal preparations, compounds, or compositions (not including serums and antitoxins), upon the amount paid for any of the above as to which the manufacturer or producer claims to have any private formula, secret, or occult art for making or preparing the same, or has or claims to have any exclusive right or title to the making or preparing the same, or which are prepared, uttered, vended, or exposed for sale under any letters patent, or trade-mark, or which (if prepared by any formula, published or unpublished) are held out or recommended to the public by the makers, vendors, or proprietors thereof as proprietary medicines or medicinal proprietary articles or preparations, or as remedies or specifics for any disease, diseases, or affection whatever affecting the human or animal body: Provided, That the provisions of this section shall not apply to the sale of vaccines and bacterines which are not advertised to the general lay public, nor to the sale by a physician in personal attendance upon a patient of medicinal preparations not so advertised.

(b) The taxes imposed by this section shall be collected by whichever of the following methods the Commissioner may deem expedient: (1) by stamp affixed to such article by the vendor, the cost of which shall be reimbursed to the vendor by the purchaser; or (2) by payment to the vendor by the purchaser at the time of the sale, the taxes so collected being returned and paid to the United States by such vendor in the same manner as provided in section 502. [40 Stat. L. 1125.]

TITLE X — SPECIAL TAXES.

SEC. 1000. (a) [Corporations — capital stock tax — computation — surplus and undivided profits.] That on and after July 1, 1918, in lieu of the tax imposed by the first subdivision of section 407 of the Revenue Act of 1916 —

(1) Every domestic corporation shall pay annually a special excise tax with respect to carrying on or doing business, equivalent to $1 for each $1,000 of so much of the fair average value of its capital stock for the preceding year ending June 30 as is in excess of $5,000. In estimating the value of capital stock the surplus and undivided profits shall be included;

(2) Every foreign corporation shall pay annually a special excise tax with respect to carrying on or doing business in the United States, equivalent to $1 for each $1,000 of the average amount of capital employed in the transaction of its business in the United States during the preceding year ending June thirtieth. [40 Stat. L. 1126.]

For Act of Sept. 8, 1916, sec. 407, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 282.

[SEC. 1000 continued.] (b) [Insurance companies — computation of capital stock tax.] In computing the tax in the case of insurance companies such deposits and reserve funds as they are required by law or contract to maintain or hold for the protection of or payment to or apportionment among policy-holders shall not be included. [40 Stat. L. 1126.]

[SEC. 1000 continued.] (c) [Certain corporations exempt from tax — mutual insurance companies.] The taxes imposed by this section shall not apply in any year to any corporation which was not engaged in business (or in the case of a foreign corporation not engaged in business in the United States) during the preceding year ending June 30, nor to any corporation enumerated in section 231. The taxes imposed by this section shall apply to mutual insurance companies, and in the case of every such domestic company the tax shall be equivalent to $1 for each $1,000 of the excess over $5,000 of the sum of its surplus or contingent reserves maintained for the general use of the business and any reserves the net additions to which are included in net income under the provisions of Title II, as of the close of the preceding accounting period used by such company for purposes of making its income tax return: Provided, That in the case of a foreign mutual insurance company the tax shall be equivalent to $1 for each $1,000 of the same proportion of the sum of such surplus and reserves, which the reserve fund upon business transacted within the United States is of the total reserve upon all business transacted, as of the close of the preceding accounting period used by such company for purposes of making its income tax return. [40 Stat. L. 1126.]

SEC. 1001. [a] [Enumeration of persons in business subject to special tax and amount thereof.] That on and after January 1, 1919, there shall be levied, collected, and paid annually the following special taxes —

(1) [Brokers.] Brokers shall pay $50. Every person whose business it is to negotiate purchases or sales of stocks, bonds, exchange, bullion, coined money, bank notes, promissory notes, other securities, produce or merchandise, for others, shall be regarded as a broker. If a broker is a member of a stock exchange, or if he is a member of any produce exchange, board of trade, or similar organization, where produce or merchandise is sold, he shall pay an additional amount as follows: If the average value, during the preceding year ending June 30, of a seat or membership in such exchange or organization was $2,000 or more but not more than $5,000, $100; if such value was more than $5,000, $150. [40 Stat. L. 1126.]

(2) [Pawnbrokers.] Pawnbrokers shall pay $100. Every person whose business or occupation it is to take or receive, by way of pledge, pawn, or exchange, any goods, wares, or merchandise, or any kind of personal property whatever, as security for the repayment of money loaned thereon, shall be regarded as a pawnbroker. [40 Stat. L. 1127.]

(3) [Ship brokers.] Ship brokers shall pay $50. Every person whose business it is as a broker to negotiate freights and other business for the owners of vessels, or for the shippers or consignors or consignees of freight carried by vessels, shall be regarded as a ship broker. [40 Stat. L. 1127.]

(4) [Customhouse brokers.] Customhouse brokers shall pay $50. Every person whose occupation it is, as the agent of others, to arrange entries and other customhouse papers, or transact business at any port of entry relating to the importation or exportation of goods, wares, or merchandise, shall be regarded as a customhouse broker. [40 Stat. L. 1127.]

(5) [Proprietors of theaters, etc.] Proprietors of theaters, museums, and concert halls, where a charge for admission is made, having a seating capacity of not more than two hundred and fifty, shall pay $50; having a seating capacity of more than two hundred and fifty and not exceeding five hundred, shall pay $100; having a seating capacity exceeding five hundred and not exceeding eight hundred, shall pay $150; having a seating capacity of more than eight hundred, shall pay $200. Every edifice used for the purpose of dramatic or operatic or other representations, plays, or performances, for admission to which entrance money is received, not including halls or armories rented or used occasionally for concerts or theatrical representations, and not including edifices owned by religious, educational or charitable institutions, societies or organizations where all the proceeds from admissions inure exclusively to the benefit of such institutions, societies or organizations or exclusively to the benefit of persons in the military or naval forces of the United States, shall be regarded as a theater: Provided, That in cities, towns, or villages of five thousand inhabitants or less the amount of such payment shall be one-half of that above stated: Provided further, That whenever any such edifice is under lease at the time the tax is due, the tax shall be paid by the lessee, unless otherwise stipulated between the parties to the lease. [40 Stat. L. 1127.]

(6) [Proprietors of circuses.] The proprietor or proprietors of circuses shall pay $100. Every building, space, tent, or area, where feats of horsemanship or acrobatic sports or theatrical performances not otherwise provided for in this section are exhibited shall be regarded as a circus: Provided, That no special tax paid in one State, Territory, or the District of Columbia shall exempt exhibitions from the tax in another State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, and but one special tax shall be imposed for exhibitions within any one State, Territory, or District. [40 Stat. L. 1127.]

(7) [Proprietors or agents of other public exhibitions.] Proprietors or agents of all other public exhibitions or shows for money not enumerated in this section shall pay $15: Provided, That a special tax paid in one State, Territory, or the District of Columbia shall not exempt exhibitions from the tax in another State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, and but one special tax shall be required for exhibitions within any one State, Territory, or the District of Columbia: Provided further, That this paragraph shall not apply to Chautauquas, lecture lyceums, agricultural or industrial fairs, or exhibitions held under the auspices of religious or charitable associations: Provided further, That an aggregation of entertainments, known as a street fair, shall not pay a larger tax than $100 in any State, Territory, or in the District of Columbia. [40 Stat. L. 1127.]

(8) [Proprietors of bowling alleys and billiard rooms.] Proprietors of bowling alleys and billiard rooms shall pay $10 for each alley or table. Every building or place where bowls are thrown or where games of billiards or pool are played, except in private homes, shall be regarded as a bowling alley or a billiard room, respectively. [40 Stat. L. 1127.]

(9) [Proprietors of shooting galleries.] Proprietors of shooting galleries shall pay $20. Every building, space, tent, or area, where a charge is made for the discharge of firearms at any form of target shall be regarded as a shooting gallery. [40 Stat. L. 1128.]

(10) [Proprietors of riding academies.] Proprietors of riding academies shall pay $100. Every building, space, tent, or area, where a charge is made for instruction in horsemanship or for facilities for the practice of horsemanship shall be regarded as a riding academy. [40 Stat. L. 1128.]

(11) [Persons operating or renting automobiles for hire.] Persons carrying on the business of operating or renting passenger automobiles for hire shall pay $10 for each such automobile having a seating capacity of more than two and not more than seven, and $20 for each such automobile having a seating capacity of more than seven. [40 Stat. L. 1128.]

(12) [Persons in liquor business in prohibited territory.] Every person carrying on the business of a brewer, distiller, wholesale liquor dealer, retail liquor dealer, wholesale dealer in malt liquor, retail dealer in malt liquor, or manufacturer of stills, as defined in section 3244 as amended and section 3247 of the Revised Statutes, in any State, Territory, or District of the United States contrary to the laws of such State, Territory, or District, or in any place therein in which carrying on such business is prohibited by local or municipal law, shall pay, in addition to all other taxes, special or otherwise, imposed by existing law or by this Act, $1,000.

The payment of the tax imposed by this subdivision shall not be held to exempt any person from any penalty or punishment provided for by the laws of any State, Territory, or District for carrying on such business in such State, Territory, or District, or in any manner to authorize the commencement or continuance of such business contrary to the laws of such State, Territory, or District, or in places prohibited by local or municipal law.

For R. S. sec. 3247, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 18; 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 630.

[b] [Taxes imposed in lieu of earlier taxes.] The taxes imposed by this section shall, in the case of persons upon whom a corresponding tax is imposed by section 407 of the Revenue Act of 1916, be in lieu of such tax. [40 Stat. L. 1128.]

For Act of Sept. 8, 1916, sec. 407, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 282.

SEC. 1002. [Manufacturers of tobacco, cigars, and cigarettes.] That on and after January 1, 1919, there shall be levied, collected, and paid annually, in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 408 of the Revenue Act of 1916, the following special taxes, the amount of such taxes to be computed on the basis of the sales for the preceding year ending June 30—

Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales do not exceed fifty thousand pounds shall each pay $6;

Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed fifty thousand and do not exceed one hundred thousand pounds shall each pay $12;

Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed one hundred thousand and do not exceed two hundred thousand pounds shall each pay $24;

Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed two hundred thousand pounds shall each pay $24, and at the rate of 16 cents per thousand pounds, or fraction thereof, in respect to the excess over two hundred thousand pounds;

Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales do not exceed fifty thousand cigars shall each pay $4;

Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed fifty thousand and do not exceed one hundred thousand cigars shall each pay $6;

Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed one hundred thousand and do not exceed two hundred thousand cigars shall each pay $12;

Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed two hundred thousand and do not exceed four hundred thousand cigars shall each pay $24;

Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed four hundred thousand cigars shall each pay $24, and at the rate of 10 cents per thousand cigars, or fraction thereof, in respect to the excess over four hundred thousand cigars;

Manufacturers of cigarettes, including small cigars weighing not more than three pounds per thousand shall each pay at the rate of 6 cents for every ten thousand cigarettes, or fraction thereof.

In arriving at the amount of special tax to be paid under this section, and in the levy and collection of such tax, each person engaged in the manufacture of more than one of the classes of articles specified in this section shall be considered and deemed a manufacturer of each class separately. [40 Stat. L. 1128.]

For Act of Sept. 8, 1916, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 285.

SEC. 1003. [Yachts and boats.] That sixty days after the passage of this Act, and thereafter on July 1 in each year, and also at the time of the original purchase of a new boat by a user, if on any other date than July 1, there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid in lieu of the tax imposed by section 603 of the Revenue Act of 1917, upon the use of yachts, pleasure boats, power boats, and sailing boats, of over five net tons, and motor boats with fixed engines, not used exclusively for trade, fishing, or national defense, or not built according to plans and specifications approved by the Navy Department, a special excise tax to be based on each yacht or boat, at rates as follows: Yachts, pleasure boats, power boats, motor boats with fixed engines, and sailing boats, of over five net tons, length not over fifty feet, $1 for each foot; length over fifty feet and not over one hundred feet, $2 for each foot; length over one hundred feet, $4 for each foot; motor boats of not over five net tons with fixed engines, $10.

In determining the length of such yachts, pleasure boats, power boats, motor boats with fixed engines, and sailing boats, the measurement of over-all length shall govern.

In the case of a tax imposed at the time of the original purchase of a new boat on any other date than July 1, and in the case of the tax taking effect sixty days after the passage of this Act, the amount to be paid shall be the same number of twelfths of the amount of the tax as the number of calendar months (including the month of sale, or the month in which is included the sixty-first day after the passage of this Act, as the case may be) remaining prior to the following July 1.

If the tax imposed by section 603 of the Revenue Act of 1917, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, has been paid in respect to the use of any boat, the amount so paid shall under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe, be credited upon the first tax due under this section in respect to the use of such boat, or be refunded to the person paying the first tax imposed by this section in respect to the use of such boat. [40 Stat. L. 1129.]

For Act of Oct. 3, 1917, § 603, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 341.

SEC. 1004. [Effect of payment of tax imposed by earlier law — receipt — credits.] That if the tax imposed by section 407 or 408 of the Revenue Act of 1916, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, has been paid by any person subject to the corresponding tax imposed by this title, collectors may issue a receipt in lieu of special tax stamp for the amount by which the tax under this title is in excess of that paid or payable and evidenced by stamp under the Revenue Act of 1916. Such receipt shall be posted as in the case of the special tax stamp, as provided by law, and with it, within the place of business of the taxpayer.

If the corresponding tax imposed by section 407 of the Revenue Act of 1916 was not payable by stamp, the amount paid under such section for any period for which a tax is also imposed by this title may be credited against the tax imposed by this title. [40 Stat. L. 1129.]

For Act of Sept. 8, 1916, §§ 407 and 408, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 282, 285.

SEC. 1005. [Non-payment of occupational tax — penalty.] That any person who carries on any business or occupation for which a special tax is imposed by sections 1000, 1001, or 1002, without having paid the special tax therein provided, shall, besides being liable for the payment of such special tax, be subject to a penalty of not more than $1,000 or to imprisonment for not more than one year, or both. [40 Stat. L. 1129.]

SEC. 1006. [Opium, coca leaves and preparations therefrom — regulation of traffic — registration — amount of tax — collection of tax — Harrison Act amended.] That section 1 of the Act of Congress approved December 17, 1914, is hereby amended to read as follows:

“SECTION 1. That on or before July 1 of each year every person who imports, manufactures, produces, compounds, sells, deals in, dispenses, or gives away opium or coca leaves, or any compound, manufacture, salt, derivative, or preparation thereof, shall register with the collector of internal revenue of the district his name or style, place of business and place or places where such business is to be carried on, and pay the special taxes hereinafter provided;

“Every person who on January 1, 1919, is engaged in any of the activities above enumerated, or who between such date and the passage of this Act first engages in any of such activities, shall within 30 days after the passage of this Act make like registration, and shall pay the proportionate part of the tax for the period ending June 30, 1919; and “Every person who first engages in any of such activities after the passage of this Act shall immediately make like registration and pay the proportionate part of the tax for the period ending on the following June 30th;

“Importers, manufacturers, producers, or compounders, $24 per annum; wholesale dealers, $12 per annum; retail dealers, $6 per annum; physicians, dentists, veterinary surgeons, and other practitioners lawfully entitled to distribute, dispense, give away, or administer any of the aforesaid drugs to patients upon whom they in the course of their professional practice are in attendance, shall pay $3 per annum.

“ Every person who imports, manufactures, compounds, or otherwise produces for sale or distribution any of the aforesaid drugs shall be deemed to be an importer, manufacturer, or producer.

“ Every person who sells or offers for sale any of said drugs in the original stamped packages, as hereinafter provided, shall be deemed a wholesale dealer.

“ Every person who sells or dispenses from original stamped packages, as hereinafter provided, shall be deemed a retail dealer: Provided, That the office, or if none, the residence, of any person shall be considered for the purpose of this Act his place of business; but no employee of any person who has registered and paid special tax as herein required, acting within the scope of his employment, shall be required to register and pay special tax provided by this section: Provided further, That officials of the United States, Territorial, District of Columbia, or insular possessions, State or municipal governments, who in the exercise of their official duties engage in any of the business herein described, shall not be required to register, nor pay special tax, nor stamp the aforesaid drugs as hereinafter prescribed, but their right to this exemption shall be evidenced in such manner as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may by regulations prescribe.

“ It shall be unlawful for any person required to register under the provisions of this Act to import, manufacture, produce, compound, sell, deal in, dispense, distribute, administer, or give away any of the aforesaid drugs without having registered and paid the special tax as imposed by this section.

“ That the word ‘ person ’ as used in this Act shall be construed to mean and include a partnership, association, company, or corporation, as well as a natural person; and all provisions of existing law relating to special taxes, as far as necessary, are hereby extended and made applicable to this section.

“ That there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid upon opium, coca leaves, any compound, salt, derivative, or preparation thereof, produced in or imported into the United States, and sold, or removed for consumption or sale, an internal-revenue tax at the rate of 1 cent per ounce, and any fraction of an ounce in a package shall be taxed as an ounce, such tax to be paid by the importer, manufacturer, producer, or compounder thereof, and to be represented by appropriate stamps, to be provided by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury; and the stamps herein provided shall be so affixed to the bottle or other container as to securely seal the stopper, covering, or wrapper thereof.

“ The tax imposed by this section shall be in addition to any import duty imposed on the aforesaid drugs.

“ It shall be unlawful for any person to purchase, sell, dispense, or distribute any of the aforesaid drugs except in the original stamped package or from the original stamped package; and the absence of appropriate tax-paid stamps from any of the aforesaid drugs shall be prima facie evidence of a violation of this section by the person in whose possession same may be found; and the possession of any original stamped package containing any of the aforesaid drugs by any person who has not registered and paid special taxes as required by this section shall be prima facie evidence of liability to such special tax: Provided, That the provisions of this paragraph shall not apply to any person having in his or her possession any of the aforesaid drugs which have been obtained from a registered dealer in pursuance of a prescription, written for legitimate medical uses, issued by a physician, dentist, veterinary surgeon, or other practitioner registered under this Act; and where the bottle or other container in which such drug may be put up by the dealer upon said prescription bears the name and registry number of the druggist, serial number of prescription, name and address of the patient, and name, address, and registry number of the person writing said prescription; or to the dispensing, or administration, or giving away of any of the aforesaid drugs to a patient by a registered physician, dentist, veterinary surgeon, or other practitioner in the course of his professional practice, and where said drugs are dispensed or administered to the patient for legitimate medical purposes, and the record kept as required by this Act of the drugs so dispensed, administered, distributed, or given away.

“And all the provisions of existing laws relating to the engraving, issuance, sale, accountability, cancellation, and destruction of tax-paid stamps provided for in the internal-revenue laws are, in so far as necessary, hereby extended and made to apply to stamps provided by this section.

“That all unstamped packages of the aforesaid drugs found in the possession of any person, except as herein provided, shall be subject to seizure and forfeiture, and all the provisions of existing internal-revenue laws relating to searches, seizures, and forfeitures of unstamped articles are hereby extended to and made to apply to the articles taxed under this Act and the persons upon whom these taxes are imposed.

“Importers, manufacturers, and wholesale dealers shall keep such books and records and render such monthly returns in relation to the transactions in the aforesaid drugs as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may by regulations require.

“The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall make all needful rules and regulations for carrying the provisions of this Act into effect.” [40 Stat. L. 1130.]

For Act of Dec. 17, 1914, sec. 1, before the amendment, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 177; 1916 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 101.

SEC. 1007. [Preparations containing limited quantities of opium, morphine, etc.—application of Harrison Act—record of sales, etc.—registration—decoctinized coca leaves and preparations therefrom.] That section 6 of such Act of December 17, 1914, is hereby amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 6. That the provisions of this Act shall not be construed to apply to the manufacture, sale, distribution, giving away, dispensing, or possession of preparations and remedies which do not contain more than two grains of opium, or more than one-fourth of a grain of morphine, or more than one-eighth of a grain of heroin, or more than one grain of codeine, or any salt or derivative of any of them in one fluid ounce, or, if a solid or semisolid preparation, in one avoirdupois ounce; or to liniments, ointments, or other preparations which are prepared for external use only, except liniments, ointments, and other preparations which contain cocaine or any of its salts or alpha or beta eucaine or any of their salts or any synthetic substitute for them: Provided, That such remedies and preparations are manufactured, sold, distributed, given away, dispensed, or possessed as medicines and not for the purpose of evading the intentions and provisions of this Act: Provided further, That any manufacturer, producer, compounder, or vendor (including dispensing physicians) of the preparations and remedies mentioned in this section shall keep a record of all sales, exchanges, or gifts of such preparations and remedies in such manner as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall direct. Such record shall be preserved for a period of two years in such a way as to be readily accessible to inspection by any officer, agent or employee of the Treasury Department duly authorized for that purpose, and the State, Territorial, District, municipal, and insular officers named in section 5 of this Act, and every such person so possessing or disposing of such preparations and remedies shall register as required in section 1 of this Act and, if he is not paying a tax under this Act, he shall pay a special tax of $1 for each year, or fractional part thereof, in which he is engaged in such occupation, to the collector of internal revenue of the district in which he carries on such occupation as provided in this Act. The provisions of this Act as amended shall not apply to decocainized coca leaves or preparations made therefrom, or to other preparations of coca leaves which do not contain cocaine." [40 Stat. L. 1132.]

SEC. 1008. [Confiscation and forfeiture of seized opium, coca leaves, etc.—disposition of forfeited drugs.] That all opium, its salts, derivatives, and compounds, and coca leaves, salts, derivatives, and compounds thereof, which may now be under seizure or which may hereafter be seized by the United States Government from any person or persons charged with any violation of the Act of October 1, 1890, as amended by the Acts of March 3, 1897, February 9, 1909, and January 17, 1914, or the Act of December 17, 1914, shall upon conviction of the person or persons from whom seized be confiscated by and forfeited to the United States; and the Secretary is hereby authorized to deliver for medical or scientific purposes to any department, bureau, or other agency of the United States Government, upon proper application therefor under such regulation as may be prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, any of the drugs so seized, confiscated, and forfeited to the United States.

The provisions of this section shall also apply to any of the aforesaid drugs seized or coming into the possession of the United States in the enforcement of any of the above-mentioned Acts where the owner or owners thereof are unknown. None of the aforesaid drugs coming into possession of the United States under the operation of said Acts, or the provisions of this section, shall be destroyed without certification by a committee appointed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, that they are of no value for medical or scientific purposes. [40 Stat. L. 1132.]

For the different Opium Acts, now in force and mentioned in the text, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 173; 1916 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 71.

SEC. 1009. [War Revenue Act of 1914 — repeal.] That the Act approved October 22, 1914, entitled "An Act to increase the internal revenue, and for other purposes," and the joint resolution approved December 17, 1915, entitled "Joint resolution extending the provisions of the Act entitled 'An Act to increase the internal revenue, and for other purposes,' approved October twenty-second, nineteen hundred and fourteen, to December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and sixteen," are hereby repealed, except that the provisions of such Act shall remain in force for the assessment and collection of all special taxes imposed by sections 3 and 4 thereof, or by such sections as extended by such joint resolution, for any year or part thereof ending prior to January 1, 1917, and of all other taxes imposed by such Act, or by such Act as so extended, accrued prior to September 8, 1916, and for the imposition and collection of all penalties or forfeitures which have accrued or may accrue in relation to any of such taxes. [40 Stat. L. 1132.]

For Act of Oct. 22, 1914, mentioned in the text, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 284; 1916 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 80.

For Res. of Dec. 17, 1915, mentioned in the text, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 306; 1916 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 110.

TITLE XI. — STAMP TAXES.

SEC. 1100. [Instruments, matters, and things affected by title.] That on and after April 1, 1919, there shall be levied, collected, and paid, for and in respect of the several bonds, debentures, or certificates of stock and of indebtedness, and other documents, instruments, matters, and things mentioned and described in Schedule A of this title, or for or in respect of the vellum, parchment, or paper upon which such instruments, matters, or things, or any of them, are written or printed, by any person who makes, signs, issues, sells, removes, consigns, or ships the same, or for whose use or benefit the same are made, signed, issued, sold, removed, consigned, or shipped, the several taxes specified in such schedule. The taxes imposed by this section shall, in the case of any article upon which a corresponding stamp tax is now imposed by law, be in lieu of such tax. [40 Stat. L. 1133.]

SEC. 1101. [Exemptions.] That there shall not be taxed under this title any bond, note, or other instrument, issued by the United States, or by any foreign Government, or by any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or local subdivision thereof, or municipal or other corporation exercising the taxing power; or any bond of indemnity required to be filed by any person to secure payment of any pension, allowance, allotment, relief, or insurance by the United States; or stocks and bonds issued by cooperative building and loan associations which are organized and operated exclusively for the benefit of their members and make loans only to their shareholders, or by mutual ditch or irrigating companies. [40 Stat. L. 1133.]

SEC. 1102. [Offenses — failure to pay tax or cancel stamps.] That whoever —

(a) Makes, signs, issues, or accepts, or causes to be made, signed, issued, or accepted, any instrument, document, or paper of any kind or description whatsoever without the full amount of tax thereon being duly paid;

(b) Consigns or ships, or causes to be consigned or shipped, by parcel post any parcel, package, or article without the full amount of tax being duly paid;

(c) Manufactures or imports and sells, or offers for sale, or causes to be manufactured or imported and sold, or offered for sale, any playing cards, package, or other article without the full amount of tax being duly paid;

(d) Makes use of any adhesive stamp to denote any tax imposed by this title without canceling or obliterating such stamp as prescribed in section 1104;

Is guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not more than $100 for each offense. [40 Stat. L. 1133.]

SEC. 1103. [Offenses — fraud — tampering with stamped instrument — insufficient stamping — used stamps — reuse and possession — counterfeit stamps.] That whoever —

(a) Fraudulently cuts, tears, or removes from any vellum, parchment, paper, instrument, writing, package, or article, upon which any tax is imposed by this title, any adhesive stamp or the impression of any stamp, die, plate, or other article provided, made, or used in pursuance of this title;

(b) Fraudulently uses, joins, fixes, or places to, with, or upon any vellum, parchment, paper, instrument, writing, package, or article, upon which any tax is imposed by this title, (1) any adhesive stamp, or the impression of any stamp, die, plate, or other article, which has been cut, torn, or removed from any other vellum, parchment, paper, instrument, writing, package, or article, upon which any tax is imposed by this title; or (2) any adhesive stamp or the impression of any stamp, die, plate, or other article of insufficient value; or (3) any forged or counterfeit stamp, or the impression of any forged or counterfeited stamp, die, plate, or other article;

(c) Willfully removes, or alters the cancellation, or defacing marks of, or otherwise prepares, any adhesive stamp, with intent to use, or cause the same to be used, after it has been already used, or knowingly or willfully buys, sells, offers for sale, or gives away, any such washed or restored stamp to any person for use, or knowingly uses the same;

(d) Knowingly and without lawful excuse (the burden of proof of such excuse being on the accused) has in possession any washed, restored, or altered stamp, which has been removed from any vellum, parchment, paper, instrument, writing, package, or article;

Is guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000, or by imprisonment for not more than five years, or both, and any such reused, canceled, or counterfeit stamp and the vellum, parchment, document, paper, package, or article upon which it is placed or impressed shall be forfeited to the United States. [40 Stat. L. 1133.]

SEC. 1104. [Cancellation of stamp.] That whenever an adhesive stamp is used for denoting any tax imposed by this title, except as hereinafter provided, the person using or affixing the same shall write or stamp or cause to be written or stamped thereupon the initials of his or its name and the date upon which the same is attached or used, so that the same may not again be used: Provided, That the Commissioner may prescribe such other method for the cancellation of such stamps as he may deem expedient. [40 Stat. L. 1134.]

SEC. 1105. [Preparation and distribution of stamps — collection of stamp taxes omitted from instrument, etc.] (a) That the Commissioner shall cause to be prepared and distributed for the payment of the taxes prescribed in this title suitable stamps denoting the tax on the document, articles, or thing to which the same may be affixed, and shall prescribe such method for the affixing of said stamps in substitution for or in addition to the method provided in this title, as he may deem expedient.

(b) The Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, is authorized to procure any of the stamps provided for in this title by contract whenever such stamps can not be speedily prepared by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing; but this authority shall expire on January 1, 1920, except as to imprinted stamps furnished under contract, authorized by the Commissioner.

(c) All internal-revenue laws relating to the assessment and collection of taxes are hereby extended to and made a part of this title, so far as applicable, for the purpose of collecting stamp taxes omitted through mistake or fraud from any instrument, document, paper, writing, parcel, package, or article named herein. [40 Stat. L. 1134.]

SEC. 1106. [Distribution of stamps to postmasters — bond — sale of stamps — receipts.] That the Commissioner shall furnish to the Postmaster General without prepayment a suitable quantity of adhesive stamps to be distributed to and kept on sale by the various postmasters in the United States. The Postmaster General may require each such postmaster to give additional or increased bond as postmaster for the value of the stamps so furnished, and each such postmaster shall deposit the receipts from the sale of such stamps to the credit of and render accounts to the Postmaster General at such times and in such form as he may by regulations prescribe. The Postmaster General shall at least once monthly transfer all collections from this source to the Treasury as internal-revenue collections. [40 Stat. L. 1134.]

SEC. 1107. [Distribution of stamps to assistant treasurer or designated depositary — bond — regulations.] That the collectors of the several districts shall furnish without prepayment to any assistant treasurer or designated depositary of the United States located in their respective collection districts a suitable quantity of adhesive stamps for sale. In such cases the collector may require a bond, with sufficient sureties, to an amount equal to the value of the adhesive stamps so furnished, conditioned for the faithful return, whenever so required, of all quantities or amounts undisposed of, and for the payment monthly of all quantities or amounts sold or not remaining on hand. The Secretary may from time to time make such regulations as he may find necessary to insure the safe-keeping or prevent the illegal use of all such adhesive stamps. [40 Stat. L. 1135.]

SCHEDULE A.—STAMP TAXES.

1. Bonds of indebtedness: On all bonds, debentures, or certificates of indebtedness issued by any person, and all instruments, however termed, issued by any corporation with interest coupons or in registered form, known generally as corporate securities, on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 5 cents: Provided, That every renewal of the foregoing shall be taxed as a new issue: Provided further, That when a bond conditioned for the repayment or payment of money is given in a penal sum greater than the debt secured, the tax shall be based upon the amount secured.

2. Bonds, indemnity and surety: On all bonds executed for indemnifying any person who shall have become bound or engaged as surety, and on all bonds executed for the due execution or performance of any contract, obligation, or requirement, or the duties of any office or position, and to account for money received by virtue thereof, and on all policies of guaranty and fidelity insurance, including policies guaranteeing titles to real estate and mortgage guarantee policies, and on all other bonds of any description, made, issued, or executed, not otherwise provided for in this schedule, except such as may be required in legal proceedings, 50 cents: Provided, That where a premium is charged for the issuance, execution, renewal or continuance of such bond the tax shall be 1 cent on each dollar or fractional part thereof of the premium charged: Provided further, That policies of reinsurance shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this subdivision.

3. Capital stock, issued: On each original issue, whether on organization or reorganization, of certificates of stock, or of profits, or of interest in property or accumulations, by any corporation, on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 5 cents: Provided, That where a certificate is issued without face value, the tax shall be 5 cents per share, unless the actual value is in excess of $100 per share, in which case the tax shall be 5 cents on each $100 of actual value or fraction thereof.

The stamps representing the tax imposed by this subdivision shall be attached to the stock books and not to the certificates issued.

4. Capital stock, sales or transfers: On all sales, or agreements to sell, or memoranda of sales or deliveries of, or transfers of legal title to shares or certificates of stock or of profits or of interest in property or accumulations in any corporation, or to rights to subscribe for or to receive such shares or certificates, whether made upon or shown by the books of the corporation, or by any assignment in blank, or by any delivery, or by any paper or agreement or memorandum or other evidence of transfer or sale, whether entitling the holder in any manner to the benefit of such stock, interest, or rights, or not, on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 2 cents, and where such shares are without par or face value, the tax shall be 2 cents on the transfer or sale or agreement to sell on each share, unless the actual value thereof is in excess of $100 per share, in which case the tax shall be 2 cents on each $100 of actual value or fraction thereof: Provided, That it is not intended by this title to impose a tax upon an agreement evidencing a deposit of certificates as collateral security for money loaned thereon, which certificates are not actually sold, nor upon the delivery or transfer for such purpose of certificates so deposited: Provided further, That the tax shall not be imposed upon deliveries or transfers to a broker for sale, nor upon deliveries or transfers by a broker to a customer for whom and upon whose order he has purchased same, but such deliveries or transfers shall be accompanied by a certificate setting forth the facts: Provided further, That in case of sale where the evidence of transfer is shown only by the books of the corporation the stamp shall be placed upon such books; and where the change of ownership is by transfer of the certificate the stamp shall be placed upon the certificate; and in cases of an agreement to sell or where the transfer is by delivery of the certificate assigned in blank there shall be made and delivered by the seller to the buyer a bill or memorandum of such sale, to which the stamp shall be affixed; and every bill or memorandum of sale or agreement to sell before mentioned shall show the date thereof, the name of the seller, the amount of the sale, and the matter or thing to which it refers. Any person liable to pay the tax as herein provided, or anyone who acts in the matter as agent or broker for such person, who makes any such sale, or who in pursuance of any such sale delivers any certificate or evidence of the sale of any stock, interest or right, or bill or memorandum thereof, as herein required, without having the proper stamps affixed thereto with intent to evade the foregoing provisions, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not exceeding $1,000, or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both.

5. Produce, sales of, on exchange: Upon each sale, agreement of sale, or agreement to sell (not including so-called transferred or scratch sales), any products or merchandise at, or under the rules or usages of, any exchange, or board of trade, or other similar place, for future delivery, for each $100 in value of the merchandise covered by said sale or agreement of sale or agreement to sell, 2 cents, and for each additional $100 or fractional part thereof in excess of $100, 2 cents: Provided, That on every sale or agreement of sale or agreement to sell as aforesaid there shall be made and delivered by the seller to the buyer a bill, memorandum, agreement, or other evidence of such sale, agreement of sale, or agreement to sell, to which there shall be affixed a lawful stamp or stamps in value equal to the amount of the tax on such sale: Provided further, That sellers of commodities described herein, having paid the tax provided by this subdivision, may transfer such contracts to a clearing-house corporation or association, and such transfer shall not be deemed to be a sale, or agreement of sale, or an agreement to sell within the provisions of this Act, provided that such transfer shall not vest any beneficial interest in such clearing-house association but shall be made for the sole purpose of enabling such clearing-house association to adjust and balance the accounts of the members of such clearing-house association on their several contracts. Every such bill, memorandum, or other evidence of sale or agreement to sell shall show the date thereof, the name of the seller, the amount of the sale, and the matter or thing to which it refers; and any person liable to pay the tax as herein provided, or anyone who acts in the matter as agent or broker for such person, who makes any such sale or agreement of sale, or agreement to sell, or who, in pursuance of any such sale, agreement of sale, or agreement to sell, delivers any such products or merchandise without a bill, memorandum, or other evidence thereof as herein required, or who delivers such bill, memorandum, or other evidence of sale, or agreement to sell, without having the proper stamps affixed thereto, with intent to evade the foregoing provisions, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not exceeding $1,000 or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both.

No bill, memorandum, agreement, or other evidence of such sale, or agreement of sale, or agreement to sell, in case of cash sales of products or merchandise for immediate or prompt delivery which in good faith are actually intended to be delivered shall be subject to this tax.

6. [Drafts, checks and notes.] Drafts or checks (payable otherwise than at sight or on demand) upon their acceptance or delivery within the United States whichever is prior, promissory notes, except bank notes issued for circulation, and for each renewal of the same, for a sum not exceeding $100, 2 cents; and for each additional $100 or fractional part thereof, 2 cents.

This subdivision shall not apply to a promissory note secured by the pledge of bonds or obligations of the United States issued after April 24, 1917, or secured by the pledge of a promissory note which itself is secured by the pledge of such bonds or obligations: Provided, That in either case the par value of such bonds or obligations shall be not less than the amount of such note.

7. Conveyances: Deed, instrument, or writing, whereby any lands, tenements, or other realty sold shall be granted, assigned, transferred, or otherwise conveyed to, or vested in, the purchaser or purchasers, or any other person or persons, by his, her, or their direction, when the consideration or value of the interest or property conveyed, exclusive of the value of any lien or encumbrance remaining thereon at the time of sale, exceeds $100 and does not exceed $500, 50 cents; and for each additional $500 or fractional part thereof, 50 cents. This subdivision shall not apply to any instrument or writing given to secure a debt.

8. Entry of any goods, wares, or merchandise at any customhouse, either for consumption or warehousing, not exceeding $100 in value, 25 cents; exceeding $100 and not exceeding $500 in value, 50 cents; exceeding $500 in value, $1.

9. Entry for the withdrawal of any goods or merchandise from customs bonded warehouse, 50 cents.

10. Passage ticket, one way or round trip, for each passenger, sold or issued in the United States for passage by any vessel to a port or place not in the United States, Canada, or Mexico, if costing not exceeding $30, $1; costing more than $30 and not exceeding $60, $3; costing more than $60, $5. This subdivision shall not apply to passage tickets costing $10 or less.

11. Proxy for voting at any election for officers, or meeting for the transaction of business, of any corporation, except religious, educational, charitable, fraternal, or literary societies, or public cemeteries, 10 cents.

12. Power of attorney granting authority to do or perform some act for or in behalf of the grantor, which authority is not otherwise vested in the grantee, 25 cents. This subdivision shall not apply to any papers necessary to be used for the collection of claims from the United States or from any State for pensions, back pay, bounty, or for property lost in the military or naval service, or to powers of attorney required in bankruptcy cases.

13. Playing cards: Upon every pack of playing cards containing not more than fifty-four cards, manufactured or imported, and sold, or removed for consumption or sale, a tax of 8 cents per pack.

14. Parcel-post packages: Upon every parcel or package transported from one point in the United States to another by parcel post on which the postage amounts to 25 cents or more, a tax of 1 cent for each 25 cents or fractional part thereof charged for such transportation, to be paid by the consignor.

No such parcel or package shall be transported until a stamp or stamps representing the tax due shall have been affixed thereto.

15. [Insurance policy.] On each policy of insurance, or certificate, binder, covering note, memorandum, cablegram, letter, or other instrument by whatever name called whereby insurance is made or renewed upon property within the United States (including rents and profits) against peril by sea or on inland waters or in transit on land (including transshipments and storage at termini or way points) or by fire, lightning, tornado, wind-storm, bombardment, invasion, insurrection or riot, issued to or for or in the name of a domestic corporation or partnership or an individual resident of the United States by any foreign corporation or partnership or any individual not a resident of the United States, when such policy or other instrument is not signed or countersigned by an officer or agent of the insurer in a State, Territory, or district of the United States within which such insurer is authorized to do business, a tax of 3 cents on each dollar, or fractional part thereof of the premium charged: Provided, That policies of re-insurance shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this subdivision.

Any person to or for whom or in whose name any such policy or other instrument is issued, or any solicitor or broker acting for or on behalf of such person in the procurement of any such policy or other instrument, shall affix the proper stamps to such policy or other instrument, and for failure to affix such stamps with intent to evade the tax shall, in addition to other penalties provided therefor, pay a fine of double the amount of the tax. [40 Stat. L. 1135.]

TITLE XII.—TAX ON EMPLOYMENT OF CHILD LABOR.

SEC. 1200. [Kind of employment affected by title — hours of employment — amount of tax — net profits.] That every person (other than a bona fide boys' or girls' canning club recognized by the Agricultural Department of a State and of the United States) operating (a) any mine or quarry situated in the United States in which children under the age of sixteen years have been employed or permitted to work during any portion of the taxable year; or (b) any mill, cannery, workshop, factory, or manufacturing establishment situated in the United States in which children under the age of fourteen years have been employed or permitted to work, or children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen have been employed or permitted to work more than eight hours in any day or more than six days in any week, or after the hour of seven o'clock post meridian, or before the hour of six o'clock ante meridian, during any portion of the taxable year, shall pay for each taxable year, in addition to all other taxes imposed by law, an excise tax equivalent to 10 per centum of the entire net profits received or accrued for such year from the sale or disposition of the product of such mine, quarry, mill, cannery, workshop, factory, or manufacturing establishment. [40 Stat. L. 1138.]

SEC. 1201. [Net profits how computed for purpose of tax.] That in computing net profits under the provisions of this title, for the purpose of the tax there shall be allowed as deductions from the gross amount received or accrued for the taxable year from the sale or disposition of such products manufactured within the United States the following items:

- (a) The cost of raw materials entering into the production;
- (b) Running expenses, including rentals, cost of repairs, and maintenance, heat, power, insurance, management, and a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensations for personal services actually rendered, and for depreciation;
- (c) Interest paid within the taxable year on debts or loans contracted to meet the needs of the business, and the proceeds of which have been actually used to meet such needs;
- (d) Taxes of all kinds paid during the taxable year with respect to the business or property relating to the production; and
- (e) Losses actually sustained within the taxable year in connection with the business of producing such products, including losses from fire, flood, storm, or other casualties, and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise. [40 Stat. L. 1138.]

SEC. 1202. [Products sold at less than fair market price — collusion with purchaser — effect.] That if any such person during any taxable year or part thereof, whether under any agreement, arrangement, or understanding or otherwise, sells or disposes of any product of such mine, quarry, mill, cannery, workshop, factory, or manufacturing establishment at less than the fair market price obtainable therefor either (a) in such manner as directly or indirectly to benefit such person or any person directly or indirectly interested in the business of such person; or (b) with intent to cause such benefit; the gross amount received or accrued for such year or part thereof from the sale or disposition of such product shall be taken to be the amount which would have been received or accrued from the sale or disposition of such product if sold at the fair market price. [40 Stat. L. 1139.]

SEC. 1203. [Good faith as relieving employer from tax — employment certificate — mistake as to age.] (a) That no person subject to the provisions of this title shall be liable for the tax herein imposed if the only employment or permission to work which but for this section would subject him to the tax, has been of a child as to whom such person has in good faith procured at the time of employing such child or permitting him to work, and has since in good faith relied upon and kept on file a certificate, issued in such form, under such conditions and by such persons as may be prescribed by a board consisting of the Secretary, the Commissioner, and the Secretary of Labor, showing the child to be of such age as not to subject such person to the tax imposed by this title. Any person who knowingly makes a false statement or presents false evidence in or in relation to any such certificate or application therefor shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, or by imprisonment for not more than three months, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

In any State designated by such board an employment certificate or other similar paper as to the age of the child, issued under the laws of that State, and not inconsistent with the provisions of this title, shall have the same force and effect as a certificate herein provided for.

(b) The tax imposed by this title shall not be imposed in the case of any person who proves to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the only employment or permission to work which but for this section would subject him to the tax, has been of a child employed or permitted to work under a mistake of fact as to the age of such child, and without intention to evade the tax. [40 Stat. L. 1139.]

SEC. 1204. [Returns.] That on or before the first day of the third month following the close of each taxable year, a true and accurate return under oath shall be made by each person subject to the provisions of this title to the collector for the district in which such person has his principal office or place of business, in such form as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, shall prescribe, setting forth specifically the gross amount of income received or accrued during such year from the sale or disposition of the product of any mine, quarry, mill, cannery, workshop, factory, or manufacturing establishment, in which children have been employed subjecting him to the tax imposed by this title, and from the total thereof deducting the aggregate items of allowance authorized by this title, and such other particulars as to the gross receipts and items of allowance as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary may require. [40 Stat. L. 1139.]

SEC. 1205. [Assessment and collection of tax.] That all such returns shall be transmitted forthwith by the collector to the Commissioner, who shall, as soon as practicable, assess the tax found due and notify the person making such return of the amount of tax for which such person is liable, and such person shall pay the tax to the collector on or before thirty days from the date of such notice. [40 Stat. L. 1140.]

SEC. 1206. [Inspection of mines, factories, etc.—penalty for obstructing inspection.] That for the purposes of this Act the Commissioner, or any other person duly authorized by him, shall have authority to enter and inspect at any time any mine, quarry, mill, cannery, workshop, factory, or manufacturing establishment. The Secretary of Labor, or any person duly authorized by him, shall, for the purpose of complying with a request of the Commissioner to make such an inspection, have like authority, and shall make report to the Commissioner of inspections made under such authority in such form as may be prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Any person who refuses or obstructs entry or inspection authorized by this section shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000, or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or both such fine and imprisonment. [40 Stat. L. 1140.]

SEC. 1207. ["Taxable year"—meaning.] That as used in this title the term "taxable year" shall have the same meaning as provided for the purposes of income tax in section 200. The first taxable year for the purposes of this title shall be the period between sixty days after the passage of this Act and December 31, 1919, both inclusive, or such portion of such period as is included within the fiscal year (as defined in section 200) of the taxpayer. [40 Stat. L. 1140.]

TITLE XIII.—GENERAL ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS.

SEC. 1300. [Commissioner of Internal Revenue—salary.] That hereafter the salary of the Commissioner shall be $10,000 a year. The difference between the amount appropriated under existing law and the salary herein established shall, for the period between the passage of this Act and July 1, 1919, be paid out of the appropriations for collecting internal revenue. [40 Stat. L. 1140.]

SEC. 1301. (a) [Deputy commissioners—assistant to commissioner—salaries—duties of assistant.] That hereafter there may be employed in the Bureau of Internal Revenue, in lieu of the deputy commissioners whose salaries are now fixed by law, five deputy commissioners and an assistant to the Commissioner, who shall each receive a salary of $5,000 a year, payable monthly. The assistant to the Commissioner may be authorized by the Commissioner to perform any duties which the deputy commissioners may perform under existing law. [40 Stat. L. 1140.]

[SEC. 1301 continued.] (b) [Salaries of collectors—readjustment.] The salaries of collectors may be readjusted and increased under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Commissioner, subject to the approval of the Secretary, but no collector shall receive a salary in excess of $6,000 a year. [40 Stat. L. 1140.]

[SEC. 1301 continued.] (c) [Expenses of assessing and collecting taxes—appropriation.] There is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, the sum of $7,500,000 for the expenses of assessing and collecting the internal-revenue taxes as provided in this Act, including the employment of necessary officers, attorneys, experts, agents, inspectors, deputy collectors, clerks, janitors, and messengers, in the District of Columbia and the several collection districts, to be appointed as provided by law, telegraph and telephone service, rental and repair of quarters, postage, and the purchase of such supplies, equipment, furniture, mechanical devices, printing, stationery, law books and books of reference, not to exceed $500 for street car fares in the District of Columbia, and such other articles as may be necessary for use in the District of Columbia and the several collection districts: Provided, That not more than $2,750,000 of the total amount appropriated by this section may be expended in the Bureau of Internal Revenue, in the District of Columbia. [40 Stat. L. 1140.]

[SEC. 1301 continued.] (d) [" Advisory Tax Board "— creation — membership — duties — powers — office — expenses and salaries.] (1) There is hereby created a board to be known as the "Advisory Tax Board," hereinafter called the Board, and to be composed of not to exceed six members to be appointed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary. The Board shall cease to exist at the expiration of two years after the passage of this Act, or at such earlier time as the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary may designate.

Vacancies in the membership of the Board shall be filled in the same manner as an original appointment. Any member shall be subject to removal by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary. The Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary shall designate the chairman of the Board. Each member shall receive an annual salary of $9,000, payable monthly, together with actual necessary expenses when absent from the District of Columbia on official business.

(2) The Commissioner may, and on the request of any taxpayer directly interested shall, submit to the Board any question relating to the interpretation or administration of the income, war-profits or excess-profits tax laws, and the Board shall report its findings and recommendations to the Commissioner.

(3) The Board shall have its office in the Bureau of Internal Revenue in the District of Columbia. The expenses and salaries of members of the Board shall be audited, allowed, and paid out of appropriations for collecting internal revenue, in the same manner as expenses and salaries of employees of the Bureau of Internal Revenue are audited, allowed, and paid.

(4) The Board shall have the power to summon witnesses, take testimony, administer oaths, and to require any person to produce books, papers, documents, or other data relating to any matter under investigation by the Board. Any member of the Board may sign subpoenas and members and employees of the Bureau of Internal Revenue designated to assist the Board, when authorized by the Board, may administer oaths, examine witnesses, take testimony and receive evidence. [40 Stat. L. 1141.]

SEC. 1302. [Internal revenue agents and inspectors — leave of absence.] That all internal-revenue agents and inspectors shall be granted leave of absence with pay, which shall not be cumulative, not to exceed thirty days in any calendar year, under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe. [40 Stat. L. 1141.]

SEC. 1303. [Legislative Drafting Service.]

This section is not one relating to internal revenue, but provides for a legislative drafting service, and will be found under the title CONGRESS.

SEC. 1304. [Imports from and exports to Virgin Islands.] That there shall be levied, collected, and paid in the United States, upon articles coming into the United States from the Virgin Islands, a tax equal to the internal-revenue tax imposed in the United States upon like articles of domestic manufacture; such articles shipped from such islands to the United States shall be exempt from the payment of any tax imposed by the internal-revenue laws of such islands: Provided, That there shall be levied, collected, and paid in such islands, upon articles imported from the United States, a tax equal to the internal-revenue tax imposed in such islands upon like articles there manufactured; and such articles going into such islands from the United States shall be exempt from payment of any tax imposed by the internal-revenue laws of the United States. [40 Stat. L. 1142.]

SEC. 1305. [Certain laws made part of Act — records and returns — authority of commissioner to require — inquiry as to correctness of return.] That all administrative, special, or stamp provisions of law, including the law relating to the assessment of taxes, so far as applicable, are hereby extended to and made a part of this Act, and every person liable to any tax imposed by this Act, or for the collection thereof, shall keep such records and render, under oath, such statements and returns, and shall comply with such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may from time to time prescribe.

Whenever in the judgment of the Commissioner necessary he may require any person, by notice served upon him, to make a return or such statements as he deems sufficient to show whether or not such person is liable to tax.

The Commissioner, for the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of any return or for the purpose of making a return where none has been made, is hereby authorized, by any revenue agent or inspector designated by him for that purpose, to examine any books, papers, records or memoranda bearing upon the matters required to be included in the return, and may require the attendance of the person rendering the return or of any officer or employee of such person, or the attendance of any other person having knowledge in the premises, and may take his testimony with reference to the matter required by law to be included in such return, with power to administer oaths to such person or persons. [40 Stat. L. 1142.]

SEC. 1306. [Articles on which tax under prior law has been paid — additional tax — return — payment.] That where floor taxes are imposed by this Act in respect to articles or commodities, in respect to which the tax imposed by existing law has been paid, the person required by this Act to pay the tax shall, within thirty days after its passage, make return under oath in such form and under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, shall prescribe. Payment of the tax shown to be due may be extended to a date not exceeding seven months from the passage of this Act, upon the filing of a bond for payment in such form and amount and with such sureties as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe. [40 Stat. L. 1142.]

SEC. 1307. [Collection of taxes when method not specifically provided for — payment by stamp — administrative and penalty provisions applicable.] That in all cases where the method of collecting the tax imposed by this Act is not specifically provided in this Act, the tax shall be collected in such manner as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe. All administrative and penalty provisions of Title XI of this Act, in so far as applicable, shall apply to the collection of any tax which the Commissioner determines or prescribes shall be paid by stamp. [40 Stat. L. 1143.]

SEC. 1308. [Offenses — failure to pay or collect or account for and pay over any tax — failure to make return or supply information.] (a) That any person required under Titles V, VI, VII, VIII, IX, X, or XII, to pay, or to collect, account for and pay over any tax, or required by law or regulations made under authority thereof to make a return or supply any information for the purposes of the computation, assessment or collection of any such tax, who fails to pay, collect, or truly account for and pay over any such tax, make any such return or supply any such information at the time or times required by law or regulation shall in addition to other penalties provided by law be subject to a penalty of not more than $1,000.

(b) Any person who willfully refuses to pay, collect, or truly account for and pay over any such tax, make such return or supply such information at the time or times required by law or regulation, or who willfully attempts in any manner to evade such tax shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and in addition to other penalties provided by law shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both, together with the costs of prosecution.

(c) Any person who willfully refuses to pay, collect, or truly account for and pay over any such tax shall in addition to other penalties provided by law be liable to a penalty of the amount of the tax evaded, or not paid, collected, or accounted for and paid over, to be assessed and collected in the same manner as taxes are assessed and collected: Provided, however, That no penalty shall be assessed under this subdivision for any offense for which a penalty may be assessed under authority of section 3176 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, or of section 605 or 620 of this Act, or for any offense for which a penalty has been recovered under section 3256 of the Revised Statutes.

(d) The term " person " as used in this section includes an officer or employee of a corporation or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs. [40 Stat. L. 1143.]

For R. S. sec. 3176, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 280.

SEC. 1309. [Rules and regulations — authority of Commissioner to make — returns — necessity of oath.] That the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, is hereby authorized to make all needful rules and regulations for the enforcement of the provisions of this Act.

The Commissioner with such approval may by regulation provide that any return required by Titles V, VI, VII, VIII, IX, or X to be under oath may, if the amount of the tax covered thereby is not in excess of $10, be signed or acknowledged before two witnesses instead of under oath. [40 Stat. L. 1143.]

SEC. 1310. (a) [Overpayment or overcollection of tax — credit — refund.] That in the case of any overpayment or overcollection of any tax imposed by section 628 or 630 or by Title V, Title VIII, or Title IX, the person making such overpayment or overcollection may take credit therefor against taxes due upon any monthly return, and shall make refund of any excessive amount collected by him upon proper application by the person entitled thereto. [40 Stat. L. 1143.]

[SEC. 1310 continued.] (b) [Purchaser's tax to vendor — sale on credit — payment of tax.] Wherever in this Act a tax is required to be paid by the purchaser to the vendor at the time of a sale, and such sale is made on credit, then, under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, the tax may, at the option of the vendor, be returned and paid by him to the United States as if paid to him by the purchaser at the time of the sale, and in such case the vendor shall have a right of action in any court of competent jurisdiction against the purchaser for the amount of the tax so returned and paid to the United States. [40 Stat. L. 1143.]

[Sec. 1310 continued.] (c) [Articles sold or leased for export—exemption from tax.] Under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary may prescribe, the taxes imposed under the provisions of Titles VI, VII or IX shall not apply in respect to articles sold or leased for export and in due course so exported. Under such rules and regulations the amount of any internal-revenue tax erroneously or illegally collected in respect to exported articles may be refunded to the exporter of the article, instead of to the manufacturer, if the manufacturer waives any claim for the amount so to be refunded. [40 Stat. L. 1144.]

SEC. 1311. [Stamps on hand under prior act—use under this act.] That where the rate of tax imposed by this Act, payable by stamps, is an increase over previously existing rates, stamps on hand in the collectors' offices and in the Bureau of Internal Revenue may continue to be used until the supply on hand is exhausted, but shall be sold and accounted for at the rates provided by this Act, and assessment shall be made against manufacturers and other taxpayers having such stamps on hand on the day this Act takes effect for the difference between the amount paid for such stamps and the tax due at the rates provided by this Act. [40 Stat. L. 1144.]

SEC. 1312. [Taxes payable by vendee or lessee—executory contracts.] (1) That (a) if any person has prior to May 9, 1917, made a bona fide contract with a dealer for the sale or lease, after the tax takes effect, of any article in respect to which a tax is imposed under Title VI, VII, or IX, or under subdivision 13 of Schedule A of Title XI, or under this subdivision, and (b) if such contract does not permit the adding of the whole of such tax to the amount to be paid under such contract, then the vendee or lessee shall, in lieu of the vendor or lessor, pay so much of such tax as is not so permitted to be added to the contract price. If a contract of the character above described was made with any person other than a dealer, the tax collected under this Act shall be the tax in force on May 9, 1917.

(2) If (a) any person has prior to September 3, 1918, made a bona fide contract with a dealer for the sale or lease, after the tax takes effect, of any article in respect to which a tax is imposed under Title VI, VII, or IX, or under subdivision 13 of Schedule A of Title XI, or under this subdivision, and in respect to which no corresponding tax was imposed by the Revenue Act of 1917, and (b) such contract does not permit the adding, to the amount to be paid under such contract, of the whole of the tax imposed by this Act, then the vendee or lessee shall, in lieu of the vendor or lessor, pay so much of the tax imposed by this Act as is not so permitted to be added to the contract price. If a contract of the character above described was made with any person other than a dealer, no tax shall be collected under this Act.

(3) If (a) any person has prior to September 3, 1918, made a bona fide contract with a dealer for the sale or lease, after the tax takes effect, of any article in respect to which a tax is imposed under Title VI, VII, or IX, or under subdivision 13 of Schedule A of Title XI, or under this subdivision, and in respect to which a corresponding tax was imposed by the Revenue Act of 1917, and (b) such contract does not permit the adding, to the amount to be paid under such contract, of the whole of the difference between such tax and the corresponding tax imposed by the Revenue Act of 1917, then the vendee or lessee shall, in lieu of the vendor or lessor, pay so much of such difference as is not so permitted to be added to the contract price. If a contract of the character above described was made with any person other than a dealer, the tax collected under this Act shall be the tax in force on September 3, 1918.

(4) The taxes payable by the vendee or lessee under this section shall be paid to the vendor or lessor at the time the sale or lease is consummated, and collected, returned, and paid to the United States by such vendor or lessor in the same manner as provided in section 502.

(5) The term "dealer" as used in this section includes a vendee who purchases any article with intent to use it in the manufacture or production of another article intended for sale.

(6) This section shall not apply to any tax imposed by section 906. [40 Stat. L. 1144.]

For the Revenue Act of 1917, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 720.

SEC. 1313. [Payment of tax — disregarding fractional part of cent.] That in the payment of any tax under this Act not payable by stamp a fractional part of a cent shall be disregarded unless it amounts to one-half cent or more, in which case it shall be increased to 1 cent. [40 Stat. L. 1145.]

SEC. 1314. [Payment of tax — certificates of indebtedness — uncertified checks.] That collectors may receive, at par with an adjustment for accrued interest, certificates of indebtedness issued by the United States and uncertified checks in payment of income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes and any other taxes payable other than by stamp, during such time and under such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, shall prescribe; but if a check so received is not paid by the bank on which it is drawn the person by whom such check has been tendered shall remain liable for the payment of the tax and for all legal penalties and additions the same as if such check had not been tendered. [40 Stat. L. 1145.]

SEC. 1315. [Restamping tax-paid goods — original stamps destroyed — R. S. sec. 3315 amended.] That section 3315 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 3315. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue may, under regulations prescribed by him with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, issue stamps for restamping packages of distilled spirits, tobacco, cigars, snuff, cigarettes, fermented liquors, and wines which have been duly stamped but from which the stamps have been lost or destroyed by unavoidable accident." [40 Stat. L. 1145.]

For R. S. sec. 3315, mentioned in the text, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 70; 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 792.

SEC. 1316. (a) [Refundment of taxes, penalties, etc. — R. S. sec. 3220 amended.] That section 3220 of the Revised Statutes is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 3220. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, subject to regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, is authorized to remit, refund, and pay back all taxes erroneously or illegally assessed or collected, all penalties collected without authority, and all taxes that appear to be unjustly assessed or excessive in amount, or in any manner wrongfully collected; also to repay to any collector or deputy collector the full amount of such sums of money as may be recovered against him in any court, for any internal revenue taxes collected by him, with the cost and expenses of suit; also all damages and costs recovered against any assessor, assistant assessor, collector, deputy collector, agent, or inspector, in any suit brought against him by reason of anything done in the due performance of his official duty, and shall make report to Congress at the beginning of each regular session of Congress of all transactions under this section." [40 Stat. L. 1145.]

For R. S. sec. 3220, here amended, see 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1028; 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 597.

[SEC. 1316 continued.] (b) [Suits to recover taxes collected under second assessment — burden of proof as to fraud — R. S. sec. 3225 amended.] Section 3225 of the Revised Statutes of the United States is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 3225. When a second assessment is made in case of any list, statement, or return, which in the opinion of the collector or deputy collector was false or fraudulent, or contained any understatement or undervaluation, such assessment shall not be remitted, nor shall taxes collected under such assessment be refunded, or paid back, or recovered by any suit, unless it is proved that such list, statement, or return was not willfully false or fraudulent and did not contain any willful understatement or undervaluation." [40 Stat. L. 1145.]

For R. S. sec. 3225, before the amendment in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 279.

[SEC. 1316 continued.] (c) [Permanent indefinite appropriations — refunding taxes illegally collected — R. S. sec. 3689 repealed in part.] That the paragraph of section 3689 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, reading as follows: "Refunding taxes illegally collected (internal revenue): To refund and pay back duties erroneously or illegally assessed or collected under the internal-revenue laws," is repealed from and after June 30, 1920; and the Secretary of the Treasury shall submit for the fiscal year 1921, and annually thereafter, an estimate of appropriations to refund and pay back duties or taxes erroneously or illegally assessed or collected under the internal-revenue laws, and to pay judgments, including interest and costs, rendered for taxes or penalties erroneously or illegally assessed or collected under the internal-revenue laws. [40 Stat. L. 1145.]

For R. S. sec. 3689, partly repealed by this paragraph, see 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 141; 2 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 904.

SEC. 1317. [R. S. secs. 3164, 3165, 3167, 3172, 3173 and 3176 amended.] That sections 3164, 3165, 3167, 3172, 3173, and 3176 of the Revised Statutes as amended are hereby amended to read as follows:

[Duty of collectors to report violations of law to district attorney.]

"Sec. 3164. It shall be the duty of every collector of internal revenue having knowledge of any willful violation of any law of the United States relating to the revenue, within thirty days after coming into possession of such knowledge, to file with the district attorney of the district in which any fine, penalty, or forfeiture may be incurred, a statement of all the facts and circumstances of the case within his knowledge, together with the names of the witnesses, setting forth the provisions of law believed to be so violated on which reliance may be had for condemnation or conviction. [40 Stat. L. 1146.]

For R. S. sec. 3164, as it read before this amendment, see 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 573; 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 989.

[Revenue officers who may administer oaths and take evidence.]

“Sec. 3165. Every collector, deputy collector, internal-revenue agent, and internal-revenue officer assigned to duty under an internal-revenue agent, is authorized to administer oaths and to take evidence touching any part of the administration of the internal-revenue laws with which he is charged, or where such oaths and evidence are authorized by law or regulation authorized by law to be taken. [40 Stat. L. 1146.]

For R. S. sec. 3165, as it read before this amendment, see 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 573; 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 989.

[Disclosure by revenue officers of operations, etc., prohibited — penalty.]

“Sec. 3167. It shall be unlawful for any collector, deputy collector, agent, clerk, or other officer or employee of the United States to divulge or to make known in any manner whatever not provided by law to any person the operations, style of work, or apparatus of any manufacturer or producer visited by him in the discharge of his official duties, or the amount or source of income, profits, losses, expenditures, or any particular thereof, set forth or disclosed in any income return, or to permit any income return or copy thereof or any book containing any abstract or particulars thereof to be seen or examined by any person except as provided by law; and it shall be unlawful for any person to print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by law any income return, or any part thereof or source of income, profits, losses, or expenditures appearing in any income return; and any offense against the foregoing provision shall be a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, at the discretion of the court; and if the offender be an officer or employee of the United States he shall be dismissed from office or discharged from employment. [40 Stat. L. 1146.]

For R. S. sec. 3167, as it read before this amendment, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 278.

[Canvass of districts for persons liable to, and objects subject to, taxation.]

“Sec. 3172. Every collector shall, from time to time, cause his deputies to proceed through every part of his district and inquire after and concerning all persons therein who are liable to pay any internal-revenue tax, and all persons owning or having the care and management of any objects liable to pay any tax, and to make a list of such persons and enumerate said objects. [40 Stat. L. 1146.]

For R. S. sec. 3172, as it read before this amendment, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 280.

[Annual returns of persons liable to tax.] “Sec. 3173. It shall be the duty of any person, partnership, firm, association, or corporation, made liable to any duty, special tax, or other tax imposed by law, when not otherwise provided for, (1) in case of a special tax, on or before the thirty-first day of July in each year, and (2) in other cases before the day on which the taxes accrue, to make a list or return, verified by oath, to the collector or a deputy collector of the district where located, of the articles or objects, including the quantity of goods, wares, and merchandise, made or sold and charged with a tax, the several rates and aggregate amount, according to the forms and regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, for which such person, partnership, firm, association, or corporation is liable: Provided, That if any person liable to pay any duty or tax, or owning, possessing, or having the care or management of property, goods, wares, and merchandise, article or objects liable to pay any duty, tax, or license, shall fail to make and exhibit a list or return required by law, but shall consent to disclose the particulars of any and all the property, goods, wares, and merchandise, articles, and objects liable to pay any duty or tax, or any business or occupation liable to pay any tax as aforesaid, then, and in that case, it shall be the duty of the collector or deputy collector to make such list or return, which, being distinctly read, consented to, and signed and verified by oath by the person so owning, possessing, or having the care and management as aforesaid, may be received as the list of such person: Provided further, That in case no annual list or return has been rendered by such person to the collector or deputy collector as required by law, and the person shall be absent from his or her residence or place of business at the time the collector or a deputy collector shall call for the annual list or return, it shall be the duty of such collector or deputy collector to leave at such place of residence or business, with some one of suitable age and discretion, if such be present, otherwise to deposit in the nearest post office, a note or memorandum addressed to such person, requiring him or her to render to such collector or deputy collector the list or return required by law within ten days from the date of such note or memorandum, verified by oath. And if any person, on being notified or required as aforesaid, shall refuse or neglect to render such list or return within the time required as aforesaid, or whenever any person who is required to deliver a monthly or other return of objects subject to tax fails to do so at the time required, or delivers any return which, in the opinion of the collector, is erroneous, false, or fraudulent, or contains any undervaluation or understatement, or refuses to allow any regularly authorized Government officer to examine the books of such person, firm, or corporation, it shall be lawful for the collector to summon such person, or any other person having possession, custody, or care of books of account containing entries relating to the business of such person or any other person he may deem proper, to appear before him and produce such books at a time and place named in the summons, and to give testimony or answer interrogatories, under oath, respecting any objects or income liable to tax or the returns thereof. The collector may summon any person residing or found within the State or Territory in which his district lies; and when the person intended to be summoned does not reside and can not be found within such State or Territory, he may enter any collection district where such person may be found and there make the examination herein authorized. And to this end he may there exercise all the authority which he might lawfully exercise in the district for which he was commissioned: Provided, That 'person,' as used in this section, shall be construed to include any corporation, joint-stock company or association, or insurance company when such construction is necessary to carry out its provisions. [40 Stat. L. 1146.]

For R. S. sec. 3173, as it read before this amendment, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 280.

[On failure, return to be made by officer—penalty for failure to make return.] "Sec. 3176. If any person, corporation, company, or association fails to make and file a return or list at the time prescribed by law or by regulation made under authority of law, or makes, willfully or otherwise, a false or fraudulent return or list, the collector or deputy collector shall make the return or list from his own knowledge and from such information as he can obtain through testimony or otherwise. In any such case the Commissioner may, from his own knowledge and from such information as he can obtain through testimony or otherwise, make a return or amend any return made by a collector or deputy collector. Any return or list so made and subscribed by the Commissioner, or by a collector or deputy collector and approved by the Commissioner, shall be prima facie good and sufficient for all legal purposes.

"If the failure to file a return or list is due to sickness or absence, the collector may allow such further time, not exceeding thirty days, for making and filing the return or list as he deems proper.

"The Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall determine and assess all taxes, other than stamp taxes, as to which returns or lists are so made under the provisions of this section. In case of any failure to make and file a return or list within the time prescribed by law, or prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue or the collector in pursuance of law, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall add to the tax 25 per centum of its amount, except that when a return is filed after such time and it is shown that the failure to file it was due to a reasonable cause and not to willful neglect, no such addition shall be made to the tax. In case a false or fraudulent return or list is willfully made, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall add to the tax 50 per centum of its amount.

"The amount so added to any tax shall be collected at the same time and in the same manner and as part of the tax unless the tax has been paid before the discovery of the neglect, falsity, or fraud, in which case the amount so added shall be collected in the same manner as the tax." [40 Stat. L. 1147.]

For R. S. sec. 3176, as it read before this amendment, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 281.

SEC. 1318. [Attendance of witnesses — production of testimony — enforcement of provisions of Act by appropriate remedies.] That if any person is summoned under this Act to appear, to testify, or to produce books, papers or other data, the district court of the United States for the district in which such person resides shall have jurisdiction by appropriate process to compel such attendance, testimony, or production of books, papers, or other data.

The district courts of the United States at the instance of the United States are hereby invested with such jurisdiction to make and issue, both in actions at law and suits in equity, writs and orders of injunction, and of ne exeat republica, orders appointing receivers, and such other orders and process, and to render such judgments and decrees, granting in proper cases both legal and equitable relief together, as may be necessary or appropriate for the enforcement of the provisions of this Act. The remedies hereby provided are in addition to and not exclusive of any and all other remedies of the United States in such courts or otherwise to enforce such provisions. [40 Stat. L. 1148.]

SEC. 1319. [False statements that price of article sold or leased included a tax.] That whoever in connection with the sale or lease, or offer for sale or lease, of any article, or for the purpose of making such sale or lease, makes any statement, written or oral, (1) intended or calculated to lead any person to believe that any part of the price at which such article is sold or leased, or offered for sale or lease, consists of a tax imposed under the authority of the United States, or (2) ascribing a particular part of such price to a tax imposed under the authority of the United States, knowing that such statement is false or that the tax is not so great as the portion of such price ascribed to such tax, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both. [40 Stat. L. 1148.]

SEC. 1320. [Bonds in lieu of surety.] That wherever by the laws of the United States or regulations made pursuant thereto, any person is required to furnish any recognizance, stipulation, bond, guaranty, or undertaking, hereinafter called "penal bond", with surety or sureties, such person may, in lieu of such surety or sureties, deposit as security with the official having authority to approve such penal bond, United States Liberty bonds or other bonds of the United States in a sum equal at their par value to the amount of such penal bond required to be furnished, together with an agreement authorizing such official to collect or sell such bonds so deposited in case of any default in the performance of any of the conditions or stipulations of such penal bond. The acceptance of such United States bonds in lieu of surety or sureties required by law shall have the same force and effect as individual or corporate sureties, or certified checks, bank drafts, post-office money orders, or cash, for the penalty or amount of such penal bond. The bonds deposited hereunder, and such other United States bonds as may be substituted therefor from time to time as such security, may be deposited with the Treasurer, or an Assistant Treasurer of the United States, a Government depository, Federal Reserve bank, or member bank, which shall issue receipt therefor, describing such bonds so deposited. As soon as security for the performance of such penal bond is no longer necessary, such bonds so deposited, shall be returned to the depositor: Provided, That in case a person or persons supplying a contractor with labor or material as provided by the Act of Congress, approved February 24, 1905 (33 Stat., 811), entitled "An Act to amend an Act approved August thirteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, entitled 'An Act for the protection of persons furnishing materials and labor for the construction of public works,'" shall file with the obligee, at any time after a default in the performance of any contract subject to said Acts, the application and affidavit therein provided, the obligee shall not deliver to the obligor the deposited bonds nor any surplus proceeds thereof until the expiration of the time limited by said Acts for the institution of suit by such person or persons, and, in case suit shall be instituted within such time, shall hold said bonds or proceeds subject to the order of the court having jurisdiction thereof: Provided further, That nothing herein contained shall affect or impair the priority of the claim of the United States against the bonds deposited or any right or remedy granted by said Acts or by this section to the United States for default upon any obligation of said penal bond: Provided further, That all laws inconsistent with this section are hereby so modified as to conform to the provisions hereof: And provided further, That nothing contained herein shall affect the authority of courts over the security, where such bonds are taken as security in judicial proceedings, or the authority of any administrative officer of the United States to receive United States bonds for security in cases authorized by existing laws. The Secretary may prescribe rules and regulations necessary and proper for carrying this section into effect. [40 Stat. L. 1148.]

For Act of Aug. 13, 1894, as amended, mentioned in the text, see 10 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 343; 8 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 374.

TITLE XIV.—GENERAL PROVISIONS.

SEC. 1400. [Revenue Acts of 1916 and 1917 how affected by this Act.]

(a) That the following parts of Acts are hereby repealed, subject to the limitations provided in subdivision (b):

(1) The following titles of the Revenue Act of 1916:

Title I (called "Income Tax");

Title II (called "Estate Tax");

Title III (called "Munitions Manufacturers' Tax"), as amended;

Title IV (called "Miscellaneous Taxes").

(2) The following parts of the Act entitled "An Act to provide increased revenue to defray the expenses of the increased appropriations for the Army and Navy and the extensions of fortifications, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1917:

Title III (called "Estate Tax");

Section 402 (called "Returns of Dividends").

(3) The following titles of the Revenue Act of 1917:

Title I (called "War Income Tax");

Title II (called "War Excess-Profits Tax");

Title III (called "War Tax on Beverages");

Title IV (called "War Tax on Cigars, Tobacco, and Manufactures Thereof");

Title V (called "War Tax on Facilities Furnished by Public Utilities, and Insurance");

Title VI (called "War Excise Taxes");

Title VII (called "War Tax on Admissions and Dues");

Title VIII (called "War Stamp Taxes");

Title IX (called "War Estate Tax");

Title X (called "Administrative Provisions");

Title XII (called "Income-Tax Amendments").

(b) Such parts of Acts shall remain in force for the assessment and collection of all taxes which have accrued thereunder, and for the imposition and collection of all penalties or forfeitures which have accrued and may accrue in relation to any such taxes, and except that the unexpended balance of any appropriation heretofore made and now available for the administration of any such part of an Act shall be available for the administration of this Act or the corresponding provision thereof: Provided, That, except as otherwise provided in this Act, no taxes shall be collected under Title I of the Revenue Act of 1916 as amended by the Revenue Act of 1917, or Title I or II of the Revenue Act of 1917, in respect to any period after December 31, 1917: Provided further. That the assessment and collection of all estate taxes, and the imposition and collection of all penalties or forfeitures, which have accrued under Title II of the Revenue Act of 1916 as amended by the Act entitled "An Act to provide increased revenue to defray the expenses of the increased appropriations for the Army and Navy and the extensions of fortifications, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1917, or Title IX of the Revenue Act of 1917, shall be according to the provisions of Title IV of this Act. In the case of any tax imposed by any part of an Act herein repealed, if there is a tax imposed by this Act in lieu thereof, the provision imposing such tax shall remain in force until the corresponding tax under this Act takes effect under the provisions of this Act.

Title I of the Revenue Act of 1916 as amended by the Revenue Act of 1917 shall remain in force for the assessment and collection of the income tax in Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands, except as may be otherwise provided by their respective legislatures. [40 Stat. L. 1149.]

For the Revenue Acts of 1916 and 1917, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 270 et seq.

SEC. 1401. [See POSTAL SERVICE.]

SEC. 1402. [Invalidity of part of Act — effect on remainder.] That if any clause, sentence, paragraph, or part of this Act shall for any reason be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair, or invalidate the remainder of this Act, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph, or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment has been rendered. [40 Stat. L. 1150.]

SEC. 1403. [Revenue Act of 1916 how cited.] That the Revenue Act of 1916 is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof a section to read as follows:

“ SEC. 903. That this Act may be cited as the ‘ Revenue Act of 1916.’ ” [40 Stat. L. 1150.]

For the Revenue Act of 1916, here amended, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 270.

SEC. 1404. [Revenue Act of 1917 how cited.] That the Revenue Act of 1917 is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof a section to read as follows:

“ SEC. 1303. That this Act may be cited as the ‘ Revenue Act of 1917.’ ” [40 Stat. L. 1150.]

For the Revenue Act of 1917, here amended, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 270.

SEC. 1405. [This Act how cited.] That this Act may be cited as the “ Revenue Act of 1918.” [40 Stat. L. 1151.]

SEC. 1406. [See WAR DEPARTMENT AND MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT.]

SEC. 1407. [See INTOXICATING LIQUORS.]

SEC. 1408. [Contracts made by any person with government — filing copies with Commissioner — access to all data relating to such contracts.] That every person who on or after April 6, 1917, has entered into any contract, undertaking, or agreement, with the United States, or with any department, bureau, officer, commission, board, or agency under the United States or acting in its behalf, or with any other person having contract relations with the United States, for the performance of any work or the supplying of any materials or property for the use of or for the account of the United States, shall, within thirty days after a request of the Commissioner therefor, file with the Commissioner a true and correct copy of every such contract, undertaking, or agreement.

Whoever fails to comply with such request of the Commissioner shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000, or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or both.

The Commissioner shall (when not violative of the technical military or naval secrets of the Government) have access to all information and data relating to any such contract, undertaking, or agreement, in the possession, control or custody of any department, bureau, board, agency, officer or commission of the United States, and may call upon any such department, bureau, board, agency, officer or commission for a full statement and description of any allowance for amortization, obsolescence, depreciation or loss, or of any valuation, appraisal, adjustment or final settlement, made in pursuance of any such contract, undertaking, or agreement. [40 Stat. L. 1151.]

SEC. 1409. [Time of taking effect of Act.] That unless otherwise herein specially provided, this Act shall take effect on the day following its passage. [40 Stat. L. 1152.]

SEC. 6. * * * [Cotton Futures Act — contracts when exempt from tax — information furnished by cotton dealers — sections 5 and 8 amended.] That the United States cotton-futures Act, approved August eleventh, nineteen hundred and sixteen (Thirty-ninth Statutes at Large, page four hundred and seventy-six), is hereby amended as follows:

In the fifth subdivision of section five of said Act, strike out the words "good ordinary" whenever the same occur and substitute therefor the words "low middling"; strike out the words "low middling" and substitute therefor the word "middling"; and strike out the words "if stained, cotton that is below the grade of middling" and substitute therefor the words "if yellow stained, cotton that is below the grade of strict middling, or, if blue stained, cotton that is below the grade of good middling," so that the said subdivision shall read as follows:

"Fifth. Provide that cotton that, because of the presence of extraneous matter of any character, or irregularities or defects, is reduced in value below that of low middling, or cotton that is below the grade of low middling, or, if tinged, cotton that is below the grade of strict middling, or, if yellow stained, cotton that is below the grade of good middling, the grades mentioned being of the official cotton standards of the United States, or cotton that is less than seventheighths of an inch in length of staple, or cotton of perished staple or of immature staple, or cotton that is 'gin cut' or reginned, or cotton that is 'repacked' or 'false packed' or 'mixed packed' or 'water packed,' shall not be delivered on, under, or in settlement of such contract."

Strike out the sentence comprising the seventh subdivision of section five of said Act and substitute therefor the following:

"Seventh. Provide that all tenders of cotton and settlements therefor under such contract shall be in accordance with the classification thereof made under the regulations of the Secretary of Agriculture by such officer or officers of the Government as shall be designated for the purpose, and the costs of such classification shall be fixed, assessed, collected, and paid as provided in such regulations. All moneys collected as such costs may be used as a revolving fund for carrying out the purposes of this subdivision, and section nineteen of this Act is amended accordingly."

Strike out the last sentence of section five of said Act and substitute therefor the following:

"The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to prescribe regulations for carrying out the purposes of the seventh subdivision of this section, and the certificates of the officers of the Government as to the classification of any cotton for the purposes of said subdivision shall be accepted in the courts of the United States in all suits between the parties to such contract, or their privies, as prima facie evidence of the true classification of the cotton involved."

The foregoing amendments to section five of said Act shall become effective on and after the approval of this Act, but nothing herein shall be construed to diminish any authority conferred on any official of the United States necessary to enable him to carry out any duties remaining to be performed by him under said Act as unamended, or to impair the effect of such Act as to any contract subject to its provisions entered into prior to the effective date of said amendments, or to impair the effect of the findings of the Secretary of Agriculture upon any dispute referred to him under said section five as unamended.

Effective on and after the date of the passage of this Act, insert at the end of section eight of said Act the following:

“ Provided further, That it shall be the duty of any person engaged in the business of dealing in cotton, when requested by the Secretary of Agriculture or any agent acting under his instructions, to answer correctly to the best of his knowledge, under oath or otherwise, all questions touching his knowledge of the number of bales, the classification, the price or bona fide price offered, and other terms of purchase or sale, of any cotton involved in any transaction participated in by him, or to produce all books, letters, papers, or documents in his possession or under his control relating to such matter. Any such person who shall, within a reasonable time prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture or such agent, willfully fail or refuse to answer such questions or to produce such books, letters, papers, or documents, or who shall willfully give any answer that is false or misleading, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $500.” [40 Stat. L. 1351.]

This section is from the Act of March 4, 1919, ch. 125, entitled “An Act To enable the President to carry out the price guaranties made to producers of wheat of the crops of nineteen hundred and eighteen and nineteen hundred and nineteen and to protect the United States against undue enhancement of its liabilities thereunder.” The rest of the section is set out, supra, p. 27.

The Cotton Futures Act here amended is set out in 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 359 et seq.

[Sec. 1.] * * * [Sales of intoxicating liquors, etc.—prohibition pending demobilization—importation—zones established by President about plants for war materials.] That after June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, until the conclusion of the present war and thereafter until the termination of demobilization, the date of which shall be determined and proclaimed by the President of the United States, for the purpose of conserving the man power of the Nation, and to increase efficiency in the production of arms, munitions, ships, food, and clothing for the Army and Navy, it shall be unlawful to sell for beverage purposes any distilled spirits, and during said time no distilled spirits held in bond shall be removed therefrom for beverage purposes except for export. After May first, nineteen hundred and nineteen, until the conclusion of the present war and thereafter until the termination of demobilization, the date of which shall be determined and proclaimed by the President of the United States, no grains, cereals, fruit, or other food product shall be used in the manufacture or production of beer, wine, or other intoxicating malt or vinous liquor for beverage purposes. After June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, until the conclusion of the present war and thereafter until the termination of demobilization, the date of which shall be determined and proclaimed by the President of the United States, no beer, wine, or other intoxicating malt or vinous liquor shall be sold for beverage purposes except for export. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue is hereby authorized and directed to prescribe rules and regulations, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, in regard to the manufacture and sale of distilled spirits and removal of distilled spirits held in bond after June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, until this Act shall cease to operate, for other than beverage purposes; also in regard to the manufacture, sale, and distribution of wine for sacramental, medicinal, or other than beverage uses. After the approval of this Act no distilled, malt, vinous, or other intoxicating liquors shall be imported into the United States during the continuance of the present war and period of demobilization: Provided, That this provision against importation shall not apply to shipments en route to the United States at the time of the passage of this Act.

Any person who violates any of the foregoing provisions shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding $1,000, or by both such imprisonment and fine: Provided, That the President of the United States be, and hereby is, authorized and empowered, at any time after the passage of this Act, to establish zones of such size as he may deem advisable about coal mines, munition factories, shipbuilding plants, and such other plants for war material as may seem to him to require such action whenever in his opinion the creation of such zones is necessary to, or advisable in, the proper prosecution of the war, and that he is hereby authorized and empowered to prohibit the sale, manufacture, or distribution of intoxicating liquors in such zones, and that any violation of the President's regulations in this regard shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year, or by fine of not more than $1,000, or by both such fine and imprisonment: Provided further, That nothing in this Act shall be construed to interfere with the power conferred upon the President by section fifteen of the food-control Act, approved August tenth, nineteen hundred and seventeen (Public Numbered Forty, Sixty-fifth Congress). [40 Stat. L. 1046.]

This, and section 2 which follows, are from an Act entitled "An Act To enable the Secretary of Agriculture to carry out, during the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, the purposes of the Act entitled 'An Act To provide further for the national security and defense by stimulating agriculture and facilitating the distribution of agricultural products,' and for other purposes," approved Nov. 21, 1918, ch. 212.

For Act of Aug. 10, 1917, § 15, referred to in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 188.

The language of the next to the last proviso is that of a joint resolution of Congress "authorizing the President to establish zones in which intoxicating liquors may be sold, manufactured, or distributed." It became a law Sept. 12, 1918, and will be found in 40 Stat. L. 959, ch. 170.

Constitutionality.—Assuming that the implied power of Congress to enact such a measure as the War-time Prohibition Act of November 21, 1918, must not depend upon the existence of a technical state of war, terminable only with the ratification of a treaty of peace or a proclamation of peace, but upon some actual emergency or necessity arising out of the war or incident to it, the power is not limited to victories in the field and the dispersion of the hostile forces. It carries with it inherently the power to guard against the immediate renewal of the conflict, and to remedy the evils which have arisen from its rise and progress. Hamilton v. Kentucky Distilleries, etc., Co., (1919) 251 U. S. 146, 40 S. Ct. 106, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —. See to the same effect U. S. v. Ranier Brewing Co., (N. D. Cal. 1919), 259 Fed. 350; U. S. v. Minery, (D. C. Conn. 1919) 250 Fed. 707; U. S. v. Baumgartner, (S. D. Cal. 1919) 250 Fed. 722.

Private property was not taken for public purposes without compensation, contrary to U. S. Const., 5th Amend., by the enactment by Congress, in the exercise of the war power, of the provisions of the War-time Prohibition Act of November 21, 1918, fixing a period of seven months and nine days from its passage, during which distilled spirits might be disposed of free from any restriction imposed by the federal government, and thereafter permitting, until the end of the war and the termination of demobilization, an unrestricted sale for export, and, within the United States, also for other than beverage purposes. Hamilton v. Kentucky, etc., Distilleries, etc., Co., (1919) 251 U. S. 146, 40 S. Ct. 106, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —.

Eighteenth amendment as removing restriction on sale of liquor.—The restriction on the sale of distilled spirits for beverage purposes, imposed by this act, was not impliedly removed by the adoption of the 18th Amendment to the Federal Constitution, which, in express terms, postponed the effective date of the prohibition of the liquor traffic thereby imposed, until one year after ratification. Hamilton v. Kentucky Distilleries, etc. Co., (1919) 146 U. S. 251, 40 S. Ct. 106, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —.

War emergency when over.—The War-time Prohibition Act of November 21, 1918, cannot be said to have ceased to be valid prior to the limitation therein fixed, viz., "the conclusion of the present war and thereafter until the termination of demobilization," on the theory that the war emergency has passed, where the Treaty of Peace has not yet been concluded, the railways are still under national control by virtue of the war powers, other war activities have not been brought to a close, and it cannot even be said that the man power of the nation has been restored to a peace footing. Hamilton v. Kentucky Distilleries, etc., Co., (1919) 251 U. S. 146, 40 S. Ct. 106, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —. See to the same effect U. S. v. Minery, (D. C. Conn. 1919) 250 Fed. 707.

The provision of the War-time Prohibition Act of November 21, 1918, that it shall not cease to be operative until the "conclusion of the present war and thereafter until the termination of demobilization, the date of which shall be determined and proclaimed by the President," is not satisfied by passing references in various messages and proclamations of the President to the war as ended, and to demobilization as accomplished, nor by newspaper interviews with high officers of the Army, or with officials of the War Department. Hamilton v. Kentucky Distilleries,

Information as requiring allegation that beer was intoxicating.—The use of grains, cereals, fruit, or other food products in the manufacture and production of beer for beverage purposes, which, while containing as much as  $\frac{1}{2}$  of 1 per cent of alcohol by weight and volume, is not alleged to be intoxicating, was not prohibited by the provisions of the War-time Prohibition Act of November 21, 1918, that to conserve the nation's man power and to increase efficiency in the production of war essentials no grains, cereals, fruit, or other food products shall, after May 1, 1919, until the conclusion of the war and until demobilization is proclaimed by the President, be used in the manufacture or production of beer, wine, or other intoxicating malt or vinous liquors for beverage purposes. A different conclusion is not demanded because of Treasury Department rulings that all beer containing  $\frac{1}{2}$  of 1 per cent of alcohol is taxable, or of the determination of the Internal Revenue Department that a beverage containing that amount of alcohol is to be regarded as intoxicating within the intentment of the act. U. S. v. Standard Brewery, (1919) 251 U. S. 210, 40 S. Ct. 139, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, affirming (D. C. Md. 1919) 260 Fed. 486, and overruling U. S. v. Pittsburg Brewing Co., (W. D. Pa. 1919) 260 Fed. 762; U. S. v. Schmander, (D. C. Conn. 1919) 258 Fed. 25). See to the same effect U. S. v. Petts, (D. C. Mass. 1919) 260 Fed. 663; Jacob Hoffman Brewing Co. v. McElligott, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1919) 259 Fed. 525, affirming (S. D. N. Y. 1919) 259 Fed. 321; U. S. v. Ranier Brewing Co., (N. D. Cal. 1919) 259 Fed. 359; U. S. Baumgartner, (S. D. Cal. 1919) 259 Fed. 722.

SEC. 2. [Distilled spirits or alcohol from Porto Rico — admission for limited purpose.] That under such rules, regulations, and bonds as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, distilled spirits or alcohol produced prior to October third, nineteen hundred and seventeen, from products the growth of the island of Porto Rico may be admitted from said island into the United States for industrial purposes in the arts and sciences. Such alcohol or distilled spirits shall not be used for beverage purposes nor in the production of any article used as a beverage.

Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than two years. He shall, in addition, be liable to double the tax evaded, together with the tax, to be collected by assessment or on any bond given. [40 Stat. L. 1048.]

SEC. 1407. [Liquor advertisements — prohibition in mail — interstate shipments of liquor — dry territory.] That the provisions of section 5 of the Act entitled "An Act making appropriations for the service of the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1917, relating to intoxicating liquors in interstate commerce, as amended by section 1110 of an Act entitled "An Act to provide revenue to defray war expenses, and for other purposes," approved October 3, 1917, be, and the same are hereby, made applicable to the District of Columbia. [40 Stat. L. 1151.]

TITLE I.

TO PROVIDE FOR THE ENFORCEMENT OF WAR PROHIBITION.

[SEC. 1.] [Terms defined—"War Prohibition Act"—"beer, wine, or other intoxicating malt or vinous liquors.""] The term "War Prohibition Act" used in this Act shall mean the provisions of any Act or Acts prohibiting the sale and manufacture of intoxicating liquors until the conclusion of the present war and thereafter until the termination of demobilization, the date of which shall be determined and proclaimed by the President of the United States. The words "beer, wine, or other intoxicating malt or vinous liquors" in the War Prohibition Act shall be hereafter construed to mean any such beverages which contain one-half of 1 per centum or more of alcohol by volume: Provided, That the foregoing definition shall not extend to dealcoholized wine nor to any beverage or liquid produced by the process by which beer, ale, porter or wine is produced, if it contains less than one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume, and is made as prescribed in section 37 of Title II of this Act, and is otherwise denominated than as beer, ale, or porter, and is contained and sold in, or from, such sealed and labeled bottles, casks, or containers as the commissioner may by regulation prescribe. [41 Stat. L. 305.]

Constitutionality.—The provision of the Act extending the prohibition of the Act of November 21, 1918, against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, to malt liquors, whether in fact intoxicating or not, with an alcoholic content of as much as  $\frac{1}{2}$  of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume, is constitutional. And this is so notwithstanding that the Act fails to provide for compensation in the case of liquors acquired before its passage, and which before that time could have been lawfully sold. Ruppert v. Caffey, (1919) 251 U. S. 264, 40 S. Ct. 141, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —. See to the same effect Scatena v. Caffey, (S. D. N. Y. 1919) 260 Fed. 756.

SEC. 2. [Investigation and report of violation of act—Commissioner of Internal Revenue—apprehension of offenders—preliminary hearing.] The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, his assistants, agents, and inspectors, shall investigate and report violations of the War Prohibition Act to the United States attorney for the district in which committed, who shall be charged with the duty of prosecuting, subject to the direction of the Attorney General, the offenders as in the case of other offenses against laws of the United States; and such Commissioner of Internal Revenue, his assistants, agents, and inspectors may swear out warrants before United States commissioners or other officers or courts authorized to issue the same for the apprehension of such offenders, and may, subject to the control of the said United States attorney, conduct the prosecution at the committing trial for the purpose of having the offenders held for the action of a grand jury. [41 Stat. L. 306.]

SEC. 3. [Property when public and common nuisance — lien on property — leased premises.] Any room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure, or place of any kind where intoxicating liquor is sold, manufactured, kept for sale, or bartered in violation of the War Prohibition Act, and all intoxicating liquor and all property kept and used in maintaining such a place, is hereby declared to be a public and common nuisance, and any person who maintains or assists in maintaining such public and common nuisance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, or be imprisoned for not less than thirty days or more than one year, or both. If a person has knowledge that his property is occupied or used in violation of the provisions of the War Prohibition Act and suffers the same to be so used, such property shall be subject to a lien for, and may be sold to pay, all fines and costs assessed against the occupant of such building or property for any violation of the War Prohibition Act occurring after the passage hereof, which said lien shall attach from the time of the filing of notice of the commencement of the suit in the office where the records of the transfer of real estate are kept; and any such lien may be established and enforced by legal action instituted for that purpose in any court having jurisdiction. Any violation of this title upon any leased premises by the lessee or occupant thereof shall, at the option of the lessor, work a forfeiture of the lease. [41 Stat. L. 306.]

SEC. 4. [Abatement of nuisance — injunction — contempt.] The United States attorney for the district where such nuisance as is defined in this Act exists, or any officer designated by him or the Attorney General of the United States, may prosecute a suit in equity in the name of the United States to abate and enjoin the same. Actions in equity to enjoin and abate such nuisances may be brought in any court having jurisdiction to hear and determine equity causes. The jurisdiction of the courts of the United States under this section shall be concurrent with that of the courts of the several States.

If it be made to appear by affidavit, or other evidence under oath, to the satisfaction of the court, or judge in vacation, that the nuisance complained of exists, a temporary writ of injunction shall forthwith issue restraining the defendant or defendants from conducting or permitting the continuance of such nuisance until the conclusion of the trial. Where a temporary injunction is prayed for, the court may issue an order restraining the defendants and all other persons from removing or in any way interfering with the liquor or fixtures, or other things used in connection with the violation constituting the nuisance. No bond shall be required as a condition for making any order or issuing any writ of injunction under this Act. If the court shall find the property involved was being unlawfully used as aforesaid at or about the time alleged in the petition, the court shall order that no liquors shall be manufactured, sold, bartered, or stored in such room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure, or places of any kind, for a period of not exceeding one year, or during the war and the period of demobilization. Whenever an action to enjoin a nuisance shall have been brought pursuant to the provisions of this Act, if the owner, lessee, tenant, or occupant appears and pays all costs of the proceedings and files a bond, with sureties to be approved by the clerk of the court in which the action is brought, in the liquidated sum of not less than $500 nor more than $1,000, conditioned that he will immediately abate said nuisance and prevent the same from being established or kept therein a period of one year thereafter, or during the war and period of demobilization, the court, or in vacation the judge, may, if satisfied of his good faith, direct by appropriate order that the property, if already closed or held under the order of abatement, be delivered to said owner, and said order of abatement canceled, so far as the same may relate to said property; or if said bond be given and costs therein paid before judgment on an order of abatement, the action shall be thereby abated as to said room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure, or place only. The release of the property under the provisions of this section shall not release it from any judgment, lien, penalty, or liability to which it may be subject by law.

In the case of the violation of any injunction, temporary or permanent, granted pursuant to the provisions of this Title, the court, or in vacation a judge thereof, may summarily try and punish the defendant. The proceedings for punishment for contempt shall be commenced by filing with the clerk of the court from which such injunction issued information under oath setting out the alleged facts constituting the violation, whereupon the court or judge shall forthwith cause a warrant to issue under which the defendant shall be arrested. The trial may be had upon affidavits, or either party may demand the production and oral examination of the witnesses. Any person found guilty of contempt under the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $1,000, or by imprisonment of not less than thirty days nor more than twelve months, or by both fine and imprisonment. [41 Stat. L. 306.]

SEC. 5. [Enforcement by Commissioner of Internal Revenue and assistants — power conferred.] The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, his assistants, agents, and inspectors, and all other officers of the United States whose duty it is to enforce criminal laws, shall have all the power for the enforcement of the War Prohibition Act or any provisions thereof which is conferred by law for the enforcement of existing laws relating to the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors under the laws of the United States. [41 Stat. L. 307.]

SEC. 6. [Invalidity of part of act — effect as to remainder.] If any section or provision of this Act shall be held to be invalid, it is hereby provided that all other provisions of this Act which are not expressly held to be invalid shall continue in full force and effect. [41 Stat. L. 307.]

SEC. 7. [Effect of act on existing legislation.] None of the provisions of this Act shall be construed to repeal any of the provisions of the "War Prohibition Act," or to limit or annul any order or regulation prohibiting the manufacture, sale, or disposition of intoxicating liquors within certain prescribed zones or districts, nor shall the provisions of this Act be construed to prohibit the use of the power of the military or naval authorities to enforce the regulations of the President or Secretary of War or Navy issued in pursuance of law, prohibiting the manufacture, use, possession, sale, or other disposition or intoxicating liquors during the period of the war and demobilization thereafter. [41 Stat. L. 307.]

TITLE II.

PROHIBITION OF INTOXICATING BEVERAGES.

SEC. 1. [Terms defined — authority of assistants to commissioner.] When used in Title II and Title III of this Act (1) The word "liquor" or the phrase

"intoxicating liquor" shall be construed to include alcohol, brandy, whisky, rum, gin, beer, ale, porter, and wine, and in addition thereto any spirituous, vinous, malt, or fermented liquor, liquids, and compounds, whether medicated, proprietary, patented, or not, and by whatever name called, containing one-half of 1 per centum or more of alcohol by volume which are fit for use for beverage purposes: Provided, That the foregoing definition shall not extend to dealcoholized wine nor to any beverage or liquid produced by the process by which beer, ale, porter or wine is produced, if it contains less than one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume, and is made as prescribed in section 37 of this title, and is otherwise denominated than as beer, ale, or porter, and is contained and sold in, or from, such sealed and labeled bottles, casks, or containers as the commissioner may by regulation prescribe.

(2) The word "person" shall mean and include natural persons, associations, copartnerships, and corporations.

(3) The word "commissioner" shall mean Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

(4) The term "application" shall mean a formal written request supported by a verified statement of facts showing that the commissioner may grant the request.

(5) The term "permit" shall mean a formal written authorization by the commissioner setting forth specifically therein the things that are authorized.

(6) The term "bond" shall mean an obligation authorized or required by or under this act or any regulation, executed in such form and for such a penal sum as may be required by a court, the commissioner or prescribed by regulation.

(7) The term "regulation" shall mean any regulation prescribed by the commissioner with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury for carrying out the provisions of this Act, and the commissioner is authorized to make such regulations.

Any act authorized to be done by the commissioner may be performed by any assistant or agent designated by him for that purpose. Records required to be filed with the commissioner may be filed with an assistant commissioner or other person designated by the commissioner to receive such records. [41 Stat. L. 307.]

SEC. 2. [Investigation and report of violation of act—Commissioner of Internal Revenue—apprehension of offenders—prosecution—search warrants.] The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, his assistants, agents, and inspectors shall investigate and report violations of this Act to the United States attorney for the district in which committed, who is hereby charged with the duty of prosecuting the offenders, subject to the direction of the Attorney General, as in the case of other offenses against the laws of the United States; and such Commissioner of Internal Revenue, his assistants, agents, and inspectors may swear out warrants before United States commissioners or other officers or courts authorized to issue the same for the apprehension of such offenders, and may, subject to the control of the said United States attorney, conduct the prosecution at the committing trial for the purpose of having the offenders held for the action of a grand jury. Section 1014 of the Revised Statutes of the United States is hereby made applicable in the enforcement of this Act. Officers mentioned in said section 1014 are authorized to issue search warrants under the limitations provided in Title XI of the Act approved June 15, 1917 (Fortieth Statutes at Large, page 217, et seq.). [41 Stat. L. 308.]

For Act of June 15, 1917, title XI, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 128.

SEC. 3. [Application of Act to Eighteenth Amendment of Constitution — liquor for nonbeverage purposes — wine for sacramental purposes — warehouse receipts.] No persons shall on or after the date when the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States goes into effect, manufacture, sell, barter, transport, import, export, deliver, furnish or possess any intoxicating liquor except as authorized in this Act, and all provisions of this Act shall be liberally construed to the end that the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage may be prevented.

Liquor for nonbeverage purposes and wine for sacramental purposes may be manufactured, purchased, sold, bartered, transported, imported, exported, delivered, furnished and possessed, but only as herein provided, and the commissioner may, upon application, issue permits therefor: Provided, That nothing in this Act shall prohibit the purchase and sale of warehouse receipts covering distilled spirits on deposit in Government bonded warehouses, and no special tax liability shall attach to the business of purchasing and selling such warehouse receipts. [41 Stat. L. 308.]

The Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution is set out infra. See Index.

SEC. 4. [Enumeration of certain articles not affected by act — permit to manufacture — sale of articles — use for beverage purposes.] The articles enumerated in this section shall not, after having been manufactured and prepared for the market, be subject to the provisions of this Act if they correspond with the following descriptions and limitations, namely:

(a) Denatured alcohol or denatured rum produced and used as provided by laws and regulations now or hereafter in force.

(b) Medicinal preparations manufactured in accordance with formulas prescribed by the United States Pharmacopœia, National Formulary or the American Institute of Homeopathy that are unfit for use for beverage purposes.

(c) Patented, patent, and proprietary medicines that are unfit for use for beverage purposes.

(d) Toilet, medicinal, and antiseptic preparations and solutions that are unfit for use for beverage purposes.

(e) Flavoring extracts and sirups that are unfit for use as a beverage, or for intoxicating beverage purposes.

(f) Vinegar and preserved sweet cider.

A person who manufactures any of the articles mentioned in this section may purchase and possess liquor for that purpose, but he shall secure permits to manufacture such articles and to purchase such liquor, give the bonds, keep the records, and make the reports specified in this Act and as directed by the commissioner. No such manufacturer shall sell, use, or dispose of any liquor otherwise than as an ingredient of the articles authorized to be manufactured therefrom. No more alcohol shall be used in the manufacture of any extract, sirup, or the articles named in paragraphs b, c, and d of this section which may be used for beverage purposes than the quantity necessary for extraction or solution of the elements contained therein and for the preservation of the article.

Any person who shall knowingly sell any of the articles mentioned in paragraphs a, b, c, and d of this section for beverage purposes, or any extract or sirup for intoxicating beverage purposes, or who shall sell any of the same under circumstances from which the seller might reasonably deduce the intention of the purchaser to use them for such purposes, or shall sell any beverage containing one-half of 1 per centum or more of alcohol by volume in which any extract, sirup, or other article is used as an ingredient, shall be subject to the penalties provided in section 29 of this Title. If the commissioner shall find, after notice and hearing as provided for in section 5 of this Title, that any person has sold any flavoring extract, sirup, or beverage in violation of this paragraph, he shall notify such person, and any known principal for whom the sale was made, to desist from selling such article; and it shall thereupon be unlawful for a period of one year thereafter for any person so notified to sell any such extract, sirup, or beverage without making an application for, giving a bond, and obtaining a permit so to do, which permit may be issued upon such conditions as the commissioner may deem necessary to prevent such illegal sales, and in addition the commissioner shall require a record and report of sales. [41 Stat. L. 309.]

SEC. 5. [Failure of enumerated articles to conform to descriptions — analysis — revocation of permit.] Whenever the commissioner has reason to believe that any article mentioned in section 4 does not correspond with the descriptions and limitations therein provided, he shall cause an analysis of said article to be made, and if, upon such analysis, the commissioner shall find that said article does not so correspond, he shall give not less than fifteen days' notice in writing to the person who is the manufacturer thereof to show cause why said article should not be dealt with as an intoxicating liquor, such notice to be served personally or by registered mail, as the commissioner may determine, and shall specify the time when, the place where, and the name of the agent or official before whom such person is required to appear.

If the manufacturer of said article fails to show to the satisfaction of the commissioner that the article corresponds to the descriptions and limitations provided in section 4 of this Title, his permit to manufacture and sell such article shall be revoked. The manufacturer may by appropriate proceeding in a court of equity have the action of the commissioner reviewed, and the court may affirm, modify, or reverse the finding of the commissioner as the facts and law of the case may warrant, and during the pendency of such proceedings may restrain the manufacture, sale, or other disposition of such article. [41 Stat. L. 309.]

SEC. 6. [Permits to manufacture, etc., liquor.] No one shall manufacture, sell, purchase, transport, or prescribe any liquor without first obtaining a permit from the commissioner so to do, except that a person may, without a permit, purchase and use liquor for medicinal purposes when prescribed by a physician as herein provided, and except that any person who in the opinion of the commissioner is conducting a bona fide hospital or sanatorium engaged in the treatment of persons suffering from alcoholism, may, under such rules, regulations, and conditions as the commissioner shall prescribe, purchase and use, in accordance with the methods in use in such institution, liquor, to be administered to the patients of such institution under the direction of a duly qualified physician employed by such institution.

All permits to manufacture, prescribe, sell, or transport liquor, may be issued for one year, and shall expire on the 31st day of December next succeeding the issuance thereof: Provided, That the commissioner may without formal application or new bond extend any permit granted under this Act or laws now in force after August 31 in any year to December 31 of the succeeding year: Provided further, That permits to purchase liquor for the purpose of manufacturing or selling as provided in this Act shall not be in force to exceed ninety days from the day of issuance. A permit to purchase liquor for any other purpose shall not be in force to exceed thirty days. Permits to purchase liquor shall specify the quantity and kind to be purchased and the purpose for which it is to be used. No permit shall be issued to any person who within one year prior to the application therefor or issuance thereof shall have violated the terms of any permit issued under this Title or any law of the United States or of any State regulating traffic in liquor. No permit shall be issued to anyone to sell liquor at retail, unless the sale is to be made through a pharmacist designated in the permit and duly licensed under the laws of his State to compound and dispense medicine prescribed by a duly licensed physician. No one shall be given a permit to prescribe liquor unless he is a physician duly licensed to practice medicine and actively engaged in the practice of such profession. Every permit shall be in writing, dated when issued, and signed by the commissioner or his authorized agent. It shall give the name and address of the person to whom it is issued and shall designate and limit the acts that are permitted and the time when and place where such acts may be performed. No permit shall be issued until a verified, written application shall have been made therefor, setting forth the qualification of the applicant and the purpose for which the liquor is to be used.

The commissioner may prescribe the form of all permits and applications and the facts to be set forth therein. Before any permit is granted the commissioner may require a bond in such form and amount as he may prescribe to insure compliance with the terms of the permit and the provisions of this title. In the event of the refusal by the commissioner of any application for a permit, the applicant may have a review of his decision before a court of equity in the manner provided in section 5 hereof.

Nothing in this title shall be held to apply to the manufacture, sale, transportation, importation, possession, or distribution of wine for sacramental purposes, or like religious rites, except section 6 (save as the same requires a permit to purchase) and section 10 hereof, and the provisions of this Act prescribing penalties for the violation of either of said sections. No person to whom a permit may be issued to manufacture, transport, import, or sell wines for sacramental purposes or like religious rites shall sell, barter, exchange, or furnish any such to any person not a rabbi, minister of the gospel, priest, or an officer duly authorized for the purpose by any church or congregation, nor to any such except upon an application duly subscribed by him, which application, authenticated as regulations may prescribe, shall be filed and preserved by the seller. The head of any conference or diocese or other ecclesiastical jurisdiction may designate any rabbi, minister, or priest to supervise the manufacture of wine to be used for the purposes and rites in this section mentioned, and the person so designated may, in the discretion of the commissioner, be granted a permit to supervise such manufacture. [41 Stat. L. 310.]

shall prescribe liquor unless after careful physical examination of the person for whose use such prescription is sought, or if such examination is found impracticable, then upon the best information obtainable, he in good faith believes that the use of such liquor as a medicine by such person is necessary and will afford relief to him from some known ailment. Not more than a pint of spirituous liquor to be taken internally shall be prescribed for use by the same person within any period of ten days and no prescription shall be filled more than once. Any pharmacist filling a prescription shall at the time indorse upon it over his own signature the word "canceled," together with the date when the liquor was delivered, and then make the same a part of the record that he is required to keep as herein provided.

Every physician who issues a prescription for liquor shall keep a record, alphabetically arranged in a book prescribed by the commissioner, which shall show the date of issue, amount prescribed, to whom issued, the purpose or ailment for which it is to be used and directions for use, stating the amount and frequency of the dose. [41 Stat. L. 311.]

SEC. 8. [Prescription blanks.] The commissioner shall cause to be printed blanks for the prescriptions herein required, and he shall furnish the same, free of cost, to physicians holding permits to prescribe. The prescription blanks shall be printed in book form and shall be numbered consecutively from one to one hundred, and each book shall be given a number, and the stubs in each book shall carry the same numbers as and be copies of the prescriptions. The books containing such stubs shall be returned to the commissioner when the prescription blanks have been used, or sooner, if directed by the commissioner. All unused, mutilated, or defaced blanks shall be returned with the book. No physician shall prescribe and no pharmacist shall fill any prescription for liquor except on blanks so provided, except in cases of emergency, in which event a record and report shall be made and kept as in other cases. [41 Stat. L. 311.]

SEC. 9. [Revocation of permits.] If at any time there shall be filed with the commissioner a complaint under oath setting forth facts showing, or if the commissioner has reason to believe, that any person who has a permit is not in good faith conforming to the provisions of this Act, or has violated the laws of any State relating to intoxicating liquor, the commissioner or his agent shall immediately issue an order citing such person to appear before him on a day named not more than thirty and not less than fifteen days from the date of service upon such permittee of a copy of the citation, which citation shall be accompanied by a copy of such complaint, or in the event that the proceedings be initiated by the commissioner with a statement of the facts constituting the violation charged, at which time a hearing shall be had unless continued for cause. Such hearings shall be held within the judicial district and within fifty miles of the place where the offense is alleged to have occurred, unless the parties agree on another place. If it be found that such person has been guilty of willfully violating any such laws, as charged, or has not in good faith conformed to the provisions of this Act, such permit shall be revoked, and no permit shall be granted to such person within one year thereafter. Should the permit be revoked by the commissioner, the permittee may have a review of his decision before a court of equity in the manner provided in section 5 hereof. During the pendency of such action such permit shall be temporarily revoked. [41 Stat. L. 311.]

SEC. 10. [Record of liquor manufactured, etc.] No person shall manufacture, purchase for sale, sell, or transport any liquor without making at the time a permanent record thereof showing in detail the amount and kind of liquor manufactured, purchased, sold, or transported, together with the names and addresses of the persons to whom sold, in case of sale, and the consignor and consignee in case of transportation, and the time and place of such manufacture, sale, or transportation. The commissioner may prescribe the form of such record, which shall at all times be open to inspection as in this Act provided. [41 Stat. L. 312.]

SEC. 11. [Copies of permits to purchase — part of records — wholesale purchases.] All manufacturers and wholesale or retail druggists shall keep as a part of the records required of them a copy of all permits to purchase on which a sale of any liquor is made, and no manufacturer or wholesale druggist shall sell or otherwise dispose of any liquor except at wholesale and only to persons having permits to purchase in such quantities. [41 Stat. L. 312.]

SEC. 12. [Labels on liquor containers.] All persons manufacturing liquor for sale under the provisions of this title shall securely and permanently attach to every container thereof, as the same is manufactured, a label stating name of manufacturer, kind and quantity of liquor contained therein, and the date of its manufacture, together with the number of the permit authorizing the manufacture thereof; and all persons possessing such liquor in wholesale quantities shall securely keep and maintain such label thereon; and all persons selling at wholesale shall attach to every package of liquor, when sold, a label setting forth the kind and quantity of liquor contained therein, by whom manufactured, the date of sale, and the person to whom sold; which label shall likewise be kept and maintained thereon until the liquor is used for the purpose for which such sale was authorized. [41 Stat. L. 312.]

SEC. 13. [Shipments of liquor — record by carrier — delivery — verified copy of permit to purchase.] It shall be the duty of every carrier to make a record at the place of shipment of the receipt of any liquor transported, and he shall deliver liquor only to persons who present to the carrier a verified copy of a permit to purchase which shall be made a part of the carrier's permanent record at the office from which delivery is made.

The agent of the common carrier is hereby authorized to administer the oath to the consignee in verification of the copy of the permit presented, who, if not personally known to the agent, shall be identified before the delivery of the liquor to him. The name and address of the person identifying the consignee shall be included in the record. [41 Stat. L. 312.]

SEC. 14. [Shipments — duty of shipper to disclose character of package — information on outside of package.] It shall be unlawful for a person to use or induce any carrier, or any agent or employee thereof, to carry or ship any package or receptacle containing liquor without notifying the carrier of the true nature and character of the shipment. No carrier shall transport nor shall any person receive liquor from a carrier unless there appears on the outside of the package containing such liquor the following information:

Name and address of the consignor or seller, name and address of the consignee, kind and quantity of liquor contained therein, and number of the permit to purchase or ship the same, together with the name and address of the person using the permit. [41 Stat. L. 312.]

SEC. 15. [False statements on package—effect.] It shall be unlawful for any consignee to accept or receive any package containing any liquor upon which appears a statement known to him to be false, or for any carrier or other person to consign, ship, transport, or deliver any such package, knowing such statement to be false. [41 Stat. L. 313.]

SEC. 16. [Shipments—bona fide consignee.] It shall be unlawful to give to any carrier or any officer, agent, or person acting or assuming to act for such carrier an order requiring the delivery to any person of any liquor or package containing liquor consigned to, or purporting or claimed to be consigned to a person, when the purpose of the order is to enable any person not an actual bona fide consignee to obtain such liquor. [41 Stat. L. 313.]

SEC. 17. [Liquor advertisements—price lists.] It shall be unlawful to advertise anywhere, or by any means or method, liquor, or the manufacture, sale, keeping for sale or furnishing of the same, or where, how, from whom, or at what price the same may be obtained. No one shall permit any sign or billboard containing such advertisement to remain upon one's premises. But nothing herein shall prohibit manufacturers and wholesale druggists holding permits to sell liquor from furnishing price lists, with description of liquor for sale, to persons permitted to purchase liquor, or from advertising alcohol in business publications or trade journals circulating generally among manufacturers of lawful alcoholic perfumes, toilet preparations, flavoring extracts, medicinal preparations, and like articles: Provided, however, That nothing in this Act or in the Act making appropriations for the Post Office Department, approved March 3, 1917 (Thirty-ninth Statutes at Large, Part 1, page 1058. et seq.), shall apply to newspapers published in foreign countries when mailed to this country. [41 Stat. L. 313.]

For Act of March 3, 1917, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 394.

SEC. 18. [Advertisements of things pertaining to manufacture of liquor.] It shall be unlawful to advertise, manufacture, sell, or possess for sale any utensil, contrivance, machine, preparation, compound, tablet, substance, formula, direction, or recipe advertised, designed, or intended for use in the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor. [41 Stat. L. 313.]

SEC. 19. [Soliciting liquor orders.] No person shall solicit or receive, nor knowingly permit his employee to solicit or receive, from any person any order for liquor or give any information of how liquor may be obtained in violation of this Act. [41 Stat. L. 313.]

SEC. 20. [Injuries resulting from intoxication—recovery of damages.] Any person who shall be injured in person, property, means of support, or otherwise by any intoxicated person, or by reason of the intoxication of any person, whether resulting in his death or not, shall have a right of action against any person who shall, by unlawfully selling to or unlawfully assisting in procuring liquor for such intoxicated person, have caused or contributed to such intoxication, and in any such action such person shall have a right to recover actual and exemplary damages. In case of the death of either party, the action or right of action given by this section shall survive to or against his or her executor or administrator, and the amount so recovered by either wife or child shall be his or her sole and separate property: Such action may be brought in any court of competent jurisdiction. In any case where parents shall be entitled to such damages, either the father or mother may sue alone therefor, but recovery by one of such parties shall be a bar to suit brought by the other. [41 Stat. L. 313.]

SEC. 21. [Property when common nuisance — lien on property.] Any room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure, or place where intoxicating liquor is manufactured, sold, kept, or bartered in violation of this title, and all intoxicating liquor and property kept and used in maintaining the same, is hereby declared to be a common nuisance, and any person who maintains such a common nuisance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $1,000 or be imprisoned for not more than one year, or both. If a person has knowledge or reason to believe that his room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure, or place is occupied or used for the manufacture or sale of liquor contrary to the provision of this title, and suffers the same to be so occupied or used, such room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure, or place shall be subject to a lien for and may be sold to pay all fines and costs assessed against the person guilty of such nuisance for such violation, and any such lien may be enforced by action in any court having jurisdiction. [41 Stat. L. 313.]

SEC. 22. [Abatement of nuisance — injunction.] An action to enjoin any nuisance defined in this title may be brought in the name of the United States by the Attorney General of the United States or by any United States attorney or any prosecuting attorney of any State or any subdivision thereof or by the commissioner or his deputies or assistants. Such action shall be brought and tried as an action in equity and may be brought in any court having jurisdiction to hear and determine equity cases. If it is made to appear by affidavits or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the court, or judge in vacation, that such nuisance exists, a temporary writ of injunction shall forthwith issue restraining the defendant from conducting or permitting the continuance of such nuisance until the conclusion of the trial. If a temporary injunction is prayed for, the court may issue an order restraining the defendant and all other persons from removing or in any way interfering with the liquor or fixtures, or other things used in connection with the violation of this Act constituting such nuisance. No bond shall be required in instituting such proceedings. It shall not be necessary for the court to find the property involved was being unlawfully used as aforesaid at the time of the hearing, but on finding that the material allegations of the petition are true, the court shall order that no liquors shall be manufactured, sold, bartered, or stored in such room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure, or place, or any part thereof. And upon judgment of the court ordering such nuisance to be abated, the court may order that the room, house, building, structure, boat, vehicle, or place shall not be occupied or used for one year thereafter; but the court may, in its discretion, permit it to be occupied or used if the owner, lessee, tenant, or occupant thereof shall give bond with sufficient surety, to be approved by the court making the order, in the penal and liquidated sum of not less than $500 nor more than $1,000, payable to the United States, and conditioned that intoxicating liquor will not thereafter be manufactured, sold, bartered, kept, or otherwise disposed of therein or thereon, and that he will pay all fines, costs, and damages that may be assessed for any violation of this title upon said property. [41 Stat. L. 314.]

SEC. 23. [Person when guilty of nuisance — fees of officers enforcing act — forfeiture of leases.] That any person who shall, with intent to effect a sale of liquor, by himself, his employee, servant, or agent, for himself or any person, company or corporation, keep or carry around on his person, or in a vehicle, or other conveyance whatever, or leave in a place for another to secure, any liquor, or who shall travel to solicit, or solicit, or take, or accept orders for the sale, shipment, or delivery of liquor in violation of this title is guilty of a nuisance and may be restrained by injunction, temporary and permanent, from doing or continuing to do any of said acts or things.

In such proceedings it shall not be necessary to show any intention on the part of the accused to continue such violations if the action is brought within sixty days following any such violation of the law.

For removing and selling property in enforcing this Act the officer shall be entitled to charge and receive the same fee as the sheriff of the county would receive for levying upon and selling property under execution, and for closing the premises and keeping them closed a reasonable sum shall be allowed by the court.

Any violation of this title upon any leased premises by the lessee or occupant thereof shall, at the option of the lessor, work a forfeiture of the lease. [41 Stat. L. 314.]

SEC. 24. [Violation of injunction — punishment for contempt.] In the case of the violation of any injunction, temporary or permanent, granted pursuant to the provisions of this title, the court, or in vacation a judge thereof, may summarily try and punish the defendant. The proceedings for punishment for contempt shall be commenced by filing with the clerk of the court from which such injunction issued information under oath setting out the alleged facts constituting the violation, whereupon the court or judge shall forthwith cause a warrant to issue under which the defendant shall be arrested. The trial may be had upon affidavits, or either party may demand the production and oral examination of the witnesses. Any person found guilty of contempt under the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $1,000, or by imprisonment of not less than thirty days nor more than twelve months, or by both fine and imprisonment. [41 Stat. L. 315.]

SEC. 25. [Possession of liquor or property designed for manufacture — search warrants.] It shall be unlawful to have or possess any liquor or property designed for the manufacture of liquor intended for use in violating this title or which has been so used, and no property rights shall exist in any such liquor or property. A search warrant may issue as provided in Title XI of public law numbered 24 of the Sixty-fifth Congress, approved June 15, 1917, and such liquor, the containers thereof, and such property so seized shall be subject to such disposition as the court may make thereof. If it is found that such liquor or property was so unlawfully held or possessed, or had been so unlawfully used, the liquor, and all property designed for the unlawful manufacture of liquor, shall be destroyed, unless the court shall otherwise order. No search warrant shall issue to search any private dwelling occupied as such unless it is being used for the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquor, or unless it is in part used for some business purpose such as a store, shop, saloon, restaurant, hotel, or boarding house. The term "private dwelling" shall be construed to include the room or rooms used and occupied not transiently but solely as a residence in an apartment house, hotel, or boarding house. The property seized on any such warrant shall not be taken from the officer seizing the same on any writ of replevin or other like process. [41 Stat. L. 315.]

SEC. 26. [Transportation of liquor unlawfully — seizure of vehicle or conveyance.] When the commissioner, his assistants, inspectors, or any officer of the law shall discover any person in the act of transporting in violation of the law, intoxicating liquors in any wagon, buggy, automobile, water or air craft, or other vehicle, it shall be his duty to seize any and all intoxicating liquors found therein being transported contrary to law. Whenever intoxicating liquors transported or possessed illegally shall be seized by an officer he shall take possession of the vehicle and team or automobile, boat, air or water craft, or any other conveyance, and shall arrest any person in charge thereof. Such officer shall at once proceed against the person arrested under the provisions of this title in any court having competent jurisdiction; but the said vehicle or conveyance shall be returned to the owner upon execution by him of a good and valid bond, with sufficient sureties, in a sum double the value of the property, which said bond shall be approved by said officer and shall be conditioned to return said property to the custody of said officer on the day of trial to abide the judgment of the court. The court upon conviction of the person so arrested shall order the liquor destroyed, and unless good cause to the contrary is shown by the owner, shall order a sale by public auction of the property seized, and the officer making the sale, after deducting the expenses of keeping the property, the fee for the seizure, and the cost of the sale, shall pay all liens, according to their priorities, which are established, by intervention or otherwise at said hearing or in other proceeding brought for said purpose, as being bona fide and as having been created without the lienor having any notice that the carrying vehicle was being used or was to be used for illegal transportation of liquor, and shall pay the balance of the proceeds into the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts. All liens against property sold under the provisions of this section shall be transferred from the property to the proceeds of the sale of the property. If, however, no one shall be found claiming the team, vehicle, water or air craft, or automobile, the taking of the same, with a description thereof, shall be advertised in some newspaper published in the city or county where taken or if there be no newspaper published in such city or county, in a newspaper having circulation in the county, once a week for two weeks and by handbills posted in three public places near the place of seizure, and if no claimant shall appear within ten days after the last publication of the advertisement, the property shall be sold and the proceeds after deducting the expenses and costs shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts. [41 Stat. L. 315.]

SEC. 27. [Disposition of seized liquors.] In all cases in which intoxicating liquors may be subject to be destroyed under the provisions of this Act the court shall have jurisdiction upon the application of the United States attorney to order them delivered to any department or agency of the United States Government for medicinal, mechanical, or scientific uses, or to order the same sold at private sale for such purposes to any person having a permit to purchase liquor the proceeds to be covered into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of miscellaneous receipts, and all liquor heretofore seized in any suit or proceeding brought for violation of law may likewise be so disposed of, if not claimed within sixty days from the date this section takes effect. [41 Stat. L. 316.]

SEC. 28. [Enforcement by Commissioner of Internal Revenue and assistants — power conferred.] The commissioner, his assistants, agents, and inspectors, and all other officers of the United States, whose duty it is to enforce criminal laws, shall have all the power and protection in the enforcement of this Act or any provisions thereof which is conferred by law for the enforcement of existing laws relating to the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors under the law of the United States. [41 Stat. L. 316.]

SEC. 29. [Violations of act — penalties.] Any person who manufactures or sells liquor in violation of this title shall for a first offense be fined not more than $1,000, or imprisoned not exceeding six months, and for a second or subsequent offense shall be fined not less than $200 nor more than $2,000 and be imprisoned not less than one month nor more than five years.

Any person violating the provisions of any permit, or who makes any false record, report, or affidavit required by this title, or violates any of the provisions of this title, for which offense a special penalty is not prescribed, shall be fined for a first offense not more than $500; for a second offense not less than $100 nor more than $1,000 or be imprisoned not more than ninety days; for any subsequent offense he shall be fined not less than $500 and be imprisoned not less than three months nor more than two years. It shall be the duty of the prosecuting officer to ascertain whether the defendant has been previously convicted and to plead the prior conviction in the affidavit, information, or indictment. The penalties provided in this Act against the manufacture of liquor without a permit shall not apply to a person for manufacturing nonintoxicating cider and fruit juices exclusively for use in his home, but such cider and fruit juices shall not be sold or delivered except to persons having permits to manufacture vinegar. [41 Stat. L. 316.]

SEC. 30. [Evidence — witnesses — incriminating testimony.] No person shall be excused, on the ground that it may tend to incriminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture, from attending and testifying, or producing books, papers, documents, and other evidence in obedience to a subpoena of any court in any suit or proceeding based upon or growing out of any alleged violation of this Act; but no natural person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing as to which, in obedience to a subpoena and under oath, he may so testify or produce evidence. but no person shall be exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying. [41 Stat. L. 317.]

SEC. 31. [Unlawful sale of liquor — venue of prosecution.] In case of a sale of liquor where the delivery thereof was made by a common or other carrier the sale and delivery shall be deemed to be made in the county or district wherein the delivery was made by such carrier to the consignee, his agent or employee, or in the county or district wherein the sale was made, or from which the shipment was made, and prosecution for such sale or delivery may be had in any such county or district. [41 Stat. L. 317.]

SEC. 32. [Affidavit, information or indictment — sufficiency — separate offenses — bill of particulars.] In any affidavit, information, or indictment for the violation of this Act, separate offenses may be united in separate counts and the defendant may be tried on all at one trial and the penalty for all offenses may be imposed. It shall not be necessary in any affidavit, information, or indictment to give the name of the purchaser or to include any defensive negative averments, but it shall be sufficient to state that the act complained of was then and there prohibited and unlawful, but this provision shall not be construed to preclude the trial court from directing the furnishing the defendant a bill of particulars when it deems it proper to do so. [41 Stat. L. 317.]

SEC. 33. [Possession of liquor — presumptions arising — report — possession in private dwelling.] After February 1, 1920, the possession of liquors by any person not legally permitted under this title to possess liquor shall be prima facie evidence that such liquor is kept for the purpose of being sold, bartered, exchanged, given away, furnished, or otherwise disposed of in violation of the provisions of this title. Every person legally permitted under this title to have liquor shall report to the commissioner within ten days after the date when the eighteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States goes into effect, the kind and amount of intoxicating liquors in his possession. But it shall not be unlawful to possess liquors in one's private dwelling while the same is occupied and used by him as his dwelling only and such liquor need not be reported, provided such liquors are for use only for the personal consumption of the owner thereof and his family residing in such dwelling and of his bona fide guests when entertained by him therein; and the burden of proof shall be upon the possessor in any action concerning the same to prove that such liquor was lawfully acquired, possessed, and used. [41 Stat. L. 317.]

SEC. 34. [Records and reports — inspection — evidence — copies.] All records and reports kept or filed under the provisions of this Act shall be subject to inspection at any reasonable hour by the commissioner or any of his agents or by any public prosecutor or by any person designated by him, or by any peace officer in the State where the record is kept, and copies of such records and reports duly certified by the person with whom kept or filed may be introduced in evidence with like effect as the originals thereof, and verified copies of such records shall be furnished to the commissioner when called for. [41 Stat. L. 317.]

SEC. 35. [Effect of Act on existing legislation — liquor taxes and penalties — compromising civil causes.] All provisions of law that are inconsistent with this Act are repealed only to the extent of such inconsistency and the regulations herein provided for the manufacture or traffic in intoxicating liquor shall be construed as in addition to existing laws. This Act shall not relieve anyone from paying any taxes or other charges imposed upon the manufacture or traffic in such liquor. No liquor revenue stamps or tax receipts for any illegal manufacture or sale shall be issued in advance, but upon evidence of such illegal manufacture or sale a tax shall be assessed against, and collected from, the person responsible for such illegal manufacture or sale in double the amount now provided by law, with an additional penalty of $500 on retail dealers and $1,000 on manufacturers. The payment of such tax or penalty shall give no right to engage in the manufacture or sale of such liquor, or relieve anyone from criminal liability, nor shall this Act relieve any person from any liability, civil or criminal, heretofore or hereafter incurred under existing laws.

The commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may compromise any civil cause arising under this title before bringing action in court; and with the approval of the Attorney General he may compromise any such cause after action thereon has been commenced. [41 Stat. L. 317.]

SEC. 36. [Invalidity of part of Act—effect as to remainder.] If any provision of this Act shall be held invalid it shall not be construed to invalidate other provisions of the Act. [41 Stat. L. 318.]

SEC. 37. [Effect of Act on liquor already manufactured—manufacture of low per cent. alcoholic beverages—tax.] Nothing herein shall prevent the storage in United States bonded warehouses of all liquor manufactured prior to the taking effect of this Act, or prevent the transportation of such liquor to such warehouses or to any wholesale druggist for sale to such druggist for purposes not prohibited when the tax is paid, and permits may be issued therefor.

A manufacturer of any beverage containing less than one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume may, on making application and giving such bond as the commissioner shall prescribe, be given a permit to develop in the manufacture thereof by the usual methods of fermentation and fortification or otherwise a liquid such as beer, ale, porter, or wine, containing more than one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume, but before any such liquid is withdrawn from the factory or otherwise disposed of the alcoholic contents thereof shall under such rules and regulations as the commissioner may prescribe be reduced below such one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol: Provided, That such liquid may be removed and transported, under bond and under such regulations as the commissioner may prescribe, from one bonded plant or warehouse to another for the purpose of having the alcohol extracted therefrom. And such liquids may be developed, under permit, by persons other than the manufacturers of beverages containing less than one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume, and sold to such manufacturers for conversion into such beverages. The alcohol removed from such liquid, if evaporated and not condensed and saved, shall not be subject to tax; if saved, it shall be subject to the same law as other alcoholic liquors. Credit shall be allowed on the tax due on any alcohol so saved to the amount of any tax paid upon distilled spirits or brandy used in the fortification of the liquor from which the same is saved.

When fortified wines are made and used for the production of nonbeverage alcohol, and dealcoholized wines containing less than one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume, no tax shall be assessed or paid on the spirits used in such fortification, and such dealcoholized wines produced under the provisions of this Act, whether carbonated or not, shall not be subject to the tax on artificially carbonated or sparkling wines, but shall be subject to the tax on still wines only.

In any case where the manufacturer is charged with manufacturing or selling for beverage purposes any malt, vinous, or fermented liquids containing one-half of 1 per centum or more of alcohol by volume, or in any case where the manufacturer, having been permitted by the commissioner to develop a liquid such as ale, beer, porter, or wine containing more than one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume in the manner and for the purpose herein provided, is charged with failure to reduce the alcoholic content of any such liquid below such one-half of 1 per centum before withdrawing the same from the factory, then in either such case the burden of proof shall be on such manufacturer to show that such liquid so manufactured, sold, or withdrawn contains less than one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume. In any suit or proceeding involving the alcoholic content of any beverage, the reasonable expense of analysis of such beverage shall be taxed as costs in the case. [41 Stat. L. 318.]

SEC. 38. [Employees to enforce provisions of Act — appointment — civil service.] The Commissioner of Internal Revenue and the Attorney General of the United States are hereby respectively authorized to appoint and employ such assistants, experts, clerks, and other employees in the District of Columbia or elsewhere, and to purchase such supplies and equipment as they may deem necessary for the enforcement of the provisions of this Act, but such assistants, experts, clerks, and other employees, except such executive officers as may be appointed by the Commissioner or the Attorney General to have immediate direction of the enforcement of the provisions of this Act, and persons authorized to issue permits, and agents and inspectors in the field service, shall be appointed under the rules and regulations prescribed by the Civil Service Act: Provided, That the Commissioner and Attorney General in making such appointments shall give preference to those who have served in the military or naval service in the recent war, if otherwise qualified, and there is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, such sum as may be required for the enforcement of this Act including personal services in the District of Columbia, and for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $2,000,000 for the use of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and $100,000 for the use of the Department of Justice for the enforcement of the provisions of this Act, including personal services in the District of Columbia and necessary printing and binding. [41 Stat. L. 319.]

SEC. 39. [Property of nonviator of Act proceeded against — summons.] In all cases wherein the property of any citizen is proceeded against or wherein a judgment affecting it might be rendered, and the citizen is not the one who in person violated the provisions of the law, summons must be issued in due form and served personally, if said person is to be found within the jurisdiction of the court. [41 Stat. L. 319.]

TITLE III.

INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL.

SEC. 1. [Terms defined — "alcohol" — "container."] When used in this title —

The term "alcohol" means that substance known as ethyl alcohol, hydrated oxide of ethyl, or spirit of wine, from whatever source or whatever processes produced.

The term "container" includes any receptacle, vessel, or form of package, tank, or conduit used or capable of use for holding, storing, transferring, or shipment of alcohol. [41 Stat. L. 319.]

INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL PLANTS AND WAREHOUSES.

SEC. 2. [Alcohol plants — bonding.] Any person now producing alcohol shall, within thirty days after the passage of this Act, make application to the commissioner for registration of his industrial alcohol plant, and as soon thereafter as practicable the premises shall be bonded and permit may issue for the operation of such plant, and any person hereafter establishing a plant for the production of alcohol shall likewise before operation make application, file bond, and receive permit. [41 Stat. L. 319.]

SEC. 3. [Warehouses — bonding — entry, storage and withdrawal of alcohol — regulations.] Warehouses for the storage and distribution of alcohol to be used exclusively for other than beverage purposes may be established upon filing of application and bond, and issuance of permit at such places, either in connection with the manufacturing plant or elsewhere, as the commissioner may determine; and the entry and storage of alcohol therein, and the withdrawals of alcohol therefrom shall be made in such containers and by such means as the commissioner by regulation may prescribe. [41 Stat. L. 319.]

SEC. 4. [Transfer of alcohol from one plant or warehouse to another.] Alcohol produced at any registered industrial alcohol plant or stored in any bonded warehouse may be transferred under regulations to any other registered industrial alcohol plant or bonded warehouse for any lawful purpose. [41 Stat. L. 320.]

SEC. 5. [Taxes on alcohol — lien.] Any tax imposed by law upon alcohol shall attach to such alcohol as soon as it is in existence as such, and all proprietors of industrial alcohol plants and bonded warehouses shall be jointly and severally liable for any and all taxes on any and all alcohol produced thereat or stored therein. Such taxes shall be a first lien on such alcohol and the premises and plant in which such alcohol is produced or stored, together with all improvements and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. [41 Stat. L. 320.]

SEC. 6. [Effect of constitutional amendment on distilled spirits in bonded warehouses — disposition.] Any distilled spirits produced and fit for beverage purposes remaining in any bonded warehouse on or before the date when the eighteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States goes into effect, may, under regulations, be withdrawn therefrom either for denaturation at any bonded denaturing plant or for deposit in a bonded warehouse established under this Act; and when so withdrawn, if not suitable as to proof, purity, or quality for other than beverage purposes, such distilled spirits shall be redistilled, purified, and changed in proof so as to render such spirits suitable for other purposes, and having been so treated may thereafter be denatured or sold in accordance with the provisions of this Act. [41 Stat. L. 320.]

SEC. 7. [Distilleries or bonded warehouses heretofore legally established — disposition.] Any distillery or bonded warehouse heretofore legally established may, upon filing application and bond and the granting of permit, be operated as an industrial alcohol plant or bonded warehouse under the provisions of this title and regulations made thereunder. [41 Stat. L. 320.]

SEC. 8. [Alcohol how made — use and disposition.] Alcohol may be produced at any industrial alcohol plant established under the provisions of this title, from any raw materials or by any processes suitable for the production of alcohol, and, under regulations, may be used at any industrial alcohol plant or bonded warehouse or sold or disposed of for any lawful purpose, as in this Act provided. [41 Stat. L. 320.]

SEC. 9. [Exemption of plants and warehouses from certain statutory provisions.] Industrial alcohol plants and bonded warehouses established under the provisions of this title shall be exempt from the provisions of sections 3154, 3244, 3258, 3259, 3260, 3263, 3264, 3266, 3267, 3268, 3269, 3271, 3273, 3274, 3275, 3279, 3280, 3283, 3284, 3285, 3286, 3287, 3288, 3289, 3290, 3291, 3292, 3293, 3294, 3295, 3302, 3303, 3307, 3308, 3309, 3310, 3311, 3312, 3313, 3314, and 3327 of the Revised Statutes; sections 48 to 60, inclusive, and sections 62 and 67 of the Act of August 27, 1894 (Twenty-eighth Statutes, pages 563 to 568), and from such other provisions of existing laws relating to distilleries and bonded warehouses as may, by regulations, be declared inapplicable to industrial alcohol plants and bonded warehouses established under this Act.

Regulations may be made embodying any provision of the sections above enumerated. [41 Stat. L. 320.]

See the title INTERNAL REVENUE in 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 954, 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 540, for the statutes mentioned in the text.

TAX-FREE ALCOHOL.

SEC. 10. [Denaturing plants — establishment — sale of denatured alcohol tax-free — distilled vinegar.] Upon the filing of application and bond and issuance of permit denaturing plants may be established upon the premises of any industrial alcohol plant, or elsewhere, and shall be used exclusively for the denaturation of alcohol by the admixture of such denaturing materials as shall render the alcohol, or any compound in which it is authorized to be used, unfit for use as an intoxicating beverage.

Alcohol lawfully denatured may, under regulations, be sold free of tax either for domestic use or for export.

Nothing in this Act shall be construed to require manufacturers of distilled vinegar to raise the proof of any alcohol used in such manufacture or to denature the same. [41 Stat. L. 320.]

SEC. 11. [Withdrawals of alcohol tax free.] Alcohol produced at any industrial alcohol plant or stored in any bonded warehouse may, under regulations, be withdrawn tax free as provided by existing law from such plant or warehouse for transfer to any denaturing plant for denaturation, or may, under regulations, before or after denaturation, be removed from any such plant or warehouse for any lawful tax-free purpose.

Spirits of less proof than one hundred and sixty degrees may, under regulations, be deemed to be alcohol for the purpose of denaturation, under the provisions of this title.

Alcohol may be withdrawn, under regulations, from any industrial plant or bonded warehouse tax free by the United States or any governmental agency thereof, or by the several States and Territories or any municipal subdivision thereof or by the District of Columbia, or for the use of any scientific university or college of learning, any laboratory for use exclusively in scientific research, or for use in any hospital or sanatorium.

But any person permitted to obtain alcohol tax free, except the United States and the several States and Territories and subdivisions thereof, and the District of Columbia, shall first apply for and secure a permit to purchase the same and give the bonds prescribed under title II of this Act, but alcohol withdrawn for nonbeverage purposes for the use of the United States and the several States, Territories and subdivisions thereof, and the District of Columbia may be purchased and withdrawn subject only to such regulations as may be prescribed. [41 Stat. L. 321.]

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

SEC. 12. [Additional penalties.] The penalties provided in this title shall be in addition to any penalties provided in title 2 of this Act, unless expressly otherwise therein provided. [41 Stat. L. 321.]

SEC. 13. [Regulations by Commissioner of Internal Revenue.] The commissioner shall from time to time issue regulations respecting the establishment, bonding, and operation of industrial alcohol plants, denaturing plants, and bonded warehouses authorized herein, and the distribution, sale, export, and use of alcohol which may be necessary, advisable, or proper, to secure the revenue, to prevent diversion of the alcohol to illegal uses, and to place the nonbeverage alcohol industry and other industries using such alcohol as a chemical raw material or for other lawful purpose upon the highest possible plane of scientific and commercial efficiency consistent with the interests of the Government, and which shall insure an ample supply of such alcohol and promote its use in scientific research and the development of fuels, dyes, and other lawful products. [41 Stat. L. 321.]

SEC. 14. [Loss of alcohol by evaporation, etc.—refund of tax.] Whenever any alcohol is lost by evaporation or other shrinkage, leakage, casualty, or unavoidable cause during distillation, redistillation, denaturation, withdrawal, piping, shipment, warehousing, storage, packing, transfer, or recovery, of any such alcohol the commissioner may remit or refund any tax incurred under existing law upon such alcohol, provided he is satisfied that the alcohol has not been diverted to any illegal use: Provided, also, That such allowance shall not be granted if the person claiming same is indemnified against such loss by a valid claim of insurance. [41 Stat. L. 321.]

SEC. 15. [Operators of industrial alcohol or denaturing plants — violation of laws and regulations — penalty.] Whoever operates an industrial alcohol plant or a denaturing plant without complying with the provisions of this title and lawful regulations made thereunder, or whoever withdraws or attempts to withdraw or secure tax free any alcohol subject to tax, or whoever otherwise violates any of the provisions of this title or of regulations lawfully made thereunder shall be liable, for the first offense, to a penalty of not exceeding $1,000, or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, or both, and for a second or cognate offense to a penalty of not less than $100 nor more than $10,000, and to imprisonment of not less than thirty days nor more than one year. It shall be lawful for the commissioner in all cases of second or cognate offense to refuse to issue for a period of one year a permit for the manufacture or use of alcohol upon the premises of any person responsible in any degree for the violation. [41 Stat. L. 321.]

SEC. 16. [Collection of taxes — assessment or stamp.] Any tax payable upon alcohol under existing law may be collected either by assessment or by stamp as regulations shall provide; and if by stamp, regulations shall issue prescribing the kind of stamp to be used and the manner of affixing and canceling the same. [41 Stat. L. 322.]

SEC. 17. [Release of seized property.] When any property is seized for violation of this title it may be released to the claimant or to any intervening party, in the discretion of the commissioner, on a bond given and approved. [41 Stat. L. 322.]

SEC. 18. [Application of administrative laws to this title.] All administrative provisions of internal-revenue law, including those relating to assessment, collection, abatement, and refund of taxes and penalties, and the seizure and forfeiture of property, are made applicable to this title in so far as they are not inconsistent with the provisions thereof. [41 Stat. L. 322.]

SEC. 19. [Prior statutes relating to alcohol — repeal.] All prior statutes relating to alcohol as defined in this title are hereby repealed in so far as they are inconsistent with the provisions of this title. [41 Stat. L. 322.]

SEC. 20. [Canal Zone — prohibition extended to — offenses.] That it shall be unlawful to import or introduce into the Canal Zone, or to manufacture, sell, give away, dispose of, transport, or have in one's possession or under one's control within the Canal Zone, any alcoholic, fermented, brewed, distilled, vinous, malt, or spirituous liquors, except for sacramental, scientific, pharmaceutical, industrial, or medicinal purposes, under regulations to be made by the President, and any such liquors within the Canal Zone in violation hereof shall be forfeited to the United States and seized: Provided, That this section shall not apply to liquor in transit through the Panama Canal or on the Panama Railroad.

That each and every violation of any of the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment not exceeding six months for a first offense, and by a fine not less than $200 nor more than $2,000 and imprisonment not less than one month nor more than five years for a second or subsequent offense.

That all offenses heretofore committed within the Canal Zone may be prosecuted and all penalties therefor enforced in the same manner and to the same extent as if this Act had not been passed. [41 Stat. L. 322.]

SEC. 21. [Act when in effect.] Titles I and III and sections 1, 27, 37, and 38 of title II of this Act shall take effect and be in force from and after the passage and approval of the Act. The other sections of title II shall take effect and be in force from and after the date when the eighteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States goes into effect. [41 Stat. L. 322.]

An Act To fix the salaries of the clerks of the United States district courts and to provide for their office expenses, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [United States district courts — clerks — appointment — fees and emoluments— salaries.] That on and after the first day of July, nineteen hundred and eighteen, all clerks of United States district courts shall be appointed by the judge for the district, or the senior judge if there be more than one judge in the district, subject to the approval of the senior circuit judge for the circuit in which the district is situated, and all fees and emoluments authorized by law to be paid to the clerks of the United States district courts, except the clerks of the district courts of Alaska, shall be charged as heretofore and shall be collected, as far as possible, and paid into the Treasury of the United States in such manner and at such times as hereinafter provided; and such clerks shall be paid, in lieu of the fees and emoluments now allowed by law, an annual salary as hereinafter provided: Provided, That this section shall not be construed to require or authorize fees to be charged or collected from the United States. [40 Stat. L. 1182.]

SEC. 2. [Salaries of clerks — amount.] That the clerk of the United States district court for each of the judicial districts of the United States, except the clerks of the district courts of Alaska, shall be paid, in lieu of the fees, salaries, and per centum now allowed by law, an annual salary to be fixed by the Attorney General at not less than $2,500 nor more than $5,000, based in each instance upon the amount of business transacted by the court and the fees and the emoluments received by the clerks in the four years last preceding. [40 Stat. L. 1182.]

SEC. 3. [Allowances to clerks — traveling expenses.] That when any clerk of a district court is necessarily absent from his official residence on any official business he shall be allowed his actual traveling expenses only and his necessary and actual expenses for lodging and subsistence, the latter not to exceed $4 per day. [40 Stat. L. 1182.]

SEC. 4. [Deputies and clerical assistants to clerks.] That when, in the opinion of the Attorney General, the public interest requires it he may, on the recommendation of the clerk of a district court, which recommendation shall state facts (as distinguished from conclusions) showing necessity for the same, allow such clerk to employ necessary deputies and clerical assistants, upon compensation to be fixed by the Attorney General from time to time and paid as herein-after provided.

When any such deputy or clerical assistant is necessarily absent from the place of his regular employment on official business he shall be allowed his actual traveling expenses only and his necessary and actual expenses for lodging and subsistence, the latter not to exceed $3 per day. [40 Stat. L. 1182.]

SEC. 5. [Office expenses — allowance.] That the necessary office expenses of the clerks of the district courts of the United States shall be allowed when authorized by the Attorney General. [40 Stat. L. 1182.]

SEC. 6. [Salaries when payable.] That the salaries of the clerks, deputy clerks, and clerical assistants to the clerks of the district courts shall be paid monthly by the marshals of the respective districts. [40 Stat. L. 1182.]

SEC. 7. [Expense accounts of clerks, etc.— payment.] That the expense accounts of clerks of the United States district courts, when made out and verified, and the expense accounts of their deputy clerks and clerical assistants, when made out and certified as correct by the clerk of such court, covering the necessary expenses incurred by such clerk, deputy clerk, or clerical assistants when necessarily absent from the place of regular employment on official business, shall be paid by the marshal, who shall include them in his accounts with the United States. [40 Stat. L. 1182.]

SEC. 8. [Necessary office expenses of clerk — payment.] That the necessary office expenses of the clerk of the United States district court, as allowed and authorized by the Attorney General, shall be paid by the marshal and included in his accounts with the United States. [40 Stat. L. 1182.]

SEC. 9. [Fees and disbursements — quarterly accounting — auditing accounts — disposition of amount returned.] That the clerk of every district court, except the clerks of the district courts of Alaska, shall account quarterly for all the fees and emoluments earned during the quarter last preceding such accounting, except where the person requiring the services is relieved by law from prepayment of fees and costs, and for all fees and emoluments received within the quarter which had been earned prior thereto. Such accounting shall be in writing and shall be made to the Attorney General, in such form as he may prescribe, on the first days of January, April, July, and October in each year, or within twenty days thereafter, and shall include all moneys received in connection with the admission of attorneys to practice in the court, all that portion retained by the clerk of moneys received for services in naturalization proceedings in whatever capacity rendered, and all other amounts received for services in any way connected with the clerk's office. Such accounts shall be made in duplicate and be verified by the oath of the officer making them. The Attorney General shall cause each such return or account to be carefully examined by the proper officer of the Department of Justice and shall approve the same as he may deem just and proper, and shall transmit it with his approval to the Auditor for the State and Other Departments, by whom an account shall be stated against the officer rendering such return or account. Immediately upon receipt of notice from the auditor, or within ten days thereafter, the clerk shall deposit to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States the amount so stated against him. [40 Stat. L. 1183.]

An Act To increase the salary of the United States district attorney for the district of Connecticut.

[Connecticut—salary of district attorney.] That from and after the passage of this Act the salary of the United States district attorney for the district of Connecticut shall be at the rate of $4,500 a year. [40 Stat. L. 1183.]

---

* * * [United States Court for China—expenses of court and district attorney.] The judge of the said court and the district attorney shall, when the sessions of the court are held at other cities than Shanghai, receive in addition to their salaries their necessary actual expenses during such sessions, not to exceed $8 per day each, and so much as may be necessary for said purposes during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, is hereby appropriated. [40 Stat. L. 1331.]

This is from Diplomatic and Consular Service Appropriation Act of March 4, 1919, ch. 123, following an appropriation for the United States Court for China. Similar provisions have appeared in like Acts for preceding years.

[SEC. 1.] * * * [Marshals and deputy marshals—per diem in lieu of subsistence.] That marshals and office deputy marshals (except in the District of Alaska) may be granted a per diem of not to exceed $4 and $3, respectively, in lieu of subsistence, instead of, but under the conditions prescribed for, the present allowance for actual expenses of subsistence. [41 Stat. L. 209.]

This and the following five paragraphs are from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 19, 1919, ch. 24.

A like provision to the one above was contained in the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 1, 1918, and will be found in 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 398.

* * * [District attorneys and assistants — per diem in lieu of subsistence.] That United States district attorneys and their regular assistants may be granted a per diem of not to exceed $4 in lieu of subsistence, instead of, but under the conditions prescribed for, the present allowance for actual expenses of subsistence. [41 Stat. L. 209.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 19, 1919, ch. 24.

* * * [District of Columbia — office of district attorney.] From and after July 1, 1919, sections 6, 8, 13, 14, 15, 16, and 18 of the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation Act, approved May 28, 1896, shall be applicable to the office of the district attorney for the District of Columbia and his assistants. Certificates to the effect that the public interest requires the appointment of assistants to the said district attorney shall be made by the chief justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia and the district attorney. The district attorney shall be paid a salary of $6,000 per annum in full compensation for all his official services and his principal assistant shall be paid a salary not in excess of $4,000 per annum, as the Attorney General may from time to time determine. [41 Stat. L. 209.]

* * * [Assistant district attorneys — compensation.] That except as otherwise prescribed by law the compensation of such of the assistant district attorneys authorized by section 8 of the act approved May 28, 1896, as the Attorney General may deem necessary, may be fixed at not exceeding $3,000 per annum. [41 Stat. L. 209.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 19, 1919, ch. 24.

For Act of May 28, 1896, sec. 8, mentioned in the text, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 622; 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 71.

A like provision to the one above was contained in the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 1, 1918, and will be found in 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 398.

* * * [Clerks of circuit courts of appeal — allowance for travel expenses.] That after July 1, 1919, only actual expenses of travel and expenses of lodging and subsistence, not to exceed $5 per day, shall be allowed any clerk of a United States circuit court of appeals when absent from his official residence on official business. [41 Stat. L. 210.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 19, 1919, ch. 24.

* * * [Criers and bailiffs — attendance — vacation.] That all persons employed under section 715 of the Revised Statutes shall be deemed to be in actual attendance when they attend upon the order of the courts: Provided further, That no such persons shall be employed during vacation. [41 Stat. L. 210.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 19, 1919, ch. 24.

An Act To amend an Act entitled “An Act to codify, revise, and amend the laws relating to the judiciary,” approved March third, nineteen hundred and eleven.

[SEC. 1.] [Salary of district judge — Jud. Code, sec. 2 amended.] That section two of the Act entitled “An Act to codify, revise, and amend the laws relating to the judiciary,” approved March third, nineteen hundred and eleven, be, and the same hereby is, amended so as to read as follows:

“SEC. 2. Each of the district judges, including the judges in Porto Rico, Hawaii, and Alaska exercising Federal jurisdiction, shall receive a salary of $7,500 a year, to be paid in monthly installments.” [40 Stat. L. 1156.]

For sec. 2, here amended, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 816; 1912 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 133.

SEC. 2. [Circuit judges — number — appointment — salary — residence — duty to sit in Circuit Court of Appeals — Jud. Code, sec. 118, amended.] That section one hundred and eighteen of the Act aforesaid be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 118. There shall be in the second, seventh, and eighth circuits, respectively, four circuit judges; in the fourth circuit, two circuit judges; and in each of the other circuits, three circuit judges, to be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. All circuit judges shall receive a salary of $8,500 a year each, payable monthly. Each circuit judge shall reside within his circuit. The circuit judges in each circuit shall be judges of the circuit court of appeals in that circuit, and it shall be the duty of each circuit judge in each circuit to sit as one of the judges of the circuit court of appeals in that circuit from time to time according to law: Provided, That nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent any circuit judge holding district court or otherwise, as provided for and authorized in other sections of this Act." [40 Stat. L. 1156.]

SEC. 3. [Judges of District of Columbia — salaries.] That the judges of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia shall receive salaries the same as salaries provided by this Act to be paid to judges of district courts of the United States, and such salaries shall be paid as now provided by law. The judges of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia shall receive salaries the same as the salaries provided by this Act to be paid to judges of the circuit court of appeals of the United States, and such salaries shall be paid as now provided by law. [40 Stat. L. 1157.]

SEC. 4. [Court of claims — appointment, oath, and salary of judges— Jud. Code, sec. 136 amended.] That section one hundred and thirty-six of the Act aforesaid be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

" SEC. 136. The Court of Claims established by Act of February twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and fifty-five, shall be continued. It shall consist of a Chief Justice and four judges, who shall be appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and hold their offices during good behavior. Each of them shall take an oath to support the Constitution of the United States and to discharge faithfully the duties of his office. The Chief Justice shall be entitled to receive an annual salary of $8,000, and each of the other judges an annual salary of $7,500, payable monthly from the Treasury." [40 Stat. L. 1157.]

SEC. 5. [United States Court of Customs Appeal — salary of judges.] That the judges of the United States Court of Customs Appeal shall receive salaries equal in amount to the salaries provided by this Act to be paid judges of the Circuit Court of Appeals of the United States, payable monthly from the Treasury. [40 Stat. L. 1157.]

SEC. 6. [Resignation or retirement from active service of judges — continuance of salary — additional judges — vacancies — Jud. Code, sec. 260 amended.] That section two hundred and sixty of the Act aforesaid be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

" SEC. 260. That when any judge of any court of the United States, appointed to hold his office during good behavior, resigns his office after having held a commission or commissions as judge of any such court or courts at least ten years continuously, and having attained the age of seventy years, he shall, during the residue of his natural life, receive the salary which is payable at the time of his resignation for the office that he held at the time of his resignation. But, instead of resigning, any judge other than a justice of the Supreme Court, who is qualified to resign under the foregoing provisions, may retire, upon the salary of which he is then in receipt, from regular active service on the bench, and the President shall thereupon be authorized to appoint a successor; but a judge so retiring may nevertheless be called upon by the senior circuit judge of that circuit and be by him authorized to perform such judicial duties in such circuit as such retired judge may be willing to undertake, or he may be called upon by the Chief Justice and be by him authorized to perform such judicial duties in any other circuit as such retired judge may be willing to undertake, or he may be called upon either by the presiding judge or senior judge of any other such court and be by him authorized to perform such judicial duties in such court as such retired judge may be willing to undertake.

“In the event any circuit judge, or district judge, having so held a commission or commissions at least ten years continuously, and having attained the age of seventy years as aforesaid, shall nevertheless remain in office, and not resign or retire as aforesaid, the President, if he finds that any such judge is unable to discharge efficiently all the duties of his office by reason of mental or physical disability of permanent character, may, when necessary for the efficient dispatch of business, appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, an additional circuit judge of the circuit or district judge of the district to which such disabled judge belongs. And the judge so retiring voluntarily, or whose mental or physical condition caused the President to appoint an additional judge, shall be held and treated as if junior in commission to the remaining judges of said court, who shall, in the order of the seniority of their respective commissions, exercise such powers and perform such duties as by law may be incident to seniority. In districts where there may be more than one district judge, if the judges or a majority of them can not agree upon the appointment of officials of the court, to be appointed by such judges, then the senior judge shall have the power to make such appointments.

“Upon the death, resignation, or retirement of any circuit or district judge, so entitled to resign, following the appointment of any additional judge as provided in this section, the vacancy caused by such death, resignation, or retirement of the said judge so entitled to resign shall not be filled.” [40 Stat. L. 1157.]

For sec. 260, here amended, see 5 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 926; 1912 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 241.

SEC. 7. [Act when in effect.] That this Act shall take effect and be in force on and after the first day of the month next following its approval. [40 Stat. L. 1158.]

Joint Resolution Providing that one term of the United States District Court for the Eastern Judicial District of Oklahoma shall be held annually at Hugo, Oklahoma.

[Res. of Feb. 26, 1919, No. 53, ch. 54, 40 Stat. L. 1184.]

[Oklahoma — terms of district court — place of holding.] That one term of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Oklahoma shall be held each year on the second Monday in May at Hugo, in said State and district, and all Acts and parts of Acts not in accordance herewith are hereby modified in accordance with the provisions of this Act: Provided, That suitable quarters for holding said court shall be furnished without expense to the Government. [40 Stat. L. 1184.]

An Act To amend section two hundred and sixty-nine of the Act of March third, nineteen hundred and eleven, entitled "An Act to codify, revise, and amend the laws relating to the judiciary."

[New trials — judgment on appeal, certiorari, error, or motion for new trial — technical errors, defects or exceptions — Jud. Code, sec. 269 amended.] That section two hundred and sixty-nine of the Act approved March third, nineteen hundred and eleven, entitled "An Act to codify, revise, and amend the laws relating to the judiciary," be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 269. All of the said courts shall have power to grant new trials, in cases where there has been a trial by jury, for reasons for which new trials have usually been granted in the courts of law. On the hearing of any appeal, certiorari, writ of error, or motion for a new trial, in any case, civil or criminal, the court shall give judgment after an examination of the entire record before the court, without regard to technical errors, defects, or exceptions which do not affect the substantial rights of the parties." [40 Stat. L. 1181.]

Failure to take exceptions to remarks of counsel.—By virtue of this amendment a judgment will be reversed for error committed by an assistant United States attorney in his argument to the jury although there were no exceptions taken at the trial to such arguments. August v. U. S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir.) 257 Fed. 388, wherein the court said: "We think, whatever may be our power otherwise, or our inclination to exercise it, the late amendment to section 269, Judicial Code (Act March 3, 1911, c. 231, 36 Stat. L. 1163, as amended by Act Feb. 26, 1919, c. 48), fully authorizes and commands us to look to the entire record before the court, and render judgment without regard to the technical error of the want of exceptions to the remark of counsel."

Technical error in sentence.—In Shore v. Splain, (Ct. of App. D. C. 1919) 258 Fed. 150, an application for a writ of habeas corpus to secure the release of a person on the ground that a sentence under which he was imprisoned was defective because pronounced by a judge who had no authority to pronounce it, was refused. It appeared that the judge was a municipal court judge and had been designated to sit temporarily as a police court judge, but that at the time of the pronouncement of the sentence the regular judge was back exercising his functions. The court held that the objection to the sentence savored of a technicality involving no substantial right and was cured by this statutory amendment.

Defect in pleading.—An indictment under the Harrison Narcotic Drug Act which failed to negative exceptions peculiarly within the defendant's own knowledge was held sufficient in view of this statutory amendment, a criticism on the ground of the failure to negative the exceptions being considered technical, unsubstantial and unprejudicial. Stetson v. U. S., (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1919) 257 Fed. 9.

Exclusion of evidence.—A nonprejudicial ruling of a trial judge excluding evidence is not ground for a reversal by virtue of the amendment. Thompson v. U. S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1919) 258 Fed. 196.

Variance as to person administering oath in perjury charge.—In West v. U. S., (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1919) 258 Fed. 413, which was a prosecution for perjury, it was held that if the facts showed a variance between the proof and the indictment as to who administered the oath, the variance was immaterial and nonprejudicial and covered by the amendment of the Judicial Code.

The "record" to which the act refers is that which is legally the record, and in examining that the court is to disregard "technical errors, defects or exceptions which do not affect the substantial rights of the parties." But matters which could not have been regarded as in the record prior to the passage of the act are not held to be in the record since the passage of the act. Thus the testimony, the charge and refusal of requests to charge are not in the record although they may be found in the transcript, unless they have been put in the record by a bill of exceptions. Buessel v. U. S., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1919) 258 Fed. 811, wherein the court said: "We are not prepared to say that it was the intention of Congress, by the act recently passed, to make bills of exceptions no longer necessary, and that hereafter we are to hold that any matter found in the transcript is to be regarded as in the record, even though the trial judge has not examined and certified to its correctness by putting his signature to a bill of exceptions. We do not think that such could have been the intention."

An Act Providing for the appointment of an additional district judge for the northern judicial district of the State of Texas.

[SEC. 1.] [Texas — northern district — additional district judge.] That the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint an additional judge of the district court of the United States for the northern judicial district of the State of Texas, who shall possess the same powers, perform the same duties, and receive the same compensation and allowance as the present judge of said district. [40 Stat. L. 1183.]

SEC. 2. [Death or resignation of senior judge — filling vacancy.] That whenever a vacancy shall occur in the office of the district judge for the northern district of Texas senior in commission such vacancy shall not be filled, and thereafter there shall be but one district judge in said district. [40 Stat. L. 1183.]

An Act To protect the lives and health and morals of women and minor workers in the District of Columbia, and to establish a Minimum Wage Board, and define its powers and duties, and to provide for the fixing of minimum wages for such workers, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [Women and minor workers — minimum wage — District of Columbia.] That where used in this Act —

The term "Board" means the Minimum Wage Board created by section two;

The term "Commissioners" means the Commissioners of the District of Columbia;

The term "woman" includes only a woman of eighteen years of age or over;

The term "minor" means a person of either sex under the age of eighteen years;

The term "occupation" includes a business, industry, trade, or branch thereof, but shall not include domestic service. [40 Stat. L. 960.]

SEC. 2. ["Minimum Wage Board" — creation — membership — quorum — vacancies.] That there is hereby created a Board to be known as the "Minimum Wage Board," to be composed of three members to be appointed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. As far as practicable, the members shall be so chosen that one will be representative of employees, one representative of employers, and one representing the public.

The Commissioners shall make their first appointments hereunder within thirty days after this Act takes effect, and shall designate one of the three members first appointed to hold office until January first, nineteen hundred and nineteen; one to hold office until January first, nineteen hundred and twenty; and one to hold office until January first, nineteen hundred and twenty-one. On or before the first day of January of each year, beginning with the year nineteen hundred and nineteen, the Commissioners shall appoint a member to succeed the member whose term expires on such first day of January, and such new appointee shall hold office for the term of three years from such first day of January. Each member shall hold office until his successor is appointed and has qualified; and any vacancy that may occur in the membership of the Board shall be filled by appointment by the Commissioners for the unexpired portion of the term.

A majority of the members shall constitute a quorum to transact business, and the act or decision of such a majority shall be deemed the act or decision of the Board; and no vacancy shall impair the right of the remaining members to exercise all the powers of the Board. [40 Stat. L. 961.]

SEC. 3. [Chairman of Board — secretary — salaries.] That the first members appointed shall, within twenty days after their appointment, meet and organize the Board by electing one of their number as chairman and by choosing a secretary, who shall not be a member of the Board; and on or before the tenth day of January of each year thereafter the Board shall elect a chairman and choose a secretary for the ensuing year. The chairman and the secretary shall each hold office until his successor is elected or chosen; but the Board may at any time remove the secretary. The secretary shall perform such duties as may be prescribed and receive such salary, not in excess of $2,500 per annum, as may be fixed by the Board. None of the members shall receive any salary as such. The Board shall have power to employ agents and such other assistants as may be necessary for the proper performance of its duties: Provided, That until further authorization by Congress, the sum which it may expend, including the salary of the secretary, shall not exceed the sum of $5,000. [40 Stat. L. 961.]

SEC. 4. [Hearings by Board — witnesses — evidence — subpoenas.] That at any public hearing held by the Board any person interested in the matter being investigated may appear and testify. Any member of the Board shall have power to administer oaths and the Board may require by subpoena the attendance and testimony of witnesses, the production of all books, registers and other evidence relative to any matters under investigation, at any such public hearing or at any session of any conference held as hereinafter provided. In case of disobedience to a subpoena the Board may invoke the aid of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of documentary evidence. In case of contumacy or refusal to obey a subpoena the court may issue an order requiring appearance before the Board, the production of documentary evidence, and the giving of evidence touching the matter in question, and any failure to obey such order of the court may be punished by such court as a contempt thereof. [40 Stat. L. 961.]

SEC. 5. [Rules and regulations.] That the Board is hereby authorized and empowered to make rules and regulations for the carrying into effect of this Act, including rules and regulations for the selection of members of the conferences hereinafter provided for and the mode of procedure thereof. [40 Stat. L. 962.]

SEC. 6. [Reports by Board.] That the Board shall, on or before the first day of January of the year nineteen hundred and nineteen, and of each year thereafter, make a report to the Commissioners of its work and the proceedings under this Act. [40 Stat. L. 962.]

SEC. 7. [Appropriations to cover expenses.] That there is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of the revenues of the District of Columbia, for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, the sum of $5,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to carry into effect the provisions of this Act. [40 Stat. L. 962.]

SEC. 8. [Powers of Board — investigations — ascertainment of wages in different occupations — information by employers.] That the Board shall have full power and authority: (1), To investigate and ascertain the wages of women and minors in the different occupations in which they are employed in the District of Columbia; (2), to examine, through any member or authorized representative, any book, pay roll or other record of any employer of women or minors that in any way appertains to or has a bearing upon the question of wages of any such women or minors; and (3), to require from such employer full and true statements of the wages paid to all women and minors in his employment.

Every employer shall keep a register of the names of the women and minors employed by him in any occupation in the District of Columbia, of the hours worked by each, and of all payments made to each, whether paid by the time or by the piece; and shall, on request, permit any member or authorized representative of the Board to examine such register.

To assist the Board in carrying out this Act the Commissioners shall at all times give it any information or statistics in their possession under the Act of Congress approved February twenty-fourth, nineteen hundred and fourteen, entitled "An Act to regulate the hours of employment and safeguard the health of females employed in the District of Columbia." (Public, numbered sixty, Sixty-third Congress.) [40 Stat. L. 962.]

SEC. 9. [Standards of minimum wages declared.] That the Board is hereby authorized and empowered to ascertain and declare, in the manner hereinafter provided, the following things: (a), Standards of minimum wages for women in any occupation within the District of Columbia, and what wages are inadequate to supply the necessary cost of living to any such women workers to maintain them in good health and to protect their morals; and (b), standards of minimum wages for minors in any occupation within the District of Columbia, and what wages are unreasonably low for any such minor workers. [40 Stat. L. 962.]

SEC. 10. [Conference — creation — membership — powers.] That if, after investigation, the Board is of opinion that any substantial number of women workers in any occupation are receiving wages inadequate to supply them with the necessary cost of living and maintain them in health and protect their morals, it may call and convene a conference for the purpose and with the powers of considering and inquiring into and reporting on the subject investigated by the Board and submitted by it to such conference. The conference shall be composed of not more than three representatives of the employers in such occupation, of an equal number of representatives of the employees in such occupation, of not more than three disinterested persons representing the public, and of one or more members of the Board. The Board shall name and appoint all the members of the conference and designate the chairman thereof. Two-thirds of the members of the conference shall constitute a quorum, and the decision or recommendation or report of the conference on any subject submitted shall require a vote of not less than a majority of all its members.

The Board shall present to the conference all the information and evidence in its possession or control relating to the subject of the inquiry by the conference, and shall cause to be brought before the conference any witnesses whose testimony the Board deems material. [40 Stat. L. 962.]

SEC. 11. [Recommendations and reports of conference.] That after completing its consideration of and inquiry into the subject submitted to it by the Board, the conference shall make and transmit to the Board a report containing its findings and recommendations on such subject, including recommendations as to standards of minimum wages for women workers in the occupation under inquiry and as to what wages are inadequate to supply the necessary cost of living to women workers in such occupation and to maintain them in health and to protect their morals.

In its recommendations on a question of wages the conference (1) shall, where it appears that any substantial number of women workers in the occupation under inquiry are being paid by piece rates as distinguished from time rate, recommend minimum piece rates as well as minimum time rate and recommend such minimum piece rates as will, in its judgment, be adequate to supply the necessary cost of living to women workers in such occupation of average ordinary ability and to maintain them in health and protect their morals; and (2) shall, when it appears proper or necessary, recommend suitable minimum wages for learners and apprentices in such occupation and the maximum length of time any woman worker may be kept at such wages as a learner or apprentice, which wages shall be less than the regular minimum wages recommended for the regular women workers in such occupation. [40 Stat. L. 963.]

SEC. 12. [Consideration of conference reports by Board — enforcement of recommendations.] That, upon receipt of any report from any conference, the Board shall consider and review the recommendations, and may approve or disapprove any or all of such recommendations, and may resubmit to the same conference, or a new conference, any subject covered by any recommendations so disapproved.

If the Board approves any recommendations contained in any report from any conference, it shall publish a notice, once a week, for four successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation printed in the District of Columbia, that it will, on a date and at a place named in the notice, hold a public hearing at which all persons in favor of or opposed to such recommendations will be heard.

After such hearing the Board may, in its discretion, make and render such an order as may be proper or necessary to adopt such recommendations and carry them into effect, requiring all employers in the occupation affected thereby to observe and comply with such order. Such order shall become effective sixty days after it is made. After such order becomes effective, and while it is effective, it shall be unlawful for any employer to violate or disregard any of its terms or provisions, or to employ any woman worker in any occupation covered by such order at lower wages than are authorized or permitted therein.

The Board shall, as far as is practicable, mail a copy of such order to every employer affected thereby; and every employer affected by any such order shall keep a copy thereof posted in a conspicuous place in each room in his establishment in which women workers are employed. [40 Stat. L. 963.]

SEC. 13. [Physical capacity of worker impaired by age — wages.] That for any occupation in which only a minimum time-rate wage has been established, the Board may issue to a woman whose earning capacity has been impaired by age or otherwise, a special license authorizing her employment at such wage less than such minimum time-rate wage as shall be fixed by the Board and stated in the license. [40 Stat. L. 963.]

SEC. 14. [Inquiry into wages of minors — orders affecting — enforcement.] That the Board may at any time inquire into wages of minors employed in any occupation in the District of Columbia, and determine suitable wages for them. When the Board has made such determination it may make such an order as may be proper or necessary to carry such determination into effect. Such order shall become effective sixty days after it is made; and after such order becomes effective and while it is effective it shall be unlawful for any employer in such occupation to employ a minor at less wages than are specified or required in or by such order. [40 Stat. L. 963.]

SEC. 15. [Separate inquiries by conference.] That any conference may make a separate inquiry into and report on any branch of any occupation, and the Board may make a separate order affecting any branch of any occupation. [40 Stat. L. 964.]

SEC. 16. [Reports of violations of Act.] That the Board shall from time to time investigate and ascertain whether or not employers in the District of Columbia are observing and complying with its orders, and shall report to the corporation counsel of the District of Columbia all violations of this Act. [40 Stat. L. 964.]

SEC. 17. [Questions of fact — determination by Board — appeals.] That all questions of fact arising under the foregoing provisions of this Act shall, except as otherwise herein provided, be determined by the Board, and there shall be no appeal from the decision of the Board on any such question of fact; but there shall be a right of appeal from the Board to the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia from any ruling or holding on a question of law included or embodied in any decision or order of the Board; and, on the same question of law, from such court to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia. In all such appeals the corporation counsel shall appear for and represent the Board. [40 Stat. L. 964.]

SEC. 18. [Violations of Act — punishment.] That whoever violates this Act, whether an employer or his agent, or the director, officer, or agent of any corporation, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor; and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100, or by imprisonment not less than ten days nor more than three months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [40 Stat. L. 964.]

SEC. 19. [Discharge of or discrimination against employees by employers — penalties.] That any employer and his agent, or the director, officer, or agent of any corporation, who discharges or in any other manner discriminates against any employee because such employee has served or is about to serve on any conference, or has testified or is about to testify, or because such employer believes that said employee may serve on any conference or may testify in any investigation or proceedings under or relative to this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor; and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100. [40 Stat. L. 964.]

SEC. 20. [Violations by agents of employers — liability of employers.] That any act which, if done or omitted to be done by any agent or officer or director acting for such employer, would constitute a violation of this Act, shall also be held to be a violation by the employer and subject such employer to the liability provided for by this Act. [40 Stat. L. 964.]

SEC. 21. [Prosecutions for violations — venue — procedure.] That prosecutions for violations of this Act shall be on information filed in the police court of the District of Columbia by the corporation counsel. [40 Stat. L. 964.]

SEC. 22. [Failure of employer to pay minimum wage—penalty.] That if any woman worker is paid by her employer less than the minimum wage to which she is entitled under or by virtue of an order of the Board, she may recover in a civil action the full amount of such minimum wage, less any amount actually paid to her by the employer, together with such reasonable attorney's fees as may be allowed by the court; and any agreement for her to work for less than such minimum wage shall be no defense to such action. [40 Stat. L. 964.]

SEC. 23. [Name of Act—purpose.] That this Act shall be known as the "District of Columbia minimum-wage law." The purposes of the Act are to protect the women and minors of the District from conditions detrimental to their health and morals, resulting from wages which are inadequate to maintain decent standards of living; and the Act in each of its provisions and in its entirety shall be interpreted to effectuate these purposes. [40 Stat. L. 964.]

An Act Providing for the transportation from the District of Columbia of governmental employees whose services no longer are required.

[Act of Jan. 7, 1919, ch. 4, 40 Stat. L. 1052.]

[SEC. 1.] [Discharged governmental employees—war work—free transportation from District of Columbia.] That the heads of the several executive departments and other governmental establishments in the District of Columbia are authorized to furnish to such civilian employees, receiving compensation, exclusive of the additional $120, at the rate of not more than $1,400 per annum or less than $100 per annum, under their respective jurisdiction as have come to the District of Columbia since April sixth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, whose services are no longer required and whose employment has been or may be terminated by the Government without delinquency or misconduct on their part during the period from November eleventh, nineteen hundred and eighteen, to February twentieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, inclusive, their actual railroad transportation, including sleeping-car accommodations, from the District of Columbia to the place from which they accepted employment or to their legal residence, or to such other place not a greater distance as the employee may elect. [40 Stat. L. 1052.]

SEC. 2. [Application for transportation—time.] That such transportation must be applied for within ten days after the termination of service and shall be used within five days after issuance unless an extension of time on account of illness be granted by the proper authority: Provided, That as to the employees whose services have been terminated during the period between November eleventh, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and the date of the passage of this Act, inclusive, the time within which transportation shall be applied for shall be twenty days from the date of the passage of this Act. Any person who shall sell, exchange, or transfer such transportation for the use of another shall be punished by a fine of not more than $100. [40 Stat. L. 1052.]

SEC. 3. [Appropriations for meeting expenses.] That the expenses authorized by this Act shall be paid from the following appropriations for the fiscal year nineteen hundred and nineteen, which hereby are made available therefor:

For the War Department, from "Transportation of the Army and its supplies."

For the Navy Department, from "Pay, miscellaneous."

For all other executive departments and independent establishments, from the appropriations for the support of the services in which such persons are employed. [40 Stat. L. 1053.]

SEC. 4. [Employees leaving before passage of Act — refund of cost of transportation.] That any employee who would be entitled to transportation, including sleeping-car accommodation under this Act and who has left the District of Columbia prior to the passage of this Act, but not before December tenth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, upon application and presentation within sixty days after the passage of this Act of proper proof shall have refunded the cost of actual railroad transportation, including sleeping-car accommodation, from the District of Columbia to the place from which employment was accepted, or to their legal residence, or to such other place not a greater distance to which the employee may have gone: Provided, That payment to any employee for leave of absence not earned in proportion to the term of employment shall be deducted from the refund authorized in this section. [40 Stat. L. 1053.]

SEC. 5. [Transportation as affected by various services rendered.] That the provision made in this Act for the transportation of employees shall not be supplemented in any manner by the various services in which they are employed. [40 Stat. L. 1053.]

SEC. 6. [Employees affected by Act.] That the provisions made in this Act for the transportation of employees shall not apply to those who enter such service after the passage of this Act. [40 Stat. L. 1053.]

SEC. 11. [Compensation for injuries to government employees — District of Columbia.] That all of the provisions of the Act of Congress approved September 7, 1916, entitled "An Act to provide compensation for employees of the United States suffering injuries while in the performance of their duties, and for other purposes," are hereby extended to employees of the government of the District of Columbia so far as they may be applicable, except to those members of the police and fire departments of the District of Columbia who are pensioned or pensionable under the provisions of the District of Columbia Appropriation Act approved September 1, 1916. Such compensation as the commission provided for in said Act may award to employees of the government of the District of Columbia shall be paid in the manner provided by law for the payment of the general expenses of the Government of the District of Columbia. For carrying out the provisions of this section, there is appropriated $5,000; and the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall submit annually to Congress, through the Secretary of the Treasury, estimates of appropriations necessary for the foregoing purpose. [41 Stat. L. 104.]

[SEC. 1.] * * * [Housing for war needs — authority of President how long effective — disposition of property.] Section 5 of the Act entitled "An Act to authorize the President to provide housing for war needs," approved May 16, 1918, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 5. That the power and authority granted herein shall cease with the termination of the present war as formally proclaimed by the President, except the power and authority to care for, rent, operate, and sell such property as remains undisposed of; to conclude and execute contracts or other obligations made or incurred during the war or in carrying out the provisions of this section; to collect the principal and interest of loans made or other sums due under obligations entered into under this Act; and to take such other steps as are necessary to protect the interests of the Government and to fulfill the obligations duly incurred in carrying out the powers granted by said Act. All property shall be sold at its fair market value as soon as can be advantageously done, and a reasonable effort shall be made to sell the houses direct to prospective individual home owners for their own occupancy before they are offered for sale in bulk or to speculative investors. Full power and authority is hereby given to sell and convey all such property remaining undisposed of after the termination of the present war. All deeds, contracts, or other instruments of conveyance executed by the United States Housing Corporation by its duly authorized officer or officers where the legal title to the property in question is in the name of said corporation, and by the United States of America by the Secretary of Labor where the title to the property in question is in the name of the United States of America, shall be conclusive evidence of the transfer of title to the property in question according to the purport of such deeds, contracts, or other instruments of conveyance, and in no case shall any purchaser or grantee thereunder be required to see to the application of any purchase money: Provided, however, That no sale or conveyance shall be made hereunder on credit without reserving a first lien on such property for the unpaid purchase money: Provided further, That in no case shall any such property be given away; nor shall rents be furnished free, but the rental charges shall be reasonable and just as between the tenants and the Government. The United States Housing Corporation (a corporation organized by authority of the President of the United States, pursuant to the provisions of an Act approved May 16, 1918, entitled 'An Act to authorize the President to provide housing for war needs,' and an Act approved June 4, 1918, entitled 'An Act making appropriations to supply additional urgent deficiencies in appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918, on account of war expenses, and for other purposes') shall wind up its affairs and dissolve as soon as it has disposed of said property and performed the duties and obligations herein set forth: Provided, That the corporation shall report to Congress on December 31, 1919, and on June 30, 1920, all sales made and the amounts received therefrom together with a detailed statement of receipts and expenditures on account of the other activities authorized by law."

[SEC. 1.] [Act affecting production, conservation and distribution of minerals — national security and defense.] That by reason of the existence of a state of war, it is essential to the national security and defense, and to the successful prosecution of the war, and for the support and maintenance of the Army and Navy, to provide for an adequate and increased supply, to facilitate the production, and to provide for an equitable, economical, and better distribution of the following-named mineral substances and ores, minerals, intermediate metallurgical products, metals, alloys, and chemical compounds thereof, to wit: Antimony, arsenic, ball clay, bismuth, bromine, cerium, chalk, chromium, cobalt, corundum, emery, fluorspar, ferrosilicon, fullers' earth, graphite, grinding pebbles, iridium, kaolin, magnesite, manganese, mercury, mica, molybdenum, osmium, sodium, platinum, palladium, paper clay, phosphorus, potassium, pyrites, radium, sulphur, thorium, tin, titanium, tungsten, uranium, vanadium, and zirconium, as the President may, from time to time, determine to be necessary for the purposes aforesaid, and as to which there is at the time of such determination, a present or prospective inadequacy of supply. The aforesaid substances mentioned in any such determination are hereinafter referred to as necessities. [40 Stat. L. 1009.]

SEC. 2. [Authority of President — purchases — importations.] That the President is authorized from time to time to purchase such necessities and to enter into, to accept, to transfer, and to assign contracts for the production or purchase of same, to provide storage facilities for and store the same, to provide or improve transportation facilities, and to use, distribute, or allocate said necessities, or to sell the same at reasonable prices, but such sales made during the war shall not be at a price less than the purchase or cost of production thereof: Provided, That no such contract of purchase shall cover a period longer than two years after the termination of the war.

The President is further authorized, upon finding that importation into the United States of any of the necessities covered by this Act is likely to result in a loss to the United States on any necessities which it may have acquired hereunder, to ascertain, fix, and proclaim such rate of duty upon such imported necessities as shall be sufficient to adequately protect the United States from any such loss.

The funds provided by section six hereof shall be used in carrying out the powers granted by this section, and all moneys received by the United States from or in connection with the disposal of such necessities, shall be used as a revolving fund for further carrying out the purposes of this Act. Any balance of such moneys remaining when the object of this Act has been accomplished, shall, as collected, received, and on hand and available, be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. [40 Stat. L. 1009.]

SEC. 3. [Requisition of mines and minerals — compensation — statements — rules.] That the President is authorized to requisition and take over any of said necessities and to use, distribute, allocate, or sell the same; and also to requisition and take over any undeveloped or insufficiently developed or operated idle land, deposit, or mine, and any idle or partially operated smelter, or plant, or part thereof, producing or, in his judgment, capable of producing said necessities, or either of them, and to develop and operate such mine or deposit or such smelter or plant, either through the agencies hereinafter mentioned, or under lease or royalty agreement, or in any other manner, and to store, use, distribute, allocate, or sell the products thereof: Provided, That no ores or metals, the principal money value of which consists in metals or minerals other than those specifically enumerated in section one hereof, shall be subject to requisition under the provisions of this Act. Whenever the President shall determine that the further use or operation by the Government of any such land, deposit, mine, smelter, or plant, or part thereof, so acquired, is no longer essential for the objects aforesaid, the same shall be returned to the person, firm, or corporation entitled thereto. The United States shall make just compensation, determined by the President, for the taking over, use, occupation, or operation by the Government of any such necessities, or any such land, deposit, mine, smelter, or plant, or part thereof. If the compensation so determined be unsatisfactory to the person, firm, or corporation entitled thereto, such person, firm, or corporation shall be paid seventy-five per centum of the amount so determined and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as added to said seventy-five per centum will make up such amount as will be just compensation, in the manner provided by section twenty-four, paragraph twenty, and section one hundred and forty-five, of the Judicial Code.

The President is authorized to require statements and reports, to examine books and papers, and to prescribe such rules and regulations as he may deem appropriate for carrying out the purposes of this Act. The fund provided by section six hereof may be used in carrying out the purposes of this Act, and all moneys received by the United States from or in connection with the use, operation, or disposal of any such necessities, land, deposit, mine, smelter, or plant, or part thereof, shall be used as a revolving fund for further carrying out the purposes of this Act. Any balance of such moneys remaining when the objects of this Act have been accomplished, shall, as collected, received, and on hand and available, be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. [40 Stat. L. 1010.]

For Jud. Code, sec. 24, par. 20, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1059; 1912 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 140.

For Jud. Code, sec. 145, see 5 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 649; 1912 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 200.

SEC. 4. [Violation of Act.] That any person who shall neglect or refuse to comply with any order or requisition made by the President pursuant to the provisions of this Act, or who shall obstruct or attempt to obstruct the enforcement of or the compliance with any such requisition or order, or who shall violate any of the provisions of this Act, or any rule or regulation adopted hereunder, shall, upon conviction, be fined not exceeding $5,000, or be imprisoned for not more than two years, or both. [40 Stat. L. 1010.]

SEC. 5. [Appropriation to meet expenses.] That the sum of $500,000 is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be available until June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, for the payment of all administrative expenses under this Act, including personal services, traveling and subsistence expenses, the payment of rent, the purchase of equipment, supplies, postage, printing, publications, and such other articles, both in the District of Columbia and elsewhere, as the President may deem essential and proper. [40 Stat. L. 1010.]

SEC. 6. [Revolving fund.] That the sum of $50,000,000 is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, which, together with all moneys received from time to time under the provisions of this Act, all of which shall be credited to said appropriation, shall be used as a revolving fund for carrying out the objects of this Act, and for the purpose of making all payments and disbursements, including just compensation under section three, by this Act authorized: Provided, That no part of this appropriation shall be expended for the purposes described in the last preceding section: Provided further, That a detailed report of all operations under this Act, including all receipts and disbursements, shall be filed with the Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the House of Representatives on or before the twenty-fifth day of each month, covering the preceding month's operation. Any balance of said revolving fund remaining when the objects of this Act have been accomplished, shall, as collected, received, and on hand and available, be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. [40 Stat. L. 1010.]

SEC. 7. [Delegation by President of authority conferred — salaries and compensation.] That the President is authorized to exercise each, every, or any power and authority hereby vested in him, and to expend the moneys herein appropriated or provided for, or any part or parts thereof, by and through such officer or officers, department or departments, board or boards, agent, agents, or agencies as he shall create or designate, from time to time, for the purpose. He may fix the reasonable compensation for the performance of such services, but no official or employee of the United States shall receive any additional compensation for such services except as now permitted by law: Provided, That no person employed under the provisions of this Act shall be paid any salary or compensation in excess of that paid for similar or like services rendered in executive departments of the Government. [40 Stat. L. 1011.]

SEC. 8. [Persons pecuniarily interested in transactions — eligibility for office.] No person having a pecuniary interest in any transaction in pursuance of this Act shall have any official connection under this Act with such transaction. Any person violating this provision shall forfeit to the Government all proceeds which he shall have received from such transaction, and upon due conviction of such violation shall be fined not exceeding $10,000 or imprisoned not exceeding ten years. [40 Stat. L. 1011.]

SEC. 9. [Creation of corporations to carry out purposes of Act.] That the President is authorized, if in his judgment such action be necessary or useful for the objects of this Act, to form one or more corporations under the laws of any State, Territory, District, or possession of the United States, for the purpose of carrying out the powers or any of the powers hereby authorized. The capital stock of any such corporation shall be such as the President may determine, but the total capital stock for all corporations so formed shall not exceed in the aggregate the appropriation of $50,000,000, made by section six hereof. Said appropriation, or any part thereof, may be used by the President in subscribing on behalf of the United States, through such person or persons as he may designate, to the capital stock of such corporation or corporations, and the capital and assets of any such corporation or corporations, together with all additions thereto under sections two and three hereof, may be used in carrying out the objects of this Act. The directorate and organization of such corporation or corporations shall be such as the President may prescribe, and such corporation or corporations shall have all such charter powers as may be deemed necessary or desirable by the President to enable it or them to accomplish the objects of this Act. The capital stock of any such corporation or corporations shall be held and voted for the exclusive benefit of the United States, through such person or persons as the President may designate. [40 Stat. L. 1011.]

SEC. 10. [Effect of proclamation of peace — termination of transactions.] Upon the proclamation of peace the President shall proceed as rapidly as possible to wind up and terminate all transactions under this Act, and to dispose as fast as practicable of all property acquired thereunder, and after said proclamation of peace no contracts shall be made, property acquired, or other transaction performed under this Act except such as shall be necessary for the purpose of this section and incidental thereto, and two years after such proclamation of peace this Act shall cease to have effect and all powers conferred thereby shall end: Provided, That the termination of this Act shall not prevent the subsequent collection of any moneys due the United States, nor shall it affect any act done or any right or obligation accrued or accruing, or any suit or proceeding had or commenced before such termination, but all such collections, rights, obligations, suits and proceedings shall continue as if this Act had not terminated, and any offense committed or liability incurred prior thereto shall be prosecuted in the same manner and with the same punishment and effect as if this Act had not terminated. [40 Stat. L. 1011.]

SEC. 11. [Employment under Act — exemption from military service.] That employment under the provisions of this Act shall not exempt any person from military service under the provisions of the selective draft law approved May eighteenth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, or any Act amendatory thereto. [40 Stat. L. 1012.]

For Act of May 18, 1917, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1136.

SEC. 12. [Invalidity of part of Act — effect on remainder.] That if any section or provision of this Act shall be declared invalid for any reason whatsoever, such invalidity shall not be construed to affect the validity of any other section or provision hereof. [40 Stat. L. 1012.]

Joint Resolution To amend Senate joint resolution numbered seventy-eight, approved October fifth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, entitled "Joint resolution to suspend requirements of the annual assessment work on mining claims during the year nineteen hundred and seventeen and nineteen hundred and eighteen."

[Res. of Jan. 25, 1919, No. 49, ch. 12, 40 Stat. L. 1055.]

[Mining claims — time for filing notices — Alaska.] That the provisions of Senate joint resolution, approved October fifth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, be amended so as to provide that the time for filing notices to hold said mining claims in the Territory of Alaska, under the said resolution, be, and the same is hereby, extended to the first day of April, nineteen hundred and nineteen. [40 Stat. L. 1055.]

For Res. of Oct. 5, 1917, here amended, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 461.

An Act Authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to make investigations, through the Bureau of Mines, of lignite coals and peat, to determine the practicability of their utilization as a fuel and in producing commercial products.

[SEC. 1.] [Lignite coals and peat — experiments and investigations.] That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized and directed to make experiments and investigations, through the Bureau of Mines, of lignite coals and peat, to determine the commercial and economic practicability of their utilization in producing fuel oil, gasoline substitutes, ammonia, tar, solid fuels, gas for power and other purposes; and there is hereby appropriated, out of the funds in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $100,000, or so much thereof as may be needed, to conduct such experiments and investigations, including personal services in the District of Columbia and elsewhere, and including supplies, equipment, expenses of traveling and subsistence, and for every other expense incident to this work. [40 Stat. L. 1154.]

SEC. 2. [Disposal of property used for purpose of making investigations — report to Congress.] The Secretary of the Interior is authorized and directed to sell or otherwise dispose of any property, plant, or machinery purchased or acquired under the provisions of this Act, as soon as the experiments and investigations hereby authorized have been concluded, and report the results of such experiments and investigations to Congress. [40 Stat. L. 1154.]

Joint Resolution To suspend the legal requirements of assessment work on mining claims in Alaska for the years nineteen hundred and seventeen, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and nineteen hundred and nineteen, and extending to that Territory the provisions of public resolution numbered ten, Sixty-fifth Congress, approved July seventeenth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, and public resolution numbered twelve, Sixty-fifth Congress, approved October fifth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, as amended, and for other purposes.

[Mining claims — assessment work — suspension — Alaska.] That the provisions of public resolution numbered ten, Sixty-fifth Congress, approved July seventeenth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, and the provisions of public resolution numbered twelve, Sixty-fifth Congress, approved October fifth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, and amendments thereto, be, and they are hereby, extended to the Territory of Alaska. The laws requiring assessment work to be made upon mining claims in the Territory of Alaska for the years nineteen hundred and seventeen, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and nineteen hundred and nineteen, are hereby suspended for such period; and no forfeiture or relocation of any mining claim or mining location in said Territory shall be permitted or adjudged for failure to do or have done the annual assessment work thereon for either of said years; and no mining claim or location therein shall be held to be forfeited or subject to relocation for any failure to have done the annual assessment work thereon where the owner or anyone for him complied with the provisions of public resolution numbered ten, Sixty-fifth Congress, approved July seventeenth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, or public resolution numbered twelve, Sixty-fifth Congress, approved October fifth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, and amendments thereto. [40 Stat. L. 1213.]

[SEC. 1.] [Federal Reserve Act — directors of Class A and Class B — how chosen — sec. 4 amended.] That section four of the Act approved December twenty-third, nineteen hundred and thirteen, known as the Federal reserve Act, be amended and reenacted by striking out that part of such section which reads as follows:

“Directors of Class A and Class B shall be chosen in the following manner:

“The chairman of the board of directors of the Federal reserve bank of the district in which the bank is situated or, pending the appointment of such chairman, the organization committee shall classify the member banks of the district into three general groups or divisions. Each group shall contain as nearly as may be one-third of the aggregate number of the member banks of the district, and shall consist, as nearly as may be, of banks of similar capitalization. The groups shall be designated by number by the chairman.

“At a regularly called meeting of the board of directors of each member bank in the district it shall elect by ballot a district reserve elector and shall certify his name to the chairman of the board of directors of the Federal reserve bank of the district. The chairman shall make lists of the district reserve electors thus named by banks in each of the aforesaid three groups and shall transmit one list to each elector in each group.

“Each member bank shall be permitted to nominate to the chairman one candidate for director of Class A and one candidate for director of Class B. The candidates so nominated shall be listed by the chairman, indicating by whom nominated, and a copy of said list shall, within fifteen days after its completion, be furnished by the chairman to each elector.

“Every director shall, within fifteen days after the receipt of the said list, certify to the chairman his first, second, and other choices of a director of Class A and Class B, respectively, upon a preferential ballot, on a form furnished by the chairman of the board of directors of the Federal reserve bank of the district. Each elector shall make a cross opposite the name of the first, second, and other choices for a director of Class A and for a director of Class B, but shall not vote more than one choice for any one candidate,” and by substituting therefor the following:

“The Federal Reserve Board shall classify the member banks of the district into three general groups or divisions, designating each group by number. Each group shall consist as nearly as may be of banks of similar capitalization. by the chairman to each member bank. Each member bank by a resolution of the board or by an amendment to its by-laws shall authorize its president, cashier, or some other officer to cast the vote of the member bank in the elections of Class A and Class B directors.

"Within fifteen days after receipt of the list of candidates the duly authorized officer of a member bank shall certify to the chairman his first, second, and other choices for director of Class A and Class B, respectively, upon a preferential ballot upon a form furnished by the chairman of the board of directors of the Federal reserve bank of the district. Each such officer shall make a cross opposite the name of the first, second, and other choices for a director of Class A and for a director of Class B, but shall not vote more than one choice for any one candidate. No officer or director of a member bank shall be eligible to serve as a Class A director unless nominated and elected by banks which are members of the same group as the member bank of which he is an officer or director.

"Any person who is an officer or director of more than one member bank shall not be eligible for nomination as a Class A director except by banks in the same group as the bank having the largest aggregate resources of any of those of which such person is an officer or director." [40 Stat. L. 967.]

For Federal Reserve Act, sec. 4, as originally enacted, see 6 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 820; 1914 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 263.

SEC. 2. [Powers of Federal Reserve Board — permit to national banks to act as trustees, etc.— authority granted banks how exercised — sec. 11(k) amended.] That section eleven (k) of the Federal reserve Act be amended and reenacted to read as follows:

"(k) To grant by special permit to national banks applying therefor, when not in contravention of State or local law, the right to act as trustee, executor, administrator, registrar of stocks and bonds, guardian of estates, assignee, receiver, committee of estates of lunatics, or in any other fiduciary capacity in which State banks, trust companies, or other corporations which come into competition with national banks are permitted to act under the laws of the State in which the national bank is located.

"Whenever the laws of such State authorize or permit the exercise of any or all of the foregoing powers by State banks, trust companies, or other corporations which compete with national banks, the granting to and the exercise of such powers by national banks shall not be deemed to be in contravention of State or local law within the meaning of this Act.

"National banks exercising any or all of the powers enumerated in this subsection shall segregate all assets held in any fiduciary capacity from the general assets of the bank and shall keep a separate set of books and records showing in proper detail all transactions engaged in under authority of this subsection. Such books and records shall be open to inspection by the State authorities to the same extent as the books and records of corporations organized under State law which exercise fiduciary powers, but nothing in this Act shall be construed as authorizing the State authorities to examine the books, records, and assets of the national bank which are not held in trust under authority of this subsection.

"No national bank shall receive in its trust department deposits of current funds subject to check or the deposit of checks, drafts, bills of exchange, or other items for collection or exchange purposes. Funds deposited or held in trust by the bank awaiting investment shall be carried in a separate account and shall not be used by the bank in the conduct of its business unless it shall first set aside in the trust department United States bonds or other securities approved by the Federal Reserve Board.

"In the event of the failure of such bank the owners of the funds held in trust for investment shall have a lien on the bonds or other securities so set apart in addition to their claim against the estate of the bank.

"Whenever the laws of a State require corporations acting in a fiduciary capacity, to deposit securities with the State authorities for the protection of private or court trust, national banks so acting shall be required to make similar deposits and securities so deposited shall be held for the protection of private or court trusts, as provided by the State law.

"National banks in such cases shall not be required to execute the bond usually required of individuals if State corporations under similar circumstances are exempt from this requirement.

"National banks shall have power to execute such bond when so required by the laws of the State.

"In any case in which the laws of a State require that a corporation acting as trustee, executor, administrator, or in any capacity specified in this section, shall take an oath or make an affidavit, the president, vice president, cashier, or trust officer of such national bank may take the necessary oath or execute the necessary affidavit.

"It shall be unlawful for any national banking association to lend any officer, director, or employee any funds held in trust under the powers conferred by this section. Any officer, director, or employee making such loan, or to whom such loan is made, may be fined not more than $5,000, or imprisoned not more than five years, or may be both fined and imprisoned, in the discretion of the court.

"In passing upon applications for permission to exercise the powers enumerated in this subsection, the Federal Reserve Board may take into consideration the amount of capital and surplus of the applying bank, whether or not such capital and surplus is sufficient under the circumstances of the case, the needs of the community to be served, and any other facts and circumstances that seem to it proper, and may grant or refuse the application accordingly: Provided, That no permit shall be issued to any national banking association having a capital and surplus less than the capital and surplus required by State law of State banks, trust companies, and corporations exercising such powers." [40 Stat. L. 968.]

SEC. 3. [Note issues — regulations — printing — sec. 16 amended.] That the ninth paragraph of section sixteen of the Federal reserve Act, as amended by the Acts approved September seventh, nineteen hundred and sixteen, and June twenty-first, nineteen hundred and seventeen, be further amended and reenacted so as to read as follows:

"In order to furnish suitable notes for circulation as Federal reserve notes, the Comptroller of the Currency shall, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, cause plates and dies to be engraved in the best manner to guard against counterfeits and fraudulent alterations, and shall have printed therefrom and numbered such quantities of such notes of the denominations of $5, $10, $20, $50, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000 as may be required to supply the Federal reserve banks. "Such notes shall be in form and tenor as directed by the Secretary of the Treasury under the provisions of this Act and shall bear the distinctive numbers of the several Federal reserve banks through which they are issued." [40 Stat. L. 969.]

For Act of June 21, 1917, amending this section, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 480.

SEC. 4. [Reserves required by member banks — sec. 19 amended.] That paragraphs (b) and (c) of section nineteen of the Federal reserve Act, as amended by the Acts approved August fifteenth, nineteen hundred and fourteen, and June twenty-first, nineteen hundred and seventeen, be further amended and reenacted to read as follows:

"(b) If in a reserve city, as now or hereafter defined, it shall hold and maintain with the Federal reserve bank of its district an actual net balance equal to not less than ten per centum of the aggregate amount of its demand deposits and three per centum of its time deposits: Provided, however, That if located in the outlying districts of a reserve city or in territory added to such a city by the extension of its corporate charter, it may, upon the affirmative vote of five members of the Federal Reserve Board, hold and maintain the reserve balances specified in paragraph (a) hereof.

"(c) If in a central reserve city, as now or hereafter defined, it shall hold and maintain with the Federal reserve bank of its district an actual net balance equal to not less than thirteen per centum of the aggregate amount of its demand deposits and three per centum of its time deposits: Provided, however, That if located in the outlying districts of a central reserve city or in territory added to such city by the extension of its corporate charter, it may, upon the affirmative vote of five members of the Federal Reserve Board, hold and maintain the reserve balances specified in paragraphs (a) or (b) thereof." [40 Stat. L. 970.]

For Federal Reserve Act, sec. 19, as originally enacted, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 840; 1914 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 279.

SEC. 5. [Bank examiners, officers, directors and employees — fees and gratuities — dealings between banks and directors — sec. 22 amended.] That section twenty-two of the Federal Reserve Act, as amended by the Act of June twenty-first, nineteen hundred and seventeen, be further amended and reenacted to read as follows:

"(a) No member bank and no officer, director, or employee thereof shall hereafter make any loan or grant any gratuity to any bank examiner. Any bank officer, director, or employee violating this provision shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be imprisoned not exceeding one year or fined not more than $5,000, or both; and may be fined a further sum equal to the money so loaned or gratuity given.

"Any examiner accepting a loan or gratuity from any bank examined by him or from an officer, director, or employee thereof shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be imprisoned one year or fined not more than $5,000, or both, and may be fined a further sum equal to the money so loaned or gratuity given, and shall forever thereafter be disqualified from holding office as a national bank examiner.

“(b) No national bank examiner shall perform any other service for compensation while holding such office for any bank or officer, director, or employee thereof.

“No examiner, public or private, shall disclose the names of borrowers or the collateral for loans of a member bank to other than the proper officers of such bank without first having obtained the express permission in writing from the Comptroller of the Currency, or from the board of directors of such bank, except when ordered to do so by a court of competent jurisdiction, or by direction of the Congress of the United States, or of either House thereof, or any committee of Congress, or of either House duly authorized. Any bank examiner violating the provisions of this subsection shall be imprisoned not more than one year or fined not more than $5,000, or both.

“(c) Except as herein provided, any officer, director, employee, or attorney of a member bank who stipulates for or receives or consents or agrees to receive any fee, commission, gift, or thing of value from any person, firm, or corporation, for procuring or endeavoring to procure for such person, firm, or corporation, or for any other person, firm, or corporation, any loan from or the purchase or discount of any paper, note, draft, check, or bill of exchange by such member bank shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be imprisoned not more than one year or fined not more than $5,000, or both.

“(d) Any member bank may contract for, or purchase from, any of its directors or from any firm of which any of its directors is a member, any securities or other property, when (and not otherwise) such purchase is made in the regular course of business upon terms not less favorable to the bank than those offered to others, or when such purchase is authorized by a majority of the board of directors not interested in the sale of such securities or property, such authority to be evidenced by the affirmative vote or written assent of such directors: Provided, however, That when any director, or firm of which any director is a member, acting for or on behalf of others, sells securities or other property to a member bank, the Federal Reserve Board by regulation may, in any or all cases, require a full disclosure to be made, on forms to be prescribed by it, of all commissions or other considerations received, and whenever such director or firm, acting in his or its own behalf, sells securities or other property to the bank the Federal Reserve Board, by regulation, may require a full disclosure of all profit realized from such sale.

“Any member bank may sell securities or other property to any of its directors, or to a firm of which any of its directors is a member, in the regular course of business on terms not more favorable to such director or firm than those offered to others, or when such sale is authorized by a majority of the board of directors of a member bank to be evidenced by their affirmative vote or written assent: Provided, however, That nothing in this subsection contained shall be construed as authorizing member banks to purchase or sell securities or other property which such banks are not otherwise authorized by law to purchase or sell.

“(e) No member bank shall pay to any director, officer, attorney, or employee a greater rate of interest on the deposits of such director, officer, attorney, or employee than that paid to other depositors on similar deposits with such member bank.

“(f) If the directors or officers of any member bank shall knowingly violate or permit any of the agents, officers, or directors of any member bank to violate any of the provisions of this section or regulations of the board made under authority thereof, every director and officer participating in or assenting to such violation shall be held liable in his personal and individual capacity for all damages which the member bank, its shareholders, or any other persons shall have sustained in consequence of such violation." [40 Stat. L. 970.]

SEC. 7. [Falsely certifying checks — embezzlement, etc.— R. S. secs. 5208, 5209 amended.] That section fifty-two hundred and eight of the Revised Statutes as amended by the Act of July twelfth, eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and section fifty-two hundred and nine of the Revised Statutes as amended by the Acts of April sixth, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, and July eighth, eighteen hundred and seventy, be, and the same are hereby, amended and reenacted to read as follows:

" Sec. 5208. It shall be unlawful for any officer, director, agent, or employee of any Federal reserve bank, or of any member bank as defined in the Act of December twenty-third, nineteen hundred and thirteen, known as the Federal reserve Act, to certify any check drawn upon such Federal reserve bank or member bank unless the person, firm, or corporation drawing the check has on deposit with such Federal reserve bank or member bank, at the times such check is certified, an amount of money not less than the amount specified in such check. Any check so certified by a duly authorized officer, director, agent, or employee shall be a good and valid obligation against such Federal reserve bank or member bank; but the act of any officer, director, agent, or employee of any such Federal reserve bank or member bank in violation of this section shall, in the discretion of the Federal Reserve Board, subject such Federal reserve bank to the penalties imposed by section eleven, subsection (h), of the Federal reserve Act, and shall subject such member bank if a national bank to the liabilities and proceedings on the part of the Comptroller of the Currency provided for in section fifty-two hundred and thirty-four, Revised Statutes, and shall, in the discretion of the Federal Reserve Board, subject any other member bank to the penalties imposed by section nine of said Federal reserve Act for the violation of any of the provisions of said Act. Any officer, director, agent, or employee of any Federal reserve bank or member bank who shall willfully violate the provisions of this section, or who shall resort to any device, or receive any fictitious obligation, directly or collaterally, in order to evade the provisions thereof, or who shall certify a check before the amount thereof shall have been regularly entered to the credit of the drawer upon the books of the bank, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, on conviction thereof in any district court of the United States, be fined not more than $5,000, or shall be imprisoned for not more than five years, or both, in the discretion of the court.

" Sec. 5209. Any officer, director, agent, or employee of any Federal reserve bank, or of any member bank as defined in the Act of December twenty-third, nineteen hundred and thirteen, known as the Federal reserve Act, who embezzles, abstracts, or willfully misapplies any of the moneys, funds, or credits of such Federal reserve bank or member bank, or who, without authority from the directors of such Federal reserve bank or member bank, issues or puts in circulation any of the notes of such Federal reserve bank or member bank, or who, without such authority, issues or puts forth any certificate of deposit, draws any order or bill of exchange, makes any acceptance, assigns any note, bond, draft, bill of exchange, mortgage, judgment, or decree, or who makes any false entry in any book, report, or statement of such Federal reserve bank or member bank, with intent in any case to injure or defraud such Federal reserve bank or member bank, or any other company, body politic or corporate, or any individual person, or to deceive any officer of such Federal reserve bank or member bank, or the Comptroller of the Currency, or any agent or examiner appointed to examine the affairs of such Federal reserve bank or member bank, or the Federal Reserve Board; and every receiver of a national banking association who, with like intent to defraud or injure, embezzles, abstracts, purloins, or willfully misapplies any of the moneys, funds, or assets of his trust, and every person who, with like intent, aids or abets any officer, director, agent, employee, or receiver in any violation of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof in any district court of the United States shall be fined not more than $5,000 or shall be imprisoned for not more than five years, or both, in the discretion of the court.

“Any Federal reserve agent, or any agent or employee of such Federal reserve agent, or of the Federal Reserve Board, who embezzles, abstracts, or willfully misapplies any moneys, funds, or securities intrusted to his care, or without complying with or in violation of the provisions of the Federal reserve Act, issues or puts in circulation any Federal reserve notes shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction in any district court of the United States shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned for not more than five years, or both, in the discretion of the court.” [40 Stat. L. 971.]

An Act To provide for the consolidation of national banking associations.

[SEC. 1.] [Consolidation of national banking associations — terms and conditions — rights of shareholders.] That any two or more national banking associations located within the same county, city, town, or village may, with the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency, consolidate into one association under the charter of either existing banks, on such terms and conditions as may be lawfully agreed upon by a majority of the board of directors of each association proposing to consolidate, and be ratified and confirmed by the affirmative vote of the shareholders of each such association owning at least two-thirds of its capital stock outstanding, at a meeting to be held on the call of the directors after publishing notice of the time, place, and object of the meeting for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper published in the place where the said association is located, and if no newspaper is published in the place, then in a paper published nearest thereto, and after sending such notice to each shareholder of record by registered mail at least ten days prior to said meeting: Provided, That the capital stock of such consolidated association shall not be less than that required under existing law for the organization of a national bank in the place in which it is located: And provided further, That when such consolidation shall have been effected and approved by the comptroller any shareholder of either of the associations so consolidated who has not voted for such consolidation may give notice to the directors of the association in which he is interested within twenty days from the date of the certificate of approval of the comptroller that he dissents from the plan of consolidation as adopted and approved, whereupon he shall be entitled to receive the value of the shares so held by him, to be ascertained by an appraisal made by a committee of three persons, one to be selected by the shareholder, one by the directors, and the third by the two so chosen; and in case the value so fixed shall not be satisfactory to the shareholder he may within five days after being notified of the appraisal appeal to the Comptroller of the Currency, who shall cause a reappraisal to be made, which shall be final and binding; and if said reappraisal shall exceed the value fixed by said committee, the bank shall pay the expenses of the reappraisal; otherwise the appellant shall pay said expenses, and the value so ascertained and determined shall be deemed to be a debt due and be forthwith paid to said shareholder from said bank, and the share so paid shall be surrendered and after due notice sold at public auction within thirty days after the final appraisement provided for in this Act. [40 Stat. L. 1043.]

SEC. 2. [Status of consolidated association — outstanding circulation — rights, franchises, and interests.] That associations consolidating with another association under the provisions of this Act shall not be required to deposit lawful money for their outstanding circulation, but their assets and liabilities shall be reported by the association with which they have consolidated. And all the rights, franchises, and interests of the said national bank so consolidated in and to every species of property, personal and mixed, and choses in action thereto belonging, shall be deemed to be transferred to and vested in such national bank into which it is consolidated without any deed or other transfer, and the said consolidated national bank shall hold and enjoy the same and all rights of property, franchises, and interests in the same manner and to the same extent as was held and enjoyed by the national bank so consolidated therewith. [40 Stat. L. 1044.]

An Act To amend sections seven, ten, and eleven of the Federal reserve Act, and section fifty-one hundred and seventy-two, Revised Statutes of the United States.

[SEC. 1.] [Federal Reserve Act — Federal Reserve Banks — net earnings — disposition — sec. 7 amended.] That that part of the first paragraph of section seven of the Federal reserve Act which reads as follows: "After the aforesaid dividend claims have been fully met, all the net earnings shall be paid to the United States as a franchise tax except that one-half of such net earnings shall be paid into a surplus fund until it shall amount to forty per centum of the paid-in capital stock of such bank," be amended to read as follows:

"After the aforesaid dividend claims have been fully met, the net earnings shall be paid to the United States as a franchise tax except that the whole of such net earnings, including those for the year ending December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and eighteen, shall be paid into a surplus fund until it shall amount to one hundred per centum of the subscribed capital stock of such bank, and that thereafter ten per centum of such net earnings shall be paid into the surplus." [40 Stat. L. 1314.]

For Federal Reserve Act, sec. 7, here amended, see 6 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 825; 1914 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 267.

SEC. 2. [Federal Reserve Board—ineligibility for service in member banks—sec. 10 amended.] That that part of section ten of the Federal reserve Act which reads as follows: "The members of said board, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury, and the Comptroller of the Currency, shall be ineligible during the time they are in office and for two years thereafter to hold any office, position, or employment in any member bank," be amended to read as follows:

"The Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller of the Currency shall be ineligible during the time they are in office and for two years thereafter to hold any office, position, or employment in any member bank. The appointive members of the Federal Reserve Board shall be ineligible during the time they are in office and for two years thereafter to hold any office, position, or employment in any member bank, except that this restriction shall not apply to a member who has served the full term for which he was appointed." [40 Stat. L. 1315.]

For Federal Reserve Act, sec. 10, see 6 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 826; 1914 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 269.

SEC. 3. [Federal Reserve Banks—discounts for member banks—amount—security—sec. 11 amended.] That section eleven of the Federal reserve Act as amended by the Act of September seventh, nineteen hundred and sixteen, be further amended by striking out the whole of subsection (m) and by substituting therefor a subsection to read as follows:

"(m) Upon the affirmative vote of not less than five of its members, the Federal Reserve Board shall have power to permit Federal reserve banks to discount for any member bank notes, drafts, or bills of exchange bearing the signature or endorsement of any one borrower in excess of the amount permitted by section nine and section thirteen of this Act, but in no case to exceed twenty per centum of the member bank's capital and surplus: Provided, however, That all such notes, drafts, or bills of exchange discounted for any member bank in excess of the amount permitted under such sections shall be secured by not less than a like face amount of bonds or notes of the United States issued since April twenty-fourth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, or certificates of indebtedness of the United States: Provided further, That the provisions of this subsection (m) shall not be operative after December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and twenty." [40 Stat. L. 1315.]

For Federal Reserve Act, sec. 11, as amended before the amendment here given, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 470.

SEC. 4. [Circulating bank notes — printing — denominations — contents — R. S., sec. 5172 amended.] That section fifty-one hundred and seventy-two, Revised Statutes of the United States, be amended to read as follows:

“Sec. 5172. That in order to furnish suitable notes for circulation, the Comptroller of the Currency shall, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, cause plates and dies to be engraved, in the best manner to guard against counterfeiting and fraudulent alterations, and shall have printed therefrom and numbered such quantity of circulating notes in blank, or bearing engraved signatures of officers as herein provided, of the denominations of $1, $2, $5, $10, $20, $50, $100, $500, and $1,000, as may be required to supply the associations entitled to receive the same. Such notes shall express upon their face that they are secured by United States bonds deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, by the written or engraved signatures of the Treasurer and Register, and by the imprint of the seal of the Treasury; and shall also express upon their face the promise of the association receiving the same to pay on demand, attested by the written or engraved signatures of the president or vice president and cashier; and shall bear such devices and such other statements and shall be in such form as the Secretary of the Treasury shall, by regulation, direct.” [40 Stat. L. 1315.]

For R. S. sec. 5172, here amended, see 5 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 118; 6 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 731.

An Act Amending section 25 of the Act approved December 23, 1913, known as the Federal Reserve Act, as amended by the Act approved September 7, 1916.

[SEC. 1.] [Federal Reserve Act — amendment of section 25 — investment by banks in stock of corporation interested in facilitating exports.] That section 25 of the Act approved December 23, 1913, known as the Federal Reserve Act, as amended by the Act approved September 7, 1916, be further amended by the addition of the following paragraph at the end of subparagraph 2 of the first paragraph, after the word “possessions”:

“Until January 1, 1921, any national banking association, without regard to the amount of its capital and surplus, may file application with the Federal Reserve Board for permission, upon such conditions and under such regulations as may be prescribed by said board, to invest an amount not exceeding in the aggregate 5 per centum of its paid-in capital and surplus in the stock of one or more corporations chartered or incorporated under the laws of the United States or of any State thereof and, regardless of its location, principally engaged in such phases of international or foreign financial operations as may be necessary to facilitate the export of goods, wares, or merchandise from the United States or any of its dependencies or insular possessions to any foreign country: Provided, however, That in no event shall the total investments authorized by this section by any one national bank exceed 10 per centum of its capital and surplus.” [41 Stat. L. 285.]

For section 25 of the Federal Reserve Act as amended by Act of Sept. 7, 1916, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 473.

SEC. 2. [Application for establishment of foreign branches, etc.] That paragraph 2 of said section be amended by adding after the word “banking,” in line three, the words “or financial,” so that the sentence will read: “Such application shall specify the name and capital of the banking association filing it, the powers applied for, and the place or places where the banking or financial operations proposed are to be carried on." [41 Stat. L. 286.]

SEC. 3. [Information furnished of condition of foreign branches, etc.] That paragraph 3 of said section be amended by striking out the words "sub-paragraph 2 of the first paragraph of this section" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "above," so that the paragraph will read:

"Every national banking association operating foreign branches shall be required to furnish information concerning the condition of such branches to the Comptroller of the Currency upon demand, and every member bank investing in the capital stock of banks or corporations described above shall be required to furnish information concerning the condition of such banks or corporations to the Federal Reserve Board upon demand, and the Federal Reserve Board may order special examinations of the said branches, banks, or corporations at such time or times as it may deem best." [41 Stat. L. 286.]

An Act To amend sections 5200 and 5202 of the Revised Statutes of the United States as amended by Acts of June 22, 1906, and September 24, 1918.

[SEC. 1.] [Limit to liabilities which may be incurred by any one person, etc.—R. S. sec. 5200 amended.] That section 5200 of the Revised Statutes of the United States as amended by the Acts of June 22, 1906, and September 24, 1918, be further amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 5200. The total liabilities to any association of any person or of any company, corporation, or firm for money borrowed, including in the liabilities of a company or firm the liabilities of the several members thereof, shall at no time exceed 10 per centum of the amount of the capital stock of such association, actually paid in and unimpaired, and 10 per centum of its unimpaired surplus fund: Provided, however, That (1) the discount of bills of exchange drawn in good faith against actually existing values, including drafts and bills of exchange secured by shipping documents conveying or securing title to goods shipped, and including demand obligations when secured by documents covering commodities in actual process of shipment, and also including bankers' acceptances of the kinds described in section 13 of the Federal Reserve Act, (2) the discount of commercial or business paper actually owned by the person, company, corporation, or firm negotiating the same, (3) the discount of notes secured by shipping documents, warehouse receipts, or other such documents conveying or securing title covering readily marketable nonperishable staples, including live stock, when the actual market value of the property securing the obligation is not at any time less than 115 per centum of the face amount of the notes secured by such documents and when such property is fully covered by insurance, and (4) the discount of any note or notes secured by not less than a like face amount of bonds or notes of the United States issued since April 24, 1917, or certificates of indebtedness of the United States, shall not be considered as money borrowed within the meaning of this section. The total liabilities to any association, of any person or of any corporation, or firm, or company, or the several members thereof upon any note or notes purchased or discounted by such association and secured by bonds, notes, or certificates of indebtedness as described in (4) hereof shall not exceed (except to the extent permitted by rules and regulations prescribed by the Comptroller of the Currency, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury) 10 per centum of such capital stock and surplus fund of such association and the total liabilities to any association of any person or of any corporation, or firm, or company, or the several members thereof for money borrowed, including the liabilities upon notes secured in the manner described under (3) hereof, except transactions (1), (2), and (4), shall not at any time exceed 25 per centum of the amount of the association's paid-in and unimpaired capital stock and surplus. The exception made under (3) hereof shall not apply to the notes of any one person, corporation or firm or company, or the several members thereof for more than six months in any consecutive twelve months." [41 Stat. L. 296.]

For R. S. sec. 5200 as amended by Act of June 22, 1906, see 6 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 761; 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 353.

For section 13 of the Federal Reserve Act mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 470.

R. S. sec. 5200 as amended by Act of Sept. 24, 1918, read as follows: "The total liabilities to any association, of any person, or of any company, corporation, or firm for money borrowed, including in the liabilities of a company or firm the liabilities of the several members thereof, shall at no time exceed 10 per centum of the amount of the capital stock of such association, actually paid in and unimpaired, and 10 per centum of its unimpaired surplus fund: Provided, however, That (1) the discount of bills of exchange drawn in good faith against actually existing values, (2) the discount of commercial or business paper actually owned by the person, company, corporation, or firm, negotiating the same and (3) the purchase or discount of any note or notes secured by not less than a like face amount of bonds of the United States issued since April 24, 1917, or certificates of indebtedness of the United States, shall not be considered as money borrowed within the meaning of this section; but the total liabilities to any association, of any person or of any company, corporation, or firm, upon any note or notes purchased or discounted by such association and secured by such bonds or certificates of indebtedness, shall not exceed (except to the extent permitted by rules and regulations prescribed by the Comptroller of the Currency, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury) 10 per centum of such capital stock and surplus fund of such association."

SEC. 2. [Limit upon indebtedness to be incurred — R. S. sec. 5202 amended.] That section 5202 of the Revised Statutes of the United States as amended by section 20, Title I, of the Act approved April 5, 1918, be further amended so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 5202. No national banking association shall at any time be indebted, or in any way liable, to an amount exceeding the amount of its capital stock at such time actually paid in and remaining undiminished by losses or otherwise, except on account of demands of the nature following:

"First. Notes of circulation.

"Second. Moneys deposited with or collected by the association.

"Third. Bills of exchange or drafts drawn against money actually on deposit to the credit of the association, or due thereto.

"Fourth. Liabilities to the stockholders of the association for dividends and reserve profits.

"Fifth. Liabilities incurred under the provisions of the Federal Reserve Act.

"Sixth. Liabilities incurred under the provisions of the War Finance Corporation Act.

"Seventh. Liabilities created by the indorsement of accepted bills of exchange payable abroad actually owned by the indorsing bank and discounted at home or abroad." [41 Stat. L. 297.]

For R. S. sec. 5202 as amended by the Act of April 5, 1918, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 468.

An Act To amend the Act approved December 23, 1913, known as the Federal Reserve Act.

[Federal Reserve Act — new section — corporations to do foreign banking business — creation — powers — rights and liabilities of officers and stockholders.] That the Act approved December 23, 1913, known as the Federal Reserve Act, as amended, be further amended by adding a new section as follows:

“BANKING CORPORATIONS AUTHORIZED TO DO FOREIGN BANKING BUSINESS.

“SEC. 25 (a). Corporations to be organized for the purpose of engaging in international or foreign banking or other international or foreign financial operations, or in banking or other financial operations in a dependency or insular possession of the United States, either directly or through the agency, ownership, or control of local institutions in foreign countries, or in such dependencies or insular possessions as provided by this section, and to act when required by the Secretary of the Treasury as fiscal agents of the United States, may be formed by any number of natural persons, not less in any case than five.

“Such persons shall enter into articles of association which shall specify in general terms the objects for which the association is formed and may contain any other provisions not inconsistent with law which the association may see fit to adopt for the regulation of its business and the conduct of its affairs.

“Such articles of association shall be signed by all of the persons intending to participate in the organization of the corporation and, thereafter, shall be forwarded to the Federal Reserve Board and shall be filed and preserved in its office. The persons signing the said articles of association shall, under their hands, make an organization certificate which shall specifically state:

“First. The name assumed by such corporation, which shall be subject to the approval of the Federal Reserve Board.

“Second. The place or places where its operations are to be carried on.

“Third. The place in the United States where its home office is to be located.

“Fourth. The amount of its capital stock and the number of shares into which the same shall be divided.

“Fifth. The names and places of business or residence of the persons executing the certificate and the number of shares to which each has subscribed.

“Sixth. The fact that the certificate is made to enable the persons subscribing the same, and all other persons, firms, companies, and corporations, who or which may thereafter subscribe to or purchase shares of the capital stock of such corporation, to avail themselves of the advantages of this section.

“The persons signing the organization certificate shall duly acknowledge the execution thereof before a judge of some court of record or notary public, who shall certify thereto under the seal of such court or notary, and thereafter the certificate shall be forwarded to the Federal Reserve Board to be filed and preserved in its office. Upon duly making and filing articles of association and an organization certificate, and after the Federal Reserve Board has approved the same and issued a permit to begin business, the association shall become and be a body corporate, and as such and in the name designated therein shall have power to adopt and use a corporate seal, which may be changed at the pleasure of its board of directors; to have succession for a period of twenty years unless sooner dissolved by the act of the shareholders owning two-thirds of the stock or by an Act of Congress or unless its franchises become forfeited by some violation of law; to make contracts; to sue and be sued, complain, and defend in any court of law or equity; to elect or appoint directors, all of whom shall be citizens of the United States; and, by its board of directors, to appoint such officers and employees as may be deemed proper, define their authority and duties, require bonds of them, and fix the penalty thereof, dismiss such officers or employees, or any thereof, at pleasure and appoint others to fill their places; to prescribe, by its board of directors, by-laws not inconsistent with law or with the regulations of the Federal Reserve Board regulating the manner in which its stock shall be transferred, its directors elected or appointed, its officers and employees appointed, its property transferred, and the privileges granted to it by law exercised and enjoyed.

“ Each corporation so organized shall have power, under such rules and regulations as the Federal Reserve Board may prescribe:

“(a) To purchase, sell, discount, and negotiate, with or without its indorsement or guaranty, notes, drafts, checks, bills of exchange, acceptances, including bankers' acceptances, cable transfers, and other evidences of indebtedness; to purchase and sell, with or without its indorsement or guaranty, securities, including the obligations of the United States or of any State thereof but not including shares of stock in any corporation except as herein provided; to accept bills or drafts drawn upon it subject to such limitations and restrictions as the Federal Reserve Board may impose; to issue letters of credit; to purchase and sell coin, bullion, and exchange; to borrow and to lend money; to issue debentures, bonds, and promissory notes under such general conditions as to security and such limitations as the Federal Reserve Board may prescribe, but in no event having liabilities outstanding thereon at any one time exceeding ten times its capital stock and surplus; to receive deposits outside of the United States and to receive only such deposits within the United States as may be incidental to or for the purpose of carrying out transactions in foreign countries or dependencies or insular possessions of the United States; and generally to exercise such powers as are incidental to the powers conferred by this Act or as may be usual, in the determination of the Federal Reserve Board, in connection with the transaction of the business of banking or other financial operations in the countries, colonies, dependencies, or possessions in which it shall transact business and not inconsistent with the powers specifically granted herein. Nothing contained in this section shall be construed to prohibit the Federal Reserve Board, under its power to prescribe rules and regulations, from limiting the aggregate amount of liabilities of any or all classes incurred by the corporation and outstanding at any one time. Whenever a corporation organized under this section receives deposits in the United States authorized by this section it shall carry reserves in such amounts as the Federal Reserve Board may prescribe, but in no event less than 10 per centum of its deposits.

“(b) To establish and maintain for the transaction of its business branches or agencies in foreign countries, their dependencies or colonies, and in the dependencies or insular possessions of the United States, at such places as may be approved by the Federal Reserve Board and under such rules and regulations as it may prescribe, including countries or dependencies not specified in the original organization certificate.

“(c) With the consent of the Federal Reserve Board to purchase and hold stock or other certificates of ownership in any other corporation organized under the provisions of this section, or under the laws of any foreign country or a colony or dependency thereof, or under the laws of any State, dependency, or insular possession of the United States but not engaged in the general business of buying or selling goods, wares, merchandise or commodities in the United States, and not transacting any business in the United States except such as in the judgment of the Federal Reserve Board may be incidental to its international or foreign business: Provided, however, That, except with the approval of the Federal Reserve Board, no corporation organized hereunder shall invest in any one corporation an amount in excess of 10 per centum of its own capital and surplus, except in a corporation engaged in the business of banking, when 15 per centum of its capital and surplus may be so invested: Provided further, That no corporation organized hereunder shall purchase, own, or hold stock or certificates of ownership in any other corporation organized hereunder or under the laws of any State which is in substantial competition therewith, or which holds stock or certificates of ownership in corporations which are in substantial competition with the purchasing corporation.

"Nothing contained herein shall prevent corporations organized hereunder from purchasing and holding stock in any corporation where such purchase shall be necessary to prevent a loss upon a debt previously contracted in good faith; and stock so purchased or acquired in corporations organized under this section shall within six months from such purchase be sold or disposed of at public or private sale unless the time to so dispose of same is extended by the Federal Reserve Board.

"No corporation organized under this section shall carry on any part of its business in the United States except such as, in the judgment of the Federal Reserve Board, shall be incidental to its international or foreign business: And provided further, That except such as is incidental and preliminary to its organization no such corporation shall exercise any of the powers conferred by this section until it has been duly authorized by the Federal Reserve Board to commence business as a corporation organized under the provisions of this section.

"No corporation organized under this section shall engage in commerce or trade in commodities except as specifically provided in this section, nor shall it either directly or indirectly control or fix or attempt to control or fix the price of any such commodities. The charter of any corporation violating this provision shall be subject to forfeiture in the manner hereinafter provided in this section. It shall be unlawful for any director, officer, agent, or employee of any such corporation to use or to conspire to use the credit, the funds, or the power of the corporation to fix or control the price of any such commodities, and any such person violating this provision shall be liable to a fine of not less than $1,000 and not exceeding $5,000 or imprisonment not less than one year and not exceeding five years, or both, in the discretion of the court.

"No corporation shall be organized under the provisions of this section with a capital stock of less than $2,000,000, one-quarter of which must be paid in before the corporation may be authorized to begin business, and the remainder of the capital stock of such corporation shall be paid in installments of at least 10 per centum on the whole amount to which the corporation shall be limited as frequently as one installment at the end of each succeeding two months from the time of the commencement of its business operations until the whole of the capital stock shall be paid in. The capital stock of any such corporation may be increased at any time, with the approval of the Federal Reserve Board, by a vote of two-thirds of its shareholders or by unanimous consent in writing of the shareholders without a meeting and without a formal vote, but any such increase of capital shall be fully paid in within ninety days after such approval; and may be reduced in like manner, provided that in no event shall it be less than $2,000,000. No corporation, except as herein provided, shall during the time it shall continue its operations withdraw or permit to be withdrawn, either in the form of dividends or otherwise, any portion of its capital. Any national banking association may invest in the stock of any corporation organized under the provisions of this section, but the aggregate amount of stock held in all corporations engaged in business of the kind described in this section and in section 25 of the Federal Reserve Act as amended shall not exceed 10 per centum of the subscribing bank's capital and surplus.

"A majority of the shares of the capital stock of any such corporation shall at all times be held and owned by citizens of the United States, by corporations the controlling interest in which is owned by citizens of the United States, chartered under the laws of the United States or of a State of the United States, or by firms or companies, the controlling interest in which is owned by citizens of the United States. The provisions of section 8 of the act approved October 15, 1914, entitled 'An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes,' as amended by the acts of May 15, 1916, and September 7, 1916, shall be construed to apply to the directors, other officers, agents, or employees of corporations organized under the provisions of this section: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall (1) prohibit any director or other officer, agent or employee of any member bank, who has procured the approval of the Federal Reserve Board from serving at the same time as a director or other officer, agent or employee of any corporation organized under the provisions of this section in whose capital stock such member bank shall have invested; or (2) prohibit any director or other officer, agent, or employee of any corporation organized under the provisions of this section, who has procured the approval of the Federal Reserve Board, from serving at the same time as a director or other officer, agent or employee of any other corporation in whose capital stock such first-mentioned corporation shall have invested under the provisions of this section.

"No member of the Federal Reserve Board shall be an officer or director of any corporation organized under the provisions of this section, or of any corporation engaged in similar business organized under the laws of any State, nor hold stock in any such corporation, and before entering upon his duties as a member of the Federal Reserve Board he shall certify under oath to the Secretary of the Treasury that he has complied with this requirement.

"Shareholders in any corporation organized under the provisions of this section shall be liable for the amount of their unpaid stock subscriptions. No such corporation shall become a member of any Federal reserve bank.

"Should any corporation organized hereunder violate or fail to comply with any of the provisions of this section, all of its rights, privileges, and franchises derived herefrom may thereby be forfeited. Before any such corporation shall be declared dissolved, or its rights, privileges, and franchises forfeited, any noncompliance with, or violation of such laws shall, however, be determined and adjudged by a court of the United States of competent jurisdiction, in a suit brought for that purpose in the district or territory in which the home office of such corporation is located, which suit shall be brought by the United States at the instance of the Federal Reserve Board or the Attorney General.

Upon adjudication of such noncompliance or violation, each director and officer who participated in, or assented to, the illegal act or acts, shall be liable in his personal or individual capacity for all damages which the said corporation shall have sustained in consequence thereof. No dissolution shall take away or impair any remedy against the corporation, its stockholders, or officers for any liability or penalty previously incurred.

“ Any such corporation may go into voluntary liquidation and be closed by a vote of its shareholders owning two-thirds of its stock.

“ Whenever the Federal Reserve Board shall become satisfied of the insolvency of any such corporation, it may appoint a receiver who shall take possession of all of the property and assets of the corporation and exercise the same rights, privileges, powers, and authority with respect thereto as are now exercised by receivers of national banks appointed by the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States: Provided, however, That the assets of the corporation subject to the laws of other countries or jurisdictions shall be dealt with in accordance with the terms of such laws.

“ Every corporation organized under the provisions of this section shall hold a meeting of its stockholders annually upon a date fixed in its by-laws, such meeting to be held at its home office in the United States. Every such corporation shall keep at its home office books containing the names of all stockholders thereof, and the names and addresses of the members of its board of directors, together with copies of all reports made by it to the Federal Reserve Board. Every such corporation shall make reports to the Federal Reserve Board at such times and in such form as it may require; and shall be subject to examination once a year and at such other times as may be deemed necessary by the Federal Reserve Board by examiners appointed by the Federal Reserve Board, the cost of such examinations, including the compensation of the examiners, to be fixed by the Federal Reserve Board and to be paid by the corporation examined.

“ The directors of any corporation organized under the provisions of this section may, semiannually, declare a dividend of so much of the net profits of the corporation as they shall judge expedient; but each corporation shall, before the declaration of a dividend, carry one-tenth of its net profits of the preceding half year to its surplus fund until the same shall amount to 20 per centum of its capital stock.

“ Any corporation organized under the provisions of this section shall be subject to tax by the State within which its home office is located in the same manner and to the same extent as other corporations organized under the laws of that State which are transacting a similar character of business. The shares of stock in such corporation shall also be subject to tax as the personal property of the owners or holders thereof in the same manner and to the same extent as the shares of stock in similar State corporations.

“ Any corporation organized under the provisions of this section may at any time within the two years next previous to the date of the expiration of its corporate existence, by a vote of the shareholders owning two-thirds of its stock, apply to the Federal Reserve Board for its approval to extend the period of its corporate existence for a term of not more than twenty years, and upon certified approval of the Federal Reserve Board such corporation shall have its corporate existence for such extended period unless sooner dissolved by the act of the shareholders owning two-thirds of its stock, or by an Act of Congress or unless its franchise becomes forfeited by some violation of law.

" Any bank or banking institution, principally engaged in foreign business, incorporated by special law of any State or of the United States or organized under the general laws of any State or of the United States and having an unimpaired capital sufficient to entitle it to become a corporation under the provisions of this section may, by the vote of the shareholders owning not less than two-thirds of the capital stock of such bank or banking association, with the approval of the Federal Reserve Board, be converted into a Federal corporation of the kind authorized by this section with any name approved by the Federal Reserve Board: Provided, however, That said conversion shall not be in contravention of the State law. In such case the articles of association and organization certificate may be executed by a majority of the directors of the bank or banking institution, and the certificate shall declare that the owners of at least two-thirds of the capital stock have authorized the directors to make such certificate and to change or convert the bank or banking institution into a Federal corporation. A majority of the directors, after executing the articles of association and the organization certificate, shall have power to execute all other papers and to do whatever may be required to make its organization perfect and complete as a Federal corporation. The shares of any such corporation may continue to be for the same amount each as they were before the conversion, and the directors may continue to be directors of the corporation until others are elected or appointed in accordance with the provisions of this section. When the Federal Reserve Board has given to such corporation a certificate that the provisions of this section have been complied with, such corporation and all its stockholders, officers, and employees, shall have the same powers and privileges, and shall be subject to the same duties, liabilities, and regulations, in all respects, as shall have been prescribed by this section for corporations originally organized hereunder.

" Every officer, director, clerk, employee, or agent of any corporation organized under this section who embezzles, abstracts, or willfully misapplies any of the moneys, funds, credits, securities, evidences of indebtedness or assets of any character of such corporation; or who, without authority from the directors, issues or puts forth any certificate of deposit, draws any order or bill of exchange, makes any acceptance, assigns any note, bond, debenture, draft, bill of exchange, mortgage, judgment, or decree; or who makes any false entry in any book, report, or statement of such corporation with intent, in either case, to injure or defraud such corporation or any other company, body politic or corporate, or any individual person, or to deceive any officer of such corporation, the Federal Reserve Board, or any agent or examiner appointed to examine the affairs of any such corporation; and every receiver of any such corporation and every clerk or employee of such receiver who shall embezzle, abstract, or willfully misapply or wrongfully convert to his own use any moneys, funds, credits, or assets of any character which may come into his possession or under his control in the execution of his trust or the performance of the duties of his employment; and every such receiver or clerk or employee of such receiver who shall, with intent to injure or defraud any person, body politic or corporate, or to deceive or mislead the Federal Reserve Board, or any agent or examiner appointed to examine the affairs of such receiver, shall make any false entry in any book, report, or record of any matter connected with the duties of such receiver; and every person who with like intent aids or abets any officer, director, clerk, employee, or agent of any corporation organized under this section, or receiver or clerk or employee of such receiver as aforesaid in any violation of this section, shall upon conviction thereof be imprisoned for not less than two years nor more than ten years, and may also be fined not more than $5,000, in the discretion of the court.

“Whoever being connected in any capacity with any corporation organized under this section represents in any way that the United States is liable for the payment of any bond or other obligation, or the interest thereon, issued or incurred by any corporation organized hereunder, or that the United States incurs any liability in respect of any act or omission of the corporation, shall be punished by a fine or [of] not more than $10,000 and by imprisonment for not more than five years.” [— Stat. L. —.]

An Act To provide for the Award of medals of honor, distinguished-service medals, and Navy crosses, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [Medals of honor — presentation by President — grounds.] That the President of the United States be, and he is hereby, authorized to present, in the name of Congress, a medal of honor to any person who, while in the naval service of the United States, shall, in action involving actual conflict with the enemy, distinguish himself conspicuously by gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty and without detriment to the mission of his command or the command to which attached. [40 Stat. L. 1056.]

SEC. 2. [Distinguished service medals — presentation by President — grounds.] That the President be, and he hereby is, further authorized to present, but not in the name of Congress, a distinguished-service medal of appropriate design and a ribbon, together with a rosette or other device to be worn in lieu thereof, to any person who, while in the naval service of the United States, since the sixth day of April, nineteen hundred and seventeen, has distinguished, or who hereafter shall distinguish, himself by exceptionally meritorious service to the Government in a duty of great responsibility. [40 Stat. L. 1056.]

SEC. 3. [Navy cross — presentation by President — grounds.] That the President be, and he hereby is, further authorized to present, but not in the name of Congress, a Navy cross of appropriate design and a ribbon, together with a rosette or other device to be worn in lieu thereof, to any person who, while in the naval service of the United States, since the sixth day of April, nineteen hundred and seventeen, has distinguished, or who shall hereafter distinguish, himself by extraordinary heroism or distinguished service in the line of his profession, such heroism or service not being sufficient to justify the award of a medal of honor or a distinguished-service medal. [40 Stat. L. 1056.]

SEC. 4. [Additional pay for honor men.] That each enlisted or enrolled person of the naval service to whom is awarded a medal of honor, distinguished-service medal, or a Navy cross shall, for each such award, be entitled to additional pay at the rate of $2 per month from the date of the distinguished act or service on which the award is based, and each bar, or other suitable emblem or insignia, in lieu of a medal of honor, distinguished-service medal, or Navy cross, as hereinafter provided for, shall entitle him to further additional pay at the rate of $2 per month from the date of the distinguished act or service for which the bar is awarded, and such additional pay shall continue throughout his active service, whether such service shall or shall not be continuous. [40 Stat. L. 1056.]

SEC. 5. [Number of medals awarded one person — successive acts of valor.] That no more than one medal of honor or one distinguished-service medal or one Navy cross shall be issued to any one person; but for each succeeding deed or service sufficient to justify the award of a medal of honor or a distinguished-service medal or Navy cross, respectively, the President may award a suitable bar, or other suitable emblem or insignia, to be worn with the decoration and the corresponding rosette or other device. [40 Stat. L. 1056.]

SEC. 6. [Cost of medals — appropriation — replacement of medals.] That the Secretary of the Navy is hereby authorized to expend from the appropriation "Pay of the Navy" of the Navy Department so much as may be necessary to defray the cost of the medals of honor, distinguished-service medals, and Navy crosses, and bars, emblems, or insignia herein provided for, and so much as may be necessary to replace any medals, crosses, bars, emblems, or insignia as are herein or may heretofore have been provided for: Provided, That such replacement shall be made only in those cases where the medal of honor, distinguished-service medal, or Navy cross, or bar, emblem, or insignia presented under the provisions of this or any other Act shall have been lost, destroyed, or rendered unfit for use without fault or neglect on the part of the person to whom it was awarded, and shall be made without charge therefor. [40 Stat. L. 1056.]

SEC. 7. [Limitation of time for issuance of medals.] That, except as otherwise prescribed herein, no medal of honor, distinguished-service medal, Navy cross, or bar or other suitable emblem or insignia in lieu of either of said medals or of said cross, shall be issued to any person after more than five years from the date of the act or service justifying the award thereof, nor unless a specific statement or report distinctly setting forth the act or distinguished service and suggesting or recommending official recognition thereof shall have been made by his naval superior through official channels at the time of the act or service or within three years thereafter. [40 Stat. L. 1057.]

SEC. 8. [Award of medals to representatives of deceased persons — subsequent good conduct as prerequisite to award of medals — time of performance of distinguished service when immaterial to award.] That in case an individual who shall distinguish himself dies before the making of the award to which he may be entitled the award may nevertheless be made and the medal or cross or the bar or other emblem or insignia presented within five years from the date of the act or service justifying the award thereof to such representative of the deceased as the President may designate: Provided, That no medal or cross or no bar or other emblem or insignia shall be awarded or presented to any individual or to the representative of any individual whose entire service subsequent to the time he distinguished himself shall not have been honorable: Provided further, That in cases of persons now in the naval service for whom the award of the medal of honor has been recommended in full compliance with then existing regulations, but on account of services which, though insufficient fully to justify the award of the medal of honor, appears to have been such as to justify the award of the distinguished-service medal or Navy cross hereinbefore provided for, such cases may be considered and acted upon under the provisions of this Act authorizing the award of the distinguished-service medal and Navy cross notwithstanding that said services may have been rendered more than five years before said cases shall have been considered as authorized by this proviso, but all consideration or any action upon any of said cases shall be based exclusively upon official records now on file in the Navy Department. [40 Stat. L. 1057.]

SEC. 9. [Delegation of President's power to award Navy cross — rules and regulations for making Act effective.] That the President be, and he hereby is, authorized to delegate, under such conditions, regulations, and limitations as he shall prescribe, to flag officers who are commanders in chief or commanding on important independent duty the power conferred upon him by this Act to award the Navy cross; and he is further authorized to make from time to time any and all rules, regulations, and orders which he shall deem necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this Act and to execute the full purpose and intention thereof. [40 Stat. L. 1057.]

• • • [Marine Corps — military supplies — requisition from war department.] That the Secretary of War is authorized and directed to transfer to the Secretary of the Navy for the use of the Marine Corps without payment therefor, such reserve stock of clothing, arms, and equipment, and other necessary military supplies, inventoried at the cost to the Army and not to exceed in the aggregate $7,000,000, as the same from time to time may be requisitioned. [40 Stat. L. 1174.]

[Sec. 1.] • • • [Bureau of Steam Engineering — technical services.] The services of draftsmen and such other technical services as the Secretary of the Navy may deem necessary may be employed only in the Bureau of Steam Engineering and at rates of compensation not exceeding those paid hereunder prior to January 1, 1918, to carry into effect the various appropriations for "Increase of the Navy" and "Engineering," to be paid from the appropriation "Engineering": Provided, That the expenditures on this account for the fiscal year 1920 shall not exceed $230,055. A statement of the persons employed hereunder, their duties, and the compensation paid to each shall be made to Congress each year in the annual estimates. [40 Stat. L. 1244.]

This and the three paragraphs which follow are from the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation Act of March 1, 1919, ch. 86.

* * * [Bureau of Construction and Repair—technical services.] The services of draftsmen and such other technical services as the Secretary of the Navy may deem necessary may be employed only in the Bureau of Construction and Repair and at rates of compensation not exceeding those paid hereunder prior to January 1, 1918, to carry into effect the various appropriations for "Increase of the Navy," and "Construction and Repair," to be paid from the appropriation "Construction and Repair": Provided, That the expenditures on this account for the fiscal year 1920 shall not exceed $350,000. A statement of the persons employed hereunder, their duties, and the compensation paid to each shall be made to Congress each year in the annual estimates. [40 Stat. L. 1245.]

See the note to preceding paragraph.

* * * [Bureau of Ordnance—technical services.] The services of draftsmen and such other technical services as the Secretary of the Navy may deem necessary may be employed only in the Bureau of Ordnance, and at rates of compensation not exceeding those paid hereunder prior to January 1, 1918, to carry into effect the various appropriations for "Increase of the Navy," and "Ordnance and ordnance stores," to be paid from the appropriation "Ordnance and ordnance stores": Provided, That the expenditures on this account for the fiscal year 1920 shall not exceed $100,000. A statement of the persons employed hereunder; their duties, and the compensation paid to each, shall be made to Congress each year in the annual estimates. [40 Stat. L. 1245.]

See the note to second preceding paragraph.

* * * [Bureau of Yards and Docks—technical services.] The services of skilled draftsmen and such other technical services as the Secretary of the Navy may deem necessary may be employed only in the Bureau of Yards and Docks to carry into effect the various appropriations and allotments thereunder and be paid from such appropriations and allotments: Provided, That the expenditures on this account for the fiscal year 1920 shall not exceed $250,000. A statement of the persons employed hereunder, their duties, and the compensation paid to each shall be made to Congress each year in the annual estimates. [40 Stat. L. 1245.]

See the note to third preceding paragraph.

An Act Making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, and for other purposes.

[Act of July 11, 1919, ch. 9, 41 Stat. L. 132.]

* * * [Claims—privately owned property damaged during world war by men in naval service or marine corps.] That the Secretary of the Navy is authorized to consider, ascertain, adjust, determine, and pay the amounts due in all claims for damages (other than such as are occasioned by vessels of the Navy), to and loss of privately owned property, occurring subsequent to April 6, 1917, where the amount of the claim does not exceed $500, for which damage or loss men in the naval service or Marine Corps are found to be responsible, all payments in settlement of said claims to be made out of the appropriation "Pay, miscellaneous": Provided further, That all claims adjusted under this authority during any fiscal year shall be reported in detail to the Congress by the Secretary of the Navy. [41 Stat. L. 132.]

* * * [Disbursing officers — losses or deficiencies — relief.] The accounting officers of the Treasury shall relieve any disbursing officer of the Navy charged with responsibility on account of loss or deficiency while in the line of his duty, of Government funds, vouchers, records, or papers, in his charge, where such loss or deficiency occurred without fault or negligence on the part of said officer: Provided, That the Secretary of the Navy shall have determined that the officer was in the line of his duty, and the loss or deficiency occurred without fault or negligence on his part: Provided further, That the determination by the Secretary of the Navy of the aforesaid questions shall be conclusive upon the accounting officers of the Treasury: Provided further, That all cases of relief granted under this authority during any fiscal year shall be reported in detail to the Congress by the Secretary of the Navy. [41 Stat. L. 132.]

* * * [Military stores, supplies and equipment — interchange between Army and Navy.] The interchange without compensation therefor, of military stores, supplies, and equipment of every character, including real estate owned by the Government, is hereby authorized between the Army and the Navy upon the request of the head of one service and with the approval of the head of the other service. [41 Stat. L. 132.]

* * * [Enlistments — period.] Until June 30, 1920, enlistments in the Navy may be for terms of two, three or four years, and all laws now applicable to four year enlistments shall apply, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Navy, to enlistments for a shorter period with proportionate benefits upon discharge and reenlistment. [41 Stat. L. 134.]

* * * [Naval Reserve Force — gratuities for former Naval Volunteers.] Officers of the United States Naval Reserve Force who were transferred from the National Naval Volunteers under the provisions of the Act of July 1, 1918, shall be paid the same uniform gratuity as other officers of the Naval Reserve Force: Provided, That they shall not have received from any State such gratuity. [41 Stat. L. 135.]

For Act of July 1, 1918, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Ann. 553.

* * * [Naval Reserve Force — active duty on shore.] Members of the Naval Reserve Force shall not hereafter be ordered to perform active duty on shore of a kind which is ordinarily performed by civilians, and all reservists now performing such duty shall be relieved from such duty within thirty days after the date of approval of this Act. [41 Stat. L. 138.]

* * * [Enlisted strength of active list of Navy — temporary increase.] The total authorized enlisted strength of the active list of the Navy is hereby temporarily increased from 131,485 during the period from July 1, 1919, to September 30, 1919, to 241,000 men, and from October 1, 1919, to December 31, 1919, to 191,000 men, and from January 1, 1920, to June 30, 1920, to 170,000 men and the President is hereby authorized, whenever in his judgment a sufficient national emergency exists, to increase the authorized enlisted strength of the Navy to 191,000 men, and the Secretary of the Navy is hereby authorized to call to or continue on active service on strictly naval duties, with their consent, such numbers of the male members and nurses of the Naval Reserve Force in enlisted ratings as may be necessary to supply deficiencies to maintain the total authorized strength for the periods herein authorized. The foregoing total authorized strength shall include the hospital corps, apprentice seamen, those sentenced by court-martial to discharge, enlisted men of the Flying Corps, those under instruction in trade schools, and members of the Naval Reserve Force so serving. That during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, no member of the Naval Reserve Force shall be recalled to active duty for training or any other purpose except as hereinbefore provided: Provided, That the average number of commissioned officers of the line, permanent, temporary, and reserves on active duty, shall not exceed during the periods aforesaid, 4 per centum of the total temporary authorized enlisted strength of the Regular and Temporary Navy, and members of the Naval Reserve Force in enlisted ratings on active duty, and the number of staff officers shall be in the same proportion as provided under existing law: Provided further, That nothing herein shall be construed as affecting the permanent, commissioned, or enlisted strength of the Regular Navy as authorized by existing law. [41 Stat. L. 137.]

* * * [Naval Reserve Force and Marine Corps Reserve — female members.] Female members, except nurses, of the Naval Reserve Force and the Marine Corps Reserve shall, as soon as practicable and in no event later than thirty days after the date of approval of this Act, be placed on inactive duty. [41 Stat. L. 138.]

* * * [Naval Reserve Force and Marine Corps Reserve — civil appointments for members.] Members of the Naval Reserve Force and Marine Corps Reserve whose conduct, services and efficiency have demonstrated the desirability of their retention may, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy, be given temporary civil appointments in the Navy Department or Naval Establishment at the ordinary and usual rates of pay accorded employees performing a similar character of work, provided such services are necessary.

Members of the Naval Reserve Force and Marine Corps Reserve who accept such temporary civil appointments shall be given an opportunity to qualify by a civil service examination for certification in accordance with civil service rules to fill such vacancies as may occur, in cases where they are not already eligible for appointment or reinstatement. All temporary appointments made hereunder shall terminate not later than June 30, 1920. For pay of reservists so transferred to the civil establishment, or civil service employees appointed in lieu thereof, $8,613,220, their pay prior to transfer to be charged to the appropriation "Pay of the Navy," and the Secretary of the Navy shall submit to Congress on the first day of the next regular session a statement showing the number and designation of the persons employed hereunder and the rate of compensation paid to each: Provided, That no employee paid under the provisions of this paragraph, except expert technicians, shall receive annual compensation in excess of $2,000 for services rendered in the Navy Department, Washington, District of Columbia: Provided further, That not more than twenty-four employees shall be so appointed at a compensation exceeding $2,000 per annum, and that in no case shall the compensation exceed $4,000 per annum. [41 Stat. L. 138.]

* * * [Secretary of Navy — time for making computations and convening promotion boards — recommendations by boards.] The provision of existing law which requires the Secretary of the Navy to make computations semiannually as of July 1 and January 1 of each year and to convene the boards to select officers of the line and of the staff corps for promotion is hereby amended so that said computations shall be made and said boards shall be convened at least once each year and at such times as the Secretary of the Navy may direct, and the boards shall recommend for promotion such number of officers as may be necessary to fill vacancies then existing and which may occur during the next period of time. [41 Stat. L. 139.]

* * * [Pay and allowances of officers and men — effect of this Act.] That nothing contained in this Act shall be construed to reduce the pay or allowances of any commissioned, warrant, or appointed officer or any enlisted man as authorized by law for such officer or enlisted man in his present permanent status in the Regular Navy. [41 Stat. L. 139.]

* * * [Enrolled men of Naval Reserve Force and Marine Corps Reserve — transfer to regular Navy and Marine Corps.] Enrolled men of the Naval Reserve Force and of the Marine Corps Reserve, other than commissioned and warrant officers, who have performed active duty during the war, may, upon their own application, be transferred to the regular Navy and Marine Corps, respectively, to serve the unexpired term of their enrollment in such rating or rank as they may be found qualified under such regulations as the Secretary of the Navy may prescribe: Provided, That men so transferred shall have at least one year to serve in the regular Navy or the Marine Corps before the expiration of their current enlistment: Provided further, That such transfers may not be made in excess of the authorized enlisted strength of the Navy or Marine Corps: Provided further, That enrolled men so transferred shall be entitled to and receive the same pay, rights, privileges, and allowances in all respects as now provided by existing law for men regularly discharged and reenlisted immediately upon expiration of their full four-year enlistment in the Regular Navy or Marine Corps. [41 Stat. L. 139.]

* * * [Enlisted men of Navy and Coast Guard serving in world war — discharge — transportation and subsistence.] All enlisted men of the Navy and Coast Guard who have served in the war with the German Government and who may hereafter be discharged or who have been discharged from the service since November 11, 1918, and before the expiration of their full enlistment shall receive, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Navy may prescribe, an honorable discharge and shall receive 5 cents per mile from the place of his discharge to his actual bona fide home or residence, or original muster into the service at his option: Provided, That for sea travel on discharge, transportation and subsistence only shall be furnished to enlisted men: Provided, That the records of such men warrant such honorable discharge. [41 Stat. L. 139.]

* * * [Enlisted men of Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard — honorable discharge before expiration of term of enlistment — reenlistments — gratuity pay — extension of enlistments.] Any enlisted man of the Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard, who, since February 3, 1917, and before November 11, 1918, enlisted for the period of four years shall upon his application made to the Secretary of the Navy on or before September 1, 1919, be held and construed to have enlisted for the duration of the war and shall when discharged be granted an honorable discharge, and upon the taking effect of this Act shall be notified by the Secretary of the Navy of his right to file such application: Provided, That said enlisted man is otherwise entitled to an honorable discharge: Provided further, That the return home of the American Expeditionary Forces shall not be thereby delayed: Provided further, That any enlisted man who takes advantage of the provisions of this paragraph to secure a discharge from the Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard, and thereafter reenlists within four months in the Navy or in the Marine Corps, under conditions as now prescribed by law, for a period of four years, shall be entitled to receive the benefits of the gratuity pay provided by existing law for reenlistments.

Enlisted men of the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, who enlisted for the period of the war or enlisted for a period of four years between February 3, 1917, and November 11, 1918, and have their status changed to that of men who enlisted for the period of the war if otherwise entitled to an honorable discharge, may, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Navy may prescribe, extend their enlistments for a period of one, two, three, or four full years, and shall be entitled to and receive the same rights, privileges, pay, and allowances in all respects as now provided by law for men who extend enlistment on completion of terms of enlistment, except as to gratuity pay: Provided, That as, to gratuity pay, such enlisted men who extend their enlistment as before provided shall be entitled to receive an allowance of one month's pay for extending their enlistment for one year, two months' pay for extending their enlistment for two years, three months' pay for extending their enlistment for three years, and in the Navy four months' pay for extending their enlistment for four years. [41 Stat. L. 139.]

See Res. of Dec. 24, 1919, set out infra, this title, p. 290. That act repeals a paragraph relating to the quarters and commutation of officers of the navy and marine corps which was contained in this Act.

* * * [Enlisted men of Navy — increases of pay.] The rates of pay prescribed in section 15 of an Act entitled "An Act to temporarily increase the commissioned and warrant and enlisted strength of the Navy and Marine Corps, and for other purposes," approved May 22, 1917, are hereby made the permanent rates of pay of the enlisted men of the Navy during their present current enlistment and for those who enlist or reenlist prior to July 1, 1920, for the term of such enlistment or reenlistment. [41 Stat. L. 140.]

For Act of May 22, 1917, sec. 15, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann: 528.

* * * [Officers serving in temporary grade or rank — promotion to same permanent grade.] That officers of the permanent Navy who have served satisfactorily during the war with the German Government in a temporary grade or rank shall be eligible under the provision of existing law for selection for promotion and for promotion to the same permanent grade or rank until July 1, 1920, without regard to statutory requirements other than professional and physical examinations: Provided, That the age and grade requirement prescribed by the Act approved August 29, 1916, in the rank of commander, is hereby extended from June 30, 1920, to June 30, 1921. [41 Stat. L. 140.]

For Act of Aug. 29, 1916, mentioned in the text, see 1916 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 514.

* * * [Rear admiral serving as chief of a bureau — credit for services.] Any officer with the permanent rank of rear admiral who has heretofore served a full term and is now serving as chief of any bureau of the Navy Department shall be credited with service for all purposes as provided by section 1486 of the Revised Statutes, and nothing herein contained shall operate to increase the rank or pay of any such officer as now authorized by law. [41 Stat. L. 140.]

For R. S. sec. 1486, mentioned in the text, see 6 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1139; 5 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 293.

* * * [Warrant officers — pay for foreign shore duty.] Warrant officers of the Navy on shore duty beyond the continental limits of the United States shall, while so serving and from the time of departure from and until the time of return to said limits under orders to or from such foreign-shore duty, receive the same pay as is now or may be authorized by law for warrant officers on sea duty: Provided, That this paragraph shall be effective from April 6, 1917. [41 Stat. L. 140.]

* * * [Enlisted men of Navy or Marine Corps accepting temporary service in reserve forces — effect as to retirement, rank and pay — credit for service rendered.] Any enlisted man of the Navy or Marine Corps who has been or may be discharged to enable him to accept appointment as a commissioned or warrant officer in the Navy Reserve Force or Marine Corps Reserve, and who reenlists in the Navy or Marine Corps after the termination of his reserve service, shall be entitled, in computing service for retirement, to credit for all active reserve service; and if he reenlists in the Navy or Marine Corps within four or three months, respectively, from the date of the termination of his service as an officer of the Reserve he shall be restored to the grade or rank held by him before being discharged to accept such commission or warrant, and his service in the Regular Navy or Marine Corps, including his active service in the Naval Reserve Force or Marine Corps Reserve, shall be regarded as continuous for purposes of continuous-service pay. [41 Stat. L. 141.]

* * * [Warrant officers and pay clerks — Navy and Marine Corps — temporary services in reserve forces — effect on former status — longevity pay and retirement.] That any warrant officer in the Navy or Marine Corps and any pay clerk in the Marine Corps who has accepted or who may hereafter accept appointment as a commissioned officer in the Naval Reserve Force or Marine Corps Reserve shall be entitled, upon the termination of his appointment as a commissioned officer in the Reserve, to revert to his former status as a warrant officer in the Navy or Marine Corps, or as a pay clerk in the Marine Corps, and shall be entitled to count all active reserve service for purposes of longevity pay and retirement. [41 Stat. L. 141.]

* * * [Naval Militia — effect of transfer of National Naval Volunteers to Naval Reserve Force.] That no part or parts of any existing laws shall be construed as having discharged from the Naval Militia of any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, those members of the National Naval Volunteers who were transferred to the Naval Reserve Force by authority of the Act of Congress making appropriations for the Naval Service which became a law on July 1, 1918; nor to prevent members of the Naval Reserve Force from being or becoming members of the Naval Militia of any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia: Provided, That such membership in the Naval Militia shall not interfere with the discharge of duties by such members thereof who are in the Naval Reserve Force. [41 Stat. L. 141.]

For Act of July 1, 1918, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 553.

* * * [Pay Corps — change of name.] That hereafter the Pay Corps shall be called the Supply Corps. [41 Stat. L. 141.]

* * * [Captains — promotion — physical defects.] That the provisions of the Act of August 29, 1916, regarding the promotion of captains in the line of the permanent Navy shall not restrict the promotion of such captains as may have been wounded in line of duty and who are now on the active list, and such captains shall be entitled to the benefits of the provisions of section 1494, Revised Statutes of the United States, and also to the benefits of the Act of March 4, 1911. [41 Stat. L. 147.]

For Act of Aug. 29, 1916, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 517.

For Act of March 4, 1911, mentioned in the text, see 6 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1131; 1912 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 283.

* * * [Courts-martial prisoners — commutation of rations.] That the Secretary of the Navy is authorized to commute rations for such general courts-martial prisoners [Navy and Marine Corps general courts-martial prisoners undergoing imprisonment with sentences of dishonorable discharge from the service at the expiration of such confinement] in such amounts as seem to him proper, which may vary in accordance with the location of the naval prison, but which shall in no case exceed 30 cents per diem for each ration so commuted. [41 Stat. L. 147.]

* * * [Vessels obtained from United States Shipping Board — charter hire.] That the United States Shipping Board shall not require payment from the Navy Department for the charter hire of vessels furnished or to be furnished from July 1, 1918, to June 30, 1920, inclusive, for the use of that department when such vessels are owned by the United States Government. [41 Stat. L. 148.]

* * * [“Enlisted men” as including women.] That the words “enlisted men,” as contained in prior appropriation Acts, shall not be construed to deprive women, enlisted or enrolled in the naval service, of the pay, allowances, gratuities, and other benefits granted by law to the enlisted personnel of the Navy and Marine Corps. [41 Stat. L. 152.]

* * * [Marine Corps — enlisted strength — increase.] The authorized enlisted strength of the active list of the Marine Corps is hereby temporarily increased to 27,400, plus such number of men as may be serving with the American Expeditionary Forces abroad: Provided, That the average number of enlisted men of the Marine Corps on active duty during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, shall not exceed 27,400, distribution in the various grades to be made in the same proportion as provided under existing law. [41 Stat. L. 152.]

• • • [Officers — temporary appointments — reductions — lower grades.] That in making reductions required by this Act, officers holding temporary appointments may be given temporary appointments in lower grades, and officers so appointed shall take precedence from the dates of their original appointments in such lower grades. [41 Stat. L. 153.]

• • • [Retired enlisted men — Navy or Marine Corps — active duty — promotions.] That so much of the Act of July 1, 1918 (Public Numbered 182), as authorizes the promotion of retired enlisted men of the Navy and Marine Corps ordered to active duty shall not be so construed as to make illegal promotions of such men as have heretofore been made to warrant grades or as to deprive them of any of the pay, allowances, or other benefits accruing under such promotion. [41 Stat. L. 153.]

For Act of July 1, 1918, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 539.

• • • [Settlement of accounts of disbursing officers — period of world war — credits.] That the accounting officers of the Treasury Department are hereby authorized and directed to allow, in the settlement of the accounts of disbursing officers of the Navy and Marine Corps covering the period of the present emergency, such credits for payments to officers and enlisted men not ordinarily allowable under the statutes, as are certified to them by the Secretary of the Navy as having been incurred under military necessity, or as having been occasioned by accidental circumstances or conditions over which such disbursing officers had no control and for which they were not justly responsible: Provided, That the period of the present emergency as contemplated by this paragraph shall be regarded as beginning on the 6th day of April, 1917, and as terminating six months after the expiration of the quarter in which peace is declared. And that nothing herein shall be construed to include payments under contracts for supplies or services. [41 Stat. L. 153.]

• • • [Marine Corps — enlisted men — allowance for rations.] That hereafter, except when detached by the President of the United States for duty with the Army, enlisted men of the Marine Corps shall be entitled to the same allowance for rations as are enlisted men of the Navy, under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Navy. [41 Stat. L. 154.]

• • • [Post laundries — cost of operation — how defrayed.] That hereafter the funds received in payment for laundry work performed by post laundries shall be used to defray the cost of operation of such laundries and the receipts and expenditures shall be accounted for in accordance with the methods prescribed by law and any sums remaining at the end of the fiscal year after such cost of maintenance and operation have been defrayed shall be deposited in the Treasury to the credit of the appropriation from which the cost of operation of such plants is paid. [41 Stat. L. 155.]

Joint Resolution Continuing temporarily certain allowances to officers of the Navy and Marine Corps.

[Res. of Dec. 24, 1919, No. 26, ch. 41, Stat. L. —.]

Whereas since it now appears that peace has not been declared by October 1, 1919, on which date officers of the Navy, by operation of law, will cease to receive the benefits prescribed in the Act of April 16, 1918 (Public, Numbered 129), and

Whereas said benefits will accrue to officers of the Army until peace shall have been declared: Therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the paragraph in the Act of July 11, 1919 (Public, Numbered 8), which reads as follows:

“ The Act of April 16, 1918 (Public, Numbered 129), granting under certain conditions to every commissioned officer of the Army the right to quarters in kind for their dependents or the authorized commutation therefor, including the allowances for heat and light, shall hereafter be construed to apply to officers of the Navy and Marine Corps only during the period of the war and in no event beyond October 1, 1919,” be, and the same is hereby, repealed: Provided, That officers of the Navy and Marine Corps shall be entitled to all the rights and benefits under said Act of April 16, 1918 (Public, Numbered 129), from and after October 1, 1919, and during the present emergency. [41 Stat. L. —.]

Making or Presenting False Claims — Receiving Military or Naval Property Unlawfully — Sec. 35 of Crim. Code Amended, 291.

An Act To amend section thirty-five of the Criminal Code of the United States.

[Act of Oct. 23, 1918, ch. 194, 40 Stat. L. 1015.]

"SEC. 35. Whoever shall make or cause to be made or present or cause to be presented, for payment or approval, to or by any person or officer in the civil, military, or naval service of the United States, or any department thereof, or any corporation in which the United States of America is a stockholder, any claim upon or against the Government of the United States, or any department or officer thereof, or any corporation in which the United States of America is a stockholder, knowing such claim to be false, fictitious, or fraudulent; or whoever, for the purpose of obtaining or aiding to obtain the payment or approval of such claim, or for the purpose and with the intent of cheating and swindling or defrauding the Government of the United States, or any department thereof, or any corporation in which the United States of America is a stockholder, shall knowingly and willfully falsify or conceal or cover up by any trick, scheme, or device a material fact, or make or cause to be made any false or fraudulent statements or representations, or make or use or cause to be made or used any false bill, receipt, voucher, roll, account, claim, certificate, affidavit, or deposition, knowing the same to contain any fraudulent or fictitious statement or entry; or whoever shall take and carry away or take for his own use, or for the use of another, with intent to steal or purloin, any personal property of the United States, or any branch or department thereof, or any corporation in which the United States of America is a stockholder; or whoever shall enter into any agreement, combination, or conspiracy to defraud the Government of the United States, or any department or officer thereof, or any corporation in which the United States of America is a stockholder, by obtaining or aiding to obtain the payment or allowance of any false or fraudulent claim; and whoever, having charge, possession, custody, or control of any money or other public property used or to be used in the military or naval service, with intent to defraud the United States, or any department thereof, or any corporation in which the United States of America is a stockholder, or willfully to conceal such money or other property, shall deliver or cause to be delivered to any person having authority to receive the same any amount of such money or other property less than that for which he received a certificate or took a receipt; or whoever, being authorized to make or deliver any certificate, voucher, receipt, or other paper certifying the receipt of arms, ammunition, provisions, clothing, or other property so used or to be used, shall make or deliver the same to any other person without a full knowledge of the truth of the facts stated therein and with intent to defraud the United States, or any department thereof, or any corporation in which the United States of America is a stockholder, shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than ten years, or both. And whoever shall purchase, or receive in pledge, from any person any arms, equipment, ammunition, clothing, military stores, or other property furnished by the United States, under a clothing allowance or otherwise, to any soldier, sailor, officer, cadet, or midshipman in the military or naval service of the United States or of the National Guard or Naval Militia, or to any person accompanying, serving, or retained with the land or naval forces and subject to military or naval law, having knowledge or reason to believe that the property has been taken from the possession of the United States or furnished by the United States under such allowance, shall be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than two years, or both." [40 Stat. L. 1015.]

For sec. 35 of the Penal Laws, as originally enacted, see 7 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 523; 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 414.

Effect of Ninety-fourth Article of War.—The subject-matter of this act amending section 35 of the Criminal Code is the same as that set forth in the ninety-fourth Article of War. The punishment however is different. The act does not in any manner refer to or amend or repeal the ninety-fourth Article of War, and does not deprive courts-martial of their jurisdiction in respect of persons in the military and naval service. It is merely the latest legislation logically carrying down to date statutes which have permitted the trial of civilians and members of the military and naval forces in the civil courts, and does not in any manner interfere with a trial by court-martial as provided in the Articles of War. U. S. v. Barry, (S. D. N. Y. 1919) 260 Fed. 291.

An Act Making appropriations for the service of the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] * * * [Inspectors — per diem allowances.] For per diem allowance of inspectors in the field while actually traveling on official business away from their homes, their official domiciles, and their headquarters, at a rate to be fixed by the Postmaster General, not to exceed $4 per day: Provided, That the Postmaster General may, in his discretion, allow inspectors per diem while temporarily located at any place on business away from their homes or their designated domiciles for a period not exceeding twenty consecutive days at any one place, and make rules and regulations governing the foregoing provisions relating to per diem: And provided further, That no per diem shall be paid to inspectors receiving annual salaries of $2,000 or more, except the thirty-two inspectors receiving $2,100 each, $350,000. [40 Stat. L. 1189.]

* * * [Postmasters — readjustment of salaries.] That the Postmaster General is hereby authorized to readjust the salaries of postmasters at offices of the first, second, and third class, effective July 1, 1919, in accordance with the law in effect prior to the war: And provided further, That in making such adjustment no allowance shall be made for the revenue derived from increased rates on first-class mail. [40 Stat. L. 1190.]

* * * [First-class post offices — foremen — stenographers.] That there may also be employed at first-class post offices foremen and stenographers at a salary of $1,300 or more per annum. [40 Stat. L. 1192.]

* * * [Clerks — appointment and assignment — vacations — substitutes.] That hereafter the appointment and assignment of clerks hereunder shall be so made during each fiscal year as not to involve a greater aggregate expenditure than the sum appropriated; and to enable the Postmaster General to carry out the provisions of this Act he may hereafter exceed the number of clerks appropriated for for particular grades: Provided further, That hereafter the fifteen days' annual vacation allowed by law to clerks and other employees in first and second class offices shall be credited at the rate of one and one-quarter days for each month of actual service: Provided further, That hereafter whenever practicable in case of emergency or otherwise a substitute is available the postmaster is prohibited from employing a regular clerk overtime. [40 Stat. L. 1192.]

* * * [Third-class post offices — clerical services — allowances.] That hereafter no allowance in excess of $450 shall be made where the salary of the postmaster is $1,000, $1,100, or $1,200; nor in excess of $600 where the salary of the postmaster is $1,300, $1,400, or $1,500; and that no allowance in excess of

$750 shall be made where the salary of the postmaster is $1,600 or $1,700; nor in excess of $1,200 where the salary of the postmaster is $1,800 or $1,900. [40 Stat. L. 1193.]

* * * [Work days — holidays.] That hereafter all days, other than the holidays enumerated in the Act of July 28, 1916, making appropriations for the Postal Service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, set aside by the President of the United States as holidays to be observed by the other departments of the Government throughout the United States shall be construed as applicable to the Postal Service in the same manner and to the same extent as the executive departments. [40 Stat. L. 1193.]

For Act of July 28, 1916, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 644.

* * * [Aeroplane mail service.] That out of this appropriation the Postmaster General is authorized to expend not exceeding $850,500 for the purchase of aeroplanes and the operation and maintenance of aeroplane mail service between such points, including service to and between points in Alaska, as he may determine. The Postmaster General in expending this appropriation shall purchase, as far as practicable, such available and suitable equipment and supplies for the aeroplane mail service as may be owned by or under construction for the War Department or the Navy Department when no longer required because of the cessation of war activities, and it shall be his duty to first ascertain if such articles of the character described may be secured from the War Department or the Navy Department before purchasing such equipment or supplies elsewhere. If such equipment or supplies, other than emergency supplies, are purchased elsewhere than from the War Department or the Navy Department, the Postmaster General shall report such action to Congress, together with the reasons for such purchases. All articles purchased from either of said departments shall be paid for at a reasonable price considering wear and tear and general condition. Said departments are authorized to sell such equipment and supplies to the Post Office Department under the conditions specified, and the proceeds of such sales shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts: Provided further, That the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy are hereby authorized and directed to deliver immediately to the Postmaster General, as he may request, and as hereinbefore provided, such aeroplane machines, supplies, equipment, and parts as may be serviceable and available for the aeroplane mail service, the same to be out of any equipment that the War Department or the Navy Department has on hand or under construction, the War Department and the Navy Department appropriations to be credited with the equipment turned over to the Post Office Department: And provided further, That separate accounts be kept of the amount expended for aeroplane mail service. [40 Stat. L. 1194.]

* * * [Railway postal clerks — deadheading — full time.] That railway and substitute railway postal clerks shall be credited with full time when deadheading under orders of the department. [40 Stat. L. 1195.]

* * * [Railway postal clerks — travel allowances — former act amended.] That the Act of August 24, 1912 (Thirty-seventh Statutes, page 548), amended by the Act approved March 3, 1917, be further amended to read as follows:

"That hereafter, in addition to the salaries provided by law, the Postmaster General is hereby authorized to make travel allowances in lieu of actual expenses, at fixed rates per annum, not exceeding in the aggregate the sum annually appropriated, to railway postal clerks, acting railway postal clerks, and substitute railway postal clerks, including substitute railway postal clerks for railway postal clerks granted leave with pay on account of sickness, assigned to duty in railway post office cars, while on duty, after ten hours from the time of beginning their initial run, under such regulations as he may prescribe, and in no case shall such an allowance exceed $2 per day." [40 Stat. L. 1195.]

* * * [Transportation of mail by electric and cable cars—rate of compensation.] That the rate of compensation to be paid per mile shall not exceed the rate now paid to companies performing such service, except that the Postmaster General, in cases where the quantity of mail is large and the number of exchange points numerous, may, in his discretion, authorize payment for closed-pouch service at a rate per mile not to exceed one-third above the rate per mile now paid for closed-pouch service; and for mail cars and apartments carrying the mails, not to exceed the rate of 1 cent per linear foot per car-mile of travel: Provided further, That the rates for electric car service on routes over twenty miles in length outside of cities shall not exceed the rates paid for service on steam railroads. [40 Stat. L. 1195.]

* * * [Rural carriers—compensation.] That hereafter rural carriers assigned to horse-drawn vehicle routes on which daily service is performed shall receive $24 per mile per annum for each mile said routes are in excess of twenty-four miles or major fraction thereof, based on actual mileage, and rural carriers assigned to horse-drawn vehicle routes on which triweekly service is performed shall receive $12 per mile per annum for each mile said routes are in excess of twenty-four miles or major fraction thereof, based on actual mileage: Provided further, That during the fiscal year nineteen hundred and twenty the pay of carriers who furnish and maintain their own motor vehicles and who serve routes not less than fifty miles in length may be fixed at not exceeding $2,250 per annum. [40 Stat. L. 1197.]

* * * [Transportation of food products—motor truck routes—establishment.] That to promote the conservation of food products and to facilitate the collection and delivery thereof from producer to consumer and the delivery to producers of articles necessary in the production of such food products, the Postmaster General is hereby authorized to conduct experiments in the operation of motor vehicle truck routes, to be selected by him. The Postmaster General is further authorized to conduct experiments in the operation of country motor express routes, which shall be primarily operated as a means of expediting the transportation of fourth-class mail between producing and consuming localities and shall not displace or supplant any existing methods of mail transportation or delivery. These two classes of experiments shall be conducted under such rules and regulations, including modifications in rates of postage and in packing and wrapping requirements, as the Postmaster General may prescribe, and to defray the cost thereof the sum of $300,000 is hereby appropriated: Provided, That mail other than that of the fourth class shall not be dispatched on experimental motor vehicle truck routes or on experimental country motor express routes unless the same can be expedited thereby in delivery at destination: Provided further, That separate accounts shall be kept of the amount of all the mail of all classes carried on such routes. The Postmaster General shall report to Congress the result of such experiments at the beginning of the next regular session. [40 Stat. L. 1198.]

SEC. 2. [Pay of post office employees — grades — promotions.] That during the fiscal year ending June thirty, nineteen hundred and twenty, clerks in first and second class post offices and letter carriers in the City Delivery Service shall be divided into six grades as follows: First grade, salary $1,000; second grade, salary $1,100; third grade, salary $1,200; fourth grade, salary $1,300; fifth grade, salary $1,400; sixth grade, salary $1,500: Provided, That clerks in first and second class post offices and letter carriers in the City Delivery Service shall be promoted successively after one year's satisfactory service in each grade to the next higher grade until they reach the sixth grade. All promotions shall be made at the beginning of the quarter following one year's satisfactory service in the grade: Provided further, That clerks in first and second class post offices and letter carriers in the City Delivery Service who have served satisfactorily for one year in grades one, two, three, four, and five, respectively, under the Act approved July two, nineteen hundred and eighteen, shall be promoted to the next higher grade: Provided further, That the salaries of railway postal clerks shall be graded as follows: Grade one, at $1,100; grade two, at $1,200; grade three, at $1,300; grade four, at $1,400; grade five, at $1,500; grade six, at $1,600; grade seven, at $1,700; grade eight, at $1,800; grade nine, at $1,900; grade ten, at $2,000.

The Postmaster General shall classify and fix the salaries of railway postal clerks, under such regulations as he may prescribe, in the grades provided by law; and for the purpose of organization and establishing maximum grades to which promotions may be made successively, as hereinafter provided, he shall classify railway post offices, terminal railway post offices, and transfer offices with reference to their character and importance in three classes, with salary grades as follows: Class A, $1,100 to $1,500; class B, $1,100 to $1,600; class C, $1,100 to $1,800. He may assign to the offices of division superintendents and chief clerks such railway postal clerks as may be necessary and fix their salaries within the grades provided by law without regard to the classification of railway post offices.

Clerks in class A shall be promoted successively to grade three, clerks in class B shall be promoted successively to grade four, and clerks in class C shall be promoted successively to grade five, at the beginning of the quarter following the expiration of a year's satisfactory service in the next lower grade. Promotions above these grades within the maximum grades of the classification may be made in the discretion of the Postmaster General for meritorious service. No promotion shall be made except upon evidence satisfactory to the Post Office Department of the efficiency and faithfulness of the employee during the preceding year: Provided further, That clerks assigned as clerks in charge of crews consisting of more than one clerk shall be clerks of grades six to ten, inclusive, and may be promoted one grade only after three years' satisfactory and faithful service in such capacity: Provided further, That during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, the compensation of each rural letter carrier for serving a rural route of twenty-four miles, six days in the week, shall be $1,500; on routes twenty-two miles and less than twenty-four miles, $1,440; on routes twenty miles and less than twenty-two miles, $1,350; on routes eighteen miles and less than twenty miles, $1,200; on routes sixteen miles and less than eighteen miles, $1,050; on routes fourteen miles and less than sixteen miles, $900; on routes twelve miles and less than fourteen miles, $840; on routes ten miles and less than twelve miles, $780; on routes eight miles and less than ten miles, $720; on routes six miles and less than eight miles, $660; on routes four miles and less than six miles, $600. A rural letter carrier serving one triweekly route shall be paid on the basis for a route one-half the length of the route served by him, and a carrier serving two triweekly routes shall be paid on the basis for a route one-half of the combined length of the two routes: Provided further, That during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, postmasters of the fourth class shall receive the same compensation as now provided by law, except that they shall receive 100 per centum of the cancellations of the first $100 or less per quarter: Provided further, That if the compensation does not exceed $75 for any one quarter, fourth-class postmasters shall be allowed an increase of 20 per centum of the compensation allowed under existing law: Provided further, That no office shall be advanced to third class by reason of the temporary increases herein provided: Provided further, That during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, the increased compensation provided in section 2 of the Act approved July 2, 1918, making appropriations for the service of the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, and for other purposes, shall remain the same for employees other than those mentioned herein: Provided further, That no assistant postmaster or supervisory official at offices of the first class shall receive a less salary than $100 per annum in excess of the sixth-grade salary provided for clerks and carriers in the City Delivery Service, nor shall an assistant postmaster at any office of the second class be paid a less salary than that paid the highest-salaried clerk or letter carrier employed in such office: Provided further, That the provisions of this section shall not apply to employees who receive a part of their pay from any outside sources under cooperative arrangement with the Post Office Department, or to employees who serve voluntarily or receive only a nominal compensation: And provided further, That the increased compensation at the rate of 10 per centum, and 15 per centum for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918, and the increased compensation for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, shall not be computed as salary in construing this section. So much as may be necessary for the increases provided for in this act is hereby appropriated. [40 Stat. L. 1198.]

For Act of July 2, 1918, sec. 2, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 664.

SEC. 3. [Congressional committee to investigate salaries of postal employees.] That a commission consisting of five members of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads of the United States Senate, to be appointed by the President of the Senate, and five members of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads of the House of Representatives, to be appointed by the Speaker of the House, is hereby authorized to investigate the salaries of postmasters and employees of the postal service with a view to the reclassification and readjustment of such salaries on an equitable basis. Vacancies occurring in the membership of the commission shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointments.

The commission is authorized to sit during the sessions or recess of Congress, to send for persons and papers, to administer oaths, to summon and compel the attendance of witnesses, and to employ such clerical and expert services and incur such expenses as may be necessary to carry out the purpose of this investigation.

The heads of the Post Office Department, postmasters, supervisory officials, and employees of the Postal Service shall furnish data and information, and make investigations upon request of the commission.

It shall be the duty of the commission to report by bill or otherwise, as soon as practicable, the results of its investigation and what reclassification and readjustment of compensation should be made. The expense of such investigation shall be paid from the unexpended balance of any appropriation for the Postal Service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, or for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, and disbursed upon vouchers approved by the commission; which approval shall be conclusive upon the accounting officers of the Treasury Department. Funds necessary for the expenses of the commission shall become available upon the approval of this Act. [40 Stat. L. 1200.]

Sec. 4 is omitted because it contains nothing of permanent value.

SEC. 5. [Rural post roads—definition of term—limitation of payments under federal aid—former act amended.] That the Act entitled "An Act to provide that the United States shall aid the States in the construction of rural post roads, and for other purposes," approved July 11, 1916, is hereby amended to provide that the term "rural post roads," as used in section 2 of said Act, shall be construed to mean any public road a major portion of which is now used, or can be used, or forms a connecting link not to exceed ten miles in length of any road or roads now or hereafter used for the transportation of the United States mails, excluding every street and road in a place having a population, as shown by the latest available Federal census, of two thousand five hundred or more, except that portion of any such street or road along which the houses average more than two hundred feet apart: Provided, That section 6 of said Act be further amended so that the limitation of payments not to exceed $10,000 per mile, exclusive of the cost of bridges of more than twenty feet clear span, which the Secretary of Agriculture may make, be, and the same is, increased to $20,000 per mile. [40 Stat. L. 1200.]

For Act of July 11, 1916, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 639.

SEC. 6. [Rural post roads—federal aid—appropriation—apportionment—preferences in employment of labor.] That for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of said Act, as herein amended, there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the following additional sums: The sum of $50,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, and available immediately; the sum of $75,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920; and the sum of $75,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921; said additional sums to be expended in accordance with the provisions of said Act: Provided, That where the constitution of any State prohibits the same from engaging upon internal improvements, or from contracting public debts for extraordinary purposes in an amount sufficient to meet the monetary requirements of the Act of July 11, 1916, or any Act amendatory thereof, or restricts annual tax levies for the purpose of constructing and improving roads and bridges, and where a constitutional alteration or amendment to overcome either or all of such prohibitions must be submitted to a referendum at a general election, the sum to which such State is entitled under the method of apportionment provided in the Act of July 11, 1916, or any Act amendatory thereof, shall be withdrawn by the Secretary of the Treasury from the principal fund appropriated by the Act of July 11, 1916, or any Act amendatory thereof, upon receipt of the certification of the governor of such State to the existence of either or all of said prohibitions, and such sum shall be carried by the Secretary of the Treasury as a separate fund for future disbursement as hereinafter provided: Provided further, That when, by referendum, the constitutional alterations or amendments necessary to the enjoyment of the sum so withdrawn have been approved and ratified by any State, the Secretary of the Treasury, upon receipt of certification from the governor of such State to such effect, shall immediately make available to such State, for the purposes set forth in the Act of July 11, 1916, or any Act amendatory thereof, the sum withdrawn as hereinbefore provided: Provided further, That nothing herein shall be deemed to prevent any State from receiving such portion of said principal sum as is available under its existing constitution and laws: Provided further, That in the expenditure of this fund for labor preference shall be given, other conditions being equal, to honorably discharged soldiers, sailors, and marines, but any other preference or discrimination among citizens of the United States in connection with the expenditure of this appropriation is hereby declared to be unlawful. [40 Stat. L. 1201.]

For Act of July 11, 1916, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 639.

SEC. 7. [Rural post roads—federal aid—use of supplies not needed by War Department.] That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized in his discretion to transfer to the Secretary of Agriculture all available war material, equipment, and supplies not needed for the purposes of the War Department, but suitable for use in the improvement of highways, and that the same be distributed among the highway departments of the several States to be used on roads constructed in whole or in part by Federal aid, such distribution to be made upon a value basis of distribution the same as provided by the Federal aid road Act, approved July 11, 1916: Provided, That the Secretary of Agriculture, at his discretion, may reserve from such distribution not to exceed 10 per centum of such material, equipment, and supplies for use in the construction of national forest roads or other roads constructed under his direct supervision. [40 Stat. L. 1201.]

For Act of July 11, 1916, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 639.

SEC. 8. [See TIMBER LANDS AND FOREST RESERVES.]

SEC. 9. [Rural post roads—federal aid—employment of soldiers and sailors.] That no officer or enlisted man of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps shall be detailed for work on the roads which come within the provisions of this Act except by his own consent: And provided further, That the Secretary of Agriculture through the War Department shall ascertain the number of days any such soldiers, sailors, and marines have worked on the public roads in the several States (other than roads within the limits of cantonments or military reservations in the several States) during the existing war and also the location where they worked and their names and rank, and report to Congress at the beginning of its next regular session: Provided further, That when any officer or enlisted man in the Army, the Navy, or the Marine Corps shall have been or may be in the future detailed for labor in the building of roads or other highway construction or repair work (other than roads within the limits of cantonments or military reservations in the several States), during the existing war, the pay of such officer or enlisted man shall be equalized to conform to the compensation paid to civilian employees in the same or like employment and the amount found to be due such officers, soldiers, sailors, and marines, less the amount of his pay as such officer, soldier, sailor, or marine, shall be paid to him from the 1920 appropriation herein allotted to the States wherein such highway construction or repair work was or will be performed. [40 Stat. L. 1202.]

Joint Resolution To provide additional compensation for employees of the Postal Service and making an appropriation therefor.

[Res. of Nov. 7, 1919, No. 19, ch. 99, 41 Stat. L. 350.]

[SEC. 1.] [Postmasters and other employees — additional compensation.] That because of the unusual conditions which now exist, the compensation provided for in the Act entitled "An Act making appropriations for the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920," approved February 28, 1919, the following classes of employees shall be increased as follows for such fiscal year only:

(a) Postmasters at offices of the third class; assistant postmasters and clerks, including clerks at division headquarters of post-office inspectors, special clerks, finance clerks, bookkeepers, printers, mechanics, skilled laborers, watchmen, messengers, laborers, and other employees of offices of the first and second class; letter carriers in the City Delivery Service; employees in Government-owned automobile service; supervisory officials, inspectors, railway postal clerks, including substitutes, superintendents, requisition fillers, packers, and laborers; the agent in charge, clerks, and messengers at the United States Stamped Envelope Agency, Dayton, Ohio; and employees of the mail equipment shop who receive compensation at the rate per annum of—

- (1) Not less than $1,000 nor more than $1,200, to be increased $200.
- (2) More than $1,200 and not more than $1,600, to be increased $150.

(3) More than $1,600 and not more than $2,000, to be increased $125.

(4) More than $2,000 and not more than $2,500, to be increased $100.

Provided, That no third-class postmaster shall receive more than $2,000 per annum.

(b) Carriers in the village delivery service, and other employees paid from lump-sum appropriations, receiving compensation at the rate of less than $1,000 per annum, to be increased 20 per centum of their present compensation.

(c) Rural letter carriers on daily routes and rural letter carriers on two tri-weekly routes whose routes are—

(1) Eleven miles or less in length, to be increased $75.

(2) Over eleven miles and under twenty miles in length, to be increased $100.

(3) Twenty miles and under twenty-four miles in length, to be increased $150.

(4) Twenty-four miles or over in length, to be increased $200.

(d) Rural letter carries on triweekly routes of—

(1) Eleven miles or less in length, to be increased $37.50.

(2) Over eleven miles and under twenty miles in length, to be increased $50.

(3) Twenty miles and under twenty-four miles in length, to be increased $75.

(4) Twenty-four miles or over in length, to be increased $100.

(e) Postmasters at offices of the fourth class to be increased by an amount equal to 15 per centum of their present compensation.

(f) Substitute, temporary, and auxiliary clerks at first and second class post offices, and substitute, temporary, and auxiliary letter carriers in the City Delivery Service, shall receive after the passage of this Act, for the remainder of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, in lieu of their present compensation, a compensation of 60 cents per hour for each hour of service performed. [41 Stat. L. 350.]

SEC. 2. [Increases in compensation — certain employees not entitled — increases when effective.] That the above-mentioned increases in compensation shall apply to officers and employees in the Postal Service at the time of the passage of this Act, and be effective as of July 1, 1919, or as of such subsequent date when such officers or employees entered the Postal Service: Provided, That as to substitute, temporary, and auxiliary employees and employees paid from lump-sum appropriations, the increases shall be effective from and after the date of the passage of this Act. And provided further, That none of the increases provided herein shall be applicable to officers and employees who have received an increase in their compensation of more than $300 per annum during the current fiscal year. [41 Stat. L. 351.]

SEC. 3. [Effect of increases or advancing post office to higher class.] That no post office shall be advanced to the next higher class as a result of the increases in compensation of postmasters herein provided. [41 Stat. L. 351.]

SEC. 4. [Appropriation.] That in order to provide for the increased compensation herein authorized, so much as is necessary is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to supplement the amounts appropriated for the various classes of employees herein mentioned, in the Act entitled "An Act making appropriations for the service of the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920," approved February 28, 1919. [41 Stat. L. 351.]

This Act became a law without the approval of the President by lapse of time.

An Act Authorizing the return to the sender or the forwarding of undeliverable second, third, and fourth class mail matter.

[Act of Nov. 19, 1919, ch. 119, 41 Stat. L. 360.]

[Second, third and fourth class mail matter — forwarding to addressee — returning to sender.] That hereafter, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may prescribe, fourth-class matter of obvious value which is of a perishable nature may be forwarded to the addressee at another post office charged with the amount of the forwarding postage, and when such matter of a perishable nature is undeliverable to the addressee it may be returned to the sender charged with the return postage: Provided, That other undeliverable matter of the second, third, and fourth classes may be forwarded to the addressee or to such other person as the sender may direct, at another post office, charged with the amount of the forwarding postage, or it may be returned to the sender charged with the return postage, when it bears the sender's pledge that the postage for forwarding and return will be paid, such postage to be collected on delivery: Provided further, That when the sender refuses to furnish such postage in accordance with his pledge, the acceptance from him of further matter bearing such pledge may be refused. [41 Stat. L. 360.]

An Act To provide relief in cases of contracts connected with the prosecution of the war, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [War contracts — adjustment — profits — time for presenting claims — report to Congress — review of awards — immunity from criminal prosecutions — evidence.] That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized to adjust, pay, or discharge any agreement, express or implied, upon a fair and equitable basis that has been entered into, in good faith during the present emergency and prior to November twelfth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, by any officer or agent acting under his authority, direction, or instruction, or that of the President, with any person firm, or corporation for the acquisition of lands, or the use thereof, or for damages resulting from notice by the Government of its intention to acquire or use said lands, or for the production, manufacture, sale, acquisition or control of equipment, materials or supplies, or for services, or for facilities, or other purposes connected with the prosecution of the war, when such agreement has been performed in whole or in part, or expenditures have been made or obligations incurred upon the faith of the same by any such person, firm, or corporation prior to November twelfth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and such agreement has not been executed in the manner prescribed by law: Provided, That in no case shall any award either by the Secretary of War, or the Court of Claims include prospective or possible profits on any part of the contract beyond the goods and supplies delivered to and accepted by the United States and a reasonable remuneration for expenditures and obligations or liabilities necessarily incurred in performing or preparing to perform said contract or order: Provided further, That this Act shall not authorize payment to be made of any claim not presented before June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen: And provided further, That the Secretary of War shall report to Congress at the beginning of its next session following June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, a detailed statement showing the nature, terms, and conditions of every such agreement and the payment or adjustment thereof: And provided further, That no settlement of any claim arising under any such agreement shall bar the United States Government through any of its duly authorized agencies, or any committee of Congress hereafter duly appointed, from the right of review of such settlement, nor the right of recovery of any money paid by the Government to any party under any settlement entered into, or payment made under the provisions of this Act, if the Government has been defrauded, and the right of recovery in all such cases shall exist against the executors, administrators, heirs, successors, and assigns, of any party or parties: And provided further, That nothing in this Act shall be construed to relieve any officer or agent of the United States from criminal prosecution under the provisions of any statute of the United States for any fraud or criminal conduct: And provided further, That this Act shall in no way relieve or excuse any officer or his agent from such criminal prosecution because of any irregularity or illegality in the manner of the execution of such agreement: And provided further, That in all proceedings hereunder witnesses may be compelled to attend, appear, and testify, and produce books, papers and letters, or other documents; and the claim that any such testimony or evidence may tend to criminate the person giving the same shall not excuse such witness from testifying, but such evidence or testimony shall not be used against such person in the trial of any criminal proceeding. [40 Stat. L. 1272.]

SEC. 2. [Jurisdiction of Court of Claims.] That the Court of Claims is hereby given jurisdiction on petition of any individual, firm, company or corporation referred to in Section 1 hereof, to find and award fair and just compensation in the cases specified in said Section in the event that such individual, firm, company or corporation shall not be willing to accept the adjustment, payment or compensation offered by the Secretary of War as hereinbefore provided, or in the event that the Secretary of War shall fail or refuse to offer a satisfactory adjustment, payment or compensation as provided for in said Section. [40 Stat. L. 1273.]

SEC. 3. [Agreements with foreign governments—adjustment.] That the Secretary of War, through such agency as he may designate or establish is empowered, upon such terms as he or it may determine to be in the interest of the United States, to make equitable and fair adjustments and agreements, upon the termination or in settlement or readjustment of agreements or arrangements entered into with any foreign government or governments or nationals thereof, prior to November twelfth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, for the furnishing to the American Expeditionary Forces or otherwise for War purposes of supplies, materials, facilities, services or the use of property, or for the furnishing of any thereof by the United States to any foreign government or governments, whether or not such agreements or arrangements have been entered into in accordance with applicable statutory provisions; and the other provisions of this Act shall not be applicable to such adjustments. [40 Stat. L. 1273.]

SEC. 4. [Protection of subcontractors—payment of claims against prime contractor—liens.] That whenever, under the provisions of this Act, the Secretary of War shall make an award to any prime contractor with respect to any portion of his contract which he shall have sublet to any other person, firm, or corporation who has in good faith made expenditures, incurred obligations, rendered service, or furnished material, equipment, or supplies to such prime contractor, with the knowledge and approval of any agent of the Secretary of War duly authorized thereunto, before payment of said award the Secretary of War shall require such prime contractor to present satisfactory evidence of having paid said subcontractor or of the consent of said subcontractor to look for his compensation to said prime contractor only; and in the case of the failure of said prime contractor to present such evidence or such consent, the Secretary of War shall pay directly to said subcontractor the amount found to be due under said award; and in case of the insolvency of any prime contractor the subcontractor of said prime contractor shall have a lien upon the funds arising from said award prior and superior to the lien of any general creditor of said prime contractor. [40 Stat. L. 1273.]

SEC. 5. [Net losses occurring in production of minerals — adjustment.] That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he hereby is, authorized to adjust, liquidate, and pay such net losses as have been suffered by any person, firm, or corporation, by reason of producing or preparing to produce, either manganese, chrome, pyrites, or tungsten in compliance with the request or demand of the Department of the Interior, the War Industries Board, the War Trade Board, the Shipping Board, or the Emergency Fleet Corporation to supply the urgent needs of the Nation in the prosecution of the war; said minerals being enumerated in the Act of Congress approved October fifth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, entitled "An Act to provide further for the national security and defense by encouraging the production, conserving the supply, and controlling the distribution of those ores, metals, and minerals which have formerly been largely imported, or of which there is or may be an inadequate supply."

The said Secretary shall make such adjustments and payments in each case as he shall determine to be just and equitable; that the decision of said Secretary shall be conclusive and final, subject to the limitation hereinafter provided; that all payments and expenses incurred by said Secretary, including personal services, traveling and subsistence expenses, supplies, postage, printing, and all other expenses incident to the proper prosecution of this work, both in the District of Columbia and elsewhere, as the Secretary of the Interior may deem essential and proper, shall be paid from the funds appropriated by the said Act of October fifth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and that said funds and appropriations shall continue to be available for said purpose until such time as the said Secretary shall have fully exercised the authority herein granted and performed and completed the duties hereby provided and imposed: Provided, however, That the payments and disbursements made under the provisions of this section for and in connection with the payments and settlements of the claims herein described, and the said expenses of administration shall in no event exceed the sum of $8,500,000: And provided further, That said Secretary shall consider, approve, and dispose of only such claims as shall be made hereunder and filed with the Department of the Interior within three months from and after the approval of this Act: And provided further, That no claim shall be allowed or paid by said Secretary unless it shall appear to the satisfaction of the said Secretary that the expenditures so made or obligations so incurred by the claimant were made in good faith for or upon property which contained either manganese, chrome, pyrites, or tungsten in sufficient quantities to be of commercial importance: And provided further, That no claims shall be paid unless it shall appear to the satisfaction of said Secretary that moneys were invested or obligations were incurred subsequent to April sixth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, and prior to November twelfth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, in a legitimate attempt to produce either manganese, chrome, pyrites, or tungsten for the needs of the Nation for the prosecution of the war, and that no profits of any kind shall be included in the allowance of any of said claims, and that no investment for merely speculative purposes shall be recognized in any manner by said Secretary: And provided further, That the settlement of any claim arising under the provisions of this section shall not bar the United States Government, through any of its duly authorized agencies, or any committee of Congress hereafter duly appointed, from the right of review of such settlement, nor the right to recover any money paid by the Government to any party under and by virtue of the provisions of this section, if the Government has been defrauded, and the right of recovery in all such cases shall extend to the executors, administrators, heirs, and assigns of any party.

That a report of all operations under this section, including receipts and disbursements, shall be made to Congress on or before the first Monday in December of each year.

That nothing in this section shall be construed to confer jurisdiction upon any court to entertain a suit against the United States: Provided further, That in determining the net losses of any claimant the Secretary of the Interior shall, among other things, take into consideration and charge to the claimant, the then market value of any ores or minerals on hand belonging to the claimant, and also the salvage or usable value of any machinery or other appliances which may be claimed was purchased to equip said mine for the purpose of complying with the request or demand of the agencies of the Government above mentioned in the manner aforesaid. [40 Stat. L. 1274.]

For Act of Oct. 5, 1918, mentioned in the text, see ante, p. 247.

An Act For the relief of contractors and subcontractors for the post offices and other buildings and work under the supervision of the Treasury Department, and for other purposes.

[Act of Aug. 25, 1919, ch. 52, 41 Stat. L. 281.]

[Work under supervision of Treasury Department — relief of contractors, etc.] That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and directed, under such regulations as he may prescribe, to receive fully itemized and verified claims and reimburse contractors and their subcontractors, including material men, for the construction, improvement, special repair, equipment, or furnishing of post offices and other buildings or work under the supervision of the Treasury Department (as well as the United States courthouse in the District of Columbia and the approaches and retaining wall to the Lincoln Memorial in the District of Columbia) whose contracts were awarded or whose bids as thereafter accepted were mailed or delivered to the proper governmental authority prior to the entrance of the United States into the war with Germany, to wit, April 6, 1917, and whose contracts have been or will be completed after said date, for loss due directly to increased costs thereafter arising, due either, first, to increased cost of labor or materials, or, second, to delay on account of the action of the United States Priority Board or other governmental activities, or, third, to commandeering by the United States Government of plants or materials shown to the Secretary of the Treasury to have been sustained by them in the fulfillment of such contracts by reason of war conditions alone: Provided, That any subcontractor may submit his claim through the contractor or to the Secretary of the Treasury. And the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby directed to submit from time to time estimates for appropriations to carry out the provisions of this Act: Provided further, That no claims for such reimbursement shall be paid unless filed with the Treasury Department within three months after the passage of this Act: And provided further, That in no case shall the contractor or subcontractor be reimbursed to an extent greater than is sufficient to cover his actual increased cost in fulfilling his contract or subcontract, exclusive of any and all profits to such contractor or subcontractor; nor shall such reimbursement include any advances or payments made by the sureties of such contractor or subcontractor in executing the work, but the surety on any contract coming within the provisions of this Act who, as surety, has completed, or may complete, the work of any defaulting contractor on any such contract, or who has furnished financial assistance to a failing contractor on any such contract whereby such contractor has been enabled to complete such contract, may file claim, within the period hereinbefore fixed, and be reimbursed in the manner hereinbefore provided for the increased cost due to the causes hereinbefore specified of the labor and material supplied in so completing any such contract, or for the increased cost of the labor and material paid for from funds so furnished by such surety: And provided further, That the Secretary of the Treasury shall report to Congress at the beginning of each session thereof the amount of each expenditure and the facts on which the same is based. An Act To supplement the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, and for other purposes.

[Sec. 1.] ["Supplement to Second Liberty Bond Act"—tax exemption of different bond issues.] That until the expiration of two years after the date of the termination of the war between the United States and the Imperial German Government, as fixed by proclamation of the President—

(1) The interest on an amount of bonds of the Fourth Liberty Loan the principal of which does not exceed $30,000, owned by any individual, partnership, association, or corporation, shall be exempt from graduated additional income taxes, commonly known as surtaxes, and excess profits and war-profits taxes, now or hereafter imposed by the United States, upon the income or profits of individuals, partnerships, associations, or corporations;

(2) The interest received after January 1, 1918, on an amount of bonds of the First Liberty Loan Converted, dated either November 15, 1917, or May 9, 1918, the Second Liberty Loan, converted and unconverted, and the Third Liberty Loan, the principal of which does not exceed $45,000 in the aggregate, owned by any individual, partnership, association, or corporation, shall be exempt from such taxes: Provided, however, That no owner of such bonds shall be entitled to such exemption in respect to the interest on an aggregate principal amount of such bonds exceeding one and one-half times the principal amount of bonds of the Fourth Liberty Loan originally subscribed for by such owner and still owned by him at the date of his tax return; and

(3) The interest on an amount of bonds, the principal of which does not exceed $30,000, owned by any individual, partnership, association, or corporation, issued upon conversion of 3½ per centum bonds of the First Liberty Loan in the exercise of any privilege arising as a consequence of the issue of bonds of the Fourth Liberty Loan, shall be exempt from such taxes.

The exemptions provided in this section shall be in addition to the exemption provided in section 7 of the Second Liberty Bond Act in respect to the interest on an amount of bonds and certificates, authorized by such Act and amendments thereto, the principal of which does not exceed in the aggregate $5,000, and in addition to all other exemptions provided in the Second Liberty Bond Act. [40 Stat. L. 965.]

For the different Liberty Bond Acts, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 672 et seq.

SEC. 2. [War-savings certificates.] That section 6 of the Second Liberty Bond Act is hereby amended by striking out the figures “$2,000,000,000,” and inserting in lieu thereof the figures “$4,000,000,000.” Such section is further amended by striking out the words “The amount of war savings certificates sold to any one person at any one time shall not exceed $100, and it shall not be lawful for any one person at any one time to hold war savings certificates to an aggregate amount exceeding $1,000,” and inserting in lieu thereof the words “It shall not be lawful for any one person at any one time to hold war savings certificates of any one series to an aggregate amount exceeding $1,000.” [40 Stat. L. 966.]

SEC. 3. [Proceeds from sale of bonds, etc.—where deposited.] That the provisions of section 8 of the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended by the Third Liberty Bond Act, shall apply to the proceeds arising from the payment of war-profits taxes as well as income and excess profits taxes. [40 Stat. L. 966.]

SEC. 4. [Stabilizing foreign exchange.] That the Secretary of the Treasury may, during the war and for two years after its termination, make arrangements in or with foreign countries to stabilize the foreign exchanges and to obtain foreign currencies and credits in such currencies, and he may use any such credits and foreign currencies for the purpose of stabilizing or rectifying the foreign exchanges, and he may designate depositaries in foreign countries with which may be deposited as he may determine all or any part of the avails of any foreign credits or foreign currencies. [40 Stat. L. 966.]

SEC. 5. [Investigation, regulation or prohibition of transactions in foreign exchange, coin, bullion, credit, evidences of indebtedness, etc.] That subdivision (b) of section 5 of the Trading with the Enemy Act be, and hereby is, amended to read as follows:

[ “ ] (b) That the President may investigate, regulate, or prohibit, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, by means of licenses or otherwise, any transactions in foreign exchange and the export, hoarding, melting, or earmarkings of gold or silver coin or bullion or currency, transfers of credit in any form (other than credits relating solely to transactions to be executed wholly within the United States), and transfers of evidences of indebtedness or of the ownership of property between the United States and any foreign country, whether enemy, ally of enemy, or otherwise, or between residents of one or more foreign countries, by any person within the United States; and, for the purpose of strengthening, sustaining and broadening the market for bonds and certificates of indebtedness of the United States, of preventing frauds upon the holders thereof, and of protecting such holders, he may investigate and regulate, by means of licenses or otherwise (until the expiration of two years after the date of the termination of the present war with the Imperial German Government, as fixed by his proclamation), any transactions in such bonds or certificates by or between any person or persons: Provided, That nothing contained in this subdivision (b) shall be construed to confer any power to prohibit the purchase or sale for cash, or for notes eligible for discount at any Federal Reserve Bank, of bonds or certificates of indebtedness of the United States; and he may require any person engaged in any transaction referred to in this subdivision to furnish, under oath, complete information relative thereto, including the production of any books of account, contracts, letters or other papers, in connection therewith in the custody or control of such person, either before or after such transaction is completed." [40 Stat. L. 966.]

For sec. 5(b) of the Trading with the Enemy Act as originally enacted, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 853.

SEC. 6. [National banks—limit to liabilities which may be incurred by any one person, etc.—R. S., sec. 5200 amended.]

This section will be found supra, title NATIONAL BANKS, at p. 267, in the notes. The section of the Revised Statutes which it amends was further amended by Act of Oct. 22, 1919, which will be found under the same title at p. 268, in the text.

SEC. 7. [Title of Act.] That the short title of this Act shall be "Supplement to Second Liberty Bond Act." [40 Stat. L. 967.]

An Act To amend the Liberty Bond Acts and the War Finance Corporation Act, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] ["Victory Liberty Loan Act"—amendment of Second Liberty Bond Act—issuance of notes—amount—terms—tax exemption—series—options—circulation privileges—payment.] That the Second Liberty Bond Act is hereby amended by adding thereto a new section to read as follows:

"SEC. 18. (a) That in addition to the bonds and certificates of indebtedness and war-savings certificates authorized by this Act and amendments thereto, the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President, is authorized to borrow from time to time on the credit of the United States for the purposes of this Act, and to meet public expenditures authorized by law, not exceeding in the aggregate $7,000,000,000, and to issue therefor notes of the United States at not less than par in such form or forms and denomination or denominations, containing such terms and conditions, and at such rate or rates of interest, as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, and each series of notes so issued shall be payable at such time not less than one year nor more than five years from the date of its issue as he may prescribe, and may be redeemable before maturity (at the option of the United States) in whole or in part, upon not more than one year's nor less than four months' notice, and under such rules and regulations and during such period as he may prescribe.

"(b) The notes herein authorized may be issued in any one or more of the following series as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe in connection with the issue thereof:

"(1) Exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all taxation (except estate or inheritance taxes) now or hereafter imposed by the United States, any State, or any of the possessions of the United States, or by any local taxing authority;

"(2) Exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States, any State, or any of the possessions of the United States, or by any local taxing authority, except (a) estate or inheritance taxes, and (b) graduated additional income taxes, commonly known as surtaxes, and excess-profits and war-profits taxes, now or hereafter imposed by the United States, upon the income or profits of individuals, partnerships, associations, or corporations;

"(3) Exempt, both as to principal and interest, as provided in paragraph (2); and with an additional exemption from the taxes referred to in clause (b) of such paragraph, of the interest on an amount of such notes the principal of which does not exceed $30,000, owned by any individual, partnership, association, or corporation; or

"(4) Exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States, any State, or any of the possessions of the United States, or by any local taxing authority, except (a) estate or inheritance taxes, and (b) all income, excess-profits, and war-profits taxes, now or hereafter imposed by the United States, upon the income or profits of individuals, partnerships, associations, or corporations.

"(c) If the notes authorized under this section are offered in more than one series bearing the same date of issue, the holder of notes of any such series shall (under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury) have the option of having such notes held by him converted at par into notes of any other such series offered bearing the same date of issue.

"(d) None of the notes authorized by this section shall bear the circulation privilege. The principal and interest thereof shall be payable in United States gold coin of the present standard of value. The word 'bond' or 'bonds' where it appears in sections 8, 9, 10, 14, and 15 of this Act as amended, and sections 3702, 3703, 3704, and 3705 of the Revised Statutes, and section 5200 of the Revised Statutes as amended, but in such sections only, shall be deemed to include notes issued under this section." [40 Stat. L. 1309.]

SEC. 2. [Tax exemptions of different bond issues.] (a) That until the expiration of five years after the date of the termination of the war between the United States and the German Government, as fixed by proclamation of the President, in addition to the exemptions provided in section 7 of the Second Liberty Bond Act in respect to the interest on an amount of bonds and certificates, authorized by such Act and amendments thereto, the principal of which does not exceed in the aggregate $5,000, and in addition to all other exemptions provided in the Second Liberty Bond Act or the Supplement to Second Liberty Bond Act, the interest received on and after January 1, 1919, on an amount of bonds of the First Liberty Loan Converted, dated November 15, 1917, May 9, 1918. or October 24, 1918, the Second Liberty Loan converted and unconverted, the Third Liberty Loan, and the Fourth Liberty Loan, the principal of which does not exceed $30,000 in the aggregate, owned by any individual, partnership, association, or corporation, shall be exempt from graduated additional income taxes, commonly known as surtaxes, and excess-profits and war-profits taxes, now or hereafter imposed by the United States, upon the income or profits of individuals, partnerships, associations, or corporations.

(b) In addition to the exemption provided in subdivision (a), and in addition to the other exemptions therein referred to, the interest received on and after January 1, 1919, on an amount of the bonds therein specified the principal of which does not exceed $20,000 in the aggregate, owned by any individual, partnership, association, or corporation, shall be exempt from the taxes therein specified: Provided, That no owner of such bonds shall be entitled to such exemption in respect to the interest on an aggregate principal amount of such bonds exceeding three times the principal amount of notes of the Victory Liberty Loan originally subscribed for by such owner and still owned by him at the date of his tax return. [40 Stat. L. 1310.]

For the different Liberty Bond Acts, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 672 et seq.

SEC. 3. [Certificates of indebtedness—amount—amendment of Second Liberty Bond Act.] That section 5 of the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended by section 4 of the Third Liberty Bond Act, is hereby further amended by striking out the figures “$8,000,000,000” and inserting in lieu thereof the figures “$10,000,000,000.” [40 Stat. L. 1311.]

For section 5 before this amendment, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 683.

SEC. 4. [Bonds, etc., held by nonresident alien, foreign corporation, etc.—tax exemption.] That section 3 of the Fourth Liberty Bond Act is hereby amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 3. That, notwithstanding the provisions of the Second Liberty Bond Act or of the War Finance Corporation Act or of any other Act, bonds, notes, and certificates of indebtedness of the United States and bonds of the War Finance Corporation shall, while beneficially owned by a nonresident alien individual, or a foreign corporation, partnership, or association, not engaged in business in the United States, be exempt both as to principal and interest from any and all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States, any State, or any of the possessions of the United States or by any local taxing authority.” [40 Stat. L. 1311.]

For section 3 before this amendment, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 691.

SEC. 5. [Conversion privileges pertaining to First Liberty Loan—extension of time.] That the privilege of converting 4 per centum bonds of the First Liberty Loan converted and 4 per centum bonds of the Second Liberty Loan into 4½ per centum bonds, which privilege arose on May 9, 1918, and expired on November 9, 1918, may be extended by the Secretary of the Treasury for such period, upon such terms and conditions and subject to such rules and regulations, as he may prescribe. For the purpose of computing the amount of interest payable, bonds presented for conversion under any such extension shall be deemed to be converted on the dates for the payment of the semiannual interest on the respective bonds so presented for conversion next succeeding the date of such presentation. [40 Stat. L. 1311.]

For the First Liberty Bond Act, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 675.

SEC. 6. [Cumulative sinking fund — creation — report to Congress — repeal of R. S. sections.] (a) That there is hereby created in the Treasury a cumulative sinking fund for the retirement of bonds and notes issued under the First Liberty Bond Act, the Second Liberty Bond Act, the Third Liberty Bond Act, the Fourth Liberty Bond Act, or under this Act, and outstanding on July 1, 1920. The sinking fund and all additions thereto are hereby appropriated for the payment of such bonds and notes at maturity, or for the redemption or purchase thereof before maturity by the Secretary of the Treasury at such prices and upon such terms and conditions as he shall prescribe, and shall be available until all such bonds and notes are retired. The average cost of the bonds and notes purchased shall not exceed par and accrued interest. Bonds and notes purchased, redeemed, or paid out of the sinking fund shall be canceled and retired and shall not be reissued. For the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1920, and for each fiscal year thereafter, until all such bonds and notes are retired there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the purposes of such sinking fund, an amount equal to the sum of (1)  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per centum of the aggregate amount of such bonds and notes outstanding on July 1, 1920, less an amount equal to the par amount of any obligations of foreign Governments held by the United States on July 1, 1920, and (2) the interest which would have been payable during the fiscal year for which the appropriation is made on the bonds and notes purchased, redeemed, or paid out of the sinking fund during such year or in previous years.

The Secretary of the Treasury shall submit to Congress at the beginning of each regular session a separate annual report of the action taken under the authority contained in this section.

(b) Sections 3688, 3694, 3695, and 3696 of the Revised Statutes, and so much of section 3689 of the Revised Statutes as provides a permanent annual appropriation of 1 per centum of the entire debt of the United States to be set apart as a sinking fund, are hereby repealed. [40 Stat. L. 1311.]

For the different Liberty Bond Acts mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 672 et seq.

For R. S. sec. 3689, see 3 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 143.

SEC. 7. [Credits between United States and foreign governments — obligations of foreign governments — conversion privileges — appropriation.] (a) That until the expiration of eighteen months after the termination of the war between the United States and the German Government, as fixed by proclamation of the President, the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President, is hereby authorized on behalf of the United States to establish, in addition to the credits authorized by section 2 of the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, credits with the United States for any foreign government now engaged in war with the enemies of the United States, for the purpose only of providing for purchases of any property owned directly or indirectly by the United States, not needed by the United States, or of any wheat the price of which has been or may be guaranteed by the United States. To the extent of the credits so established from time to time the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to make advances to or for the account of any such foreign government and to receive at par from such foreign government for the amount of any such advances its obligations hereafter issued bearing such rate or rates of interest, not less than 5 per centum per annum, maturing at such date or dates, not later than October 15, 1938, and containing such terms and conditions, as the Secretary of the Treasury may from time to time prescribe. The Secretary, with the approval of the President, is hereby authorized to enter into such arrangements from time to time with any such foreign government as may be necessary or desirable for establishing such credits and for the payment of such obligations before maturity.

(b) The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized from time to time to convert any short-time obligations of foreign governments which may be received under the authority of this section into long-time obligations of such foreign governments, respectively, maturing not later than October 15, 1938, and in such form and terms as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe; but the rate or rates of interest borne by any such long-time obligations at the time of their acquisition shall not be less than the rate borne by the short-time obligations so converted into such long-time obligations; and, under such terms and conditions as he may from time to time prescribe, to receive payment, on or before maturity, of any obligations of such foreign governments acquired on behalf of the United States under authority of this section, and, with the approval of the President, to sell any of such obligations (but not at less than par with accrued interest unless otherwise hereafter provided by law), and to apply the proceeds thereof, and any payments so received from foreign governments on account of the principal of such obligations, to the redemption or purchase, at not more than par and accrued interest, of any bonds of the United States issued under the authority of the First Liberty Bond Act or Second Liberty Bond Act as amended and supplemented, and if such bonds can not be so redeemed or purchased, the Secretary of the Treasury shall redeem or purchase any other outstanding interest-bearing obligations of the United States which may at such time be subject to redemption or which can be purchased at not more than par and accrued interest.

(c) For the purposes of this section there is appropriated the unexpended balance of the appropriations made by section 2 of the First Liberty Bond Act and by Section 2 of the Second Liberty Bond Act as amended by the Third Liberty Bond Act and the Fourth Liberty Bond Act, but nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit the use of such unexpended balance or any part thereof for the purposes of section 2 of the Second Liberty Bond Act, as so amended, subject to the limitations therein contained. [40 Stat. L. 1312.]

For the Second Liberty Bond Act, sec. 2, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 680.

SEC. 8. [Obligations of foreign governments — maturity.] That the obligations of foreign governments acquired by the Secretary of the Treasury by virtue of the provisions of the First Liberty Bond Act and the Second Liberty Bond Act, and amendments and supplements thereto, shall mature at such dates as shall be determined by the Secretary of the Treasury: Provided, That such obligations acquired by virtue of the provisions of the First Liberty Bond Act, or through the conversion of short-time obligations acquired under such Act, shall mature not later than June 15, 1947, and all other such obligations of foreign governments shall mature not later than October 15, 1938. [40 Stat. L. 1313.]

For First Liberty Bond Act and Second Liberty Bond Act, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 675 et seq.

SEC. 11. [Title of Act.] That the short title of this Act shall be "Victory Liberty Loan Act." [40 Stat. L. 1314.]

An Act To amend section three of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for stock-raising homesteads, and for other purposes," approved December twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and sixteen.

[Act of Oct. 25, 1918, ch. 195, 40 Stat. L. 1016.]

[Stock raising homesteads — entries — who may make — amount of land — location — additional entries — improvements.] That section three of the Act entitled "An Act to provide for stock-raising homesteads, and for other purposes," approved December twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and sixteen, be amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 3. That any qualified homestead entryman may make entry under the homestead laws of lands so designated by the Secretary of the Interior, according to legal subdivisions, in areas not exceeding six hundred and forty acres, and in compact form so far as may be subject to the provisions of this Act, and secure title thereto by compliance with the terms of the homestead laws: Provided, That a former homestead entry of land of the character described in section two hereof shall not be a bar to the entry of a tract within a radius of twenty miles from such former entry under the provisions of this Act, which, together with the former entry, shall not exceed six hundred and forty acres, subject to the requirements of law as to residence and improvements, except that no residence shall be required on such additional entry if the entryman owns and is residing on his former entry: Provided further, That the entryman shall be required to enter all contiguous areas of the character herein described open to entry prior to the entry of any noncontiguous land: And provided further, That instead of cultivation as required by the homestead laws the entryman shall be required to make permanent improvements upon the land entered before final proof is submitted tending to increase the value of the same for stock-raising purposes of the value of not less than $1.25 per acre, and at least one-half of such improvements shall be placed upon the land within three years after the date of entry thereof." [40 Stat. L. 1016.]

An Act To amend sections 4 and 5 of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for stock-raising homesteads, and for other purposes," approved December 29, 1916.

[Act of Sept. 29, 1919, ch. 63, 41 Stat. L. 287.]

[Stock-raising homesteads—additional entries—contiguous lands—amount—improvements.] That sections 4 and 5 of the Act entitled "An Act to provide for stock-raising homesteads, and for other purposes," approved December 29, 1916, be amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 4. That any homestead entryman of lands of the character herein described who has not submitted final proof upon his existing entry shall have the right to enter, subject to the provisions of this Act, such amount of lands designated for entry under the provisions of this Act, within a radius of twenty miles from said existing entry, as shall not, together with the amount embraced in his original entry, exceed six hundred and forty acres, and residence upon the original entry shall be credited on both entries, but improvements must be made on the additional entry equal to $1.25 for each acre thereof: Provided, That the entryman shall be required to enter all contiguous areas of the character herein described open to entry prior to the entry of any noncontiguous land.

"SEC. 5. That persons who have submitted final proof upon, or received patent for, lands of the character herein described under the homestead laws, and who own and reside upon the land so acquired, may, subject to the provisions of this Act, make additional entry for and obtain patent to lands designated for entry under the provisions of this Act, within a radius of twenty miles from the lands theretofore acquired under the homestead laws, which, together with the area theretofore acquired under the homestead laws, shall not exceed six hundred and forty acres, on proof of the expenditure required by this Act on account of permanent improvements upon the additional entry: Provided, That the entryman shall be required to enter all contiguous areas of the character herein described open to entry prior to the entry of any non-contiguous land." [41 Stat. L. 287.]

An Act To amend an Act approved March 26, 1908, entitled "An Act to provide for the repayment of certain commissions, excess payments, and purchase moneys paid under the public land laws."

[Repayment of commissions, excess payments, and purchase moneys.] That an Act approved March 26, 1908 (Thirty-fifth Statutes at Large, page 48), entitled "An Act to provide for the repayment of certain commissions, excess payments, and purchase moneys paid under the public land laws," be amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 1. That where purchase moneys and commissions paid under any public land law have been or shall hereafter be covered into the Treasury of the United States under any application to make any filing, location, selection, entry, or proof, such purchase moneys and commissions shall be repaid to the person who made such application, entry, or proof, or to his legal representatives, in all cases where such application, entry, or proof has been or shall hereafter be rejected, and neither such applicant nor his legal representatives shall have been guilty of any fraud or attempted fraud in connection with such application: Provided, That such person or his legal representatives shall file a request for the repayment of such purchase moneys and commissions within two years from the rejection of such application, entry, or proof, or within two years from the passage of this Act as to such applications, proofs, or entries, as have been heretofore rejected.

“ SEC. 2. That in all cases where it shall appear to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Interior that any person has heretofore or shall hereafter make any payments to the United States under the public land laws in excess of the amount he was lawfully required to pay under such laws, such excess shall be repaid to such person or to his legal representatives: Provided, That such person or his legal representatives shall file a request for the repayment of such excess within two years after the patent has issued for the land embraced in such payment, or within two years from the passage of this Act as to such excess payments as have heretofore been made.

“ SEC. 3. That when the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall ascertain the amount of any excess moneys, purchase moneys, or commissions in any case where repayment is authorized by this statute, the Secretary of the Interior shall at once certify such amounts to the Secretary of the Treasury, who is hereby authorized and directed to make repayment of all amounts so certified out of any moneys not otherwise appropriated and issue his warrant in settlement thereof.

“ SEC. 4. That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to make such rules and regulations as may be necessary and proper for the purpose of carrying the provisions of this Act into full force and effect.” [41 Stat. L. —.]

SEC. 4. [Government employees—services no longer required—free railroad transportation home.] That the heads of the several executive departments and other governmental establishments in the District of Columbia are hereby authorized and directed to furnish to such civilian employees, receiving compensation, exclusive of the additional $120, at the rate of not more than $1,400 per annum or less than $100 per annum, under their respective jurisdiction as have come to the District of Columbia since April 6, 1917, whose services are no longer required and whose employment has been or may be terminated by the Government without delinquency or misconduct on their part, or who may resign from their positions, during the period from November 11, 1918, to March 31, 1919, inclusive, their actual railroad transportation, including sleeping-car accommodations, from the District of Columbia to the place from which they accepted employment or to their legal residence, or to such other place not a greater distance, as the employee may elect. Such transportation must be applied for within ten days after the termination of service and shall be used within five days after issuance unless an extension of time on account of illness be granted by the proper authority. As to the employees whose services have been terminated during the period between November 11, 1918, and the date of the passage of this Act, inclusive, the time within which transportation shall be applied for shall be twenty days from the date of the passage of this Act. Any person who shall sell, exchange, or transfer such transportation for the use of another shall be punished by a fine of not more than $100. The expenses authorized by this Act shall be paid from the following appropriations for the fiscal year 1920, which hereby are made available therefor immediately upon approval of this Act:

For the War Department, from "Temporary employees."

For the Navy Department, from "Temporary employees."

For all other executive departments and independent establishments, from the appropriations for the support of the services in which such persons are employed. Any employee who would be entitled to transportation, including sleeping-car accommodation under this Act and who has left the District of Columbia prior to the passage of this Act, but not before December 10, 1918, upon application and presentation within sixty days after the passage of this Act of proper proof shall have refunded the cost of actual railroad transportation, including sleeping-car accommodation, from the District of Columbia to the place from which employment was accepted, or to their legal residence, or to such other place not a greater distance to which the employee may have gone. The provisions made for the transportation of employees shall not apply to those who enter such service after January 7, 1919: Provided, That payment to any employee for leave of absence not earned in proportion to the term of employment shall be deducted from the refund authorized in this section and the provision made in this Act for the transportation of employees shall not be supplemented in any manner by the various services in which they are employed. [40 Stat. L. 1266.]

See the note to preceding section 2.

SEC. 7. [Government employees—additional compensation.] That all civilian employees of the Governments of the United States and the District of Columbia who receive a total of compensation at the rate of $2,500 per annum or less, except as otherwise provided in this section, shall receive, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, additional compensation at the rate of $240 per annum: Provided, That such employees as receive a total of annual compensation at a rate more than $2,500 and less than $2,740 shall receive additional compensation at such a rate per annum as may be necessary to make their salaries, plus their additional compensation, at the rate of $2,740 per annum, and no employee shall receive additional compensation under this section at a rate which is more than sixty per centum of the rate of the total annual compensation received by such employee: Provided further, That the increased compensation at the rate of $120 per annum for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, shall not be computed as salary in construing this section: Provided further, That where an employee in the service on June 30, 1918, has received during the fiscal year 1919, or shall receive during the fiscal year 1920 an increase of salary at a rate in excess of $200 per annum, or where an employee whether previously in the service or not, has entered the service since June 30, 1918, whether such employee has received an increase in salary or not, such employees shall be granted the increased compensation provided herein only when and upon the certification of the person in the legislative branch or the head of the department or establishment employing such persons of the ability and qualifications personal to such employees as would justify such increased compensation: Provided further, That the increased compensation provided in this section to employees whose pay is adjusted from time to time through wage boards or similar authority shall be taken into consideration by such wage boards or similar authority in adjusting the pay of such employees. Provided further, That no employee of the Federal Government shall, for services in the Philippine Islands, receive additional compensation under this section at a rate which is more than 20 per centum of the rate of the total annual compensation received by such employee.

The provisions of this section shall not apply to the following: Employees paid from the postal revenues and sums which may be advanced from the Treasury to meet deficiencies in the postal revenues; employees of the Panama Canal on the Canal Zone; employees of the Alaskan Engineering Commission in Alaska; employees paid from lump-sum appropriations in bureaus, divisions, commissions, or any other governmental agencies or employments created by law since January 1, 1916, except that employees of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance shall receive increased compensation at one-half the rate allowed by this section for other employees: Provided, That employees of said bureau who are compensated at rates below $400 per annum shall receive additional compensation only at the rate of 60 per centum of the annual rates of compensation received by such employees; employees whose duties require only a portion of their time, except charwomen, who shall be included; employees whose services are utilized for brief periods at intervals; persons employed by or through corporations, firms, or individuals acting for or on behalf of or as agents of the United States or any department or independent establishment of the Government of the United States in connection with construction work or the operation of plants; employees who receive a part of their pay from any outside sources under cooperative arrangements with the Government of the United States or the District of Columbia; employees who serve voluntarily or receive only a nominal compensation, and employees who may be provided with special allowances because of their service in foreign countries. The provisions of this section shall not apply to employees of the railroads, express companies, telegraph, telephone, marine cable, or radio system or systems, taken over by the United States, and nothing contained herein shall be deemed a recognition of the employees of such railroads, express companies, telegraph, telephone, marine cable, or radio system or systems, as employees of the United States.

Section six of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation Act approved May 10, 1916, as amended by the naval appropriation Act approved August 29, 1916, shall not operate to prevent anyone from receiving the additional compensation provided in this section who otherwise is entitled to receive the same.

Such employees as are engaged on piecework, by the hour, or at per diem rates, if otherwise entitled to receive the additional compensation shall receive the same at the rate to which they are entitled in this section when their fixed rate of pay for the regular working hours and on the basis of three hundred and thirteen days in the said fiscal year would amount to $2,500 or less: Provided, That this method of computation shall not apply to any per diem employees regularly paid a per diem for every day in the year.

So much as may be necessary to pay the additional compensation provided in this section to employees of the Government of the United States is appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

So much as may be necessary to pay the increased compensation provided in this section to employees of the government of the District of Columbia is appropriated, one-half out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated and one-half out of the revenues of the District of Columbia, except to employees of the Washington Aqueduct and the water department, which shall be paid entirely from the revenues of the water department.

So much as may be necessary to pay the increased compensation provided in this section to persons employed under trust funds who may be construed to be employees of the Government of the United States or of the District of Columbia is authorized to be paid, respectively, from such trust funds.

Reports shall be submitted to Congress on the first day of the next regular session showing for the first four months of the fiscal year the average number of employees in each department, bureau, office, or establishment receiving the increased compensation at the rate of $240 per annum and the average number by grades receiving the same at each other rate. [40 Stat. L. 1267 as amended by 41 Stat. L. 343.]

See the note to preceding section 2.

For Act of May 10, 1916, sec. 6, as amended by Act of Aug. 29, 1916, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 719.

This section was amended to read as here given by Act of Nov. 4, 1919, ch. 93, known as the "First Deficiency Appropriation Act, fiscal year 1920." The amendment added the last proviso of the first paragraph.

SEC. 9. ["Joint Commission on Reclassification of Salaries"—creation—duties.] That a joint commission is created to be known as the "Joint Commission on Reclassification of Salaries," which shall consist of three Senators, who are now Members of the Congress, to be appointed by the President of the Senate, and three Representatives, who are now Members of the Congress, to be appointed by the Speaker. Said commission shall submit its report and recommendations as early as possible, and, in any event, by the second Monday in January, 1920, and the members of such commission shall receive a compensation at the rate of $625 per month, unless they are receiving other compensation from the Government. Vacancies occurring in the membership of the commission shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointments.

It shall be the duty of the commission to investigate the rates of compensation paid to civilian employees by the municipal government and the various executive departments and other governmental establishments in the District of Columbia, except the navy yard and the Postal Service, and report by bill or otherwise, as soon as practicable, what reclassification and readjustment of compensation should be made so as to provide uniform and equitable pay for the same character of employment throughout the District of Columbia in the services enumerated.

The commission is authorized to sit during the sessions or recess of Congress, to send for persons and papers, to administer oaths, to summon and compel the attendance of witnesses, and to employ such personal services and incur such expenses as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this section.

The heads of the various governmental services and the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall furnish office space and equipment, detail officers and employees, furnish data and information, and make investigations whenever requested by the commission in connection with the purposes of this section.

For payment of the expenses authorized to be incurred, there is appropriated $25,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be available immediately and to be disbursed upon vouchers approved by the commission; which approval shall be conclusive upon the accounting officers of the Treasury Department. [40 Stat. L. 1269.]

This is from the Third Deficiency Appropriation Act of July 11, 1919, ch. 6.
For Act of March 3, 1910, sec. 6, here amended. see ante, p. 16.

SEC. 6. [Influencing members of Congress by use of public moneys — penalty.] That hereafter no part of the money appropriated by this or any other Act shall, in the absence of express authorization by Congress, be used directly or indirectly to pay for any personal service, advertisement, telegram, telephone, letter, printed or written matter, or other device, intended or designed to influence in any manner a Member of Congress, to favor or oppose, by vote or otherwise, any legislation or appropriation by Congress, whether before or after the introduction of any bill or resolution proposing such legislation or appropriation; but this shall not prevent officers and employees of the United States from communicating to Members of Congress on the request of any Member or to Congress, through the proper official channels, requests for legislation or appropriations which they deem necessary for the efficient conduct of the public business.

Any officer or employee of the United States who, after notice and hearing by the superior officer vested with the power of removing him, is found to have violated or attempted to violate this section, shall be removed by such superior officer from office or employment. Any officer or employee of the United States who violates or attempts to violate this section shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than $500 or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or both. [Mineral resources of park — utilization.] That whenever consistent with the primary purposes of said park, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized, under general regulations to be prescribed by him, to permit the prospecting, development, and utilization of the mineral resources of said park upon such terms and for specified periods, or otherwise, as he may deem to be for the best interests of the United States. [40 Stat. L. 1178.]

SEC. 7. [Government reclamation project.] That, whenever consistent with the primary purposes of said park, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to permit the utilization of areas therein which may be necessary for the development and maintenance of a Government reclamation project. [40 Stat. L. 1178.]

SEC. 8. [Erection of structures.] That where privately owned lands within the said park lie within three hundred feet of the rim of the Grand Canyon no building, tent, fence, or other structure shall be erected on the park lands lying between said privately owned lands and the rim. [40 Stat. L. 1178.]

SEC. 9. [Repeal of conflicting laws.] The Executive order of January eleventh, nineteen hundred and eight, creating the Grand Canyon National Monument, is hereby revoked and repealed, and such parts of the Grand Canyon National Game Preserve, designated under authority of the Act of Congress, approved June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six, entitled "An Act for the protection of wild animals in the Grand Canyon Forest Reserve," as are by this Act included with the Grand Canyon National Park are hereby excluded and eliminated from said game preserve. Act of March 1, 1919, ch. 86, 335.

Sec. 10. Public Buildings Commission, 335.

SEC. 10. Public Buildings Commission: With a view to the control and allotment of space in owned or leased Government buildings in the District of Columbia, a Public Buildings Commission is hereby created to be composed of two Senators to be appointed by the President of the Senate and two Members of the House of Representatives to be appointed by the Speaker, who shall serve thereon only so long as they are Members of Congress, and the Superintendent of the Capitol Building and Grounds, the officer in charge of public buildings and grounds, and the Supervising Architect or the Acting Supervising Architect of the Treasury during any vacancy in said office. Said commission shall elect one of its members as chairman of the commission and is authorized to employ such expert clerical or other services as it may deem necessary.

Any vacancies in said commission shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointments were made.

Said commission shall have the absolute control of and the allotment of all space in the several public buildings, owned or buildings leased by the United States in the District of Columbia, with the exception of the Executive Mansion and office of the President, Capitol Building, the Senate and House Office Buildings, the Capitol power plant, the buildings under the jurisdiction of the Regents of the Smithsonian Institution, and the Congressional Library Building, and shall from time to time assign and allot, for the use of the several activities of the Government, all such space.

For expenses of said commission, $10,000, to be immediately available and remain available until expended and to be paid out on vouchers signed by the chairman of said commission. [40 Stat. L. 1269.]

An Act To provide for the reimbursement of the United States for motive power, cars, and other equipment ordered for railroads and systems of transportation under Federal control, and for other purposes.

[Act of Nov. 19, 1919, ch. 116, 41 Stat. L. 359.]

[Sec. 1.] [Purchases of equipment by United States Government — reimbursement for sums advanced — disposition of equipment — powers of President.] That in order to make provision for the reimbursement of the United States for the sums advanced to provide motive power, cars, and other equipment ordered by the President for the railroads and systems of transportation now under Federal control, herein called "carriers," pursuant to the authority conferred by the second paragraph of section 6 of the Act of March 21, 1918, the President may, upon such terms as he shall deem advisable, receive in reimbursement cash, or obligations of any carrier, or part cash and part such obligations, or in his discretion he may accept for such motive power, cars, or other equipment, cash or the shares of stock or obligations, secured or unsecured, of any corporation not a carrier organized for the purpose of owning equipment or equipment obligations, or part cash and part such shares of stock and obligations, and he may transfer to such corporation any obligations of carriers received on account of motive power, cars, or other equipment, and he may execute any instruments necessary and proper to carry out the intent of the second paragraph of section 6 of said Act of March 21, 1918, to the end that title to the motive power, cars and other equipment so ordered by the President as aforesaid for the carriers may rest in them or their trustees or nominees.

In addition to the powers herein and heretofore conferred, the President is further authorized to dispose, in the manner and for the consideration aforesaid, of motive power, cars, and other equipment, if any, provided by him in accordance with any other provisions of said section, and of any obligations of carriers that may be received in reimbursement of the cost thereof. [41 Stat. L. 359.]

For Act of March 21, 1918, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 757.

SEC. 2. [Contracts for sale of equipment — form, contents and effect.] That any contract for the sale of any motive power, cars, or other equipment ordered or provided under any of the provisions of section 6 of said Act of March 21, 1918, may provide that title thereto, notwithstanding delivery of possession, shall not vest in the carrier until the purchase price, which may be payable in installments during any period not exceeding fifteen years, shall be fully paid and the conditions of purchase fully performed. Any such contract shall be in writing, and acknowledged or proved before some person authorized to administer oaths, and filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission within sixty days after the delivery thereof, and shall be valid and enforceable as against all persons whomsoever. [41 Stat. L. 359.]

SEC. 3. [Act as limiting powers of President previously conferred.] That nothing herein contained shall be deemed to abrogate or limit the powers conferred upon the President by said Act of March 21, 1918. [41 Stat. L. 359.]

SEC. 3. [Government dredging plant — construction or use.] That in all cases where the project for a work of river or harbor improvement, heretofore, herein, or hereafter authorized, provides for the construction or use of Government dredging plant, the Secretary of War may, in his discretion, have the work done by contract if reasonable prices can be obtained. [40 Stat. L. 1287.]

SEC. 8. [Improvements — private contracts.] That no part of the funds herein or hereafter appropriated for works of river and harbor improvement shall be used to pay for any work done by private contract if the contract price is more than 25 per centum in excess of the estimated cost of doing the work by Government plant: Provided, That in estimating the cost of doing the work by Government plant, including the cost of labor and materials, there shall also be taken into account proper charges for depreciation of plant and all supervising and overhead expenses and interest on the capital invested in the Government plant, but the rate of interest shall not exceed the maximum prevailing rate being paid by the United States on current issues of bonds or other evidences of indebtedness. [40 Stat. L. 1290.]

SEC. 10. An Act To confer on the President power to prescribe charter rates and freight rates and to requisition vessels, and for other purposes.

[Act of July 18, 1918, ch. 157, 40 Stat. L. 913.]

[SEC. 1.] [Act authorizing President to prescribe rates, requisition vessels, etc.— definitions.] That when used in this Act —

(a) The term “United States” includes any State, Territory, or District of the United States, the insular possessions, the Canal Zone, and all lands or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

(b) The term “person” includes corporations, partnerships, associations, and States, municipalities, and other subdivisions thereof.

(c) The term “charter” means any agreement, contract, lease, or commitment by which the possession or services of a vessel are secured for a period of time, or for one or more voyages, whether or not a demise of the vessel. [40 Stat. L. 913.]

SEC. 2. [Delegation of authority.] That the President may exercise the power and authority hereby vested in him through such agency or agencies as he shall determine from time to time. [40 Stat. L. 913.]

SEC. 3. [Termination of authority conferred by Act.] That all power and authority hereby vested in the President or by him delegated and all restrictions imposed in this Act shall cease upon the proclamation of the final treaty of peace between the United States and the Imperial German Government: Provided, That if, in the judgment of the President, the tonnage shortage at such time is so severe that national interests of the United States are jeopardized, he may, by proclamation, extend the provisions of this Act for a further period of not exceeding nine months. [40 Stat. L. 913.]

SEC. 4. [Conflicting laws.] That the powers herein conferred shall be without prejudice to any power heretofore conferred on the President, or by him delegated. [40 Stat. L. 913.]

SEC. 5. [Charters pertaining to United States vessels—approval by President—alterations.] That the President may, by proclamation, require that vessels of the United States of any specified class or description, or in any specified trade or trades, shall not be chartered unless the instrument in which such charter is embodied, and the rates, terms, and conditions thereof are first approved by him. Whenever any vessel is comprised in any such proclamation, it shall be unlawful to make any charter thereof, or comply with or perform any of the rates, terms, or conditions of any charter thereof, or to operate such vessel under any charter, without first obtaining the approval thereof by the President.

Whenever any charter of such vessel is approved, it shall be unlawful, without the approval of the President first obtained, to make any alterations in such charter, or additions thereto or deletions therefrom, or to make or receive any payment or do any act with respect to such vessel, except in accordance with such charter. [40 Stat. L. 913.]

SEC. 6. [Freight rates—terms and conditions of affreightment.] That the President shall have power to determine, prescribe, and enforce reasonable freight rates and the terms and conditions of affreightment which shall govern the transportation of goods on vessels of the United States, which shall be filed with the United States Shipping Board and open to public inspection. It shall be unlawful to charge or collect any compensation for the transportation of goods on any such vessel, or to enforce or attempt to enforce any terms or conditions of affreightment, or to make or receive any payment or do any act with respect to such transportation, not in accordance with the rates, terms, and conditions so prescribed, anything in any contract, whether heretofore or hereafter made, to the contrary notwithstanding. [40 Stat. L. 914.]

SEC. 7. [Priorities affecting vessels.] That the President shall have power to prescribe the order of priority in which goods shall be carried or other services performed by any vessel of the United States and to specify goods which shall be carried or to direct the voyage or employment of any such vessel and to make such rules, regulations, and orders, with respect to any such vessel, relating to the loading, discharging, lighterage, or storage of goods, or the procurement of bunker fuel, or any other matter relating to the receiving, handling, transporting, storing, or delivering of goods, as may in his judgment be necessary and proper for the efficient utilization of transportation facilities and the effective conduct of the war. [40 Stat. L. 914.]

SEC. 8. [Vessels included.] That the President may by proclamation extend the provisions of sections five, six, and seven, or any of them, to any vessel of foreign nationality under charter to a citizen of the United States or other person subject to the jurisdiction thereof. [40 Stat. L. 914.]

SEC. 9. [Rules, regulations and orders affecting navigation.] That the President shall have power to make such rules, regulations, and orders regarding voyages, courses, the use of protective devices, and any other matters affecting the navigation, equipment, fueling, painting, or arming of vessels of the United States as may, in his judgment, be conducive to the protection of such vessels from submarines, mines, or other war perils, any expense so incurred to be allowed for in determining freight and charter rates under this Act. If in his judgment any vessel or class of vessels on account of size, speed, structure, method of propulsion, or for any other reason is unfit for service in any waters which he may declare to be a danger zone, he may, by order, exclude such vessel or vessels from such danger zone. It shall be unlawful to violate any order, rule, or regulation made under this section. Rules, regulations, or orders issued under this section may, in the discretion of the President, be issued confidentially, in which event they shall be binding only on such persons as have notice thereof. [40 Stat. L. 914.]

SEC. 10. [Charters pertaining to foreign vessels — approval by President — alterations.] That the President may by proclamation require that no citizen of the United States, or other person subject to the jurisdiction thereof, shall charter any vessel of foreign nationality unless the instrument in which such charter is embodied and the rates, terms, and conditions thereof are first approved by the President. After the making of such proclamation it shall be unlawful for any such citizen or person to make any charter of any such vessel, or comply with or perform any of the rates, terms, or conditions of any charter thereof, or to operate any such vessel under any charter, without first obtaining the approval thereof by the President.

Whenever any such charter is approved it shall be unlawful, without the approval of the President first obtained, to make any alterations in such charter or additions thereto or deletions therefrom, or to make or receive any payment or do any act with respect to such vessel, except in accordance with such charter. [40 Stat. L. 914.]

SEC. 11. [Requisition of vessels — compensation — loss of or damage to vessels.] That the President shall have power to requisition for military purposes, or for any other national purpose connected with or arising out of the present war, the temporary possession of any vessel, or, without taking actual possession, to requisition the services of any vessel and to require the person entitled to the possession thereof to issue to the master such instructions as may be necessary to place the vessel at the service of the United States.

Upon requisitioning such possession or services, or as soon thereafter as the exigencies of the situation may permit, the President shall transmit to the person entitled to the possession of such vessel a charter setting forth the terms which, in his judgment, should govern the relations between the United States and such person and a statement of the rental or rate of hire which, in his judgment, will be just compensation for the use of such vessel and for the services required under the terms of such charter. If such person does not execute and deliver such charter and accept such rental or rate of hire, the President shall pay to such person a sum equal to seventy-five per centum of such rental or rate of hire as the same may from time to time be due under the terms of the charter, and such person shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as added to such seventy-five per centum will make up such amount as will be just compensation for the use of the vessel and for the services required. In the event of loss of or damage to such vessel, due to the operation of a risk assumed by the United States under the terms of such charter (in the event that no valuation of such vessel or mode of compensation has been agreed to), the United States shall pay just compensation for such loss or damage, to be determined by the President; and if the amount so determined is not satisfactory to the person entitled to receive just compensation, the President shall pay to such person seventy-five per centum of the amount so determined, and such person shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as added to such seventy-five per centum will make up such amount as will be just compensation. [40 Stat. L. 915.]

SEC. 12. [Priorities affecting terminal facilities.] That the President shall have power to prescribe the order of priority in which persons in possession of dry docks, wharves, lighterage systems, or loading or discharging terminal facilities in any port of the United States, or warehouses, equipment or terminal railways connected therewith, shall serve vessels and shippers, and to determine, prescribe, and enforce the rates, terms, and conditions charged or required for the furnishing of such services, including stevedoring and handling of cargo, and the handling, dispatching, and bunkering of vessels, and to make such rules and regulations with respect to the conduct of any such business as may be necessary and proper. It shall be unlawful to charge, collect, or claim any compensation, or to enforce or attempt to enforce any terms or conditions, or to make or receive any payment or do any act, with respect to any such service not in accordance with the rates, terms, and conditions so prescribed, any thing in any contract, whether heretofore or hereafter made, to the contrary notwithstanding. [40 Stat. L. 915.]

SEC. 13. [Requisition of terminal facilities — compensation.] That the President shall have power to lease or requisition the use or temporary possession of, or to assume temporary control of, any dry docks, wharves, or loading or discharging terminal facilities, in any port of the United States, or warehouses, equipment, or terminal railways connected therewith.

Whenever the President requisitions or assumes control of any such property, the United States shall pay just compensation therefor, to be determined by the President. If the amount so determined is not satisfactory to the person entitled to receive just compensation, the President shall pay to such person seventy-five per centum of the amount so determined and such person shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as added to such seventy-five per centum will make up such amount as will be just compensation.

Whenever the President acquires by purchase, lease, or requisition, or assumes control of any such property immediate possession may be taken thereof to the extent of the interest acquired therein, and such property may be immediately occupied and used without regard to the provisions of section three hundred and fifty-five of the Revised Statutes.

Nothing in this section shall authorize the President to requisition the title to any such property owned by any State, municipality, or subdivision thereof. [40 Stat. L. 915.]

SEC. 14. [Suit against United States — manner of bringing.] That whenever by this Act permission is given to sue the United States such suit shall be brought in the manner provided in section twenty-four, paragraph twenty, and section one hundred and forty-five of the Judicial Code. [40 Stat. L. 916.]

For Jud. Code, sec. 24, par. 20, see 4 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1059; 1912 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 140.

For Jud. Code, sec. 145, see 5 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 649; 1912 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 200.

SEC. 15. [Management of vessels, etc., requisitioned — proceeds.] That all vessels of which the possession of services are requisitioned under this Act, and all dry docks, wharves, loading or discharging terminal facilities, warehouses, equipment, or terminal railways, of which the President may acquire the title or possession or of which he may assume control under this Act, may be operated and managed as the President may from time to time direct. The net proceeds derived from any activity authorized in this Act or the joint resolution of May twelfth, nineteen hundred and seventeen (Public Numbered Two), or the division entitled "Emergency shipping fund" of the Act of June fifteenth, nineteen hundred and seventeen (Public Numbered Twenty-three), shall be deposited in the Treasury in a separate and distinct fund and may be expended by the President in carrying out the purposes of this Act, and within the limits of the amounts heretofore or hereafter authorized, for the construction, requisitioning, or purchasing of vessels: Provided, That none of the provisions of this Act shall apply to vessels plying exclusively on the inland rivers and canals of the United States. [40 Stat. L. 916.]

For Res. of May 12, 1917, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 803.

For Act of June 15, 1917, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 803, and for amendments to the Act, see infra, this page.

SEC. 16. [Violations of Act.] That whoever does or attempts to do anything in this Act declared to be unlawful, or willfully violates any rule, regulation, or order issued under authority conferred herein, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $5,000 or by imprisonment for not more than two years, or both: Provided, That the district court of the Canal Zone shall have jurisdiction of offenses committed against the provisions of this Act within the Canal Zone. [40 Stat. L. 916.]

SEC. 17. [Invalidity of part of Act — effect on remainder.] That if any provision of this Act, or the application of such provision to certain circumstances, is held unconstitutional, the remainder of the Act, and the application of such provision to circumstances other than those as to which it is held unconstitutional, shall not be affected thereby. [40 Stat. L. 916.]

[SEC. 1.] * * * [Emergency shipping fund — acquisition of ships or material or plants for production thereof — charter hire — amendment to statute.] 1. The emergency shipping fund provision of the urgent deficiency appropriation Act of June 15, 1917, as amended by the Act of April 22, 1918 (Public Act No. 138 of the Sixty-fifth Congress), is hereby amended as follows:

(I) In subdivision (d) of paragraph one, to begin said subdivision and to precede the words "to requisition," are now inserted the words: "To acquire, construct, establish, or extend any plant, and in pursuance thereof, to purchase, requisition, or otherwise acquire title to or use of land improved or unimproved or interest therein; and "

(II) In subdivision (f) of said paragraph one, after the words "or assume control of," are now inserted the words "or to extend, improve, or increase, or cause to be extended, improved, or increased "

(III) After said subdivision (f) in said paragraph one, a new subdivision is now inserted as follows:

"(g) In pursuance of the foregoing powers, or any of them, to make advance payments or loans of such amounts and upon such terms as the President may deem necessary and proper."

(IV) In paragraph eight of said provisions, after the word "shipyard," are now inserted the words "dry-dock, marine railway, pier." In said paragraph the words "or other facilities connected therewith" are stricken out and there are now inserted after the word "terminal," the following words: "and any facilities or improvements connected with any of the foregoing descriptions of property." [40 Stat. L. 1022.]

This and the following two paragraphs are from the "First Deficiency Appropriation Act, 1919," of Nov. 4, 1918, ch. 201.

For Act of June 15, 1917, here amended, and the amending Act of April 22, 1918, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 803.

2. For the acquisition or establishment of plants suitable for shipbuilding or ship maintenance or repair, or of materials essential thereto, and for the enlargement or extension of such plants as are now or may be hereafter acquired or established, authority is granted to enter into contracts or otherwise to incur obligations for not to exceed $34,662,500 in addition to the amounts heretofore appropriated: Provided, That obligations incurred hereunder may be met from appropriations made or to be made for the construction of ships.

3. The United States Shipping Board shall not require payment from the War Department for the charter hire of vessels furnished or to be furnished from July 1, 1918, to June 30, 1919, inclusive, for the use of that department when such vessels are owned by the United States Government. [40 Stat. L. 1022.]

[Sec. 1.] * * * [Emergency shipping fund — reduction of appropriation — compensation for ship construction — disposal of plants and materials — expenditures for printing.] The authorization of $2,884,000,000 heretofore established for the construction of ships is reduced by the sum of $120,000,000.

For purchasing, requisitioning, or otherwise acquiring plants, material, charters, or ships now constructed or in the course of construction, and the expediting of construction of ships thus under construction, and for the cost of construction of ships, within the limit of cost authorized by law, $356,000,000; and the unexpended balances of the appropriations for establishing plants and acquiring property for the housing of shipyard employees and their families, the taking over of certain transportation systems and the transportation of shipyard and plant employees, the purchase of ships under construction or to be constructed in shipyards in foreign countries, and the operation of ships, contained in the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act for the fiscal year 1919, and the unexpended balance of the appropriation of $150,000,000 for the purchase of ships contained in the Deficiency Appropriation Act approved October 6, 1917, are reappropriated and made available to meet obligations already incurred within the purposes of the appropriation herein made.

No contracts for ship construction to be entered into shall provide that the compensation of the contractor shall be the cost of construction plus a percentage thereof for profit, or plus a fixed fee for profit.

Any material or plant, as defined under the emergency shipping fund provision of the Deficiency Appropriation Act approved June 15, 1917, acquired by the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation, may be disposed of as the President may direct.

No part of the appropriations made in this Act for the Shipping Board or the Emergency Fleet Corporation shall be expended for the preparation, printing, or publication of any bulletins, newspapers, magazines, or periodicals, or for services in connection with same, not including preparation and printing of reports or documents authorized by law. [41 Stat. L. 180.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 19, 1919, ch. 24.

[SEC. 1.] [Government operation and control of wires — protection of users.] That whoever during the period of governmental operation of the telephone and telegraph systems of the United States by the Postmaster General, under the Act of Congress approved July sixteenth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and the proclamation of the President dated July twenty-second, nineteen hundred and eighteen, shall, without authority and without the knowledge and consent of the other users thereof, except as may be necessary for operation of the service, tap any telegraph or telephone line, or willfully interfere with the operation of such telephone and telegraph systems or with the transmission of any telephone or telegraph message, or with the delivery of any such message, or whoever being employed in any such telephone or telegraph service shall divulge the contents of any such telephone or telegraph message to any person not duly authorized or entitled to receive the same, shall be fined not exceeding $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both. [40 Stat. L. 1017.]

For Act of July 16, 1918, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 834.

SEC. 2. [Property of government telegraph or telephone system — larceny, etc.] That whoever shall steal, purloin, embezzle, or without authority destroy any money, property, record, voucher, or valuable thing whatever of the moneys, goods, chattels, records, or property of any telephone or telegraph system operated by the Postmaster General under the Act of Congress approved July sixteenth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and the proclamation of the President dated July twenty-second, nineteen hundred and eighteen, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both. [40 Stat. L. 1018.]

SEC. 3. [Receiving, etc., stolen property.] That whoever shall receive, conceal, or aid in concealing, or shall have or retain in his possession with intent to convert to his own use or gain any money, property, record, voucher, or valuable thing whatever of the moneys, goods, chattels, records, or property of any telephone or telegraph system operated by the Postmaster General under the Act of Congress approved July sixteenth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and the proclamation of the President dated July twenty-second, nineteen hundred and eighteen, which has been embezzled, stolen, or purloined by any other person, knowing the same to be embezzled, stolen, or purloined, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both, and such person may be tried either before or after the conviction of the principal defendant. [40 Stat. L. 1018.]

SEC. 4. [Burglarizing, etc., property.] That whoever shall forcibly break into, or attempt to break into, any telephone or telegraph office, or any building used in whole or in part as such telephone or telegraph office, of any telephone or telegraph system operated by the Postmaster General under the Act of Congress approved July sixteenth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and the proclamation of the President dated July twenty-second, nineteen hundred and eighteen, with intent to commit in such telephone or telegraph office or building, or part thereof so used, any larceny or other depredation, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both. [40 Stat. L. 1018.]

SEC. 5. [Assault on employees of system — robbery, etc.] That whoever shall assault any person having lawful charge, control, or custody of any money or property of any telephone or telegraph system operated by the Postmaster General under the Act of Congress dated July sixteenth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and the proclamation of the President dated July twenty-second, nineteen hundred and eighteen, with intent to rob, steal, or purloin such money or property, or any part thereof, or shall rob any such person of such money or property, or any part thereof, shall be imprisoned not more than five years; and if in the effecting or attempting to effect such robbery, he shall wound such person having custody of the money or property, or put his life in danger by the use of a dangerous weapon, shall be imprisoned not more than ten years. [40 Stat. L. 1018.]

An Act To repeal the joint resolution entitled "Joint resolution to authorize the President in time of war to supervise or take possession and assume control of any telegraph, telephone, marine cable, or radio system or systems or any part thereof, and to operate the same in such manner as may be needful or desirable for the duration of the war and to provide just compensation therefor," approved July 16, 1918, and for other purposes.<sup>1</sup>

[SEC. 1.] [Government control of wires and radio systems—repeal of resolution affecting—telephone rates.] That chapter 154 of the Acts of the second session of the Sixty-fifth Congress, being the joint resolution entitled "Joint resolution to authorize the President in time of war to supervise or take possession and assume control of any telegraph, telephone, marine cable, or radio system or systems, or any part thereof and to operate the same in such manner as may be needful or desirable for the duration of the war and to provide just compensation therefor," approved on the 16th day of July, 1918, be, and the same is hereby, repealed to take effect at midnight on the last day of the calendar month in which this Act is approved: Provided, however, That the existing toll and exchange telephone rates as established or approved by the Postmaster General on or prior to June 6, 1919, shall continue in force for a period not to exceed four months after this Act takes effect, unless sooner modified or changed by the public authorities—State, municipal, or otherwise—having control or jurisdiction of tolls, charges, and rates or by contract or by voluntary reduction. [41 Stat. L. 157.]

For Res. of June 6, 1919, mentioned in the text, see 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 834.

SEC. 2. [Time of returning systems to owners.] That the President be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed, at midnight on the last day of the calendar month in which this Act is approved, to return and deliver to the respective owners thereof all of the systems, lines, and property taken possession of or received, operated, supervised, or controlled by him under authority of said joint resolution. [41 Stat. L. 157.]

SEC. 3. [Compensation—adjustment.] That the first proviso of said joint resolution prescribing the just compensation to be paid for and on account of said supervision, possession, control, or operation therein specified shall continue in full force and effect until such just compensation shall be fully adjusted and paid in the manner and according to the terms and conditions therein set forth. [41 Stat. L. 158.]

SEC. 4. [Report by President to Congress.] That within ninety days after this Act shall take effect the President shall cause to be made to the Congress a detailed account and report of all his acts and proceedings in connection with the supervision, possession, control, and operation of the telephone, telegraph, and marine cable systems of the United States, and of all moneys received and expended, and all property and assets acquired or held, and all liabilities or obligations incurred, including contracts relative to compensation awards, such report to show in detail the financial results of the operation of each separate wire system from August 1, 1918, up to the date when the said systems shall have been returned. [SEC. 1.] * * * [Delivery of property, etc., to alien property custodian — recordation, etc.— shares of stock — remedy of persons deprived of property.] Subsection (c) of section seven of the "Trading with the enemy Act," approved October 6, 1917, is amended to read as follows:

"(c) If the President shall so require any money or other property including (but not thereby limiting the generality of the above) patents, copyrights, applications therefor, and rights to apply for the same, trade marks, choses in action, and rights and claims of every character and description owing or belonging to or held for, by, on account of, or on behalf of, or for the benefit of, an enemy or ally of enemy not holding a license granted by the President hereunder, which the President after investigation shall determine is so owing or so belongs or is so held, shall be conveyed, transferred, assigned, delivered, or paid over to the Alien Property Custodian, or the same may be seized by the Alien Property Custodian; and all property thus acquired shall be held, administered and disposed of as elsewhere provided in this Act.

"Any requirement made pursuant to this Act, or a duly certified copy thereof, may be filed, registered, or recorded in any office for the filing, registering, or recording of conveyances, transfers, or assignments of any such property or rights as may be covered by such requirement (including the proper office for filing, registering, or recording conveyances, transfers, or assignments of patents, copyrights, trade-marks, or any rights therein or any other rights); and if so filed, registered, or recorded shall impart the same notice and have the same force and effect as a duly executed conveyance, transfer, or assignment to the Alien Property Custodian so filed, registered, or recorded.

"Whenever any such property shall consist of shares of stock or other beneficial interest in any corporation, association, or company or trust, it shall be the duty of the corporation, association, or company or trustee or trustees issuing such shares or any certificates or other instruments representing the same or any other beneficial interest to cancel upon its, his, or their books all shares of stock or other beneficial interest standing upon its, his, or their books in the name of any person or persons, or held for, on account of, or on behalf of, or for the benefit of any person or persons who shall have been determined by the President, after investigation, to be an enemy or ally of enemy, and which shall have been required to be conveyed, transferred, assigned, or delivered to the Alien Property Custodian or seized by him, and in lieu thereof to issue certificates or other instruments for such shares or other beneficial interest to the Alien Property Custodian or otherwise, as the Alien Property Custodian shall require.

"The sole relief and remedy of any person having any claim to any money or other property heretofore or hereafter conveyed, transferred, assigned, delivered, or paid over to the Alien Property Custodian, or required so to be, or seized by him shall be that provided by the terms of this Act, and in the event of sale or other disposition of such property by the Alien Property Custodian, shall be limited to and enforced against the net proceeds received therefrom and held by the Alien Property Custodian or by the Treasurer of the United States." [SEC. 1.] * * * [Claims to property held by alien property custodian or United States Treasurer.] That section 9 of the "Act to define, regulate, and punish trading with the enemy, and for other purposes," approved October 6, 1917, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 9. That any person not an enemy or ally of enemy claiming any interest, right, or title in any money or other property which may have been conveyed, transferred, assigned, delivered, or paid to the Alien Property Custodian hereunder and held by him or by the Treasurer of the United States, or to whom any debt may be owing from an enemy or ally of enemy whose property or any part thereof shall have been conveyed, transferred, assigned, delivered, or paid to the Alien Property Custodian hereunder, and held by him or by the Treasurer of the United States, may file with the said custodian a notice of his claim under oath and in such form and containing such particulars as the said custodian shall require; and the President, if application is made therefor by the claimant, may order the payment, conveyance, transfer, assignment, or delivery to said claimant of the money or other property so held by the Alien Property Custodian or by the Treasurer of the United States or of the interest therein to which the President shall determine said claimant is entitled: Provided, That no such order by the President shall bar any person from the prosecution of any suit at law or in equity against the claimant to establish any right, title, or interest which he may have in such money or other property. If the President shall not so order within sixty days after the filing of such application or if the claimant shall have filed the notice as above required and shall have made no application to the President, said claimant may, at any time before the expiration of six months after the end of the war institute a suit in equity in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia or in the district court of the United States for the district in which such claimant resides, or, if a corporation, where it has its principal place of business (to which suit the Alien Property Custodian or the Treasurer of the United States, as the case may be, shall be made a party defendant), to establish the interest, right, title, or debt so claimed, and if suit shall be so instituted then the money or other property of the enemy, or ally of enemy, against whom such interest, right, or title is asserted, or debt claimed, shall be retained in the custody of the Alien Property Custodian, or in the Treasury of the United States, as provided in this Act, and until any final judgment or decree which shall be entered in favor of the claimant shall be fully satisfied by payment or conveyance, transfer, assignment, or delivery by the defendant or by the Alien Property Custodian or Treasurer of the United States on order of the court, or until final judgment or decree shall be entered against the claimant, or suit otherwise terminated: Provided, however, That in respect of all property heretofore determined by the President to have been held for, by, on account of, or on behalf of, or for the benefit of a person who was an enemy or ally of enemy, if the President, after further investigation, shall determine that such person was an enemy or ally of enemy solely by reason of residence in that portion of the territory of any nation associated with the United States in the prosecution of the war which was occupied by the military or naval forces of Germany or Austria-Hungary, or their allies, and that such person is a citizen or subject of such associated nation, then the President, without any application being made therefor, may order the payment, conveyance, transfer, assignment, or delivery of such money or other property held by the Alien Property Custodian, or by the Treasurer of the United States, or of the interest therein to which the President shall determine such person entitled, either to the said enemy or to the person by whom said property was conveyed, transferred, assigned, delivered or paid over to the Alien Property Custodian. And the receipt of the said enemy or of the person by whom said property was conveyed, transferred, assigned, or delivered to the Alien Property Custodian, shall be a full acquittance and discharge of the Alien Property Custodian or the Treasurer of the United States as the case may be, and of the United States in respect of all claims of all persons heretofore or hereafter claiming any right, title, or interest in said property, or compensation or damages arising from the capture of such property by the President or the Alien Property Custodian: Provided further, however, That except as herein provided no such action by the President shall bar any person from the prosecution of any suit at law or in equity to establish any right, title, or interest which he may have therein.

"Except as herein provided, the money or other property conveyed, transferred, assigned, delivered, or paid to the Alien Property Custodian shall not be liable to lien, attachment, garnishment, trustee process, or execution, or subject to any order or decree of any court.

"This section shall not apply, however, to money paid to the Alien Property Custodian under section 10 hereof." [41 Stat. L. 35.]

An Act To amend an Act entitled "An Act to provide for vocational rehabilitation and return to civil employment of disabled persons discharged from the military or naval forces of the United States, and for other purposes," approved June 27, 1918.

[Act of July 11, 1919, ch. 12, 41 Stat. L. 158.]

[Persons entitled to courses of vocational rehabilitation—courses prescribed—compensation—war risk insurance—appropriation.] That section 2 of the Act entitled "An Act to provide for vocational rehabilitation and return to civil employment of disabled persons discharged from the military or naval forces of the United States, and for other purposes," approved June 27, 1918, be hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 2. That every person enlisted, enrolled, drafted, inducted, or appointed in the military or naval forces of the United States, including members of training camps authorized by law, who, since April 7, 1917, has resigned or has been discharged or furloughed therefrom under honorable conditions, having a disability incurred, increased, or aggravated while a member of such forces, or later developing a disability traceable in the opinion of the board to service with such forces, and who, in the opinion of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, is in need of vocational rehabilitation to overcome the handicap of such disability, shall be furnished by the said board, where vocational rehabilitation is feasible, such course of vocational rehabilitation as the board shall prescribe and provide.

"The board shall have the power, and it shall be its duty, to furnish the persons included in this section suitable courses of vocational rehabilitation, to be prescribed and provided by the board; and every person electing to follow such a course of vocational rehabilitation shall, while following the same, be paid monthly by the said board from the appropriation hereinafter provided such sum as in the judgment of the said board is necessary for his maintenance and support and for the maintenance and support of persons depending upon him, if any: Provided, however, That in no event shall the sum so paid such person while pursuing such course be more than $80 per month for a single man without dependents, or for a man with dependents $100 per month plus the several sums prescribed as family allowances under section 204 of Article II of the War Risk Insurance Act.

"No compensation under Article III of the Act entitled 'An Act to amend an Act entitled "An Act to authorize the establishment of a Bureau of War Risk Insurance in the Treasury Department,"' approved October 6, 1917, shall be paid for the period during which any such person is being furnished by said board a course of vocational rehabilitation and support as herein authorized: Provided, however, That in the event any person pursuing a course of vocational rehabilitation is entitled under said Article III to compensation in an amount in excess of the payments made to him by the said board for his support and the support of his dependents, if any, the Bureau of War Risk Insurance shall pay monthly to such person such additional amount as may be necessary to equal the total compensation due under said Article III of said Act.

"There is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, available immediately and until expended, the sum of $6,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be used by the Federal Board for Vocational Education for the purpose of making the payments prescribed by this section and for defraying the administrative expenses incident thereto." [41 Stat. L. 158.]

SEC. 4. [Induction of drafted men into what branch of service.] That all men rendered available for induction into the military service of the United States through registration or draft heretofore or hereafter made pursuant to law, shall be liable to service in the Army or the Navy or the Marine Corps, and shall be allotted to the Army, the Navy, and the Marine Corps under regulations to be prescribed by the President: Provided, That all persons drafted and allotted to the Navy or the Marine Corps in pursuance hereof shall, from the date of allotment, be subject to the laws and regulations governing the Navy and the Marine Corps, respectively. [40 Stat. L. 956.]

SEC. 5. [Wife of soldier or sailor — qualification for position under government.] That the wife of a soldier or sailor serving in the present war shall not be disqualified for any position or appointment under the Government because she is a married woman. [40 Stat. L. 956.]

SEC. 6. [Soldiers entitled to commissions or admission to officers' schools.] That soldiers, during the present emergency, regardless of age and existing law and regulations, shall be eligible to receive commissions in the Army of the United States. They shall likewise be eligible to admission to officers' schools under such rules and regulations as may be adopted for entrance to such schools, but shall not be barred therefrom or discriminated against on account of age. [40 Stat. L. 956.]

SEC. 7. [Training of soldiers at educational institutions.] That the Secretary of War is authorized to assign to educational institutions, for special and technical training, soldiers who enter the military service under the provisions of this Act in such numbers and under such regulations as he may prescribe; and is authorized to contract with such educational institutions for the subsistence, quarters, and military and academic instruction of such soldiers. [40 Stat. L. 957.]

SEC. 8. [Soldiers under age — public lands — entries.] That any person, under the age of twenty-one, who has served or shall hereafter serve in the Army of the United States during the present emergency, shall be entitled to the same rights under the homestead and other land and mineral entry laws, general or special, as those over twenty-one years of age now possess under said laws: Provided, That any requirements as to establishment of residence within a limited time shall be suspended as to entry by such person until six months after his discharge from military service: Provided further, That applications for entry may be verified before any officer in the United States, or any foreign country, authorized to administer oaths by the laws of the State or Territory in which the land may be situated. [40 Stat. L. 957.]

This section is amended by the Joint Resolution of Sept. 13, 1918, No. 41, which provides as follows: "That no relinquishment of any public land entry made under and by authority of section eight of the Act of Sixty-fifth Congress, second session, entitled 'An Act amending the Act entitled 'An Act to authorize the President to increase temporarily the Military Establishment of the United States,' approved May eighteenth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, shall be valid or effective for any purpose unless executed after the entryman shall have actually resided upon and cultivated the land, in the case of a homestead entry, for at least six months, and in the case of an entry made under other than the homestead laws, after the entryman shall have complied with the provisions of the applicable law for at least one year. Any person, firm, or corporation soliciting or dealing with the relinquishment of such claim or entry prior to the completion of compliance with the applicable law and with this resolution, and who or which solicits, demands, or receives or accepts any fee or compensation for locating, filing, or securing the claims or entries for persons entitled to the benefits of said section shall, upon conviction, be fined not to exceed $1,000 or imprisoned for not exceeding two years, or both."

SEC. 9. [Uniforms and other military equipment—furnishing by government.] That hereafter, uniforms, accouterments, and equipment shall, upon the request of any officer of the Army or cadet at the Military Academy, be furnished by the Government at cost, subject to such restrictions and regulations as the Secretary of War may prescribe. [40 Stat. L. 957.]

SEC. 1406. [Bonus to soldiers and sailors serving during War with Germany.] That all persons serving in the military or naval forces of the United States during the present war who have, since April 6, 1917, resigned or been discharged under honorable conditions (or, in the case of reservists, been placed on inactive duty), or who at any time hereafter (but not later than the termination of the current enlistment or term of service) in the case of the enlisted personnel and female nurses, or within one year after the termination of the present war in the case of officers, may resign or be discharged under honorable conditions (or, in the case of reservists, be placed on inactive duty), shall be paid, in addition to all other amounts due them in pursuance of law, $60 each.

This amount shall not be paid (1) to any person who though appointed or inducted into the military or naval forces on or prior to November 11, 1918, had not reported for duty at his station on or prior to such date; or (2) to any person who has already received one month's pay under the provisions of section 9 of the Act entitled "An Act to authorize the President to increase temporarily the military establishment of the United States," approved May 18, 1917; or (3) to any person who is entitled to retired pay; or (4) to the heirs or legal representatives of any person entitled to any payment under this section who has died or may die before receiving such payment. In the case of any person who subsequent to separation from the service as above specified has been appointed or inducted into the military or naval forces of the United States and has been or is again separated from the service as above specified, only one payment of $60 shall be made.

The above amount, in the case of separation from the service on or prior to the passage of this Act, shall be paid as soon as practicable after the passage of this Act, and in the case of separation from the service after the passage of this Act shall be paid at the time of such separation.

The amounts herein provided for shall be paid out of the appropriations for "pay of the Army" and "pay of the Navy," respectively, by such disbursing officers as may be designated by the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy.

The Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy respectively shall make all regulations necessary for the enforcement of the provisions of this section. [40 Stat. L. 1151.]

An Act Permitting any person who has served in the United States Army, Navy, or Marine corps in the present war to retain his uniform and personal equipment, and to wear the same under certain conditions.

[SEC. 1.] [Discharged soldiers, sailors, and marines — uniforms and equipment.] That any person who served in the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps in the present war may, upon honorable discharge and return to civil life, permanently retain one complete suit of outer uniform clothing, including the overcoat, and such articles of personal apparel and equipment as may be authorized, respectively, by the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy, and may wear such uniform clothing after such discharge: Provided, That the uniform above referred to shall include some distinctive mark or insignia to be prescribed, respectively, by the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy, such mark or insignia to be issued, respectively, by the War Department or Navy Department to all enlisted personnel so discharged. The word "Navy" shall include the officers and enlisted personnel of the Coast Guard who have served with the Navy during the present war. [40 Stat. L. 1202.]

SEC. 2. [Discharge as of what period — uniform already restored to government — duty of government to return.] That the provisions of this Act shall apply to all persons who served in the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps during the present war honorably discharged since April sixth, nineteen hundred and seventeen. And in cases where such clothing and uniforms have been restored to the Government on their discharge the same or similar clothing and uniform in kind and value as near as may be shall be returned and given to such soldiers, sailors, and marines. [40 Stat. L. 1203.]

SEC. 3. [Discharged soldiers, sailors, and marines — mileage.] That section one hundred and twenty-six of the Act entitled "An Act for making further and more effectual provision for the national defense, and for other purposes," approved June third, nineteen hundred and sixteen, be amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 126. That an enlisted man honorably discharged from the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps since November eleventh, nineteen hundred and eighteen, or who may hereafter be honorably discharged, shall receive five cents per mile from the place of his discharge to his actual bona fide home or residence, or original muster into the service, at his option: Provided, That for sea travel on discharge, transportation and subsistence only shall be furnished to enlisted men: Provided, That naval reservists duly enrolled who have been honorably released from active service since November eleventh, nineteen hundred and eighteen, or who may hereafter be honorably released from active service, shall be entitled likewise to receive mileage as aforesaid." [40 Stat. L. 1203.]

An Act Making appropriations for the support of the Army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, and for other purposes.

[Act of July 11, 1919, ch. 8, 41 Stat. L. 109.]

* * * [Officers and contract surgeons — expenses when traveling by air — payment.] That hereafter actual and necessary expenses only, not to exceed $8 per day, shall be paid to officers of the Army and contract surgeons when traveling by air on duty without troops, under competent orders. [41 Stat. L. 109.]

* * * [Aviation — flying schools — instruction — cadets — number and pay — discharges — commissions.] The Secretary of War is hereby authorized and directed to establish and maintain at one or more established flying schools courses of instruction for aviation students.

Aviation students shall be enlisted in or appointed to the grade of flying cadet, Air Service, which grade is hereby established: Provided, That the total number of flying cadets shall not at any time exceed one thousand three hundred. The base pay of a flying cadet shall be $75 per month, including extra pay for flying risk as provided by law. The ration allowance of a flying cadet shall not exceed $1 per day, and his other allowances shall be those of a private, first class, Air Service.

Upon completion of a course prescribed for flying cadets, each flying cadet, if he so desire, may be discharged and commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Officers' Reserve Corps: Provided, That the Secretary of War is authorized to discharge at any time any flying cadet whose discharge shall have been recommended by a board of not less than three officers. [41 Stat. L. 109.]

* * * [Enlisted men — withholding pay.] That the pay due enlisted men of the Army shall not be withheld from them by reason of the fact that their service records or other official papers showing the status of their accounts with respect to pay have been lost or not returned from overseas and, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of War, these men may be paid upon their personal affidavit as to date of last payment and condition of their accounts: Provided further, That payments made in accordance with such regulations (or which have already been made upon the affidavit of the soldier) shall be passed by the accounting officers of the Treasury to the credit of the disbursing officers making them. [41 Stat. L. 110.]

* * * [Enlisted men — increase of pay.] That the provisions of section 10 of an Act entitled "An Act to authorize the President to increase temporarily the Military Establishment of the United States," approved May 18, 1917, in so far as it increases the pay of the enlisted men of the Army, be, and the same hereby are, continued in force and effect from and after the date and approval of this Act. [41 Stat. L. 110.]

For Act of May 18, 1917, sec. 10, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1162; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 1022.

* * * [Field clerks — pay — employment of additional clerks.] That Army field clerks shall have the same allowances and benefits as heretofore allowed by law to pay clerks, Quartermaster Corps, not including retirement: Provided, however, That the minimum or entrance pay exclusive of said allowances, of said Army field clerks shall be $1,200 per annum: Provided further, That Army field clerks shall receive the same increase of pay for service beyond the continental limits of the United States as is allowed by law to commissioned officers of the Army: And provided further, That the Secretary of War is authorized to employ, during the present emergency and for a period not exceeding four months thereafter, such additional Army field clerks as may be necessary, not exceeding 4,272. [41 Stat. L. 112.]

* * * [Quartermaster corps — field clerks, messengers and laborers — assignment to duty.] That said [field] clerks, messengers, and laborers shall be employed and assigned by the Secretary of War to the offices and positions in which they are to serve: Provided further, That no clerk, messenger, or laborer at headquarters of tactical divisions, military departments, brigades, service schools, and office of the Chief of Staff shall be assigned to duty in any bureau of the War Department. [41 Stat. L. 112.]

* * * [Warrant officers — pay for foreign service.] That hereafter warrant officers shall receive the same increase of pay for service beyond the continental limits of the United States as is allowed to commissioned officers of the Army. [41 Stat. L. 112.]

* * * [Motor ambulances — purchase without advertisement.] That the Secretary of War may, in his discretion, select types and makes of motor ambulances for the Army and authorize their purchase without regard to the laws prescribing advertisement for proposals for supplies and materials for the Army. [41 Stat. L. 121.]

* * * [Continuance of Chemical Warfare Service, Air Service, Construction Division, Tank Corps and Motor Transport Corps.] That the several organizations of the Army, to wit: The Chemical Warfare Service, the Air Service, the Construction Division, the Tank Corps, and the Motor Transport Corps, with their powers and duties as defined in orders and regulations in force and effect on November 11, 1918, shall be continued to and until June 30, 1920. [41 Stat. L. 129.]

* * * [Officers' Reserve Corps — Appointment of officers of emergency Army — grade.] That officers of the emergency Army appointed to the Officers' Reserve Corps may be appointed therein to the grade held by them in the emergency Army or next higher grade, as the Secretary of War may direct.

* * * Disposal of real property by sale or lease: That the President is hereby authorized, through the head of any executive department, upon terms and conditions considered advisable by him or such head of department, to sell or lease real property or any interest therein or appurtenant thereto acquired by the United States of America since April 6, 1917, for storage purposes for the use of the Army, which in the judgment of the President or the head of such department is no longer needed for use by the United States of America, and to execute and deliver in the name of the United States and in its behalf any and all contracts, conveyances, or other instruments necessary to effectuate any such sale or lease.

That all moneys received by the United States as the proceeds of any such sale or lease shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of "Miscellaneous receipts" and a full report of the same shall be submitted annually to Congress.

* * * Transfer of ammunition: That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized to turn over on request from other executive departments of the Government, in his discretion, from time to time, without charge therefor, such ammunition, explosives, and other ammunition components as may prove to be or shall become surplus or unsuitable for the purposes of the War Department and as shall be suitable for use in the proper activities of other executive departments.

* * * Medical supplies for the American Red Cross: The Secretary of War is hereby authorized to place at the disposal of the American Red Cross, such medical and surgical supplies, and supplementary and dietary foodstuffs used in the treatment of the sick and injured now in Europe and designed for but which are not now essential to the needs of the American Expeditionary Forces, or needed for use in military hospitals in the United States, or as military or hospital stores for the Army of the United States, to be used by said American Red Cross as it shall determine, to relieve and supply the pressing needs of the peoples of countries involved in the late war. The Secretary of War shall prescribe regulations and conditions for the selection and delivery of said supplies and foodstuffs to the American Red Cross for the purposes aforesaid. [41 Stat. L. 129.]

SEC. 5. [Unused war supplies — purchases by different executive departments.] That the heads of the several executive departments and other responsible officials, in expending appropriations contained in this or any other Act, so far as possible shall purchase material, supplies, and equipment, when needed and funds are available, from other services of the Government possessing material, supplies, and equipment no longer required because of the cessation of war activities. It shall be the duty of the heads of the several executive departments and other officials, before purchasing any of the articles described herein, to ascertain from the other services of the Government whether they have articles of the character described that are serviceable. And articles purchased by one service from another, if the same have not been used, shall be paid for at a reasonable price not to exceed actual cost, and if the same have been used, at a reasonable price based upon length of usage. The various services of the Government are authorized to sell such articles under the conditions specified, and the proceeds of such sales shall be covered into the Treasury as a miscellaneous receipt: Provided, That this section shall not be construed to amend, alter, or repeal the Executive order of December 3, 1918, concerning the transfer of office material, supplies, and equipment in the District of Columbia falling into disuse because of the cessation of war activities. [41 Stat. L. 67.]

This is from the Third Deficiency Appropriation Act of July 11, 1919, ch. 6.

[SEC. 1.] * * * [Transfer of explosives to Interior Department.] The Secretary of War is authorized to transfer, without charge, to the Secretary of the Interior for use of the Interior Department, explosives and explosive material for which the War Department has no further use. [41 Stat. L. 193.]

This and secs. 4 and 5 which follow are from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 19, 1919, ch. 24.

SEC. 4. [Files and records of agencies created for period of war — disposition.] That except as otherwise provided by law the President is authorized to transfer to the custody and care of such of the departments or independent establishments as he may determine the files and records of the agencies created for the period of the war upon the discontinuance of such activities. [41 Stat. L. 233.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 19, 1919, ch. 24.

SEC. 5. [Motor vehicles and equipment — transfer to other branches of Government service.] The Secretary of War is authorized to transfer any unused and surplus motor-propelled vehicles and motor equipment of any kind, the payment for same to be made as provided herein, to any branch of the Government service having appropriations available for the purchase of said vehicles and equipment: Provided, That in case of the transfers herein authorized a reasonable price not to exceed actual cost, and if the same have been used, at a reasonable price based upon length of usage, shall be determined upon and an equivalent amount of each appropriation available for said purchase shall be covered into the Treasury as a miscellaneous receipt, and the appropriation in each case reduced accordingly: Provided further, That it shall be the duty of each official of the Government having such purchases in charge to procure the same from any such unused or surplus stock if possible: Provided further, That hereafter no transfer of motor-propelled vehicles and motor equipment, unless specifically authorized by law, shall be made free of charge to any branch of the Government service. [41 Stat. L. 233.]

This is from the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of July 19, 1919, ch. 24.

An Act To amend an Act entitled "An Act to amend an Act entitled 'An Act to authorize the establishment of a Bureau of War Risk Insurance in the Treasury Department, approved September 2, 1914,' as amended."

[Act of Aug. 6, 1919, ch. 33, 41 Stat. L. 274.]

[War Risk Insurance Act — sec. 12 amended — compensation for disability — amount.] That section 12 of an Act entitled "An Act to amend an Act entitled 'An Act to authorize the establishment of a Bureau of War Risk Insurance in the Treasury Department, approved September 2, 1914,' as amended," be, and is hereby, amended as follows:

At the end of subdivision H, section 12, insert: "Except in case of loss of both hands and both eyes, or in case of loss of both feet and both eyes, or in case of loss of both hands and both feet, in which cases there shall be an allowance of $100 per month for a nurse or attendant, the same in addition to the $100 per month allowed in this Act for the loss of both feet, or both hands, or both eyes." [41 Stat. L. 274.]

This Act amends section 302 of the Act of Sept. 2, 1914, as amended by Act of June 25, 1918, § 12. For the rest of section 302, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1319; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 910.

An Act Relating to the creation of the office of General of the Armies of the United States.

[Act of Sept. 3, 1919, ch. 56, 41 Stat. L. 283.]

[General of Armies of United States—creation of office.] That the office of General of the Armies of the United States is hereby revived, and the President is hereby authorized, in his discretion and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint to said office a general officer of the Army who, on foreign soil and during the recent war, has been especially distinguished in the higher command of military forces of the United States; and the officer appointed under the foregoing authorization shall have the pay prescribed by section 24 of the Act of Congress approved July 15, 1870, and such allowances as the President shall deem appropriate; and any provision of existing law that would enable any other officer of the Army to take rank and precedence over said officer is hereby repealed: Provided, That no more than one appointment to office shall be made under the terms of this Act. [41 Stat. L. 283.]

The Act of July 15, 1870, § 24, mentioned in the text, provided as follows: "The pay of the general shall be thirteen thousand five hundred dollars a year."

An Act To provide necessary commissioned personnel for the Army until June 30, 1920.

[Act of Sept. 17, 1919, ch. 61, 41 Stat. L. 286.]

[Officers of army—number—selection—detail of officers on active list—retirement—Air Service.] That until June 30, 1920, the Secretary of War is authorized and directed to maintain such commissioned personnel in addition to the officers of the permanent establishment and to retain at their temporary grades such officers of the Regular Army as in his judgment may be necessary for the proper performance of the functions of the Military Establishment: Provided, That additional officers so maintained shall be selected, so far as practicable, from officers and enlisted men who served during the emergency and are applicants for appointments in the permanent establishment: Provided further, That after October 31, 1919, the total number of commissioned officers exclusive of retired officers and disabled emergency officers awaiting discharge upon completion of treatment for physical reconstruction, shall at no time exceed eighteen thousand: Provided further, That no officer on the active list shall be detailed for recruiting service or for duty at schools and colleges, not including schools of the service, where officers on the retired list can be secured who are competent for such duty: And provided further, That hereafter officers retired for physical disability shall not form part of the limited retired list: And provided further, That one thousand two hundred emergency officers shall be assigned to the Air Service, of whom not less than 85 per centum shall be duly qualified fliers. [41 Stat. L. 286.]

An Act To provide travel allowances for certain retired enlisted men and Regular Army reservists.

[Discharged soldiers, sailors and marines — travel allowances.] That section 126 of the Act entitled “An Act for making further and more effectual provisions for the national defense, and for other purposes,” approved June 3, 1916, as amended by section 3 of an Act entitled “An Act permitting any person who has served in the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps in the present war to retain his uniform and personal equipment, and to wear the same under certain conditions,” approved February 28, 1919, shall be held to apply to any enlisted man for whom the law authorizes travel allowances as an incident to entry upon and relief from active duty with the Army who has been called into active service during the present emergency, or who shall hereafter be called into active service. [41 Stat. L. 288.]

For Act of June 3, 1916, sec. 126, mentioned in the text, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1221; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 969.

---

Joint Resolution To provide for the payment of travel pay upon discharge to men of the Regular Army enlisted prior to April 2, 1917.

[Res. of Sept. 29, 1919, No. 14, ch. 70, 41 Stat. L. 291.]

[Travel pay — discharged enlisted men of regular army.] That those enlisted men of the Army who enlisted in the Regular Army prior to April 2, 1917, and who have accepted or may accept their discharge from such enlistment in order to reenlist under the terms of the Act entitled “An Act to authorize the resumption of voluntary enlistment in the Regular Army, and for other purposes,” approved February 28, 1919, shall upon such discharge receive travel pay at the rate provided in the Act entitled “An Act permitting any person who has served in the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps in the present war to retain his uniform and personal equipment, and to wear the same under certain conditions,” approved February 28, 1919, from the place of such discharge to their actual bona fide home or residence or original muster into the service, as they may elect. The Secretary of War is authorized to discharge any or all of these men enlisted prior to April 2, 1917, who desire discharge from their old enlistment for the purpose of so reenlisting, regardless of whether or not the period of their original contract or enlistment has been completed: Provided, That in case any enlisted man has been or hereafter shall be discharged for the purpose of reenlisting in the Regular Army, he shall be entitled to the payment of $60 as provided in section 1406 of the Act entitled “An Act to provide revenue, and for other purposes,” approved February 24, 1919. [41 Stat. L. 291.]

For Act of Feb. 28, 1919, ch. 70, mentioned in the text, see supra, this title, p. 370.

For Act of Feb. 24, 1919, ch. 18, § 1406, see supra, this title, p. 368.

An Act To provide for further educational facilities by authorizing the Secretary of War to sell at reduced rates certain machine tools not in use for Government purposes to trade, technical, and public schools and universities, other recognized educational institutions, and for other purposes.

[Act of Nov. 19, 1919, ch. 118, 41 Stat. L. 360.]

[Sale of machine tools to educational institutions.] That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized, under such regulations as he may prescribe, to sell at 15 per centum of their cost to trade, technical, and public schools and universities, and other recognized educational institutions, upon application in writing, such machine tools as are suitable for their use which are now owned by the United States of America and are under the control of the War Department and are not needed for Government purposes. The money realized from the sale may be used by the Secretary of War to defray expenses, except cost of transportation, incident to distribution of the tools, and the balance shall be turned into the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts: Provided, That in the event any such material is offered for sale by said institutions without the consent in writing of the Secretary of War, title thereto shall revert to the United States. [41 Stat. L. 360.]

---

An Act To amend the Articles of War.

[Act of Nov. 19, 1919, ch. 112, 41 Stat. L. 356.]

[Articles of War — article 112 amended — effects of deceased persons.] That article 112 of section 1342 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, as amended by the Act entitled “An Act making appropriations for the support of the Army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, approved July 9, 1918,” be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

“ARTICLE 112. EFFECTS OF DECEASED PERSONS — DISPOSITION OF.— In case of the death of any person subject to military law the commanding officer of the place of command will permit the legal representative or widow of the deceased, if present, to take possession of all his effects then in camp or quarters, and if no legal representative or widow be present the commanding officer shall direct a summary court to secure all such effects; and said summary court shall have authority to collect and receive any debts due decedent's estate by local debtors; and as soon as practicable after the collection of such effects said summary court shall transmit such effects, and any money collected, through the Quartermaster Department, at Government expense, to the widow or legal representative of the deceased, if such be found by said court, or to the son, daughter, father, provided the father has not abandoned the support of his family, mother, brother, sister, or the next of kin in the order named, if such be found by said court, or the beneficiary named in the will of the deceased, if such be found by said court, and said court shall thereupon make to the War Department a full report of its transactions; but if there be none of the persons hereinabove named, or such persons or their addresses are not known to or readily ascertainable by said court, and the said court shall so find, said summary court shall have authority to convert into cash, by public or private sale, not earlier than thirty days after the death of the deceased, all effects of deceased except sabers, insignia, decorations, medals, watches, trinkets, manuscripts, and other articles valuable chiefly as keepsakes; and as soon as practicable after converting such effects into cash said summary court shall deposit with the proper officer, to be designated in regulations, any cash belonging to decedent's estate, and shall transmit a receipt for such deposits, any will or other papers of value belonging to the deceased, any sabers, insignia, decorations, medals, watches, trinkets, manuscripts, and other articles valuable chiefly as keepsakes, together with an inventory of the effects secured by said summary court, and a full account of its transactions to the War Department for transmission to the Auditor for the War Department for action as authorized by law in the settlement of accounts of deceased officers and enlisted men of the Army.

“ The provisions of this article shall be applicable to inmates of the United States Soldiers' Home who die in any United States military hospital outside of the District of Columbia where sent from the home for treatment.” [41 Stat. L. 356.]

For Act of July 9, 1918, mentioned in the text, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1243 et seq.

An Act To provide for the payment of six months' pay to the widow, children, or other designated dependent relative of any officer or enlisted man of the Regular Army whose death results from wounds or disease not the result of his own misconduct.

[SEC. 1.] [Officers and enlisted men of regular army — death from wounds or disease — six months' pay to widows, etc.] That hereafter, immediately upon official notification of the death from wounds or disease, not the result of his own misconduct, of any officer or enlisted man on the active list of the Regular Army or on the retired list when on active duty, the Quartermaster General of the Army shall cause to be paid to the widow, and if there be no widow to the child or children, and if there be no widow or child to any other dependent relative of such officer or enlisted man previously designated by him, an amount equal to six months' pay at the rate received by such officer or enlisted man at the date of his death. The Secretary of War shall establish regulations requiring each officer and enlisted man having no wife or child to designate the proper dependent relative to whom this amount shall be paid in case of his death. Said amount shall be paid from funds appropriated for the pay of the Army. [41 Stat. L. —.]

SEC. 2. [Officers and enlisted men affected by Act.] That nothing in this Act shall be construed as making the provisions of this Act applicable to officers or enlisted men of any forces or troops of the Army of the United States other than those of the Regular Army, and nothing in this Act shall be construed to apply in commissioned grades to any officers except those holding permanent or provisional appointments in the Regular Army. [41 Stat. L. —.]

An Act To amend and modify the War Risk Insurance Act.

[SEC. 1.] [War Risk Insurance Act — amendments — offices abolished — Commissioner of Military and Naval Insurance and of Marine and Seamen's Insurance.] That the office of the Commissioner of Military and Naval Insurance and the office of the Commissioner of Marine and Seamen's Insurance created by the War Risk Insurance Act are hereby abolished and the powers and duties pertaining to such offices are hereby transferred to the Director of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, who shall hereafter receive a salary at the rate of $7,500 per annum. Until such time as the Secretary of the Treasury may direct otherwise, and subject to the provisions of section 9 of the War Risk Insurance Act, there shall be in the Bureau of War Risk Insurance a Division of Marine and Seamen's Insurance and a Division of Military and Naval Insurance. All laws inconsistent with this section are hereby so modified as to conform to the provisions hereof. [41 Stat. L. —.]

The War Risk Insurance Act and the various amendments thereto will be found in 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1299; 1916 Supp. 283; 1918 Supp. (2d ed.) 907; 1918 Supp. (1st ed.) 889, and this title.

SEC. 2. ["Child" defined — adopted child — section 22 amended.] That paragraph (b) of the second subdivision (1) of section 22 of the War Risk Insurance Act is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(b) A child legally adopted." [41 Stat. L. —.]

For section 22 here amended in part, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1308; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 899.

SEC. 3. ["Child" defined — illegitimate child — section 22 amended.] That paragraph (d) of the second subdivision (1) of section 22 of the War Risk Insurance Act is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(d) An illegitimate child, but, as to the father only, if acknowledged in writing signed by him, or if he has been judicially ordered or decreed to contribute to such child's support, or has been judicially decreed to be the putative father of such child." [41 Stat. L. —.]

For section 22 here amended in part, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1308; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 899.

SEC. 4. ["Father" and "mother" defined — "brother" and "sister" defined — section 22 amended.] That section 22 of the War Risk Insurance Act is hereby amended by inserting therein immediately following subdivisions (4) and (5), respectively, two new subdivisions to be known as subdivision (4a) and subdivision (5a) and to read as follows:

"(4a) The terms 'father' and 'mother' include stepfathers and stepmothers, fathers and mothers through adoption, and persons who have stood in loco parentis to a member of the military or naval forces at any time prior to his enlistment or induction for a period of not less than one year: Provided, That this subdivision shall be deemed to be in effect as of October 6, 1917."

"(5a) The terms 'brother' and 'sister' include the children of a person who, for a period of not less than one year, stood in loco parentis to a member of the military or naval forces of the United States at any time prior to his enlistment or induction, or another member of the same household as to whom such person during such period likewise stood in loco parentis: Provided, That this subdivision shall be deemed to be in effect as of October 6, 1917.” [41 Stat. L. —.]

For section 22 here amended, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1308; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 899.

SEC. 5. [Inmates of insane asylums — payments to whom made — section 23 amended.] That section 23 of the War Risk Insurance Act is hereby amended by the addition thereto of a new paragraph to read as follows:

“ If any person entitled to receive payments under this Act shall be an inmate of any asylum or hospital for the insane maintained by the United States, or by any of the several States or Territories of the United States, or any political subdivision thereof, and no guardian or curator of the property of such person shall have been appointed by competent legal authority, the director, if satisfied after due investigation that any such person is mentally incompetent, may order that all moneys payable to him or her under this Act shall be held in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of such person. All funds so held shall be disbursed under the order of the director and subject to his discretion, either to the chief executive officer of the asylum or hospital in which such person is an inmate, to be used by such officer for the maintenance and comfort of such inmate, subject to the duty to account to the Bureau of War Risk Insurance and to repay any surplus at any time remaining in his hands in accordance with regulations to be prescribed by the director; or to the wife (or dependent husband if the inmate is a woman), minor children, and dependent parents of such inmate, in such amounts as the director shall find necessary for their support and maintenance, in the order named; or, if at any time such inmate shall be found to be mentally competent, or shall die, or a guardian or curator of his or her estate be appointed, any balance remaining to the credit of such inmate shall be paid to such inmate, if mentally competent, and otherwise to his or her guardian, curator or personal representatives.” [41 Stat. L. —.]

For section 23 here amended, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1310; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 901.

SEC. 6. [Assignment of insurance — section 28 construed.] That the provisions of section 28 of the War Risk Insurance Act shall not be construed to prohibit the assignment by any person to whom converted insurance shall be payable under Article IV of such Act of his interest in such insurance to any other member of the permitted class of beneficiaries. [41 Stat. L. —.]

For section 28 here construed, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1311; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 902.

SEC. 7. [Persons inducted into service but not accepted and enrolled — death or disability — compensation — new section added.] That a new section is hereby added to the War Risk Insurance Act, to be known as section 31, and to read as follows:

“ SEC. 31. That if after induction by the local draft board, but before being accepted and enrolled for active service, the person died or became disabled as a result of disease contracted or injury suffered in the line of duty and not due to his own willful misconduct involving moral turpitude, or as a result of the aggravation, in the line of duty and not because of his own willful misconduct involving moral turpitude, of an existing disease or injury, he or those entitled thereto shall receive the benefits of compensation payable under Article III: Provided, That any insurance application made by a person after induction by the local draft board but before being accepted and enrolled for active service shall be deemed valid." [41 Stat. L. —.]

For Article III mentioned in the text, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1317; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. 908.

SEC. 8. [Family allowance — payment — period — cases of desertion, imprisonment and missing men — section 204 amended.] That the second paragraph of section 204 of the War Risk Insurance Act is hereby amended to read as follows:

"The family allowance shall be paid from the time of enlistment to death in or one month after discharge from the service, but not for more than four months after the termination of the present war emergency. No family allowance shall be made for any period preceding November 1, 1917. The payment shall be subject to such regulations as may be prescribed relative to cases of desertion and imprisonment and of missing men." [41 Stat. L. —.]

SEC. 9. [Family allowances and allotments — discontinuance — termination of war — new section added.] That a new section is hereby added to Article II of the War Risk Insurance Act, to be known as section 211, and to read as follows:

"SEC. 211. That all family allowances and allotments payable by the Bureau of War Risk Insurance under the authority of this article shall be discontinued at the end of the fourth calendar month after the termination of the present war emergency, as declared by proclamation of the President of the United States, and thereafter all allotments of pay shall be voluntary and shall be made under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy, respectively." [41 Stat. L. —.]

SEC. 10. [Compensation for death — funeral expenses — section 301 amended.] That the second paragraph of subdivision (g) of section 301 of the War Risk Insurance Act is hereby amended to read as follows:

"If death occur or shall have occurred subsequent to April 6, 1917, and before discharge or resignation from service, the United States shall pay for burial expenses and the return of body to his home a sum not to exceed $100, as may be fixed by regulations."

That section 301 of the War Risk Insurance Act, as amended, shall be deemed to be in effect as of April 6, 1917: Provided, however, That before compensation thereunder shall be paid there shall first be deducted from said sum so to be paid the amount of any payments such person may have received by way of gratuities or payments under pension laws in force and existence between April 6, 1917, and October 6, 1917. [41 Stat. L. —.]

SEC. 10a. [Compensation for death or disability — section 300 amended.] That section 300 of the War Risk Insurance Act is hereby amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 300. That for death or disability resulting from personal injury suffered or disease contracted in the line of duty, by any commissioned officer or enlisted man, or by any member of the Army Nurse Corps (female) or of the Navy Nurse Corps (female) when employed in the active service under the War Department or Navy Department, the United States shall pay compensation as hereinafter provided; but no compensation shall be paid if the injury or disease has been caused by his own willful misconduct: Provided, That for the purposes of this section said officer, enlisted man, or other member shall be held and taken to have been in sound condition when examined, accepted, and enrolled for service: Provided further, That this section, as amended, shall be deemed to become effective as of April 6, 1917." [41 Stat. L. —.]

SEC. 11. [Compensation for disability — amount — transportation — medical services and supplies — section 302 amended.] That section 302 of the War Risk Insurance Act is hereby amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 302. That if disability results from the injury —

"(1) If and while the disability is rated as total and temporary, the monthly compensation shall be the following amounts:

"(a) If the disabled person has neither wife nor child living, $80.

"(b) If he has a wife but no child living, $90.

"(c) If he has a wife and one child living, $95.

"(d) If he has a wife and two or more children living, $100.

"(e) If he has no wife but one child living, $90, with $5 for each additional child.

"(f) If he has a mother or father, either or both dependent on him for support, then, in addition to the above amounts, $10 for each parent so dependent.

"(2) If and while the disability is rated as partial and temporary, the monthly compensation shall be a percentage of the compensation that would be payable for his total and temporary disability, equal to the degree of the reduction in earning capacity resulting from the disability, but no compensation shall be payable for a reduction in earning capacity rated at less than 10 per centum.

"(3) If and while the disability is rated as total and permanent, the rate of compensation shall be $100 per month: Provided, however, That the loss of both feet, or both hands, or the sight of both eyes, or the loss of one foot and one hand, or one foot and the sight of one eye, or one hand and the sight of one eye, or becoming helpless and permanently bedridden, shall be deemed to be total, permanent disability: Provided further, That for double, total, permanent disability the rate of compensation shall be $200 per month.

"(4) If and while the disability is rated as partial and permanent, the monthly compensation shall be a percentage of the compensation that would be payable for his total and permanent disability equal to the degree of the reduction in earning capacity resulting from the disability, but no compensation shall be payable for a reduction in earning capacity rated at less than 10 per centum.

"A schedule of ratings of reductions in earning capacity from specific injuries or combinations of injuries of a permanent nature shall be adopted and applied by the bureau. Ratings may be as high as 100 per centum. The ratings shall be based, as far as practicable, upon the average impairments of earning capacity resulting from such injuries in civil occupations and not upon the impairment in earning capacity in each individual case, so that there shall be no reduction in the rate of compensation for individual success in overcoming the handicap of a permanent injury. The bureau in adopting the schedule of ratings of reduction in earning capacity shall consider the impairment in ability to secure employment which results from such injuries. The bureau shall from time to time readjust this schedule of ratings in accordance with actual experience.

"(5) If the disabled person is so helpless as to be in constant need of a nurse or attendant, such additional sum shall be paid, but not exceeding $20 per month, as the director may deem reasonable.

"(6) In addition to the compensation above provided, the injured person shall be furnished by the United States such reasonable governmental medical, surgical, and hospital services and with such supplies, including wheeled chairs, artificial limbs, trusses, and similar appliances, as the director may determine to be useful and reasonably necessary, which wheeled chairs, artificial limbs, trusses, and similar appliances may be procured by the Bureau of War Risk Insurance in such manner, either by purchase or manufacture, as the director may determine to be advantageous and reasonably necessary: Provided, That nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect the necessary military control over any member of the military or naval establishments before he shall have been discharged from the military or naval service.

"(7) Where the disabled person and his wife are not living together, or where the children are not in the custody of the disabled person the amount of the compensation shall be apportioned as may be prescribed by regulations.

"(8) The term 'wife' as used in this section shall include 'husband' if the husband is dependent upon the wife for support.

"(9) That the Bureau of War Risk Insurance is hereby authorized to furnish transportation, also the medical, surgical, and hospital services and the supplies and appliances provided by subdivision (6) hereof, to discharged members of the military or naval forces of those Governments which have been associated in war with the United States since April 6, 1917, and come within the provisions of laws of such Governments similar to the War Risk Insurance Act, at such rates and under such regulations as the Director of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance may prescribe; and the Bureau of War Risk Insurance is hereby authorized to utilize the similar services, supplies, and appliances provided for the discharged members of the military and naval forces of those Governments which have been associated in war with the United States since April 6, 1917, by the laws of such Governments similar to the War Risk Insurance Act, in furnishing the discharged members of the military and naval forces of the United States who live within the territorial limits of such Governments and come within the provisions of subdivision (6) hereof, with the services, supplies, and appliances provided for in such subdivision; and any appropriations that have been or may hereafter be made for the purpose of furnishing the services, supplies, and appliances provided for by subdivision (6) hereof are hereby made available for the payment to such Governments or their agencies for the services, supplies, and appliances so furnished at such rates and under such regulations as the Director of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance may prescribe.

"(10) That section 302 of the War Risk Insurance Act as amended shall be deemed to be in effect as of April 6, 1917: Provided, That any person who is now receiving a gratuity or pension under existing law shall not receive compensation under this Act unless he shall first surrender all claim to such gratuity or pension." [41 Stat. L. —.]

For section 302 here amended, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1319; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 910.

SEC. 12. [Time for application — death before application.] That section 401 of the War Risk Insurance Act is hereby amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 401. That such insurance must be applied for within one hundred and twenty days after enlistment or after entrance into or employment in the active service and before discharge or resignation, except that those persons who are in the active war service at the time of the publication of the terms and conditions of such contract of insurance may apply at any time within one hundred and twenty days thereafter and while in such service: Provided, That any person in the active service on or after the 6th day of April, 1917, and before the 11th day of November, 1918, who while in such active service made application for insurance after the expiration of more than one hundred and twenty days after October 15, 1917, or more than one hundred and twenty days after entrance into or employment in the active service, and whose application was accepted and a policy issued thereon, and from whom premiums were collected, and who becomes or had become totally and permanently disabled, or dies or has died, shall be deemed to have made legal application for such insurance and the policy issued on such application shall be valid. Any person in the active service on or after the 6th day of April, 1917, and before the 11th day of November, 1918, who, while in such service, and before the expiration of one hundred and twenty days after October 15, 1917, or one hundred and twenty days after entrance into or employment in the active service, becomes or has become totally and permanently disabled, or dies or has died, without having applied for insurance, shall be deemed to have applied for and to have been granted insurance, payable to such person during his life in monthly installments of $25 each; and any person inducted into the service by a local draft board after the 6th day of April, 1917, and before the 11th day of November, 1918, who, while in such service, and before being accepted and enrolled for active military or naval service, becomes or has become totally and permanently disabled, or dies or has died, without having applied for insurance, shall be deemed to have applied for and to have been granted insurance, payable to such person during his life in monthly installments of $25 each. If he shall die either before he shall have received any of such monthly installments or before he shall have received two hundred and forty of such monthly installments, then $25 per month shall be paid to his widow from the time of his death and during her widowhood; or if there is no widow surviving him, then to his child or children; or if there is no child surviving him, then to his mother; or if there be no mother surviving him, then to his father, if and while they survive him: Provided, however, That no more than two hundred and forty of such monthly installments, including those received by such person during his total and permanent disability, shall be so paid. The amount of the monthly installments shall be apportioned between children as may be provided by regulations: Provided further, That each officer and enlisted man attached to the United States ship Cyclops on the 4th day of March, 1918, and every officer and enlisted man who on said date was a passenger on said vessel shall be deemed to have been granted insurance in the sum of $5 000 permitted under the War Risk Insurance Act." [41 Stat. L. —.]

For section 401 here amended, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1325; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 916.

SEC. 13. [Beneficiaries — enlargement of class — section 402 amended.] That the permitted class of beneficiaries for insurance as specified in section 402 of the War Risk Insurance Act is hereby enlarged so as to include, in addition to the persons therein enumerated, uncles, aunts, nephews, nieces, brother-in-law and sister-in-law of the insured. This section shall be deemed to be in effect as of October 6, 1917: Provided, That nothing herein shall be construed to interfere with the payment of the monthly installments authorized to be made under the provisions of said War Risk Insurance Act, as originally enacted and subsequently amended, up to and including the second calendar month after the passage of this Act: Provided further, That all awards of insurance under the provisions of the said War Risk Insurance Act, as originally enacted and subsequently amended, shall be revised as of the first day of the third calendar month after the passage of this Act, in accordance with the provisions of the said War Risk Insurance Act as modified by this amendatory Act. [41 Stat. L. —.]

For section 402 here amended, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1326; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 917.

SEC. 14. [Failure of beneficiaries to survive insured — effect on monthly installments.] That if no person within the permitted class of beneficiaries survive the insured, then there shall be paid to the estate of the insured the monthly installments payable and applicable under the provisions of Article IV of the War Risk Insurance Act. [41 Stat. L. —.]

For Article IV mentioned in the text, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1325; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 916.

SEC. 15. [Death of person awarded yearly renewable term insurance — monthly installments to whom payable.] That if any person to whom such yearly renewable term insurance has been awarded dies, or his rights are otherwise terminated after the death of the insured, but before all of the two hundred and forty monthly installments have been paid, then the monthly installments payable and applicable shall be payable to such person or persons within the permitted class of beneficiaries as would, under the laws of the State of residence of the insured, be entitled to his personal property in case of intestacy; and if the permitted class of beneficiaries be exhausted before all of the two hundred and forty monthly installments have been paid, then there shall be paid to the estate of the last surviving person within the permitted class the remaining unpaid monthly installments. [41 Stat. L. —.]

SEC. 16. [Converted insurance — no designated beneficiary — effect.] That if no beneficiary within the permitted class be designated by the insured as beneficiary for converted insurance, granted under the provisions of Article IV of the War Risk Insurance Act, either in his lifetime or by his last will and testament, or if the designated beneficiary does not survive the insured, then there shall be paid to the estate of the insured the remaining unpaid monthly installments; or if the designated beneficiary survives the insured and dies before receiving all of the installments of converted insurance payable and applicable, then there shall be paid to the estate of such beneficiary the remaining unpaid monthly installments. [41 Stat. L. —.]

For Article IV mentioned in the text, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1325; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 916.

SEC. 17. [Converted insurance — optional settlements — installments.] That the Bureau of War Risk Insurance may make provision in the contract for converted insurance for optional settlements, to be selected by the insured, whereby such insurance may be made payable either in one sum or in installments for thirty-six months or more. The bureau may also include in said contract a provision authorizing the beneficiary to elect to receive payment of the insurance in installments for thirty-six months or more, but only if the insured has not exercised the right of election as hereinbefore provided; and even though the insured may have exercised his right of election, the said contract may authorize the beneficiary to elect to receive such insurance in installments spread over a greater period of time than that selected by the insured. [41 Stat. L. —.]

SEC. 18. [Premiums paid on account of converted insurance — disposition.] That all premiums paid on account of insurance converted under the provisions of Article IV of the War Risk Insurance Act shall be deposited and covered into the Treasury to the credit of the United States Government life insurance fund and shall be available for the payment of losses, dividends, refunds, and other benefits provided for under such insurance. Payments from this fund shall be made upon and in accordance with awards by the director.

The Bureau of War Risk Insurance is hereby authorized to set aside out of the funds so collected such reserve funds as may be required, under accepted actuarial principles, to meet all liabilities under such insurance; and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to invest and reinvest the said United States Government life insurance fund, or any part thereof, in interest-bearing obligations of the United States and to sell the obligations for the purposes of the said fund. [41 Stat. L. —.]

For Article IV mentioned in the text, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1325; 1918 Supp. Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 916.

SEC. 19. [Monthly installments — death of person entitled to receive same — payment to personal representatives.] That the amount of the monthly installments of allotment and family allowance, compensation, or yearly renewable term insurance which has become payable under the provisions of the War Risk Insurance Act but which has not been paid prior to the death of the person entitled to receive the same may be payable to the personal representatives of the deceased person. [41 Stat. L. —.]

An Act To encourage the reclamation of certain arid lands in the State of Nevada, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [Reclamation of arid public lands in Nevada—exploration for water—irrigation—permits.] That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to grant to any citizen of the United States, or to any association of such citizens, a permit, which shall give the exclusive right, for a period not exceeding two years, to drill or otherwise explore for water beneath the surface of not exceeding two thousand five hundred and sixty acres of unreserved, unappropriated, nonmineral, nontimbered public lands of the United States in the State of Nevada not known to be susceptible of successful irrigation at a reasonable cost from any known source of water supply: Provided, however, That not more than one such permit shall be issued to the same citizen or the same association of citizens within an area of forty miles square: And provided further, That said land shall not be fenced or otherwise exclusively used by the permittee except as herein provided: And provided further, That said land shall theretofore have been designated by the Secretary of the Interior as subject to disposal under the provisions of this act. [41 Stat. L. 293.]

SEC. 2. [Designation of lands subject to disposal—application for permit upon land not designated.] That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized, on application or otherwise, to designate the lands subject to disposal under the provisions of this act: Provided, however, That where any person or association qualified to receive a permit under the provisions of this act shall make application for such permit upon land which has not been designated as subject to disposal under the provisions of this act (provided said application is accompanied and supported by properly corroborated affidavit of the applicant, in duplicate, showing prima facie that the land applied for is of the character contemplated by this act), such application, together with the regular fees and commissions, shall be received by the register and receiver of the land district in which said land is located and suspended until it shall have been determined by the Secretary of the Interior whether said land is actually of that character. That during such suspension the land described in the application shall not be disposed of; and if the land shall be designated under this act, then such application shall be allowed; otherwise it shall be rejected, subject to appeal. [41 Stat. L. 294.]

SEC. 3. [Filing of permit — affidavit — grant of permit.] That any qualified applicant for a permit under section 1 of this Act shall file with the register or receiver of the land district in which said land is located the application for such permit and shall make and subscribe before the proper officer and file with said register or receiver an affidavit that such application is honestly and in good faith made for the purpose of reclamation and cultivation and not for the benefit of any other person or corporation, and that the applicant is not acting as agent for any person, corporation, or syndicate in making such application, nor in collusion with any person, corporation, or syndicate to give them the benefit of the land applied for or any part thereof, and that the applicant will faithfully and honestly endeavor to comply with all of the requirements of this Act, and shall pay to said register and receiver a filing fee of 1 cent per acre for each acre of land embraced in said application, and such applicant shall then be entitled to receive such permit after the lands embraced therein are designated as provided in section 2 of this Act. [41 Stat. L. 294.]

SEC. 4. [Conditions affecting permit — cancellation.] That such a permit shall be upon condition that the permittee shall begin operations for the development of underground waters within six months from the date of the permit and continue such operations with reasonable diligence until water has been discovered in the quantity hereinafter described, or until the date of the expiration of the permit. Upon the presentation at any time of proof satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior that any permittee is not conducting such operations in good faith and with reasonable diligence, or has violated any of the terms of the permit, the Secretary shall forthwith cancel such permit, and such permittee shall not again be granted a permit under this Act. [41 Stat. L. 294.]

SEC. 5. [Issuance of patent to successful explorer — area included.] That on establishing at any time within two years from the date of the permit to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Interior that underground waters in sufficient quantity to produce at a profit agricultural crops other than native grasses upon not less than twenty acres of land has been discovered and developed and rendered available for such use within the limits of the land embraced in any permit the said permittee shall be entitled to a patent for one-fourth of the land embraced in the permit, such area to be selected by the permittee in compact form according to the legal subdivisions of the public land surveys if the land be surveyed, or to be surveyed at his expense under rules and regulations established by the Secretary of the Interior if located on unsurveyed land. [41 Stat. L. 294.]

SEC. 6. [Area not included in patent — disposition.] That the remaining area within the limits of the land embraced in any such permit shall thereafter be subject to entry and disposal only under "An Act to secure homesteads to actual settlers on the public domain," approved May 20, 1862, and amendments thereto, known as the one-hundred-and-sixty-acre homestead Act. [41 Stat. L. 294.]

For Act of May 20, 1862, mentioned in the text, see 8 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 543; 6 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 285.

SEC. 7. [Receipts from sale of land—disposition.] That the receipts obtained from the sale of lands under the provisions of section 6 hereof shall be paid into, reserved, and appropriated as a part of the reclamation fund created by the act of Congress approved June 17, 1902, known as the Reclamation Act. [41 Stat. L. 295.]

For Act of June 17, 1902, mentioned in the text, see 9 Fed. Stat. Ann. (2d ed.) 1363; 7 Fed. Stat. Ann. (1st ed.) 1098.

SEC. 8. [Reservation of coal and other mineral deposits.] That all entries made and patents issued under the provisions of this Act shall be subject to and contain a reservation to the United States of all the coal and other valuable minerals in the lands so entered and patented, together with the right to prospect for, mine, and remove the same. The coal and other valuable mineral deposits in such lands shall be subject to disposal by the United States in accordance with the provisions of the coal and mineral land laws in force at the time of such disposal. Any person qualified to locate and enter the coal or other mineral deposits, or having the right to mine and remove the same under the laws of the United States, shall have the right at all times to enter upon the lands entered or patented, as provided by this Act, for the purpose of prospecting for coal or other mineral therein, provided he shall not injure, damage, or destroy the permanent improvements of the entryman or patentee, and shall be liable to and shall compensate the entryman or patentee for all damages to the crops on such lands by reason of such prospecting. Any person who has acquired from the United States the coal or other mineral deposits in any such land, or the right to mine or remove the same, may reenter and occupy so much of the surface thereof as may be required for all purposes reasonably incident to the mining or removal of the coal or other minerals, first, upon securing the written consent or waiver of the homestead entryman or patentee; second, upon payment of the damages to crops or other tangible improvements to the owner thereof, where agreement may be had as to the amount thereof; or, third, in lieu of either of the foregoing provisions, upon the execution of a good and sufficient bond or undertaking to the United States for the use and benefit of the entryman or owner of the land, to secure the payment of such damages to the crops or tangible improvements of the entrymen or owner, as may be determined and fixed in an action brought upon the bond or undertaking in a court of competent jurisdiction against the principal and sureties thereon, such bond or undertaking to be in form and in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior and to be filed with and approved by the register and receiver of the local land office of the district wherein the land is situate, subject to appeal to the Commissioner of the General Land Office: Provided, That all patents issued for the coal or other mineral deposits herein reserved shall contain appropriate notations declaring them to be subject to the provisions of this Act with reference to the disposition, occupancy, and use of the surface of the land. [41 Stat. L. 295.]

SEC. 9. [Rules and regulations—authority to prescribe.] That the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to prescribe the necessary and proper rules and regulations and to do any and all things necessary to carry out and accomplish the purposes of this Act. [41 Stat. L. 295.]

Throughout these Notes references to 1st ed. Fed. Stat. Ann. and Supplements thereto are indicated in [ ]. A complete table of these references, numerically arranged, appears among the tables at the beginning of this volume.

AGRICULTURE

Vol. I, p. 212, sec. 1. [First ed., vol. I, p. 9.]

A state statute limiting the appropriation payable to any university for maintenance does not apply to an appropriation under this section. Indiana State Board of Finance v. State, (Ind. 1919) 121 N. E. 649.

Vol. I, p. 223, sec. 7. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 4.]

Sufficiency of information.—An information which charges that a shipment of insect powder was adulterated within the meaning of this section in that its strength or purity fell below the professed standard or quality under which it was sold, is insufficient where it fails to state facts to show that the label on the powder imported a professed standard or quality. Parke v. U. S., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1919) 255 Fed. 933, wherein the court said: "This was a prosecution instituted by an information containing two counts, each of which charged that the plaintiff in error, Parke, Davis & Co., a corporation, on or about March 4, 1912, did wrongfully and unlawfully ship and cause to be shipped and transported for sale, from New Orleans, La., to the purchaser thereof, to wit, the Southern Drug Company, Houston, Tex., a certain insecticide, to wit, a quantity of so-called insect powder, which when so shipped bore the following label on the packages containing the same:

"1 lb. Net. Parke, Davis & Co. 90, 92 & 94 Maiden Lane, New York. [P. D. & Co. Brand Insect Powder P. D. & Co.]"

"The first count charged that said insect powder, when so shipped, labeled as aforesaid, was adulterated in the following manner and particulars, to wit:

"That said label indicated that the said insecticide was a pure and genuine insect powder, whereas, in truth and in fact, it was not a pure and genuine insect powder, but the strength and purity of said so-called insect powder, when shipped as aforesaid, then and there fell below the professed standard of quality under which it was sold, in that it was sold as a pure and genuine insect powder, whereas said insect powder contained an excessive and unlawful amount and quantity of pyrethrum stems in violation of law and the Insecticide Act 1910."

"In the connection in which the letters 'P. D.' are found on the label, they are to be taken as used as the initials of a previously stated name. The bracketed words of the label import insect powder of the named brand. The term 'insect powder' is one which was in common use long before the enactment of the statute. Judicial cognizance is taken of the meaning of words or terms in common use. The following is the definition of the term given in the Century Dictionary: 'A dry powder used to kill or expel insects; an insecticide or insectifuge.' That definition is followed by this statement:

"The principal kinds, used against museum and household pests, are the Persian, made from the dry flowers of pyrethrum roseum; the Dalmatian (also called Persian), from those of pyrethrum cinerariae-folium; and the Californian, also made from the last-named plant, all of which are known as buhach."

"Where words in everyday use are put upon labels, they are to be given their ordinary and customary meaning so far as they have one, unless it is disclosed that their use was under such circumstances that they conveyed a different meaning. Libby, McNeill & Libby v. United States, 210 Fed. 148, 127 C. C. A. 14; United States v. 150 Cases of Fruit Pudding, (D. C.) 211 Fed. 360. The information does not allege any facts or circumstances from which it could be inferred that the term 'insect powder' as used in the label had a meaning other than the one it has in everyday use. If the word 'insecticide' had been used, it would have conveyed the same meaning, except that it would not have indicated that the thing referred to was a dry powder. The use of either of the words is not inconsistent with the thing referred to being a mixture containing ingredients lacking in purity or insecticidal value. And the use of either of them does not constitute a profession of standard or quality or a statement of the ingredients or substances contained in the thing referred to. The statute specifies ingredients of paris green and lead arsenate the presence or absence of which is given such effect that those articles are to be deemed adulterated. Those provisions are not applicable to insecticides other than the ones named. So far as appears, at the time of the alleged shipments, no regulation had been prescribed which purported to deal with the use of the word 'insect powder' on labels.

"The first count of the information undertook to charge that the subject of the alleged shipment was adulterated within the meaning of the provision of the statute that an article should be deemed to be adulterated 'if its strength or purity fall below the professed standard or quality under which it is sold.' It does not attempt to charge that the thing shipped was adulterated within the meaning of any other clause of the statute's definition of that term. That count failed to state facts constituting the offense attempted to be charged, in that it failed to show that the alleged label or any part of it imported a professed standard or quality under which the subject of the alleged shipment was sold. It imported no more than that the thing referred to was a powder intended to be used to kill, repel, or mitigate insects."

The use of the term "insect powder" on a label is not such a false and misleading statement as amounts to misbranding where powder referred to is one which properly is identified or described by that name as it is applied ordinarily and customarily. Parke v. U. S., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1919) 255 Fed. 933, in which case the court said: "The second count of the information undertook to charge that the subject of the alleged shipment was 'misbranded' within the meaning of that part of the statute's definition of that term which makes it apply to all insecticides, etc., 'the package or label of which shall bear any statement, design or device regarding such article or the ingredients or substances contained therein which shall be false or misleading in any particular.' There was no attempt to charge that the thing shipped was misbranded within the meaning of any other clause of the statute's definition of that term. The charge as made in that count involves the assumption that the word or term 'insect powder' amounts to a statement which was false and misleading, though the thing referred to is one which properly is identified or described by that name as it applied ordinarily and customarily. That assumption is unwarranted."

Executive orders by President.—The President had power under this Act to issue the Executive order of April 10, 1915, directing the Secretary of the Interior to prepare and adopt a system of compensation for accidents to persons engaged in the work of construction of the proposed railroad in Alaska, and the Secretary of the Interior, having prepared such system, has authority to put it into effect. (1915) 30 Op. Atty.-Gen. 402.

Vol. I, p. 338, sec. 2. [First ed., vol. I, p. 8.]

Power of President to authorize expenditures.—The President is authorized under this Act to obligate the United States to expend, for the purchase of a line of railroads in Alaska necessary to complete the line designated by him, a sum in excess of the existing appropriation by Congress, but within the maximum of the cost as prescribed by the act. (1915) 30 Op. Atty.-Gen. 332.

ALIENS

Vol. I, p. 364, sec. 4067. [First ed., vol. I, p. 435.]

The constitutionality of this Act may not be attacked on the ground that it deprives alien enemies of liberty without due process of law, for they "have no rights and no privileges, unless by special favor, during time of war." De Lacey v. U. S., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 625, 161 C. C. A. 535, 1. R. A. 1918E 1011, wherein the court said: "The sections under which these alien enemies were held were originally enacted as the Alien Enemy Act of July 6, 1798, and from that date to this, although occasion has seldom arisen to enforce the statute, no question has been made of its constitutionality. While, as to property rights and life and liberty, all aliens domiciled in the United States, or temporarily therein, are accorded the equal protection of the law, and due process of law, such is not the case as to alien enemies. 'Alien enemies have no rights and no privileges, unless by special favor, during time of war.' 2 C. J. 1047. Such was the common law. 'Alien enemies have no rights, no privileges, unless by the king's special favor, during time of war.' 1 Blackstone, 372. There is nothing in the Constitution or laws of the United States which in any way has changed the common law rule, or restricted the power of Congress to enact the alien enemy law. Power to enact such a law may at times be essential to the preservation of the government, and the right of all nations to exercise it is recognized in international law. In Brown v. United States, 8 Cranch, 110, 121 (3 L. ed.) 504, Chief Justice Marshall said:

"Respecting the powers of government no doubt is entertained. That war gives to the sovereign full right to take the persons and confiscate the property of the enemy, wherever found, is conceded. The mitigations of this rigid rule, which the humane and wise policy of modern times has introduced into practice, will more or less affect the exercise of this right, but cannot impair the right itself."

"Even in times of peace the admission of aliens to the United States and their presence here are not of right, but of favor. In Turner v. Williams, 194 U. S. 279, 289, 24 Sup. Ct. 719, 722 (48 L. ed. 979) it was said: 'Repeated decisions of this court have determined that Congress has the power to exclude aliens from the United States, to prescribe the terms and conditions on which they may come in, to establish regulations for sending out of the country such aliens as have entered in violation of law, and to commit the enforcement of such conditions and regulations to executive officers; that the deportation of an alien who is found to be here in violation of law is not a deprivation of liberty without due process of law.'

"The first reported case arising under the Alien Enemy Act is Lockington's Case, Brightly, N. P. (Pa.) 269. Lockington, an alien enemy, had refused to comply with the executive order of February 23, 1813, requiring alien enemies who were within 40 miles of tidewater to retire to such places beyond that distance from tidewater as should be designated by the marshals. He was arrested, and on petition for habeas corpus attempted to test the legality of his imprisonment. Chief Justice Tilghman said of the act:

"It is a provision for the public safety, which may require that the alien should not be removed, but kept in the country under proper restraints. . . . It is never to be forgotten that the main object of the law is to provide for the safety of the country from enemies who are suffered to remain within it. In order to effect this safety, it might be necessary to act on sudden emergencies. . . . The President, being best acquainted with the danger to be apprehended, is best able to judge of the emergency which might render such measures necessary. Accordingly, we find that the powers vested in him are expressed in the most comprehensive terms."

"On the second petition for habeas corpus Judge Yeates said:

"When the vessel of the commonwealth is in danger, partial evils must be submitted to, in order to guard against a general wreck. Aliens who have come among us before a declaration of war against their sovereign, and continue to reside among us after it, cannot expect an exemption from such evils."

"And Judge Brackenridge said:

"Alien enemies, remaining in our country after a declaration of war, are to be treated according to the law of nations, and it has been so argued in this case. Shall, then, the judicial power constitute itself a judge between the executive of the general government and the nation with whom we are at war, and say whether the proceeding in the case of their subjects remaining in our country has been according to the law of nations?'

"In Lockington v. Smith, 1 Pet. C. C. 466, Fed. Cas. No. 8,448, Washington, Circuit Justice, said:

"It seems perfectly clear that the power to remove was vested in the President, because under certain circumstances he might deem that measure most effectual to guard the public safety. But he might also cause the alien to be restrained or confined, if in his opinion the public good should forbid his removal."

"In answering the contention that judicial authority must be resorted to to enforce the regulations so established by the President under the law, he said:

"Such a construction would, in my opinion, be at variance with the spirit as well as with the letter of the law, the great object of which was to provide for the public safety by imposing such restraints upon alien enemies as the chief executive magistrate of the United States might think necessary, and of which his particular situation enabled him best to judge."

"In the Case of Fries, 9 Fed. Cas. No. 5,126, Circuit Justice Iredell, charging the jury concerning the provisions of the Alien Enemy Act, said:

"In cases like this it is ridiculous to talk of the crime, because perhaps the only crime that a man can then be charged with is his being born in another country and having a strong attachment to it. He is not punished for a crime that he has committed, but deprived of the power of committing one hereafter, to which even a sense of patriotism may tempt a warm and misguided mind. . . . The opportunities during a war of making use of men of such a description are so numerous and so dangerous that no prudent nation would ever trust to the possible good behavior of many of them."

Where an arrest is made in accordance with the provisions of this section, the person arrested is not entitled to raise the objection that he is deprived of his liberty without due process of law. Minotto v. Bradley, (N. D. Ill. 1918) 252 Fed. 600.

Section contrasted with R. S. sec. 4069 as to methods of removal.—"The statutes of the United States provide two methods by which alien enemies may be restrained or removed. Under section 4067, R. S. . . . the President may direct the manner and degree of the restraint to which alien enemies shall be subject, and he is authorized to provide for the removal from the country of those who, not being permitted to reside in the United States, neglect or refuse to depart therefrom. Under section 4069, R. S. U. S., courts of the United States having criminal jurisdiction are authorized, after complaint and upon hearing, to cause alien enemies to be apprehended and confined or removed. This last section, however, is not a limitation or restriction upon the power given the President by section 4067, R. S., but provides an additional method of dealing with alien enemies. It is clear that Congress did not intend that the power conferred on the President by section 4067, R. S., to remove alien enemies, should be exercised only as provided in section 4069, R. S., which requires a complaint against an alien enemy and a hearing. This latter method, with its attendant public trial, would oftentimes prove inadequate and ineffective, and the inevitable disclosing of facts would not always be best for the safety of the peace and security of the government. Congress recognized this and by the provisions of section 4067, R. S., vested the President with summary power to direct the confinement or removal of alien enemies." Ex p. Graber, (N. D. Ala. 1918) 247 Fed. 882.

Natives of hostile nations as alien enemies.

—A person who was born in Germany and lived there for a number of years, is a "native" of that country within the meaning of this section and may be arrested under a presidential warrant issued hereunder. Minotto v. Bradley, (N. D. Ill. 1918) 252 Fed. 600, wherein it was said: "This statute must be construed, as I stated during the argument, with the end which Congress had in view. We all appreciate the seriousness of the situation. We realize that a mistake, once made, cannot be remedied. The determination by the President whether the facts justify the internment of the petitioner, provided he is an alien enemy, is not to be investigated by the courts. The courts, in the nature of things, are precluded from discussing those facts. If the President were required to disclose the basis for his warrant, the entire purpose of the statute might be frustrated. The only question to be settled here is whether, under the construction of this statute, the petitioner is a 'native, citizen, denizen or subject' of a power with which we are at war. The petitioner could no more cease being a native of the place of his birth than I could cease being a native of the state of Illinois, when you are considering the place of birth."

"Look at the history of this case. The petitioner was born in Germany. His mother was born in Germany. His father was born in Austria. The residence of the family was in Germany until within a very short time before the petitioner came to this country. The record shows that the family of the petitioner have no property in Italy, and have never lived there for any length of time. Under these circumstances it seems to me the court is not stretching the construction of this statute by holding that this is just the kind of a case that Congress intended to reach when it used the word 'native.' All the sympathies of one who was born in Germany, and who has lived there for 22 or 23 years, may be said to be with Germany. Whether they are or not in this case is not important. Suffice it to say that the language used by Congress apparently meets such a case."

"It might be easy to find in this country thousands of men who were born in Germany and lived there for 25, 30, or 35 years, saturated with German institutions, all of their sympathies might lie with Germany, yet, if the argument for the petitioner is right, the President is helpless, and nothing can be done with them in this country at this time. If a friendly ally of this country is offended by the action of the President, because some one tracing his lineage back to Italy, but born in Germany, was apprehended under the President's warrant, I have no doubt the matter will be brought to the attention of the State Department and diplomatically adjusted."

A native of Austria-Hungary resident in the United States at the time of the declaration of war against the government of Austria-Hungary, is an alien enemy. Ex p. Graber, (N. D. Ala. 1918) 247 Fed. 882, wherein it was said: "Of course, his mere declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States, such declaration never having been carried into effect, did not confer citizenship upon him; and such declaration of intention did not absolve Graber from the allegiance which he owes to the Austro-Hungarian government. He did not by his declaration of intention renounce his allegiance, but merely declared that it was his intention to do so at some future time; and so long as his foreign allegiance continues he remains an alien. Minneapolis v. Reum, 56 Fed. 576, 6 C. C. A. 31; In re Moses, (C. C.) 83 Fed. 995. Graber has not divested himself of his alienage, and cannot do so until he becomes an American citizen by naturalization. It cannot be doubted that by the declaration of war he became in law an alien enemy, one who owes allegiance to an adverse belligerent."

"The petitioner has lived in Mississippi for about 15 years, during which time, up to the very time of his arrest, he has stated repeatedly that he was born in Hamburg, Germany. He told witnesses that he came to this country from Germany when he was about four years of age, that he remembered crossing a large body of water, and that his brother died on the way over and was buried at sea. He asked his wife, when he proposed matrimony, whether she had any objections to marrying a German. He is shown to have had a marked German accent when he first came to Mississippi. Taking the stand in his own behalf, he now claims that these statements were made by him to conceal his obscure parentage; that as a matter of fact he was born in the United States and raised by gypsies. He does not claim to have been naturalized. From the evidence as a whole, I am convinced that the petitioner was born in Hamburg, Germany, and is a German alien enemy." Ex p. Fronklin, (N. D. Miss. 1918) 253 Fed. 984.

Naturalized citizens.—A person who, at the time of his arrest under this section, was a naturalized citizen and not within the classes specified therein, is entitled to be discharged on habeas corpus. Banning v. Penrose, (N. D. Ga. 1919) 225 Fed. 159, wherein the court said: "The authorities all are (and it would be useless to refer specifically to them) that a man who has become a naturalized citizen of one country, and goes back to the country of his origin, may stay there indefinitely, if his purpose is, all the time, in his mind, to retain his citizenship in the country of his adoption and to return there some time in the future. It is a question more of intention than anything else."

Presidential warrant.—A presidential warrant issued under this section need not disclose the grounds on which it is issued. Minotto v. Bradley, (N. D. Ill. 1918) 252 Fed. 600.

Necessity of filing complaint.—R. S. section 4069 (see vol. I, p. 364) does not in any way limit the powers of the President under this section, and hence an enemy alien may be arrested under a Presidential warrant without the filing of any complaint before a court or judge. Minotto v. Bradley, (N. D. Ill. 1918) 252 Fed. 600.

Manner and degree of restraint.—Under this section discretion is vested in the President to determine the manner and degree of restraint to which alien enemies shall be subjected. Ex p. Fronklin, (N. D. Miss. 1918) 253 Fed. 984, wherein the court said: "The proof shows that the petitioner is held in custody by the marshal by virtue of an order of the President of the United States, issued under Regulation No. 12 of the President's proclamation of April 6, 1917, promulgated in pursuance of section 4067 of the Revised Statutes, which order commands the marshal to detain at the usual place of confinement in his district, or, if such usual place be not suitable, at such other place as may, in his discretion, seem hygienic and safe, the petitioner, one Willis Fronklin, on the ground that his presence at large in this district 'is a danger to the public peace and safety of the United States.' The order also reads: 'Such person is to be detained until the further order of the President.'"

Judicial review.—The exercise of the summary power given by the President is not subject to judicial review. Ex p. Graber, (N. D. Ala. 1918) 247 Fed. 882; Ex p. Fronklin, (N. D. Miss. 1918) 253 Fed. 984.

Inheritance of property by aliens.—Citizens of Russia who were next of kin of a decedent, at his death on April 6, 1912, are entitled to share in the proceeds of the sale of his real estate in the District of Columbia, by virtue of this section and article 10 of the treaty of 1832 (8 Stat. L. 450) between this country and Russia, notwithstanding the abrogation of such treaty on January 1, 1913. Cohen v. Cohen, (1917) 47 App. Cas. (D. S.) 129.

Vol. I, p. 367, sec. 4. [First ed., vol. I, p. 438.]

Devise of land in District of Columbia.—Under this section as amended by the Act of February 23, 1905, ch. 733, sec. 1 [see Vol. I

(2d ed.), p. 369, vol. 10 (1st ed.), p. 33] an alien has the right to devise land in the District of Columbia where no escheat proceedings have been instituted. Freitag v. Freitag, (1917) 47 App. Cas. (D. C.) 1.

ANIMALS

Connecting carrier.—It is the established rule, generally, that the time during which cattle have been confined by a connecting carrier shall be included in the computation of the period of statutory confinement. Grand Trunk Western R. Co. v. U. S., (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 905, 161 C. C. A. 23, wherein the time of confinement by a Canadian railroad on a shipment from Canada into the United States was added, and the act held to be violated. The court said: "The intention of the act, as indicated by its title, is to 'prevent cruelty to animals in transit.' B. & O. S. W. R. R. Co. v. United States, 220 U. S. 94, 106, 31 Sup. Ct. 368, 55 L. ed. 384. It also has in view the protection of the public in preventing 'injury to the public health from the sale of cattle for food made ill and feverish by hunger, thirst, and exhaustion.' United States v. Lehigh Valley R. R. Co., (C. C.) 184 Fed. 971, 973; United States v. Pere Marquette R. R. Co., (C. C.) 171 Fed. 586, 588. As applied to this case, the substantive offense is not the carrying of the cattle in Canada, but their detention in the United States for such time as makes a total continuous confinement in excess of the statutory period. The act is thus violated in spite of the fact that a part of the confinement necessary to make up the statutory period had occurred in Canada. United States v. Lehigh Valley R. R. Co., supra; s. c. 187 Fed. 1006, 109 C. C. A. 211; Grand Trunk Railway of Canada v. United States, (C. C. A. 2) 191 Fed. 803, 112 C. C. A. 317; Grand Trunk Ry. Co. v. United States, (C. C. A. 7) 229 Fed. 116, 143 C. C. A. 392, Ann. Cas. 1917B 1094.

"In United States v. Lehigh Valley, supra (where the judgment below was affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Second Circuit on the opinion of the District Judge), the shipment originated in the United States, passed through Canada, and then again into the United States; part of the previous confinement being in the United States and part in Canada. The excess was again in the United States; an offense was held to have been committed, Judge Holt saying (184 Fed. 976):

"It is, of course, true that their confinement in New York would not have constituted an offense without their previous confinement, part of which was in Canada; but the previous confinement in Canada or elsewhere is not a part of the offense, although a fact necessary to its existence."

"In the Grand Trunk Railway Case, passed upon by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, the shipment (as in this case) originated in Canada, and part of the confinement occurred there. The excessive confinement was in the United States, and this confinement was held to be within the prohibition of the act. That case differs from the instant case only in the fact that there the destination was also in Canada. The underlying principle, however, is the same.

"The Grand Trunk Railway Case passed upon by the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Second Circuit (above cited) is equally in point. There the shipment originated in Michigan; it was delivered by the initial carrier to the defendant at Port Huron, in that state, after a confinement of 16 hours. The cattle were then carried by defendant through Canada to Black Rock, N. Y., where they were delivered to another railroad company, 33 hours later. The confinement by the defendant in the United States was but one hour, and it is evident that there was no unlawful confinement, but for the period occupied in transporting the cattle through Canada. The defendant there, as here, contended that its action in the confinement of the cattle for a longer period than 28 hours in Canada should not be considered. This contention was rejected."

A connecting carrier which receives and further transports live stock already carried for a longer period than 28 hours by the initial carrier, without the shipper's request, is guilty of a violation of this section. The offense in such case "is in continuing the unlawful carriage." U. S. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 442, 162 C. C. A. 512.

Delay in unloading after delivery.—A carrier is not liable for a violation of this section because, after its delivery, within the prescribed time limit, of a shipment of live stock at the proper destination according to the car tickets, the shipment was not unloaded until after the time limit had expired owing to the consignee's refusal to accept the shipment on the ground that the car tickets, made out by a connecting carrier, were not in accordance with the bill of lading, which stipulated for delivery at another place, and because another connecting carrier refused to accept the shipment after a government inspector had ordered it to unload the animals for feed and rest, there being no evidence of wilful disobedience or negligence on the part of the defendant. U. S. v. Allentown Terminal R. Co., (E. D. Pa. 1919) 256 Fed. 855.

Allowance for cost of feeding.—The carrier is entitled to be compensated for the value of a proper amount of hay (250 pounds per car) actually furnished, though some hay was placed in the cars by the shipper. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Swift, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 248 Fed. 315, wherein it was said: "What is proper feeding within the meaning of the statute must be determined in the light of the facts. If the fact had been that the cattle had not been fed for 24 hours, the propriety of a feeding of 250 pounds would not have been questioned. Inasmuch, however, as they had already been fed 150 or 200 pounds, the propriety of feeding more than 100 pounds additional is questioned. What is proper feeding must therefore be determined in the presence of the fact of this prior feeding. If we were dealing only with the question of a proper feeding, the proposition upon which this part of the defense rests must be accepted. We are not dealing, however, with this question, but the narrower and more technical question of the feeding which is required by the statute. We assume Congress to have legislated within its powers. The requirement of the statute is that cattle in transit must be unloaded, rested, watered, and fed within every 24-hour period of their transportation in cars. This requirement must be met, and it is not met by any substitute provision for feeding in transit. The requirement of the statute is not limited to cattle which have been confined in cars without feed, but to all cattle which have been in transit for more than 28 hours. What may be termed the administrative reasons for the requirement as written are obvious. Congress, it is true, did not dictate, as is well pointed out by defendants, specifically what weight or quantity of feed should be given. The carrier is, however, required to feed, and to properly feed. The reasonable expense thus incurred it may recover. The thought is not lost sight of that the obligation which rests upon the shipper is an imposed obligation, and is limited to the command of the statute. The other command, however, to feed, rests with its full weight upon the carrier. It must feed, and is given the right to be reimbursed 'the reasonable expense' thus incurred."

knowing generally that traffic is congested and that a slight delay will result in a violation of the Twenty-eight-hour Law, is guilty of a wilful violation of that law if the delay results. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 466, 159 C. C. A. 520, wherein the court said: "The railway contends that its conceded knowledge of general conditions was not sufficient, but should have been supplemented by further evidence to the effect that before each shipment was sent out the railway knew specifically of conditions that would either certainly or probably delay that particular shipment, and contends, further, that the government offered no such evidence, and therefore that the court was not justified in drawing the inference of willful violation. We are unable to sustain this position. The general congestion affected the defendant's road, and, although no one could forecast precisely what kind of a situation might confront a particular train as it pursued its course, the railway's officials must have known that some difficulties, many of them unexpected, were continually arising, and that transportation was beset with hindrances and delays. We assume that the railway did its best to overcome every definite obstacle it could hear of in the path of each train now in question, but it could not foresee every contingency that was likely to arise. It did know, however, that serious congestion existed and was likely to cause unexpected delays, and this was a fact of which we think it was bound to take notice, and for which it was bound to make allowance. In every instance the risk of violating the law could have been avoided by feeding the animals before they started on the final stage of their journey, and if the railway, knowing that delays were likely to happen, chose to take the risk of getting the shipment through on time, we see no reason for relieving it from the consequences of failure. In our opinion there was evidence to support the finding of the District Court; the railway, with knowledge of the risk, encountered it deliberately, and this satisfies the requirements of the statute." To the same effect in U. S. v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 469, 159 C. C. A. 523, it was said: "In the case before us we think all the elements of the offense are present. The animals left Buffalo at 6 p. m. on February 14, consigned to Philadelphia, and were received by the Reading Railway at South Bethlehem at 9:30 p. m. on February 15, having been 27½ hours on the road. The time had been extended, however, and the railway still had 8½ hours to complete the carriage. At Bethlehem there was a delay of 3 hours and 10 minutes, so that the movement was not resumed until 12:40 a. m. on February 16. This left 5 hours and 20 minutes for the run to Philadelphia, and as the normal time between these two points is 6 hours and 38 minutes it is clear that the railway took the chance of reaching Philadelphia in about 1 hour and 18 minutes less than the average time. In part, the chance fell out in the railroads favor; for three of the cars were delivered and unloaded within, or practically within, 36 hours, and the animals in these cars were released from confinement. But the animals in the other cars were still confined; they could not be released until the cars could reach the platform, and to do this the engine must move them to the proper point. The cars had no facilities for food and water, and the platform might as well have been a mile away. Meanwhile the engine departed on other business, and when it returned and moved the cars to the proper place more than 38 hours had elapsed.

"It seems to us that these facts admit of but one conclusion. South Bethlehem was a feeding point, where the command of the act could have been complied with, and we think the railway may properly be said to have violated the act knowingly and willfully when it sent the animals forward on the chance that they would complete the journey in less than the average running time. Certainly this conclusion would follow if the railway had been sure that the run could not be made within the statutory period, and we think the conclusion is also justified where the probabilities are against the company, as they were under the facts now presented, as stated herein and in the preceding case. No sufficient reason appears for taking such a chance."

State legislation is superseded by the act, and an administrative declaration of a quarantine is not necessary to abrogate such legislation. State v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., (Mo. 1918) 206 S. W. 419.

Pleading setting up a quarantine to excuse a failure to ship cattle held insufficiently to allege the establishment of the quarantine. Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Murphy, (1918) 182 Ky. 136, 206 S. W. 268.

Vol. I, p. 395, sec. 3. [First ed., vol. I, p. 449.]

Inspection as relieving packer from responsibility.—The federal inspection does not relieve a packer from civil liability for injuries resulting from the use of unwholesome meat sold by him. Ketterer v. Armour, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 921, 160 C. C. A. 111.

Vol. I, p. 397, sec. 1. [Meat, etc.] [First ed., 1909 Supp., p. 46.]

Validity of statute.—The enactment of the Meat Inspection Act was within the power of Congress in order to prevent interstate and foreign shipment of impure or adulterated meat food products. Pittsburgh Melting Co. v. Totten, (1918) 248 U. S. 1, 39 S. Ct. 3, 62 U. S. (L. ed.) —, affirming on other grounds (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1916) 232 Fed. 694, 146 C. C. A. 620, which reversed (W. D. Pa. 1916) 229 Fed. 214.

Meat food product.—"Oleo" oil is a meat food product within the meaning of this section, for while in itself it is seldom used as food it is largely used in the manufacture of oleomargarine. Pittsburgh Melting Co. v. Totten, (1918) 248 U. S. 1, 39 S. Ct. 3, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, affirming (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1916) 232 Fed. 694, 146 C. C. A. 620, which reversed (W. D. Pa. 1916) 229 Fed. 214.

A food compound of oleo oil and neutral lard, called "Creamo Oleomargarine," is subject to the provisions of the Meat Inspection Act, including the prohibition against the use of false or deceptive names, although such a product must, under the Oleomargarine Act of August 2, 1886, (see vol. 4, p. 188) bear the name "Oleomargarine," and must be packed in a particular way, which is not the same as that prescribed by the Meat Inspection Act, and although, under the Food and Drugs Act of June 30, 1906 (see vol. 3, p. 358) articles of food containing no poisonous or deleterious ingredients shall not be deemed misbranded which shall thereafter be known as articles of food under their own distinctive names, and not offered for sale under the distinctive name of another article, if the name be accompanied on the same label or brand by the name of the place where manufactured or produced. Brougham v. Blanton Mfg. Co., (1919) 249 U. S. 495, 39 S. Ct. 363, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, reversing (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 243 Fed. 503, 156 C. C. A. 201.

Power to inspect as continuing beyond one exercise.—A continuing power, necessarily not exhausted by one exercise, is given to the Department of Agriculture by the provisions of the Meat Inspection Act requiring meat food products to be inspected and passed by the department, and prohibiting the sale of such products in interstate commerce under any false or deceptive name, provided, however, that established trade names which are usual to such products, and which are not false and deceptive, and which shall be approved by the Secretary of Agriculture, are permitted. Brougham v. Blanton Mfg. Co., (1919) 249 U. S. 495, 39 S. Ct. 363, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, reversing (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 243 Fed. 503, 156 C. C. A. 201.

Vol. I, p. 399. [Inspectors to be appointed, etc.] [First ed., 1909 Supp., p. 47.]

Wholesome product containing deceptive name.—The Secretary of Agriculture is not imperatively required by the Meat Inspection Act to mark as "inspected and passed" a meat food product that is wholesome and does not contain dyes and chemicals, where the word under which it is sold is, as applied to such product, false and deceptive, since the provision of the act requiring the marking of the product must be harmonized with the subsequent provision that no such product shall be sold or offered for sale under any false and deceptive name. Thus, the courts will not disturb the determination of the Secretary of Agriculture, fairly arrived at and having substantial evidence to support it, that the use of the word "sausage" in connection with the manufacture and sale in interstate commerce of a product which contained cereal in excess of two per cent and water or ice in excess of three per cent is calculated to deceive purchasers and consumers, and hence will be prohibited, where the Act forbids sales of meat or meat food products under a false or deceptive name, and empowers the Secretary to make rules and regulations for the efficient execution of that Act. Houston v. St. Louis Independent Packing Co., (1919) 249 U. S. 479, 39 S. Ct. 332, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, reversing (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 242 Fed. 337, 155 C. C. A. 113, which reversed (E. D. Mo. 1916) 231 Fed. 779.

Vol. I, p. 400. [Marking, etc.]

[First ed., 1909 Supp., p. 48.]

Conclusiveness of decision of Secretary of Agriculture as to deception in use of name.—The determination of the Secretary of Agriculture, fairly arrived at, and having substantial evidence to support it, that the use of the word "Creamo" as a trademark for oleomargarine which contains skimmed milk, but no cream, is false and deceptive, within the meaning of the prohibition of the Meat Inspection Act against the use of such names, and will only be sanctioned if not less than 10 per cent of cream be used, and then only if the trade name be changed to "Creamo Brand,"—will not be disturbed by the courts, notwithstanding the previous departmental approval of "Creamo" as a trade name, given at a time when the manufacturer used 30 per cent of cream in its product, and declared that it and other ingredients were "churned in an abundance of richest cream, resulting in a perfect substitute for butter." Brougham v. Blanton Mfg. Co., (1919) 249 U. S. 495, 39 S. Ct. 363, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, reversing (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 243 Fed. 503, 155 C. C. A. 201.

Effect of registration of trade name under Trademark Act.—The sanction of the Patent Office to the use of the word "Creamo" as an appropriate trade name for oleomargarine under the Trademark Act (see vol. 9, p. 746) does not render inapplicable the provisions of the Meat Inspection Acts requiring inspection of meat food products and prohibiting the sale of such products in interstate commerce under any false or deceptive name, provided, however, that established trade names which are usual to such products, and which are not false and deceptive, and which shall be approved by the Secretary of Agriculture are permitted. Brougham v. Blanton Mfg. Co., (1919) 249 U. S. 495, 39 S. Ct. 363, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, reversing (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 243 Fed. 503, (155 C. C. A. 201).

BAIL AND RECOGNIZANCES

Vol. I, p. 492, sec. 1020. [First ed., vol. I, p. 492.]

Failure of defendant to appear on advice of attorney.—Under this section a court may exercise discretion in remitting the penalty of a forfeited recognizance only when there has been no willful default of the defendant, and the fact that a defendant fails to appear on the advice of his attorney does not change the character of his default or make it any the less willful. U. S. v. Fabata, (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 586, wherein the court said: "In United States v. Robinson et al., 158 Fed. 410, 85 C. C. A. 520, the Circuit Court of Appeals (Fourth Circuit) said, and accordingly held:

"Among other things, the foregoing section provides that the court may, in its discretion, remit the whole or a part of the penalty, whenever it appears that there has been no willful default of the party," etc. While in a case like the one at bar a surety may suffer a hardship, owing to the provisions of this statute, nevertheless its terms are plain and unmistakable. It clearly defines the circumstances under which the court may exercise its discretion, and remit the whole or a part of the penalty, to wit, when there has been no willful default; and inasmuch as the court in this case found as a fact that the default was willful, it necessarily follows that it was not within the discretion of the court to vacate or modify the judgment in question."

"I think this the true construction of the statute, and that, to authorize a remission of any part of the penalty of the bond, it must appear there 'was no willful default of the party'—that is, of the defendant in the indictment, who failed to appear."

"In this case the claim of the Surety Company is that Fabata, the principal, went with his attorney to the United States courthouse, but outside of same, in the city of Auburn, N. Y., at the time and place and term of court where required by the bond to appear, but that Fabata, by direction of his counsel, remained outside the courthouse; that it was arranged and agreed between them that Fabata was to remain outside, while his attorney went inside, and remain in a position where he could observe a preconcerted signal from his attorney, the attorney telling Fabata 'that in the event of his considering it advisable for him, the said Fabata, to appear before the court, a certain unmistakable signal would be given, and in the event that his attendance was deemed inadvisable at the time, that another signal, which could in no event be mistaken for the other, would be given, in which latter case the said Fabata should immediately go to the railroad station and return to New York on the first possible train;' that after waiting quite a while the said attorney, a New York city lawyer, appeared at the entrance to the courthouse and gave the agreed signal last above referred to, the one on receipt of which Fabata was to return to New York; and that Fabata, 'relying on and in compliance with the advice of his counsel, then and thereupon left Auburn on the first train and returned to New York.' The affidavit that this took place, as claimed, is not made by the attorney of Fabata, or by Fabata, but by the attorney for the Surety Company, who simply says that Fabata has so informed him. This falls short of proof that such an occurrence took place. It is the merest hearsay.

"But, even if such an arrangement was made and carried out between Fabata and his attorney from New York city, it falls far short of showing that there was no willful default on Fabata's part. On the other hand, it shows there was a willful default. Fabata and the Surety Company knew that Fabata's duty and obligation under the bond was then and there, at Auburn, to appear and answer, and abide the order of the court. Fabata did not appear, nor did the surety produce him. He was duly called and failed to respond in person, but his attorney did appear and requested a delay or postponement, which was refused, as there had been several adjournments of the case. In open court at said time and place, as this court well remembers, and as Mr. D. B. Lucey, the United States attorney, who was present, makes affidavit, the said attorney for Fabata, when Fabata and the surety were called as set forth, stated in open court 'that on the preceding day he had made an engagement with the said Fabata to meet him the next morning, to wit, November 16, 1917, at the Grand Central Terminal to take a train from there to Auburn for the purpose of appearing in court (court then being in session at said place); that when O'Neill (the said attorney) arrived at the station in New York he looked around for the said Fabata, and he was unable to see or find him: and that he had no knowledge of where he then was.' Fabata was not in court, and this is not disputed. The surety did not produce him, when called and required so to do, and this is not disputed. That he was not in Auburn, remaining outside the courthouse, is shown by what occurred in the courtroom at the time. Plainly, in either event, it was a willful default and failure to appear on Fabata's part, and a failure to produce the defendant on the part of the surety. Such practice, even if it occurred as now claimed, cannot be encouraged or approved, or held to be other than a willful default."

BANKRUPTCY

Vol. I, p. 504. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 464.]

Power of Congress.—Congress, in the exercise of its constitutional power to establish systems of bankruptcy, may impair the obligation of contracts. In re Franklin Brewing Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 333.

Suspension of state insolvency laws—In general.—To same effect as first paragraph of original annotation, see In re Grafton Gas, etc., Light Co., (N. D. W. Va. 1918) 253 Fed. 668.

It is only state laws which conflict with the bankruptcy laws of Congress that are suspended. Stellwagen v. Clum, (1918) 245 U. S. 605, 38 S. Ct. 215, 62 U. S. (L. ed.) 507, holding an Ohio statute in relation to transfers to prefer creditors not to be suspended by the federal Act; Irwin v. Maple, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 10, 164 C. C. A. 122, holding to the same effect.

Certain state laws not affected by Act.—The Bankruptcy Act recognizes, and the federal courts in the administration of it enforce, the laws of the states affecting dower, exemptions, the validity of mortgages, priorities of payment, and the like. This plan is not objectionable because it leads inevitably to diversity of results. Harlin v. American Trust Co., (Ind. App. 1918) 119 N. E. 20.

General purposes of the Act.—"The purpose of the Bankruptcy Act is: (1) To apply the property of the insolvent person or corporation to the payment of the debts with as little expense and delay as is consistent with their interests. (2) To relieve the honest and unfortunate debtor from his debts and give him another opportunity in the industrial life of the community." In re Munford, (E. D. N. C. 1919) 255 Fed. 108.

Bankruptcy courts were not created for the purpose of aiding men to delay or defraud their creditors. In re Nash, (D. C. S. D. W. Va. 1918) 249 Fed. 375.

Interpretation of Act—Practical construction required.—The Bankruptcy Act, being a commercial statute, should receive a practical construction. In re McNeil Corporation, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 765.

Supreme Court decisions controlling.—The decisions of the United States Supreme Court on the construction of the Bankruptcy Act are controlling on the state court. Covington v. Rosenbusch, (Ga. 1918) 97 S. E. 78.

Power conferred on agent or attorney.—Paragraph 9 of section 1 is said to have no force unless it means that the agent or attorney, as for instance one holding the legal title to a note as agent or trustee, may proceed in his own name as creditor. In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

Surety or indorser.—"The law is well settled that a surety or indorser is a creditor, within the meaning of the Bankruptcy Act. Stern v. Paper, (D. C.) 183 Fed. 228, 231; Kobusch v. Hand, 156 Fed. 660, 84 C. C. A. 372; Swarts v. Fourth National Bank, 117 Fed. 1, 54 C. C. A. 387; National Bank of Newport v. National Herkimer County Bank, 225 U. S. 178, 32 Sup. Ct. 633, 56 L. ed. 1042; Landry v. Andrews, 22 R. I. 597, 48 Atl. 1036; Bartholow v. Bean, 12 Wall. 635, 2 L. ed. 866." Cohen v. Golden, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 599, 162 C. C. A. 615.

The words "secured creditor."—"The definition of a 'secured creditor' is a creditor who directly holds as security for his debt property which would otherwise swell the assets of the bankrupt estate, or indirectly holds like property through having the debt obligation of another person who himself holds such property. The thought of there being security held by the creditor in the form of property is carried all through the provisions of the statute, and the right of the creditor to enforce the individual obligation of another person to pay the debt of the bankrupt is recognized in the provision permitting such other person to prove, in the name of the creditor, the claim against the bankrupt's estate, if the creditor does not elect to do so on his own account." In re Shatz, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 251 Fed. 351.

Not courts of limited jurisdiction.—Although a creditor may disapprove of the manner in which a trustee has been discharging his duties, he cannot stand aloof from the bankruptcy proceedings because of his dissatisfaction, for there is ample provision in the Bankruptcy Act for his protection, and the jurisdiction of the federal courts in bankruptcy matters is exclusive. DeMuth v. Faw, (1918) 103 Wash. 279, 174 Pac. 18.

Equitable jurisdiction.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633, 161 C. C. A. 543; Bridgeton Nat. Bank v. Way, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 731, 165 C. C. A. 325.

"It is now universally conceded that the District Court, being a court of equity in bankruptcy matters, is a court of equity for all purposes in such matters, and all the principles and rules of equity apply, and the proceedings in bankruptcy are of an equitable nature. It has been further established beyond cavil that valuable privileges are accorded bankrupts under this act, and those who desire to avail themselves of the benefits and privileges thus given must act speedily; at least, they must conform strictly to the rules and regulations governing the administration of the act." In re Association Dairy Co., (D. C. Conn. 1918) 251 Fed. 749.

Suit for accounting.—A trustee in bankruptcy may recover, in an action for an accounting where general relief is prayed, property taken from the bankrupt under a forfeiture clause in a contract in excess of that provided for thereby. Stenrich v. Jones, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 345, 164 C. C. A. 269, wherein the court said: "The appellees, however, take the position that even if property outside the contract was taken, there can be no recovery for such property in this suit, which is for accounting, and that the trustee's remedy is by an action at law for conversion. With this proposition we cannot agree. The suit being for accounting and general relief, and the issue as to what property was affected by expenditure under the contract having been testified to as one involved, the court may retain the cause, and require that an accounting be made by the defendants to the trustee for any and all property taken by them or any of them not embraced in the contract as we have construed it."

Jurisdiction by consent.—Where a creditor voluntarily submits his claims to a bankrupt's property to the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court, agrees to allow the referee to determine his rights to the proceeds of the sale thereof, voluntarily appears and participates in the hearing before the referee concerning the dispute in question and fails to raise the question of jurisdiction until after an adverse decision by the referee, he will be regarded as having consented to such jurisdiction and to have waived his right to object thereto. In re Drag, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 254 Fed. 474.

Where the petition in an involuntary proceeding alleged that the debtor had admitted in writing its inability to pay its debts and its willingness to be adjudged a bankrupt, although such written admission does not appear by the record to have been made at that time, yet such omission is not material so far as it affects the validity of the adjudication where it appears that in due course the debtor by its written answer consented to jurisdiction. In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

A trustee in bankruptcy waives his right to have claims against the interest of the bankrupt in a decedent's estate adjudicated in the federal court by consenting to the exercise of control over the estate by the state court. Tripplehorn v. Cambron, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 605, 162 C. C. A. 621.

The practice and procedure of the bankruptcy courts are prescribed exclusively by the Bankruptcy Act and the general orders and regulations pursuant thereto. In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

The Conformity Act (R. S. § 914; 6 Fed. Stat. Ann., 2d ed., p. 21) does not make the state rules of procedure apply to bankruptcy courts. In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

Jurisdiction as dependent on residence or domicile within the district—Removal prior to filing petition.—Where a member of a firm has sold his interest, removes from the state and resides in another state for more than three months prior to the commencement of proceedings, he is not subject to the jurisdiction of a bankruptcy court of the state from which he removed. In re Fackelman, (S. D. Cal. 1918) 248 Fed. 565.

Corporation's principal place of business—A question of fact.—In In re Worcester Footwear Co., (D. C. Mass. 1918) 251 Fed. 760, the facts in substance were as follows: The alleged bankrupt company was organized under the law of Maine in February, 1916, to act as a selling company for the Worcester Felt Shoe Company, a Massachusetts corporation, which manufactured shoes and had its principal place of business in Worcester, Mass. It had no place of business of its own. Until the autumn of 1916 all its business, except selling its goods, was done in the offices of the shoe company in Worcester. One Pevear was treasurer of both companies until October of that year, when he was succeeded as treasurer of the respondent by one Russell. Following Mr. Russell's election as treasurer, he removed the record books and stock book to his own law office in New York; but the books of account remained in Worcester in the office of the shoe company, kept, as formerly, by one of its employees, who was also connected with the respondent. At this time Mr. Russell notified the clerk of the corporation in Maine and the internal revenue collector that the corporation had removed to New York. The court said: "The respondent's letter heads never gave any other address than that in Worcester. It never had any other post office address, and never held itself out to its trade as doing business anywhere else. So far as appears, orders for goods and remittances in payment for them were always sent to the respondent in Worcester. No business of the respondent was ever carried on in New York, except that in connection with its bank account and its stock and corporate record. Its treasurer, who was its controlling official, resided and had his personal office there; but it does not appear that any directors' meetings were ever held there. The keeping of the record and stock books in New York was of little practical importance, because apparently there were few or no transfers of the stock, and no meetings during the period on question. . . . It is not easy, nor is it required, to lay down any general rule for determining which one of several places at which a corporation does business is its principal place of business. It is not necessarily where the manager happens to be located, or the stockbook and recordbook to be kept, although those are significant facts. It is to be gathered from a general survey of the corporation's activities. The decision depends upon a comparison of the activities at each place in respect to their character, importance, and amount."

Collateral attack.—An adjudication is, in a collateral proceeding, conclusive as to the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court. Riggs v. Price, (Mo. 1919) 210 S. W. 420.

Appointment of receivers or marshals, in general—Paramount jurisdiction of bankruptcy court.—Although the paramount jurisdiction and right of possession of goods of the bankrupt are in the federal court, yet where the goods are in the possession of the state court there still exists, in the necessary change of possession, the rule of comity between courts, the application of which must be left to the good sense and good conduct of those controlling such comity related courts. Gealey v. South Side Trust Co., (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 189.

Appointment must be necessary for preservation of estate.—To the same effect as the original annotations, see In re Independent Mach., etc., Corp., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 484, 163 C. C. A. 478.

Receiver's powers and duties in general—Sales by receivers.—Where mortgaged property which was in the bankrupt's possession at the time the petition against him was filed was taken possession of by the mortgagee for the purpose of foreclosure, prior to the appointment of the receiver, the court may in its discretion make an order restraining the mortgagee from proceeding with his foreclosure and allowing the receiver to take and sell the property, the proceeds of such sale to be held subject to the same valid liens that the property itself was subject to. Charak v. Durphee, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 252 Fed. 885.

Previous receivership proceedings in state court.—Where a stockholder of a corporation applies to a state court for a receivership of the corporation, not, however, on the ground of insolvency, and a receiver is appointed, but not until the filing of a petition in a federal court to have the corporation declared a bankrupt, the state court has jurisdiction to enter a decree allowing the accounts of the receiver, fixing his compensation and ordering payment of the fee for the surety upon his bond.* And a subsequent adjudication in bankruptcy does not relate back and affect the decree. But upon such adjudication and the appointment and qualification of a trustee it becomes the duty of the state court upon proper proceedings and in an orderly manner to see that the property of the bankrupt in the hands of its officers is transferred to the trustee appointed by the federal court. Shannon v. Shepard Mfg. Co., (1918) 230 Mass. 224, 119 N. E. 768.

Receiver's powers and duties—Custodian of property.—A receiver is merely a custodian and is not vested with title. In re Rice, (S. D. N. Y. 1919) 256 Fed. 858.

Property in the hands of a receiver in the state court is in custodia legis. He has no power to make a surrender of it though proceedings in bankruptcy are subsequently commenced and as a rule of comity in such cases it remains for the state court to provide for a surrender. Gealey v. South Side Trust Co., (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 189.

The bankrupt is not divested of the title to his property by the appointment of a receiver. Vaughn-Carlton Co. v. Studebaker Corporation, (Ga. App. 1918) 97 S. E. 99.

Where property is sold under a contract by which title is retained in the vendor until payment of the purchase money, the vendor's title is not lost by a seizure of the property by a receiver in bankruptcy of the vendee. Vaughn-Carlton Co. v. Studebaker Corporation, (Ga. App. 1918) 97 S. E. 99.

Remedy against adverse claimant.—The claim of a postmaster as against the receiver to the possession of a bankrupt's mail, which has been impounded by order of the Post Office Department and is being held awaiting a decision by the department as to whether or not a fraud order should issue, is an adverse one which cannot be disposed of by summary motion. In re Rice, (S. D. N. Y. 1919) 256 Fed. 858.

Right of receiver to maintain suits.—The right to recover for injuries to the estate pending the receivership vests in the receiver when he is appointed. In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

Liability of receiver.—A receiver who has incurred debts in excess of the authority conferred on him by the court, is liable to the creditors personally and their only recourse is against him. In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

Payment of necessary disbursements.—If the alleged bankrupt consents to the appointment of a receiver without bond, he cannot object, if the petition be dismissed, to the payment of necessary disbursements out of the funds in the receiver's custody. In re Independent Mach., etc., Corp., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 484, 163 C. C. A. 478.

Termination of receivership.—Where the appointment of receivers has been procured by misrepresentation by which the court has been misled, the order of appointment may be set aside. In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

Liability for wrongful procurement of receivership.—Where it appears that there has been a wrongful procurement of a receivership, it has been said that a complaint or petition by the trustee, addressed to the bankruptcy court in the exercise of its equity powers, asking an accounting for the damages caused to the estate by the wrongful acts committed after the filing of the petition and asking for judgment against those responsible therefor, would not go beyond the jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy, according to the familiar principles of ancillary proceedings in equity; nor would it violate anybody's right to a jury trial, and it would enable the issues to be decided by the court personally familiar with the whole situation—unless, indeed, his personal knowledge and participation in the matter involved might appear to the judge sufficiently embarrassing to justify him in asking that another judge take charge. In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

Where the district judge becomes suspicious that he has been imposed on in making his appointment of a receiver, it is not only his clear right, but his duty, to proceed upon his own motion into a thorough inquiry upon the subject. In such a situation two courses are open to the trial judge: The first is to direct some procedure for the framing of issues, by which the parties charged with misconduct or liability may know the charge and have suitable opportunity to try the fact. The second is to proceed with a summary, more or less ex parte, inquiry, in order to satisfy himself whether a proceeding of the first class should be instituted. In such a case an ex parte inquiry undertaken on the motion of the court and pursued without the formulation or service of any charges or issues does not furnish the kind or degree of hearing to which the parties are entitled. In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

Where it appears that there was no objection to the appointment of a receiver into whose hands the entire estate came, and the court authorized the incurring of debts by him to become a charge on the property, and credit was given on the faith of this authority, it is said that when, in such a situation, it develops that the order appointing a receiver should be and is vacated, there is no principle on which the creditors petitioning for receivership can be held directly liable for the debts which the receiver incurs. In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

Where what occurred on the presentation to the district judge of an oral application for the appointment of a receiver does not appear, although the statement or certificate hy such judge in regard thereto is entitled to the highest respect and credence, yet it is said that it cannot import verity in the sense in which that is true of some judicial proceedings and records. In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

Power to borrow money to continue business — Receivers' certificates.—A creditor cannot accept a receiver's certificate as a partial payment on its debt, and, thus having notice that such certificates are to be prior to all existing liens, claim that its own lien is superior thereto: In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

Where it appears that each of several secured creditors acquiesced in the operation by the receiver, made no effort to enforce his lien by withdrawal of his property or otherwise, acquiesced in the sale of the entire property by the trustee free from liens, and in no form or manner attempted to make any reservation or preservation of his lien as superior to the expenses of operation or the other expenses of administration, it is said to be clear that under these conditions the receiver's debts represented by the certificates are entitled to priority in the fund derived from the property covered by liens; and though a pro rata contribution, as directed by the referee, is not wholly satisfactory, no other practicable method appears. In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

Funds furnished by trustee.—Where the creditors, who signed a trust agreement by which the trustee was to continue business, believed, as did also the trustee, that the conditions on which the trust agreement was to go into effect had been complied with and the trustee was permitted to conduct the business and to advance funds to carry it on, it was held that such creditors were estopped to contend that the agreement never went into operation and effect. Searle v. Mechanics' Loan, etc., Co., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 942.

And it was also held that the creditors who signed such an agreement thereby created an equitable lien on their interest in the funds which thereafter came into the court of bankruptcy for administration, which preference claim was not affected by the question whether the trustee furnished the funds personally or obtained them from one with whom it was affiliated in business. Searle v. Mechanics' Loan, etc., Co., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 942.

Completion of contracts.—Whether or not a bankruptcy court will authorize its trustee to complete an unperformed contract, or will permit a surety of the bankrupt to make use of the property of the estate, is a matter within the discretion of the bankruptcy court. The surety is not entitled thereto as a matter of right. It is only when the situation warrants a belief that the bankrupt's estate will be benefited by such a course being pursued that the bankruptcy court will permit the surety to consume the supplies and materials or to use the equipment. In re Schilling, (N. D. Ohio 1918) 251 Fed. 966.

Reopening of estate — Generally.—A petition to reopen a bankrupt estate is addressed to the sound discretion of the court. In re Graff, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 997, 163 C. C. A. 247.

A bankruptcy court has power to reopen an estate where it appears that there are unadministered assets, inadvertently omitted from the schedules which should be administered for the benefit of the bankrupt. In re Graff, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 241, 166 C. C. A. 421.

Nature of proceedings.—"Proceedings upon petition to reopen need not be of a technical nature nor of any especial formality . . . ; but there must be not only a reasonable prospect of unadministered assets, but also evidence of creditors or other parties in interest making the application who would and should be benefited by its success." In re Graff, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 997, 163 C. C. A. 247.

Necessity of election of new trustee.—When the bankrupt's estate does not appear to have been fully administered the court should not, on reopening it, reinstate the former trustee but a new one should be elected. In re Minners, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 300.

Jurisdiction of court.—A court of bankruptcy in denying a motion to reopen an estate is without jurisdiction to make orders relating to property of the bankrupt which was not scheduled, as for instance directing the former trustee to execute an instrument to pass title to such property, for, except as to the power to reopen, the jurisdiction of the court in respect to such trustee is exhausted on the closing of the estate and his discharge by the court. In re Graff, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 997, 163 C. C. A. 247.

Who may apply for reopening.—An application for the reopening of a bankrupt's estate should be made by creditors. This is said to follow necessarily from the fact that the result of a reopening is the election of another trustee, a matter in which creditors alone may act in the first instance. In re Graff, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 997, 163 C. C. A. 247.

A purchaser of real estate from a trustee in bankruptcy may file a petition asking that the estate be reopened and the necessary steps taken to perfect the conveyance, it being claimed by him that the sale was not legally perfected. In re Minners, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 300.

Attachment in contempt proceedings.—A mere denial, by formal answer to a motion for attachment because of contempt, of the original concealment found against the bankrupt in turning over proceedings, and a consequent inability to deliver up the property to the trustee, will not stay the issuance of the attachment. In re Myerson, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 253 Fed. 510.

Order for surrender of assets.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Joseph R. Marquette, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 419, 166 C. C. A. 51.

Protection of bankrupt estate from excessive assessments.—A court of equity has power to protect a taxpayer, whose property is in its custody, from a fraudulent and excessive assessment, and a bankruptcy court may, therefore, make an order declaring a tax assessment against the bankrupt estate to be illegal and excessive. It cannot, however, make a new assessment. Cross v. Georgia Iron, etc., Co., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 438, 162 C. C. A. 508.

Dismissing and enjoining proceedings.—A petition in bankruptcy by a bankrupt who has failed to ask a discharge in a former proceeding should be dismissed, no new debts being scheduled, and the bankrupt should be enjoined from filing further petitions or applications for a discharge, as against creditors whose debts were scheduled and provable in the former proceeding. In re Schwartz, (N. D. Ohio 1918) 248 Fed. 841.

Power to tax costs against opposing creditor.—The court may allow costs against a creditor who joined with the bankrupt in opposing an involuntary petition. General Order No. 34 (see vol. I, p. 858) does not limit its power in this regard. Kurtz Brass Bed Co.'s Petition, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 250 Fed. 116.

Relation to General Order No. 34.—The provisions of this section and of General Order No. 34 (see vol. I, p. 858) should be read together, and "are merely declaratory of the general power of courts of equity, including courts of bankruptcy, over the allowance and apportionment of costs." Kurtz Brass Bed Co.'s Petition, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 250 Fed. 116.

Territorial limits.—In Rogers v. Chickamauga Trust Co., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 541, a bill in equity was filed in the District Court by the appellees, the Chickamauga Trust Company, a Tennessee corporation, and W. R. Smith, a citizen of Georgia, against the appellants, citizens of the state of Georgia. In this suit one of the plaintiffs sought to obtain a discharge of liability for a fund in its possession on the payment of it into court, and the other to restrain the further prosecution of a suit against him instituted by the trustee in bankruptcy. In behalf of the appellees it was contended that the suit was such a one that the court's jurisdiction was not dependent on a diversity of citizenship. The decree appealed from was held erroneous and it was reversed, with direction that the bill be dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.

Determining manner of enforcing mortgage.—Where the court of ancillary jurisdiction takes possession of mortgaged property in aid of a bankruptcy court of primary jurisdiction, it has no authority to determine, regardless of the court of primary jurisdiction, whether the mortgage upon such property should be enforced through the bankruptcy court or in independent proceedings by the mortgagee or to release the mortgaged premises to the mortgagee for the purpose of such independent foreclosure; such proceeding obviously not being in aid of the receiver or trustee in the court of primary jurisdiction, but in derogation of the rights and authority of the court of primary jurisdiction, which is vested with sole authority to determine this question in the administration of the bankruptcy estate, and in derogation of the rights of the trustee appointed by it. In re Patterson Lumber Co., (E. D. Tenn.) 247 Fed. 578.

Discharge of bankrupt from arrest.—A bankrupt who was arrested under an order of the state court, made prior to his filing of a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, may, if he has the substantive right to relief, be released, pending his application for a discharge, in a proceeding ancillary to the proceedings in the district in which the petition was filed. In re Madigan, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 254 Fed. 221, wherein Hand, J., said: "Under the decision in In re Von Hartz, [C. C. A. 2nd Cir. 1905] 142 Fed. 728, 74 C. C. A. 58, I would be without jurisdiction, and the amendment of 1910 (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, 30 Stat. 544, as amended by Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, 36 Stat. 838), which only extended ancillary jurisdiction 'in aid of a receiver or trustee,' would not avail. But that decision has been expressly disapproved by the Supreme Court in Babbitt v. Dutcher, (1910) 216 U. S. at page [102] 114, 30 S. Ct. 372, 54 U. S. (L. ed.) 402, 17 Ann. Cas. 969. I think, if a bankrupt has the substantive right to relief, there is, under the doctrine of Babbitt v. Dutcher, supra, a remedy in this court ancillary to the proceeding in the Eastern district."

Fraudulent transfer in general—Concealment by partner.—Where a partner has drawn from a bank money which belongs to the firm and he admits that he has it, but refuses to produce it, to tell where it is kept, or to pay it to the creditors of the firm, such facts are held sufficient to establish a concealment of partnership funds, with intent to hinder, delay and defraud creditors. In re Wellesley, (M. D. Cal. 1917) 252 Fed. 854.

Conveyance to creditor canceling debt and assuming other debts.—Where a conveyance is made by a debtor to a creditor, consideration of which is the cancellation of all existing indebtedness of the grantor to the grantee and the assumption by the latter of all outstanding debts of the former, except one, the fact that the creditor signed a supersedeas bond in part consideration of the conveyance to him cannot, where there is a concededly large surplus in value of the property conveyed over and above the debts so discharged or assumed, be regarded as such a consideration as will relieve the transaction from its character as an act of bankruptcy in that it is a conveyance to hinder and delay a creditor. Morrison v. Rieman, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1917) 249 Fed. 97, 161 C. C. A. 149.

Insolvency.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re McGraw, (N. D. W. Va. 1918) 254 Fed. 442.

Preferences in general—Absence of intent.—The absence of an intent may relieve a transfer, which is apparently a preferential one, of its character as such. Thus it was so held where the owner of practically the entire stock of a corporation, who, however, took no part in the affairs of the company, sold all the stock of merchandise and the evidence clearly showed that he had no knowledge of any indebtedness except as told to him by the one who conducted the business, and that his purpose was to close out the business honestly. In re Fersko, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 357, 162 C. C. A. 427.

Payment as preference—Payment under creditors' agreement.—The payment by a debtor to one of his creditors of a certain percentage of his debt, which percentage was fixed by a creditors' agreement concurred in by a majority of the creditors, does not in itself constitute a preferential payment. In such a case, however, a failure to keep his accounts of what he realized for property sold, and what disposition he made of the proceeds, in definite, clear shape, so that everything can be readily scrutinized, will weigh heavily against his assertions of good faith and equality in the treatment of his creditors. Matter of Bloomberg, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 253 Fed. 94.

Preference through legal proceedings, in general—Sale under purchase money mort- gage.—The suffering of his property to be sold in order to satisfy a special and superior lien, such as a purchase money mortgage thereon, does not constitute an act of bankruptcy. In re McGraw, (N. D. W. Va. 1918) 254 Fed. 442.

Essential elements.—To same effect as original annotations, see In re McGraw, (N. D. W. Va. 1918) 254 Fed. 442.

The act of bankruptcy is complete—It is not the mere obtaining of a judgment and levying execution.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re McGraw (N. D. W. Va. 1918) 254 Fed. 442.

Execution without sale.—It is not an act of bankruptcy to permit judgment and levy where the creditor delays for four months to sell under his execution. In re D. F. Herlehy Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 247 Fed. 369.

II. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER OR TRUSTEE (p. 558).

The appointment of a special commissioner under a state statute to sell a debtor's real estate after an execution on a judgment against him has been returned nulla bona, is not equivalent to the appointment of a receiver or trustee under this section. In re McGraw, (N. D. W. Va. 1918) 254 Fed. 442.

In general.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Wellesley, (N. D. Cal. 1917) 252 Fed. 854.

Trial of issue.—Where a creditor denies that the alleged bankrupt ever admitted his inability to pay his debts he is entitled to a trial of the issue and the burden is on the petitioning creditor to prove such admission. Albers Commission Co. v. Richter, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 869, 164 C. C. A. 85.

Admission by partnership.—While it is well settled that the debtor's written admission of inability to pay his debts, and willingness on that ground to be adjudged a bankrupt, is sufficient to support an order of adjudication, such an admission made by one partner over the objection of the others is not an admission by the partnership and is therefore insufficient to sustain an order of adjudication. In re Wellesley, (N. D. Cal. 1917) 252 Fed. 854.

Time of filing petition.—Under this section a petition in involuntary bankruptcy proceedings must be filed within four months after the commission of the alleged acts of bankruptcy. Trammell v. Yarbrough, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1919) 254 Fed. 686, 166 C. C. A. 183.

Computation of time.—A concealment of property, made an act of bankruptcy under subdivision a(1) of this section, may be a continuing concealment and the four months period may run from the date of discovery. In re Havens, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 478, 166 C. C. A. 554.

Corporations—Electric light corporations.—A corporation whose business is that of operating a plant to generate and sell electricity, may be adjudged a voluntary bankrupt. In re Grafton Gas, etc., Light Co., (N. D. W. Va. 1918) 253 Fed. 668.

A street railway operated by electricity is not within the meaning and intent of the word "railroad" used in this section, and therefore may properly be adjudicated a bankrupt. In re Grafton Gas, etc., Light Co., (N. D. W. Va. 1918) 253 Fed. 668.

C. Mass. 1919) 255 Fed. 924.

II. STATUTORY EXCEPTIONS (p. 570)

Persons engaged chiefly in farming or the tillage of the soil—In general.—"Stock raising and dairying, in connection with and incidental to tillage of the soil, are in common parlance a part of farming. Therefore the word 'farming' is broader than 'tillage of the soil.' In so far as the Bankruptcy Act is concerned, the dairying and the stock and poultry raising, slaughtering, and preparing for market can only be incidental to the 'tillage of the soil,' in order to be included in the expression 'farming.'" Cushing, J., in the case of In re Brown, (W. D. Wash. 1918) 251 Fed. 365.

In determining whether one is chiefly engaged in farming, all his activities are to be taken into consideration. It is proper to consider the relative amount of time he devotes to the several lines of endeavor in which he is interested, and the comparative amount of revenue received from each may be taken into account, as well as the relative amount of indebtedness incurred in the different lines of business. In re Brown, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 357, 165 C. C. A. 139.

A retired farmer who has rented his farms to his son, having no control of the operations thereon nor any responsibility for their management, and whose indebtedness arose from speculative ventures engaged in after his retirement, is not "a person engaged chiefly in farming or the tillage of the soil" within the meaning of this section; nor does the fact that he engaged in gardening for the benefit of his own table, and under the stress of labor shortage rendered occasional assistance to his son, keep him in the exempted class. In re Driver, (D. C. N. J. 1918) 252 Fed. 956.

What is not farming or tillage of the soil.—Where the main portion of a bankrupt's debts were incurred in business ventures other than farming and where it appears that his principal interest in his farm was in developing the business of a packing house, creamery and poultry yards and in purchasing live stock and poultry from others, and selling directly to consumers the products of his plants, he is not engaged chiefly in farming or the tillage of the soil within the meaning of this section. In re Brown, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 357, 165 C. C. A. 139.

In In re Brown, (W. D. Wash. 1918) 251 Fed. 365, the statement and finding of the master was, in part, as follows: "Mr. Hill, who testifies as an expert and as having made an examination of the books, shows that the gross income from the farm and its several industries amounted to about $222,000 from all sources, and the gross income from the farm at about $95,900, and in that connection witness Hill states that the feed bought amounted to $37,648, and the feed raised on the farm was $17,600; that the cost of operating the farm was about $22,000, and the gross expense of operation $250,000, and that the total labor cost was $46,391, of which the farm labor cost was $16,000; and he further shows that the hogs produced a gross amount of $32,000, of which $12,000 was bought from the outside, and that they bought poultry to the amount of $19,900, and raised poultry to the amount of $5,500, and about $3,000 worth of cream, all in the year 1917." The court said that this finding clearly and concisely showed that the tillage of the soil was incidental and subordinate to the other operations conducted by the alleged bankrupts at their farm.

Burden of proof.—While the burden is on the petitioning creditors in an involuntary bankruptcy proceeding to show that the debtor is not within an exempted class, yet where it is shown that, although he claims to be "engaged chiefly in farming," practically all of his indebtedness arose from ventures having no connection with the farming industry, the burden shifts to him to prove that he is within the exempted class. In re Driver, (D. C. N. J. 1918) 252 Fed. 956.

IV. CORPORATIONS AND UNINCORPORATED COMPANIES (p. 574)

Winding-up or dissolution proceedings.—

The fact that the property of a corporation is in the possession of receivers appointed by a state court does not affect the jurisdiction of a court of bankruptcy to adjudicate such corporation a bankrupt. In re Grafton Gas, etc., Light Co., (N. D. W. Va. 1918) 253 Fed. 688.

Vol. I, p. 578, sec. 4b. [Liability of officers and stockholders of corporations.] [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 501.]

Assessment of stockholders.—An order by a referee assessing all stock "to an amount equal to the par value of the stock issued to and held by said stockholders" has been reversed where he did not find what proportion of each share was liable to assessment, or the subsidiary facts that might support such finding. "We cannot agree that in place of such findings he could substitute an assessment of the largest amount that could possibly be called, and thereby shift to successive juries the burden of deciding separately, and probably with varying results, as the evidence might vary, the correct amount with which each stockholder should be charged." In re Canister Co., (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 70, 164 C. C. A. 182, affirming (D. C. N. J. 1918) 248 Fed. 587.

Liability of stockholders for corporate debts.—Under a state statute providing that "If the directors or other officers or agents of any stock corporation shall declare and pay any dividend when such corporation is insolvent, or any dividend the payment of which would render it insolvent, or which would diminish the amount of its capital stock, all directors, officers or agents assenting thereto shall be jointly and severally liable for all the debts of such corporation then existing, and for all that shall thereafter be contracted, while they shall respectively continue in office," a liability is created which is personal to the creditor and is not enforceable by the trustee. In such a case it is held that each creditor may of his own volition assert or refrain from asserting the liability, and against the creditor asserting it the director may make a defense peculiar to such creditor, and perhaps to none others, as for instance waiver, estoppel or set-off. Seegmiller v. Day, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 177.

ship.—Creditors who have claims against both a dissolved partnership and its successor which assumed the liabilities of its predecessor, and who proved their claims against the succeeding partnership, receiving their due proportion of its assets, cannot afterwards use the indebtedness of both partnerships as a foundation for an adjudication against the original partnership. In re Eclipse Poultry Co., (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 96, 162 C. C. A. 268.

Necessity of showing insolvency of individuals comprising firm.—The fact that an involuntary petition against a partnership does not distinctly allege that the firm is insolvent or that each partner is insolvent, which in strictness it should do, does not render it fatally defective where no objection appears to have been raised at any time to the form of the petition. Houghton Wool Co. v. Morris, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 434.

Although there was no specific proof as to the financial condition of either partner and nothing appeared in the evidence set forth in the report of the referee expressly relating thereto, as distinct from the firm, yet it has been held that a finding of insolvency may be sustained in view of the other facts appearing in the case. Houghton Wool Co. v. Morris, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 434.

Individual petition seeking discharge from partnership debts.—Effect on right of partner to apply in another jurisdiction.—Where a firm is adjudicated bankrupt and the proceeding is pending a member of the firm cannot by a petition in another jurisdiction, wherein he set up only the partnership liabilities involved in the first proceeding, obtain his discharge as an individual from liability for the firm debts. Armstrong v. Norris, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 253, 159 C. C. A. 347.

Trustee of partnership estate.—Partnership trustee as entitled to appointment to estate of partner.—The trustee of an insolvent firm does not ipso facto become trustee of the estate of the individual partners and need not, as a matter of law, be appointed trustee of the individual estates. In re Wood, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 246, 160 C. C. A. 324.

Vol. I, p. 583, sec. 5c. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 504.]

Bankruptcy of sole surviving partner.—While under this section the partnership assets cannot be administered in bankruptcy proceedings affecting only one or some of the partners, unless with the consent of the solvent partner or partners, where the sole surviving partner is the bankrupt, both partnership and individual assets are subject to the control of the bankruptcy court, as in such a case there is no solvent partner to administer the partnership assets. In re Stringer, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 352, 165 C. C. A. 134.

Vol. I, p. 587, sec. 5f. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 506.]

Distribution.—To same effect as original annotation, see Schall v. Camora, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918), 250 Fed. 6, 162 C. C. A. 178.

Vol. I, p. 590, sec. 5g. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 507.]

Proof of claims.—It is well settled that, in administering the estate of a bankrupt partnership and its members, partnership creditors must first be paid out of the partnership assets, and separate creditors out of the separate assets, before either class of creditors can resort to the other estate. In re Wood, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 246, 160 C. C. A. 324.

Where on the dissolution of a partnership, the remaining partner agreed with his retiring copartner to pay the firm debts, the latter cannot, having paid none of such debts, prove a claim against the surviving partner, who has become a bankrupt, for the amount of the debts. In re Tassinari, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 990.

Claims for torts.—Where claimants against a bankrupt partnership were induced to purchase drafts of the bankrupt firm, through false representations, contained in forged bills of lading attached to the drafts, that they were secured by shipments of goods, and they were not paid, the partners being cognizant of the fraud and using the proceeds of the drafts for the partnership's benefit although not signing or indorsing them, the claims may be proved against the partnership estate alone and not also against the estate of the individual partners, on the ground that because of fraud the claims are for torts. Schall v. Camora, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 6, 162 C. C. A. 178.

Notes.—Where both a partnership and its individual members are bankrupt, the holder of the joint and several note of the partners and the firm may prove it as a claim against both the partnership estate and the estates of the partners. Robinson v. Seaboard Nat. Bank, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 667, 159 C. C. A. 569.

Vol. I, p. 591, sec. 5h. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 508.]

Consent to administration in bankruptcy proceedings.—By consent of the partner or partners not adjudged bankrupt the partnership property may be administered in the bankruptcy proceedings of one of the partners. In re Stringer (C. C. A. 2nd Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 352, 165 C. C. A. 134.

Vol. I, p. 592, sec. 6a. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 508.]

II. Claiming exemption.

III. Matters affecting right to exemption.

IV. Recognition of state and federal exemption laws.

II. CLAIMING EXEMPTION (p. 593)

Time and manner of claiming.—Reference to state statute.—In making a claim for exemption under the state law it is not essential to refer precisely to a particular statute, the claim being sufficient if made generally under the exemption laws of the state, since there is nothing in the Bankruptcy Act or in the general orders imposing a penalty for failure to point out in exact terms the statute relied on. In re Dittman, (C. C. A. 3rd Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 606.

Effect of setting aside exemption.—After property has been set aside by the court as exempt it continues to belong to the bankrupt just as it did before bankruptcy, and if it were then affected by liens it continues to be so affected, in which case the bankruptcy court has no authority to decide on their validity but simply retires from the temporary control of the property and leaves other questions to be determined by the proper tribunal. In re Dittman (C. C. A. 3rd Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 606.

Burden of proof.—On a showing by a bankrupt that he was a married man, living with his wife, and not the owner of a homestead, the burden is on the trustee to prove that there was not on hand five hundred dollars of personalty not subject to prior claims for purchase price, which may be allowed to the bankrupt in lieu of the homestead in accordance with the provisions of a state statute. In re Stitt, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 1, 164 C. C. A. 113.

III. MATTERS AFFECTING RIGHT TO EXEMPTION (p. 593)

Transfer of exemption.—Where the bankrupt transferred his homestead exemption to another party, but it was later transferred back to him, the allowance of the exemption was approved, there being no evidence that he was trying to prefer one creditor over another. In re Nejour (N. D. Ga. 1917) 251 Fed. 677.

Waiver.—A judgment rendered by consent on notes which contain a homestead waiver is sustainable against the exempt property. Williams v. American Slicing Machine Co., (1919) 148 Ga. 770, 98 S. E. 270.

Review of findings as to objections to allowance.—The finding of a referee against assertions of fraud made in opposition to the bankrupt's claim of the exemptions allowed by the state statute will be sustained unless it is clearly and manifestly erroneous. In re Johnson, (N. D. Ga. 1918) 247 Fed. 135.

IV. RECOGNITION OF STATE AND FEDERAL EXEMPTION LAWS (p. 601)

State law adopted.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Libby, (S. D. Fla. 1918) 253 Fed. 278; In re Solomon, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 254 Fed. 503; In re Bitner, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 48, 166 C. C. A. 376; Dunn v. Eckhardt, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 315.

Homestead exemptions.—The principle heretofore announced with respect to exemptions generally, to wit, that the allowance of exemptions under the Bankruptcy Law is governed entirely by the state statutes relating thereto, has also been applied to homestead exemptions.

Georgia.—Where the constitution of a state gives the state courts jurisdiction over the subject matter of homestead exemptions, and as the only purpose for which such an exemption may be claimed and recognized is to protect the property from actual seizure and sale, it is declared that the power then to enforce homestead exemptions must of necessity be coextensive with the power to control such seizure and sale, and that where a United States court, lawfully vested with the power to take a person's property, is about to exercise such power and to sell the property for the benefit of that person's creditors in a bankruptcy proceeding, it would be a vain formality for a state court to recognize such property as exempt from seizure and sale under the homestead laws of the state, inasmuch as the state court would lack the power to enforce its decree or to control the action of the United States court. Aubrey v. Guillaumin, (1918) 144 La. 177, 80 So. 241.

A discharge in bankruptcy does not affect the lien of a general judgment nor the lien of a mortgage obtained more than four months prior to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, relative to property set apart as exempt under the bankrupt's claim of homestead exemption, although holders of such liens may have proved their claims in bankruptcy. McBride v. Gibbs, (1918) 148 Ga. 380, 96 S. E. 1004.

Where in a voluntary petition in bankruptcy a claim is made for a statutory homestead exemption of money from the general estate of the bankrupt, a court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction to order a sale of land upon which liens exist, divested of liens, and to provide that the liens shall attach to the proceeds of sale. Where a part of the proceeds of such sale is set apart for the bankrupt upon his claim of exemption, liens against which the right of exemption had been waived will follow such fund. McBride v. Gibbs, (1918) 148 Ga. 380, 96 S. E. 1004.

Where the seller of personal property brings an action in trover against one not the original purchaser, to recover the property or its value, a money judgment therein is not a judgment for purchase money which is superior under the state law to the bank-rupt's right of homestead under such law. Williams v. American Slicing Machine Co., (1919) 148 Ga. 770, 98 S. E. 270.

Illinois.—Where under a statute homestead premises worth, over and above incumbrances, less than $1,000 are absolutely free from claims of creditors, no valid sale of such premises can be made and the owner may dispose of such homestead interest as he pleases free of judgment liens. In such case no interest passes to the trustee. In re Bitner, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 48, 166 C. C. A. 376.

New York.—Under the provision of section 1397 of the Code of Civil Procedure a claim for homestead exemption can have effect only from the time of designation or date of register, and it is therefore inoperative against debts contracted before that time. In re Lightstone, (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 456.

Ohio.—The manner and time of making, in the course of bankruptcy administration, the statutory claims for exemption, is a matter of procedure only, and where the exemption is claimed out of the proceeds of the sale of real estate, the court is not precluded from allowing the claim out of the proceeds of the sale of personalty, in the event of the real estate failing to sell for more than enough to pay off a valid prior mortgage. In re Matter of Stitt, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 1, 164 C. C. A. 113.

Texas.—Dunn v. Eckhardt, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 315, wherein the court said: "The question for determination is whether any part of this homestead had been abandoned prior to the bankruptcy. The question is to be determined solely by a consideration of the Texas decisions. No general principles of jurisprudence are applicable. The efforts of this court will be directed to an ascertainment of the law as developed by the courts of Texas."

Partnership exemptions—Sale.—Where under a state statute each partner is entitled to his exemptions in the stock of merchandise owned by the partnership, the sale thereof may rightfully be made, and the purchaser is entitled to enforce his rights as such in bankruptcy proceedings against the partnership. In re Solomon, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 254 Fed. 503.

I. Schedule of assets.

III. Form, verification and amendment.

I. SCHEDULE OF ASSETS (p. 612)

Effect generally of filing.—Filing the schedule in a proceeding in bankruptcy is an ex parte act on the part of the bankrupt and in that proceeding is a solemn admission which, unless corrected, binds him. It is, in no proper sense, res adjudicata, either as to the creditors or the bankrupt.

In another and independent proceeding it has no other force against the bankrupt than evidence of the truth of the statement. Horner v. Hammer, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 134.

III. FORM, VERIFICATION AND AMENDMENT (p. 617)

Where it appears from the evidence that him the time permitted by the Bankruptcy Act a creditor, inadvertently omitted from the schedule, was, by duly allowed amendment, added, and was served with proper notice as such creditor, and it further appears that the bankrupt was allowed his discharge in bankruptcy from the debt sued upon, and properly so pleaded, it was not error for the court to direct a verdict in favor of the defendant. Almond v. Coalson, (Ga. App. 1919) 99 S. E. 707.

Subsequent use of evidence—Admissibility of evidence in subsequent proceedings.—Where the testimony of a bankrupt was elicited by a creditor's attorney on the examination of the bankrupt before the referee, and in the presence of the trustee and his attorney and of attorneys representing parties having claims against the bankrupt's estate, it is admissible in subsequent proceedings, in which the creditor's claims are contested, although it is not shown that notice was given of the examination of the bankrupt as required by section 58 of the Bankrupt Act. In such a case it will be inferred that the referee's action in permitting the examination was based on his knowledge that the proper notice had been given. Beaven v. Stuart, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 972, 163 C. C. A. 222.

Proceedings cannot be instituted after death.—After the death of an insolvent, bankruptcy proceedings cannot be instituted to bring the administration of his estate into the bankruptcy court. In re Fackelman, (S. D. Cal. 1918) 248 Fed. 565.

Vol. I, p. 625, sec. 8a. [Dower and allowance for widowed children.] [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 528.]

Inchoate right of dower.—Where the wife of a bankrupt has joined him in the execution of a mortgage on his real estate, thereby releasing her dower right to that extent, she is entitled to dower in the surplus only ensuing from the sale under foreclosure and not in the entire proceeds. In re Munford, (E. D. N. C. 1919) 255 Fed. 108.

Arrest for dischargeable debt.—A judgment for negligence is a dischargeable debt, and therefore a bankrupt who has been arrested for such a judgment by order of a state court prior to the filing of his voluntary petition, may be released pending his application for a discharge in bankruptcy. In re Madigan, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 254 Fed. 221.

- I. In general.
- III. Stay as dependent on dischargeability of debt.
- IV. Stay of proceedings on valid liens.
- V. Where state court has complete jurisdiction.

I. IN GENERAL (p. 630)

Limitation on right to proceed in state court.—The Bankruptcy Act of 1898, unlike that of 1867, does not contain a provision restraining a creditor from pursuing his claim against a bankrupt debtor until the question of his discharge has been determined. The commencement of the bankruptcy proceeding does not, therefore, stop or toll the running of the statute of limitations. And the payment of dividends on the plaintiff's claim by the trustees in bankruptcy is not an acknowledgment of the debt by the defendants and promise to pay it, which take the debt out of the statute. American Woolen Co. v. Samuelsohn, (1919) 226 N. Y. 61, 123 N. E. 154.

Injunction after discharge.—“The power of the bankruptcy court to protect a bankrupt against claims in another court is limited to the period before the question of his discharge has been decided. . . . If the bankrupt desires to obtain the benefit of his discharge in an action brought against him for the recovery of a debt affected by such discharge, he may, by properly pleading and proving the discharge, in the court where the action against him is pending, secure a permanent stay of proceedings in such action, even after judgment therein.” In re Weisberg, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 253 Fed. 833.

Failure to ask stay.—The filing of a petition in bankruptcy does not divest a state court of jurisdiction to sell the land of the bankrupt where no application for a stay is made. Houston v. Shear, (Tex. 1919), 210 S. W. 876.

Construction of order.—An order “abating” an action pending on appeal, on a plea that the defendant had been adjudged a bankrupt, will be construed as an order for a stay, since that is the limit of the power of the court. Tutt v. Fighting Wolf Min. Co., (Mo. 1919) 209 S. W. 304.

III. STAY AS DEPENDENT ON DISCHARGEABILITY OF DEBT (p. 632)

Stay of actions on dischargeable debts.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Lilienthal, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 819, 168 C. C. A. 165.

Judgment.—A judgment for injury to property though simple as distinguished from malicious negligence is dischargeable in bankruptcy and the bankruptcy court will begin proceeding on it in the state court pending the application of the bankrupt for a discharge. In re Cunningham, (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 663.

Claim evidenced by judgment.—The bankruptcy court has the right to pass upon the character of the claim to be stayed, in determining whether a stay should issue pending the determination of the discharge application; but, if the claim is evidenced by a judgment, it will not, in passing upon that question, go behind the judgment as shown by the record of the action in which the judgment resulted. In re Lusch, (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 251 Fed. 316, wherein the court denied a motion to discharge a stay against a judgment rendered in a state court for negligence in operating an automobile upon affidavits charging that the bankrupt willfully and maliciously caused the injury for which the judgment was given, by deliberately running down the judgment creditor, after knocking him down in the street.

IV. STAY OF PROCEEDINGS ON VALID LIENS (p. 635)

Stay allowed.—Under this section a bankrupt court may issue an order staying the prosecution of suits against a corporation, instituted by creditors in state courts many months prior to its adjudication as a bankrupt, for the purpose of determining and enforcing liens on its property. In re Grafton Gas, etc., Light Co., (N. D. W. Va. 1919) 253 Fed. 668.

A suit to foreclose definitely described mortgage and deed of trust liens begun in a state court will not generally be stayed on the petition of the debtor filed therein based on the pendency of a proceeding in bankruptcy against him instituted in a federal court six months thereafter. Abney-Barnes Co. v. Davy-Pocahontas Coal Co., (W. Va. 1919) 98 S. E. 298.

When mortgaged property in another state is in possession of a trustee in bankruptcy before proceedings were instituted for a foreclosure under the mortgage, a summary proceeding may be had in the court of original jurisdiction to restrain the proceedings for foreclosure provided it had jurisdiction over the person of the mortgagee. In re United States Chrysotile Asbestos Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 294.

V. WHERE STATE COURT HAS COMPLETE JURISDICTION (p. 636)

The court of bankruptcy will not stay proceedings instituted in a state court where it does not have the property or subject matter of the litigation in its custody or possession, and the state court is competent to determine the questions involved. Thus it was so held where, on the death of a bankrupt some time after his discharge in bankruptcy, an action was begun in a state court by his executor on policies of insurance which had a cash surrender value at the time of the bankruptcy proceedings, but were not scheduled, and shortly after the trustee in bankruptcy, who had not been discharged but who had been made a party in the action in the state court, brought suit in the federal court involving the same subject matter. Doolittle v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 249 Fed. 491.

Stay of decree in federal court.—Where a receiver of an insolvent corporation appointed by a state court has been summarily deprived of possession of the bankrupt's property by a trustee in bankruptcy proceedings in a federal court, in violation of the principle of comity existing between state and federal courts, the property will be returned to him and an order of sale by the federal court under a decree of foreclosure on the property will be stayed pending the action in the state court. Brown v. Crawford, (D. C. Ore. 1918) 254 Fed. 146.

Offer of composition — Nature.—The tests for confirmation of an offer of composition fixed by section 12d of the Bankruptcy Act do not presuppose any particular kind or form of offer, but relate to any offer of composition; and whatever its form or kind, if the judge is satisfied that it meets the required statutory tests, he confirms it, otherwise he rejects it. In re Graham, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 93, 164 C. C. A. 205.

The advantages and disadvantages of an offer of composition need not be set out in the offer in order that the judge may investigate the merits of the offer and of the objections thereto. It need only be that which it purports to be, and that which the statute provides for—a statement of the proposed terms of composition. In re Graham (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 93, 164 C. C. A. 205.

Effect of composition on rights of vendor to lien on property sold to vendee.—A composition by the bankrupt with his creditors where it is made before the adjudication and appointment of a trustee does not oust the vendor of his title to property sold to the bankrupt under a contract by which he retains title until the payment of the purchase money, unless the vendor becomes a party to, and accepts the terms of, the composition. Vaughn-Carlton Co. v. Studebaker Corporation, (Ga. App. 1918) 97 S. E. 99.

Withdrawal of offer of composition.—After an offer of composition has been accepted by a majority of the creditors the bankrupt may not withdraw it. In re Agree (E. D. Mich. 1918) 247 Fed. 591.

Costs.—Attorneys' fees.—A bankrupt may not pay as part of a composition the expenses of a creditor who had employed an attorney to investigate the bankrupt's affairs, unless he acts at the request expressly implied of the receiver, and this is true even though the investigation resulted in a benefit to the estate. In re Siegel, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 197.

Vol. 1, p. 647, sec. 12c. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 542.]

Hearing—Persons entitled.—Objecting creditors, as well as the proponents of a composition offer, are entitled to a hearing and to the judgment of the court upon the merits. In re Graham, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 93, 164 C. C. A. 205.

Vol. 1, p. 648, sec. 12d (1). [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 543.]

Creditors' interests prevail.—To same effect as first paragraph of original annotation, see In re Kligerman, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 253 Fed. 778.

Evidence.—"The facts and circumstances which bear upon the advisability of confirming the offer are no part of the offer itself, but are properly presentable at the hearing of the offer and of the objections thereto, for which the law makes provision; and it is for the judge then to determine under all the facts and circumstances then appearing, including the nature of the offer itself, whether he is satisfied that the composition 'is for the best interests of the creditors.'" In re Graham, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 93, 164 C. C. A. 205.

Effect of refusal to confirm.—Refusal of a petition in bankruptcy on a composition by the bankrupt with his creditors operates to discharge the receiver and to replace possession of the property in the bankrupt. Vaughn-Carlton Co. v. Studebaker Corporation, (Ga. App. 1918) 97 S. E. 99.

When on the refusal of a petition in bankruptcy on a composition with creditors property in the possession of a receiver is redelivered to the bankrupt, a vendor, holding the title to property sold to the bankrupt until the purchase money is paid, on proof that he was not a party to the composition has the same legal rights open to him as if there had been no bankruptcy proceeding. Vaughn-Carlton Co. v. Studebaker Corporation, (Ga. App. 1918) 97 S. E. 99.

Good faith.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Bloomberg, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 253 Fed. 94.

Vol. 1, p. 651, sec. 12e. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 545.]

Effect of confirmation.—The confirmation of a composition has the same effect as the granting of a discharge in bankruptcy, the word "discharge," as used in section 14c of the Act, meaning a discharge of the bankrupt after adjudication. Accordingly, the lien of a judgment obtained more than four months prior to the filing of a petition in bankruptcy is not affected by the confirmation of a composition prior to adjudication. Oilfields Syndicate v. American Imp. Co., (S. D. Cal. 1919) 256 Fed. 979.

Jurisdiction of court terminated the approval of an offer of composition by the court and its sanction of the assignment by the receiver and bankrupt of all the bankrupt estate to a trustee who had been selected by the creditors to act in their behalf in carrying out the terms of the composition, put the property of the bankrupt outside of the court's power and terminated the jurisdiction of the court over both the property and the assignee thereof. Guaranty Trust Co. v. McCabe (C. C. A. 2nd Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 699, 163 C. C. A. 31. See also In re Siegel (C. C. A. 2nd Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 226.

Estate reverts in bankrupt.—Where a composition has been accepted by the creditors and confirmed by the court the estate thereupon reverts in the bankrupt. In re McNeil Corporation (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 765; In re Siegel (C. C. A. 2nd Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 226.

Indorser of bankrupt's note not released.—The confirmation of a compromise by a bankrupt with his creditors does not have the effect of releasing the indorser of a note given by the bankrupt where the holder did not prove his claim until persuaded to do so by the defendant who recognized the indorsements and urged that the filing of the claim and acceptance of dividends would not release him from his liability as indorser. Bromberg v. Self, (Ala. App. 1918) 80 So. 631.

Liens of attachments.—Such a confirmation, however, has been held to have the effect of dissolving liens of attachments made within four months prior to the commencement of the bankruptcy proceedings, in view of §§ 67(c), 67(f) and 70(f) of the act. In re Lilienthal, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 819, 168 C. C. A. 165.

Effect of refusal to confirm.—When the bankruptcy court enters its order, predicated on a referee's report, refusing confirmation of a composition, it amounts to an overruling of a demurrer to the specifications of objection. In re Graham, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 93, 164 C. C. A. 205.

Property sold under plan for composition.—Where a confirmation is rejected, a sale made thereunder conditioned on its confirmation by the court is void, but in such a case the court has no jurisdiction on petition for confirmation of the composition and on exceptions to the report of a special referee relative to an increased offer for the property, to order that the deed of the trustee be expunged from the records in the office of the recorder of deeds. In re Kligerman, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 253 Fed. 778.

Necessity of meeting of creditors to close estate.—Where a composition has been accepted by the creditors and confirmed by the court, there is said to be some doubt whether a final meeting is necessary in order to close the estate. The calling of such a meeting is largely a matter of practice and must be left largely to the discretion of the referee, and where there is nothing to show that the discretion has been improperly exercised a charge for sending notices in regard thereto will be allowed. In re McNeil Corporation, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 765.

Modification of composition after confirmation.—On confirmation of a composition the estate vests in the bankrupt and the jurisdiction of the court comes to an end, except that under this section a party in interest may move to set aside the composition within six months on the ground of after discovered fraud. Accordingly an item included in a composition, for the payment of the fees of an attorney employed by a committee of creditors cannot be set aside after the confirmation except on the ground of fraud. In re Siegel, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 226.

When application must be made.—If the application is not made within the time limited, the bankrupt is forever barred from obtaining a discharge as against the debts scheduled and provable in that proceeding. In re Schwartz, (N. D. Ohio 1918) 248 Fed. 841.

A bankrupt is chargeable with only reasonable diligence in filing his application for a discharge. In re Waller, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 187.

Effect of failure to make application.—A failure to apply for a discharge has the same force and effect as if a discharge had been denied. Horner v. Hammer, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 134.

Extension of time discretionary with court.—A motion to enlarge the time to file an application for discharge is one addressed to the reasonable discretion of the court. In re Waller, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 187.

Extension allowed because of unavoidable delay.—A bankrupt may claim the benefit of such unavoidable causes as excuse the failure to make such application within the twelve months' period succeeding adjudication. In re Waller, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 187.

Effect of denial of discharge generally.—The denial of an application for a discharge not reviewed or reversed is a final judgment equally binding on the bankrupt and his creditors. In re Schwartz, (N. D. Ohio 1918) 248 Fed. 841.

Effect of denial of discharge on subsequent bankruptcy proceedings.—In In re Spangler, (D. C. Mass. 1919) 256 Fed. 62, regarding this question it was said: "Inasmuch as the bankrupt failed to obtain his discharge on his previous voluntary petition, the debts scheduled in that proceeding will not be affected by any discharge granted in this proceeding, if the creditors interested appear and assert their rights. Under such circumstances, the discharge would be restricted to debts incurred since the filing of the former petition and would expressly exclude debts scheduled in or covered by the former petition. As to such debts the pendency of the present petition affords no reason for any stay of action in the state courts, and, if pleaded for that purpose, the plea could be met, I should suppose, by a replication setting up the complete facts."

Effect of withdrawal of application.—An application made within due time but voluntarily withdrawn "is the legal effect the same as a failure to apply for a discharge within the time limited by law." In re Schwartz, (N. D. Ohio 1918) 248 Fed. 841.

Vacation of order of extension.—A motion to vacate an order extending the time in which a bankrupt may file his petition for a discharge is addressed to the judicial discretion of the court and unless made seasonably and in good faith it will be denied. Thus it has been held that where the petition for extension was filed five days before the expiration of the time limit, a motion to vacate filed twenty days thereafter came too late. In re Maier, (D. C. Me. 1919) 256 Fed. 60.

I. Generally.

II. Objections to bankrupt's discharge.

III. Hearing and proof.

IV. Determination.

I. GENERALLY (p. 662)

Construction.—Statute to be liberally construed.—There has been a growing tendency in the direction of liberality in favor of a bankrupt's discharge, and it has come to be recognized that the provisions of the law relating to discharge are not to be construed against a bankrupt, and if his discharge is to be denied it must be because there has been strict proof of the existence of some one of the bars which the statute has set up against the discharge. In re Braus, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 248 Fed. 55, 160 C. C. A. 195.

Discharge as a matter of right.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Whitney, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 250 Fed. 1005; In re Walsh (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 653, 168 C. C. A. 47.

II. OBJECTIONS TO BANKRUPT'S DISCHARGE (p. 664)

Who may object—Parties in interest—Creditors are "parties in interest."—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Walsh, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 653, 168 C. C. A. 47.

A creditor holding a provable claim may object, though he has not proved his claim. In re Armstrong, (S. D. Cal. 1918) 248 Fed. 292.

Objections by court.—A bankruptcy court should not on its motion interpose objections to a discharge, as courts do not sit to create issues but to try and determine them on the presentation of the evidence by the interested parties. In re Walsh, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 653, 168 C. C. A. 47.

The court on its own motion may not refuse a discharge, as the grant of a discharge does not lie within its discretion and the bankrupt is absolutely entitled to it, unless it is proved that he has committed one or more of the acts which the statute provides shall bar the discharge. It may, however, direct that a creditor's meeting be called to consider whether the trustee should be authorized to file objections, but this is as far as the court of its own motion can go. In re Whitney, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 250 Fed. 1005.

Grounds for refusal generally.—The refusal of a discharge must be predicated on one of the six grounds mentioned in the statute. In re Epstein, (S. D. Fla. 1917) 248 Fed. 191.

Specification of objections.—Facts stated on mere information and belief, and which do not enter into details of the property, etc., are insufficient as specifications of objection to discharge both as to the form in which they are filed and the matter stated therein. In re Abramovitz, (S. D. Fla. 1918) 253 Fed. 299.

Verification.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Abramovitz, (S. D. Fla. 1918) 253 Fed. 299.

Specifications of objections are made by the creditor. If an individual it must be signed by him and if a corporation it should not only be signed but the corporate seal should also be affixed by the proper authority. In re Abramovitz, (S. D. Fla. 1918) 253 Fed. 299.

Demurrer to specifications of objections—Effect of master's report.—A master's report stating that no demurrer to the specifications of objections was filed will prevail over averments by the bankrupt in his exceptions to the report, to the effect that his counsel had dictated to the stenographer of the master in his presence and in the presence of the attorneys of the bankrupt's trustee, certain stated exceptions to the sufficiency of the objections, especially where the allegations concerning the circumstances attending the dictation of the demurrer to the objections are not verified. In re Frostig, (S. D. Ga. 1918) 252 Fed. 199.

III. HEARING AND PROOF (p. 670)

Scope of inquiry on hearing.—Discharge is a statutory matter and the court, as well as objecting creditors, is confined to the specifications of objections. In re Newmark, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 341.

Specifications of objection must be proved—In general.—To the same effect as original annotation, see In re Garrity, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 310, 159 C. C. A. 404; Horner v. Hamner, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 134; In re Newmaker, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 341; In re Troutman, (W. D. Ky. 1917) 251 Fed. 930; In re Lally, (N. D. N. Y. 1919) 255 Fed. 358.

Proof need not be beyond reasonable doubt.—Objections grounded on section 29a need not be proved beyond a reasonable doubt, but, as in civil cases, a fair preponderance suffices. In re Garrity, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 310, 159 C. C. A. 404.

Reference to referee.—Where the report of the referee gave only the testimony with no definite conclusion thereon it was held that the better practice was to refer the matter back to the referee with instructions to find and report the ultimate facts on the testimony and the applicable rules of law. In re Troutman, (W. D. Ky. 1917) 251 Fed. 930.

Reference to special master—Findings made by.—Where specifications in opposition to a bankrupt's discharge are referred to a special master, his findings should be sustained, unless clearly improper or without evidence to support them. In re Amster, (D. C. N. D. Ohio 1918) 249 Fed. 256.

IV. DETERMINATION (p. 673)

The discharge of a bankrupt is a judicial act.—Gage v. Penfield, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 961.

Making false oath.—A specification of objection to a discharge because the bankrupt swore falsely as to his place of residence is insufficient where it states merely that the bankrupt is a "citizen" of another state. In re Greer, (W. D. Ky. 1918) 248 Fed. 131.

Omissions and inaccuracies in the schedule.—Mere inadvertence and omissions from the schedule of debatable items by ignorant persons will not be deemed within the false oath and concealment sections of the statute. In re Garrity, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 310, 159 C. C. A. 404.

The omission by a school teacher to schedule the salary due to her, which constituted her sole asset, is ground for the refusal of a discharge. In re Garrity, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 310, 159 C. C. A. 404.

Concealment of financial condition.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Schultz, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 103, 162 C. C. A. 275.

Where it appears that the failure to keep anything in the way of accounts or memoranda during the important interval just preceding the failure was associated in the bankrupt's mind with his intention to go into bankruptcy in such a way as to benefit his relatives and himself at the expense of his creditors, and was, in part at least, for the purpose of having no statements or accounts which would prove troublesome, a discharge should be denied. In re Sternburg, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 980.

Intention to conceal—Effect of amendment of 1903.—Prior to the amendment of 1903 this section contained, before the word "intent," the word "fraudulent"; before the words "financial condition" the word "true"; before the word "destroyed" the words "and in contemplation of bankruptcy"; and in place of the word "such," before the words "condition might be ascertained," the words "his true." Obviously, the meaning of the original act has been much limited by these amendments. It is no longer necessary to prove intentional fraud, or that the concealment was in contemplation of bankruptcy. It is, of course, necessary to prove that the bankrupt shall fail to keep books of account or records, and that this failure must have been with intent to conceal his financial condition. In re Amster, (D. C. N. D. Ohio 1918) 249 Fed. 256.

Failed to keep books of account.—The reckless manner in which a bankrupt bought goods on credit during the time he was greatly in debt and while his cash receipts were being dissipated in living or personal expenditures, is a circumstance entitled to weight in characterizing his conduct or inferring intent in respect to his failure to keep books. In re Amster, (D. C. N. D. Ohio 1918) 249 Fed. 256.

Intention presumed.—The rule that a person must be held to intend the material and necessary consequences of his acts has been applied in the case of a failure of the bankrupt to keep books. In re Amster, (D. C. N. D. Ohio 1918) 249 Fed. 259.

The specification of objections.—An objection based on a failure of the bankrupt to keep books must allege that the failure was with intent to conceal his financial condition. In re Epstein, (S. D. Fla. 1917) 248 Fed. 191.

False statement in writing—In general.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Baldwin, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 836.

Necessary elements.—The statutory elements of the grounds for opposing the discharges in this case, and which elements must all be shown to exist and to coexist, are: (1) That the bankrupts obtained the property from the objecting creditor; (2) on credit; (3) upon a materially false statement; (4) in writing; (5) to said creditor; (6) for the purpose of obtaining such property on credit; and (7) that the writing so made by the bankrupts was that which is set forth in the specifications. In re Troutman, (W. D. Ky. 1917) 251 Fed. 930.

Extension of credit on faith of statement.—Where the bankrupt made a false statement to secure credit but the creditor noted "caution" upon the statement, intrusted its local branch to limit the credit to a certain amount, and presented no direct testimony that it relied upon the statement, it was held, nevertheless, that as the statement was false, and was the only information upon which the credit was based, the burden was on the bankrupt to overcome the inference that the credit was induced by reason of the false statement. In re Neuman, (D. C. Mont. 1917) 251 Fed. 667.

Worthless check.—The giving of a worthless check for property purchased is held not to be a "false statement . . . for the purpose of obtaining credit," within the meaning of that phrase as used in this subdivision. In re Rea, (D. C. Mont. 1917) 251 Fed. 431.

In another district, however, it is held that the giving of a worthless check by a bankrupt is a "false statement" within the meaning of this section, but that the mere giving of such a check alone is not sufficient to justify a refusal of his discharge, unless it also appears that he actually "obtained money or property on credit" by means thereof, and the burden is on the objecting creditors to establish that fact. In re Robinson, (D. C. Mass. 1919) 256 Fed. 55.

Effect of omissions.—The omission by the bankrupt in his statement of his financial condition of certain assets and the liability therefor is not as a matter of law a "materially" false statement within the meaning of this section, and in the absence of anything appearing in the record to show that credit would have been refused if such statement had been included it will not bar his discharge or sustain an objection to an offer of compromise. In re Kerner, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 993, 163 C. C. A. 243.

But it has been held that where in a statement made to a bank as a basis for a requested loan, the omitted liability consisted of a debt due a usurious money lender, though practically offset by the omission of an asset of equal amount, constituted a "materially false statement," particularly in view of the character of the debt, as it was reasonable to conclude that if knowledge of the debt had been brought home to the bank it would have refused the loan. In re Reed, (N. D. Ga. 1919), 256 Fed. 412.

Property—Obtaining renewal of note.—The obtaining of a renewal of a note is an obtaining of "money or property on credit." Samet v. Farmers, etc., Nat. Bank, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 669, 159 C. C. A. 571.

Intent—Guilty knowledge essential.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Goldberg, (D. C. Mass. 1919) 256 Fed. 541.

To the same effect as second paragraph of original annotation, see In re Kemp, (S. D. N. Y. 1919) 255 Fed. 125.

Who may object.—The creditor defrauded may object to the discharge, though by reason of the fraud practiced on him a discharge would not bar the liability of the bankrupt to him. In re Armstrong, (S. D. Cal. 1918) 248 Fed. 292.

Specification of objections.—The specification of objections to discharge under this paragraph should show what property was thus obtained. In re Troutman, (W. D. Ky. 1917) 251 Fed. 930.

An objection based on the making of a false statement must show what the statement was, to whom it was made and from whom goods were obtained thereby. In re Epstein, (S. D. Fla. 1917) 248 Fed. 191.

Evidence—Burden of proof.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Perlmutter, (D. C. N. J. 1919) 256 Fed. 862.

Preponderance of evidence sufficient.—A violation of this section being civil in its nature need not be proved beyond a reasonable doubt: proof by a preponderance of evidence is sufficient. In re Perlmutter, (D. C. N. J. 1919) 256 Fed. 862.

Presumptions.—A bankrupt who issues a financial statement for the purpose of obtaining property or credit, is presumed to have intended the effect it produces on the person from whom such property or credit is sought. The latter has a right to assume that the statement is true, and if untrue, the person responsible for the untruth, in the absence of proof showing the contrary, will be presumed to have intended to hide from the lender his true financial condition. In re Perlmutter, (D. C. N. J. 1919) 256 Fed. 862.

While the presumption that a bankrupt knew the truth or falsity of the statement which he signed and meant what it said, is one of fact and not conclusive, it is one of the weightiest presumptions known to law and one of the most important. In re Matter of Goldberg, (D. C. Mass. 1919) 256 Fed. 541.

Prima facie case.—When objecting creditors show that a financial statement is untrue in a material respect, which was within the knowledge of the bankrupt, and that he has obtained money on the credit of it, they make out a prima facie case disentitling him to a discharge. In re Perlmutter, (D. C. N. Y. 1919) 256 Fed. 862.

Conclusiveness of referee's report.—Where a bankrupt lists in his financial statement certain property at its supposed "assessed" value when in reality he gives the actual cost to him, a referee's conclusions that there was no intentional false statement cannot be said to be erroneous, where it appeared that previous similar statements covering several years were not used in any fraudulent way, and the bankrupt testified that the lender knew that the figures contained in the statements, although purporting to be assessed values, really represented what he had paid for the properties. In re Goldberg, (D. C. Mass. 1919) 256 Fed. 541.

Concealment, etc., of assets—In general.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Baldwin, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 836.

Necessity of transfer being within four months period.—To same effect as original annotation, see Gill v. White, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 50, 161 C. C. A. 1108.

What constitutes fraudulent transfer.—A colorable transfer which does not put the property of the bankrupt beyond the summary power of the bankruptcy court to seize it, is not such a transfer as will warrant the refusal of a discharge. W. A. Lillier Bldg. Co. v. Reynolds, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 90, 159 C. C. A. 308.

The incorporation of a successful department of a firm's business, and the transfer by the partners of its capital stock to relatives for what were apparently nominal considerations, when the firm was obviously insolvent, together with the various and unsatisfactory explanations made for the incorporation and the transfer of the stock, indicates an intent to keep this branch of the firm's business for the benefit of the bankrupts and to deprive the firm's creditors of its assets and is therefore a transfer with the intent to hinder, delay, and defraud creditors, and the fact that the shares of the capital stock of the corporation were subsequently, upon demand, surrendered by the transferees to the trustee in bankruptcy, in no way changes the result. In re Singer, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 51, 163 C. C. A. 301.

Adjudication as to fraudulent transfer.—The decision of a referee that a bankrupt had canceled assets and that a prima facie case had been made out for denying a discharge, based on a state statute permitting a creditor to object to the allowance of a homestead for any kind of fraud and at any time, is not res adjudicata with respect to the right to a discharge, since under this section of the Bankrupt Act it is ground for objection to a bankrupt's discharge that he at any time subsequent to the first day of the four months immediately preceding the filing of the petition, concealed any of his property with intent to defraud any of his creditors. Accordingly though a fraudulent transfer of assets made more than four months before the filing of the petition for bankruptcy, may under the state statute defeat a homestead, it would not defeat a bankrupt's right to a discharge. In re Frosteg, (S. D. Ga. 1918) 252 Fed. 199.

What constitutes concealment, removal or destruction of property—Transfer to bankrupt's wife.—The omission from his schedules by a bankrupt of property turned over to his wife, and the inclusion therein as one of his liabilities the money advanced by his wife with which the property was bought, justifies a denial of a discharge but without prejudice pending a determination of the title to the property in dispute. In re Bishop, (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 454.

Concealment of valueless property.—Where the payment of a note due his father's estate consumes the entire interest of the bankrupt therein, his failure to include such interest in his schedule will not justify a refusal of his discharge. Anderson v. Frost City National Bank, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 793, 166 C. C. A. 239.

Intent.—If the intent to hinder and delay creditors exists it is sufficient to justify a denial of discharge; it is not necessary that intent to defraud be proved. In re Perlmutter, (D. C. N. J. 1919) 256 Fed. 862.

Fraud as question of fact.—A conveyance by a bankrupt is not per se fraudulent. In re Braus, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 248 Fed. 55, 160 C. C. A. 195, wherein the court said: "An insolvent debtor has the jus disponendi of his property until the commencement of proceedings in bankruptcy against him. And the fact that a transfer operates incidentally to hinder or delay creditors is not in itself sufficient to make it void. Every conveyance of a debtor's property may have that effect in some degree. 20 Cyc. 464, and cases there cited. It is also the law that it is not every intent to hinder or delay creditors in collecting their debts that avails to avoid a transfer under section 67e of the Bankruptcy Act. It is every intent to hinder, delay, and defraud creditors unlawfully only, not every intent to hinder or delay them in collecting, or to prevent them from collecting, their claims, that avails to avoid a transfer under that section."

In the case of In re Braus, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 248 Fed. 55, 160 C. C. A. 195, a transfer by a bankrupt of a large part of his property to a corporation in return for stock which he kept in his possession was held not to show fraudulent intent as a matter of fact.

Presumption of intent to hinder and delay.—The effect of a withdrawal of assets by a bankrupt is to hinder and delay his creditors in securing the payment of their debts, and in the absence of proof to the contrary it is presumed that it was so intended. In re Perlmutter, (D. C. N. J. 1919) 256 Fed. 862.

Evidence—Shifting of burden of proof.—Where the creditors of a bankrupt establish facts from which the intent to deceive is presumed, the burden to remove such presumption is cast on the bankrupt. In re Perlmutter, (D. C. N. J. 1919) 256 Fed. 862.

Preponderance of evidence sufficient.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Lally, (N. D. N. Y. 1919) 255 Fed. 358; In re Perlmutter, (D. C. N. J. 1919) 256 Fed. 862.

Where a bankrupt fails to schedule or surrender.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see In re Edelman, (D. C. Md. 1918) 251 Fed. 429.

Sufficiency.—The bold statement of the bankrupt that he used money withdrawn from his assets to pay a gambling debt and had no intention of deceiving his creditors is not sufficient to overcome the presumption of wrongful intent arising from such withdrawal. In re Perlmutter, (D. C. N. J. 1919) 256 Fed. 862.

Discharge by means of composition.—Where a bankrupt has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, availed himself of the provisions of the law, offered composition which has been accepted by his creditors, approved and confirmed by the court, and the proceeding thus closed, he has received a discharge in bankruptcy, and under the provisions of this section is not entitled to a second within a period of six years therefrom. In re Radley, (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 205.

Refusal to produce books and papers.—In the case of In re Rea, (D. C. Mont. 1917) 251 Fed. 431, it appeared that a few days before referee's hearing on objections to discharge, the objectors noticed the bankrupts to produce certain contracts, all related letters, and all accounts and bank books and canceled checks for three years before adjudication and afterwards. At the hearing, counsel for the objectors asked that "it appear" that the bankrupts "admit receiving" said notice. Thereupon the bankrupts' counsel stated that they refuse to produce any of the said papers and books, for the reason that they have at all times been subject to the trustee's orders, who "has had perfect liberty to examine them at any time," and that they are at the bankrupt's office, and for the further reason that the most thereof were prior to four months prior to bankruptcy. The referee was not moved to compel production of said papers and books. It was held that this ambiguous situation was not, as contended, a refusal to answer any material question approved by the court."

Meeting by whom called.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Whitney, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 250 Fed. 1005.

Scope of trustee's authority.—The trustees can object to the granting of a discharge only when authorized to do so by a meeting of creditors called for that purpose, and failure of the record to show such an authorization is not waived by going to trial. In re White, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 115, 160 C. C. A. 255.

Revocation of discharge judicial act.—The revocation of a judgment of discharge is a judicial act, authorized when a trial shall have established the facts prescribed as necessary, by the statute which is the source of the court's power to revoke the judgment of discharge. Gage v. Penfield, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 961.

Application for revocation.—The petition should state facts which warrant the conclusion that the petitioner was diligent or free from laches; general conclusions are not sufficient. Gage v. Penfield, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 961.

Persons entitled to ask revocation.—A discharge will not be revoked at the instance of a creditor whose claim is not barred by the discharge. In re Groodzinky, (N. D. Ga. 1918) 248 Fed. 753.

The manifest purpose of this provision.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see Hamilton First Nat. Bank v. Hoffman, (1918) 102 Kan. 465, 171 Pac. 13.

The discharge of an endorser from liability through the composition of his principal with his creditors in bankruptcy proceedings is a discharge by operation of law and not by the voluntary act of the party. Therefore, a release through composition of the principal discharges the liability of the surety notwithstanding the provisions of a state statute that the liability of a person who is a surety for a bankrupt shall not be altered by the discharge of such bankrupt. In re American Paper Co., (D. C. N. J. 1919) 255 Fed. 121.

Contractor's bond to United States.—As to the discharge of the liability of a surety on a bond given to the United States by a contractor it has been said: "If Congress found it necessary, as it did, to expressly except taxes due the United States, etc., from the operation of a discharge, it would seem that, if it intended that other debts due the United States should be excepted, it would have so declared. The omission of any exception of such debts is significant. The insertion of the provision with respect to taxes, without a like provision in regard to ordinary debts due to the United States, must be attributed to some purpose on the part of the lawmaking body. The purpose in view, we think, was that a bankrupt should be discharged from provable debts, to whomsoever owed, except as specified. Ascribing this meaning to the language is in keeping with the purpose and spirit of the Bankruptcy Act. The purpose of such acts, it has been frequently declared, is to relieve the honest debtor from the weight of oppressive indebtedness and to permit him to start afresh, free from the obligations and responsibilities consequent upon business and misfortunes. Burlingame et al. v. Crouse, 228 U. S. 459, 33 Sup. Ct. 564, 57 L. Ed. 920, 46 L. R. A. (N. S.) 148. "The United States, when it engages in business enterprises, should be subject to the same laws and occupy no different position than individuals when so engaged. The judgment in favor of Orman is affirmed." McRhee v. United States, (Colo. 1918) 174 Pac. 808.

Forthcoming bonds.—A discharge in bankruptcy of a principal on a forthcoming bond has, under the facts of the case, been held not to release the sureties on the bond and to be no defense as to the sureties in a suit on the bond. DeLoach v. Kennedy, (Ga. App. 1919) 99 S. E. 314.

Effect of discharge generally.—A discharge of personal liability under this section arises by force of the statute, not from any act of the creditor. McBride v. Gibbs, (1918) 148 Ga. 380, 96 S. E. 1004.

All provable debts released.—Judgments.—A judgment of a state court for damages in a negligence case is dischargeable in bankruptcy. In re Madigan, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 254 Fed. 221.

A judgment rendered against a bankrupt after the commencement of bankruptcy proceedings is not void and his discharge is simply a bar to the enforcement thereof if pleaded. Alabama Great Southern Ry. Co. v. Crawley, (Miss. 1918) 79 So. 94.

A discharged bankrupt may, in the absence of any statute providing for relief against a judgment rendered against him prior to his discharge, obtain relief by a motion in the court rendering the judgment for a perpetual stay of execution or by a motion to quash any process issued thereon. Alabama Great Southern Ry. Co. v. Crawley, (Miss. 1918) 79 So. 94.

Liens.—A discharge of a lien from property to which it has attached never occurs, but may be satisfied or otherwise lost by the conduct of the creditor. If he proves his claim in bankruptcy he invites application of the doctrines of waiver and estoppel, and will be concluded by the action of the court of bankruptcy so far as it disposes of property affected by his lien. It is similar to the effect of a sale by a sheriff in virtue of a lien. In such a case the creditor cannot again assert his lien on the same property as against the purchaser. McBride v. Gibbs, (1918) 148 Ga. 380, 96 S. E. 1004.

Note secured by mortgage.—The maker of notes gave a chattel mortgage to secure their payment, and afterward filed a petition in bankruptcy. The holder of the notes procured their allowance as a claim against the estate of the bankrupt. All the property covered by the chattel mortgage, except certain exempt property, was sold by the trustee under an agreement between the trustee, the bankrupt and the holder of the notes. The bankrupt was finally discharged, although the notes were not paid in full. It was held that the discharge released the bankrupt from further payment on the notes, and released all the unsold mortgaged property from the lien of the chattel mortgage. Hamilton First Nat. Bank v. Hoffman, (1918) 102 Kan. 465, 171 Pac. 13.

Discharge of partnership debts.—Where a partnership is adjudicated bankrupt, the individual partners are entitled to a discharge from their liability for firm debts. Armstrong v. Norris, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 253, 159 C. C. A. 347, wherein it was said:

"Ordinarily it is true that a discharge in bankruptcy implies a prior adjudication of the person discharged, but the rule should not be applied too literally. When a partnership alone has been adjudged bankrupt, the individual partners and their estates are drawn in to the proceeding and are subject to the jurisdiction of the court; and when all the conditions and requirements of the Bankruptcy Act have been observed by them, jointly and severally, there is no sound reason why the court should not, upon their application, in the same proceeding, discharge them from further liability for the partnership debts. That is a natural and logical outcome of such a proceeding, and is consistent with the long-established practice in equity. An adjudication against the partnership, the necessary relation of the partners thereto, and the jurisdiction of the court over them, empowers the court to award them, if they so desire, the relief which from their standpoint is in the nature of a final decree. To remit them to another proceeding for relief would be unnecessarily vexatious, and to permit them to resort to another jurisdiction would aid them in avoiding an obstacle to their discharge on account of misconduct in the first."

The proper time and place to test the effect of a discharge.—The defense of a discharge in bankruptcy is personal to the bankrupt. Alabama Great Southern Ry. Co. v. Crawley, (Miss. 1918) 79 So. 94.

Pleading discharge—Necessity of pleading.—To same effect as original annotation, see

In re Weisberg, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 253 Fed. 833.

A bankrupt who does not plead his discharge in an action in a state court is not entitled to have the action enjoined by the bankruptcy court. In re Broadway, (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 248 Fed. 364.

Sufficiency.—Where a suit was brought on a debt dischargeable in bankruptcy, and the defendant debtor filed her plea setting up the facts that she had been adjudicated a bankrupt pending the suit but had not then obtained her discharge, that the debt was duly scheduled, and that the plaintiff was served and appeared at the first meeting of creditors and examined the bankrupt, and where at a subsequent term, while the plea was still pending, the court overruled a motion for a continuance, and the case was tried and verdict and judgment were rendered against the debtor, such judgment could not be enforced after the discharge of the bankrupt, where she properly set up, in an equitable petition to restrain the enforcement of the judgment and execution, the fact of her discharge. Morris v. Perkins, (Ga. 1918) 97 S. E. 526.

Evidence of discharge—Burden of proof.—A defendant in an action on a debt who pleads a discharge in bankruptcy has the burden of proving it. Smith v. Hill, (1919) 232 Mass. 188, 122 N. E. 310, 2 A. L. R. 1667.

I. False pretenses or representations.
II. Wilful and malicious injuries.

I. FALSE PRETENSES OR REPRESENTATIONS (p. 716)

Liability for obtaining property by false pretenses or false representations—In general.—A judgment entered on defendant's filing consent thereto based on a contract by which the plaintiff paid a certain sum to defendant, who subsequently became bankrupt, on the agreement by the latter to divide profits in a venture in real estate which was to be transferred by a third party to the defendant but which was not so conveyed, is not a debt which is not discharged under section 17a(2), there being nothing disclosed to show that the defendant was guilty of fraud in obtaining money. Bowman v. Provident Realty Inv. Co., (Cal. App. 1919) 180 Pac. 18.

Effect of resistance to discharge.—The fact that the creditor unsuccessfully resisted the application for a discharge does not alter the rule that the discharge is not a bar to claims based on fraud. In re Grodzinsky, (N. D. Ga. 1918) 248 Fed. 753.

Action for purchase price on breach of contract.—The defendant sold a second hand automobile to the plaintiff. The plaintiff claimed that the defendant agreed to take it back and repay the purchase price if certain representations or warranties made as a part of the contract of sale were untrue, and that they were untrue. The defendant refused to repay the purchase price. Suit was brought and the plaintiff had judgment. Upon an examination of the pleadings and charge of the court it was held that the action was on contract, and that the judgment was not excepted from the operation of the defendant's discharge in bankruptcy as representing a liability "for obtaining property by false pretenses or false representations." Guindon v. Brusky, (Minn. 1919) 170 N. W. 918.

Constructive fraud.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see Gregory v. Pierce, (Ia. 1919) 172 N. W. 288.

Burden of proof.—The burden of proof is upon the creditor who claims that his duly scheduled debt is excepted from the operation of the discharge in bankruptcy because of fraud; and when under the pleadings and charge the creditor's judgment might be based upon contract, or upon fraud, or upon both, and there is nothing but the pleadings and charge from which to determine the fact, the creditor does not sustain the burden. Guindon v. Brusky, (Minn. 1919) 170 N. W. 918.

II. WILFUL AND MALICIOUS INJURIES (p. 720)

Wilful and malicious injuries—Disposal of property without authority of owner.—Where an employee, in good faith and for a valuable consideration, sells, transfers, and assigns his title and right to possession of a stipulated amount of salary due him by his employer, and thereafter collects the money thus transferred, he cannot, as against a suit for the recovery of the money, avail himself of a discharge in bankruptcy as a defense. The instrument of transfer is an assignment of title. One who thus disposes of property without the authority of its owner is guilty of a wilful or malicious injury to property within the meaning of the Bankruptcy Act and consequently his liability is not released by a discharge in bankruptcy. Covington v. Rosenbusch, (Ga. 1918) 97 S. E. 78; Covington v. Rosenbusch, (Ga. App. 1918) 97 S. E. 462.

Injuries caused by negligence.—A judgment against a bankrupt for negligent injury to the property of another when not the result of wilful malice is a provable debt and as such dischargeable in bankruptcy. In re Cunningham, (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 663.

Running car at unlawful speed.—In Ex p. Cote, (Vt. 1918) 106 Atl. 519, it was held that the facts set forth a case of "wilful and malicious injury to the person" of the intestate, it appearing that he was killed while in an automobile by a passing automobile being driven at an unlawful rate of speed on the wrong side of the road.

Declaration as determining whether injuries were wilful and malicious.—In Ex p. Cote, (Vt. 1918) 106 Atl. 519, which was a habeas corpus proceeding by Cote, it appeared that judgment was obtained against him in a tort action and that at the time of its rendition the court adjudged and certified that the cause of action arose from the wilful and malicious act of the relator. Later the relator was adjudged a bankrupt and after a discharge in bankruptcy he was committed to jail upon an execution issued upon the judgment. Habeas corpus proceedings were instituted to secure his relief on the ground that the discharge in bankruptcy discharged him from the judgment. But the court took a different view.

Debts not duly scheduled.—The discharge of a bankrupt is not operative against a creditor, who had no notice or actual knowledge of the proceedings in bankruptcy, and whose claim was not duly scheduled; but mere want of such notice or knowledge will not prevent the discharge from becoming operative if the debt was duly scheduled. Travis v. Sams, (Ga. App. 1919) 99 S. E. 239.

Knowledge of bankruptcy proceedings.—If a creditor has knowledge or notice, however acquired, of proceedings in bankruptcy against his debtor in time to prove his claim, and does not do so the claim is barred by the bankrupt's discharge whether it was scheduled or not. Davis v. Findley, (Ala. 1918) 78 So. 869.

Actual notice as distinguished from imputed or constructive notice is necessary to discharge an unscheduled claim. Lynch v. McKee, (Tex. Civ. App. 1919) 214 S. W. 484, holding notice to the creditor's attorney, not communicated by him, to be insufficient.

Where the evidence in a case showed that the plaintiff creditor did not have notice or actual knowledge of the proceedings in bankruptcy but it was silent as to whether his claim was duly scheduled therein, it was held that the trial court erred in rendering a judgment in his favor. Travis v. Sams, (Ga. App. 1919) 99 S. E. 239.

Burden of proof of knowledge.—To the same effect as the original annotation see Smith v. Hill (1919) 232 Mass. 188, 122 N. E. 310, 2 A. L. R. 1667.

Commencement of proceedings.—The filing of the petition, while not divesting the bankrupt of title to his property, constitutes him in effect a trustee for the benefit of his creditors from that time until adjudication when that follows, and although he may have power to dispose of his property in the ordinary course of business in the interval, and even though he may do so by making preferential payments not tainted with actual fraud (which in this case was not decided), he certainly has no right to use his property for gambling after the petition is filed. In re Sternburg, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 980.

Amendment of petition.—A bankruptcy court being rightfully possessed of a cause, enjoys the power of amendment which is incidental to all judicial administration, and therefore authorizes a petition, which is too vague and general, to be made certain. In re Havens, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 478, 166 C. C. A. 554.

Ordinarily an act of bankruptcy not set forth in the original petition cannot be introduced into a pending proceeding by amendment made more than four months after its commission. But where the act of bankruptcy is a continuing one, such for instance as the continued concealment of property, it may be brought in by amendment made within four months from the date of discovery. In re Havens, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 478, 166 C. C. A. 554.

Mode of service—Sufficiency of order for publication of subpoena.—By mistake of the printer the following line was omitted from the printed copy of the order directing that the subpoena be served by publication: "be made by publishing this order together with said subpoena." This omission did not make the order misleading or unintelligible. It is therefore immaterial, and certainly could not be made the basis for such fundamental action as setting aside the adjudication. Hunter v. J. G. Cherry Co., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 458, 159 C. C. A. 512.

Time to plead—Extension of time to answer petition.—A creditor coming in after the petition and making no answer is entitled to notice of an application by another creditor for extension of time to answer. In re D. F. Herlehy Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 247 Fed. 369.

Propriety of refusing extension.—It is not an abuse of discretion to refuse to permit a creditor after the lapse of several weeks to file an answer to the petition, and "the provisions of section 59f were not intended to allow creditors to come in and answer at any time." In re D. F. Herlehy Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 247 Fed. 369.

Erroneous recital in adjudication.—The return day fixed by the order of publication and the subpoena was October 30th. By section 18b of the Bankruptcy Act the bankrupts and their creditors "may appear and plead to the petition within five days after the return day." The adjudication, therefore, could not have properly been entered until November 5th. The referee who entered the judgment recites that the matter came on to be heard on the 4th day of November. This was a clerical error, as the proceeding was not referred to him until the 5th. His order of adjudication actually bears date on November 5th. It is plain, therefore, that the recitation of November 4th was a clerical error, and affords no ground for such relief as the petitioners are seeking. Hunter v. J. G. Cherry Co., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 458, 159 C. C. A. 512.

Answer—Sufficiency and effect.—Where the petitioning creditors had alleged in their original petition for the adjudication and in the amendments thereto eleven acts of bankruptcy committed by the bankrupt, one of which was that he had admitted in writing his inability to pay his debts and his willingness to be adjudged a bankrupt, and another creditor had answered the original petition and the amendments, and had denied all the alleged acts of bankruptcy and the insolvency of the bankrupt, and had stood upon its answer and demanded a trial of the issues between itself and the petitioning creditors, and it further appeared that the bankrupt had answered and denied the acts of bankruptcy alleged in the original petition, but had later withdrawn his answer, it was held that the opposing creditor was entitled to a trial of the issues between it and the petitioning creditors. Albers Commission Co. v. Richter, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 869, 164 C. C. A. 85.

Evidence—Burden of proof.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see Albers Commission Co. v. Richter, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 869, 164 C. C. A. 85.

Effect of adjudication—Adjudication as res judicata.—An adjudication in bankruptcy, so far as it establishes the status of the debtor as a bankrupt, is conclusive even as to strangers to the decree. But like other judgments in rem, an adjudication in bankruptcy is not res judicata as to the facts or as to the subsidiary questions of law on which it is based, except as between those who were parties or privies to the proceeding. Gratiot County State Bank v. Johnson, (1919) 249 U. S. 246, 39 S. Ct. 263, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, reversing (1916) 193 Mich. 452, 160 N. W. 544.

Vacating adjudication.—Where the adjudication is questioned, the filing of a motion, with notice, for the vacating of the order of adjudication is recognized as the proper practice. In re Nash, (D. C. S. D. W. Va. 1918) 249 Fed. 375.

Vol. I, p. 746, sec. 18g. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 586.]

Dismissal after adjudication.—Where it appears that a person filing a voluntary petition has no assets, and no purpose can be perceived in his action except to hinder, delay or defraud his creditors, as no discharge can be granted owing to the want of the required period since the filing of a prior voluntary petition, the court should dismiss the petition. In re Nash, (D. C. S. D. W. Va. 1918) 249 Fed. 375.

Purpose and scope of examination.—Scope of examination.—In In re Madero, (S. D. N. Y. 1919) 256 Fed. 859, it was held that this section did not apply to an examination before a referee regarding an alleged contract concerning the bankrupt's property made by his trustee in bankruptcy with a third person. "So far as I have found, this is a case of first impression. It is quite true that it is no valid objection to an examination under section 21a that the evidence elicited may be pertinent to a suit pending between the trustee and the witness. In re Cliffe, (D. C.) 97 Fed. 540, 542.

Adjudication as condition precedent to examination.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Weidenfeld, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 677, 166 C. C. A. 175.

Who may be examined.—If a bankrupt removes into another district ancillary proceedings are open to his creditors, but when he is in attendance upon the court lawfully engaged about the business of his adjudication, he must submit to all the lawful orders of that court, including examination under this section, and cannot claim immunity because of such change of residence. In re Havens, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 478, 166 C. C. A. 554.

Review of order for examination.—The power to require any designated person, including the bankrupt's wife, to submit to examination concerning the affairs of the bankrupt, is discretionary with the court, therefore an order for such examination is not reviewable, even on the application of the person aggrieved, except for an abuse of discretion. In re Weidenfeld, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 677, 166 C. C. A. 175.

Right of witness to counsel.—"One of the fundamental rights of every person compelled or entitled to appear in court to defend himself or his property is the right to be attended by counsel. Creditors, therefore, having interests in bankruptcy proceedings vitaly affecting themselves and their property certainly should not be deprived of this fundamental and valuable right. The fact that a creditor entitled to thus appear and be represented by counsel at this examination is summoned to attend as a witness surely cannot so affect the situation that a creditor who might otherwise have attended the hearing with counsel loses this right merely because, instead of appearing voluntarily, he attends in response to a subpoena. No good reason for this distinction has been presented to me and I can perceive none. Nor does the fact that a creditor has not actually proved his claim render him any the less a creditor of the bankrupt within the meaning of the Bankruptcy Act. Furthermore, this right of the creditor in the present case to have counsel present at his examination before the referee, cannot, in my opinion, be lost or affected by the fact that his attorney happened also to be the attorney for the bankrupt." In re Prussian, (E. D. Mich. 1919) 255 Fed. 857.

Right to copies of testimony.—Where, in the course of an investigation under this section, the testimony of a large number of witnesses has been taken stenographically before the referee, without notice to and in the absence of the bankrupt, the latter is entitled to a copy thereof on payment of the required fees. Petition of Moulthrop, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 468.

Jurisdiction of referee.—Where a bill brought by a trustee under section 70-a, infra, to avoid an alleged fraudulent conveyance by a bankrupt, is referred generally to a referee under this section, he has jurisdiction to determine its merits. Graham v. Faith, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 32, 165 C. C. A. 52; In re Weidhorn, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 28, 165 C. C. A. 48.

Who is adverse claimant.—A corporation formed for the purpose of reviewing a fraudulent conveyance of the property of an insolvent debtor is not an adverse claimant thereof whose rights must be litigated as if the bankruptcy proceeding had not been instituted, but is subject to the summary jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court. W. A. Lillier Bldg. Co. v. Reynolds, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 90, 159 C. C. A. 308.

Jurisdiction of state court.—Where the state court had no jurisdiction of claims against a bankrupt, it must dismiss the cause without attempting to determine the merits which were exclusively within the jurisdiction of the federal court. De Muth v. Faw, (1918) 103 Wash. 279, 174 Pac. 18.

Where in respite proceedings the judgments appealed from are not money judgments against plaintiffs, and do not affect their property, but are merely orders to plaintiffs to furnish security to two of their creditors, the state court is not ousted of jurisdiction of the cases by the subsequent proceedings of plaintiffs in the bankruptcy court. Cartolotta & Co. v. Their Creditors, (La. 1919) 81 So. 399.

I. JURISDICTION OF ADVERSE CLAIMS (p. 761)

Bona fide adverse claims—Against agent or general assignee of bankrupt.—To same effect as second paragraph of original annotation, see Matter of Reiswig, (D. C. N. D. 1918) 253 Fed. 390, also holding that the fact that the assignee claims a part of the bankrupt's funds in his hands as fees and commissions, does not make him an adverse claimant, and distinguishing Louisville Trust Co. v. Cominger, (1902) 184 U. S. 18, 22 S. Ct. 293, 46 U. S. (L. ed.) 413, the holding of which case is given in the third paragraph of the original annotation.

II. JURISDICTION AS AFFECTED BY POSSESSION (p. 765)

Possession of property gives jurisdiction thereover.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see Story, etc., Piano Co. v. Homes, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 565, 163 C. C. A. 559.

Possession by adverse claimant under contract.—Where the property in dispute is in the possession of an adverse claimant, whose claim does not rest on pretense as shown, but is real and not colorable, the bankruptcy court cannot dispose of it in a summary proceeding. Therefore, where a city has taken possession of property belonging to a contractor who has abandoned his contract, claiming the power to do so under the terms of the contract, the court cannot dispose of the claim in a summary proceeding, but the city is entitled as a matter of right to have the matter disposed of in a plenary action. In re Dailey, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 529, 166 C. C. A. 597.

Surrender of possession.—Where the trustee's watchman, having received notice that another person was to take his place, withdrew at once and peaceably, neither force nor threat being used, the charge taking place after the respective rights of both parties had fully matured, it was held that the decision of the district judge, that there had been a surrender of possession, would not be interfered with. In re Mid-Valley Coal Co. (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 815, 163 C. C. A. 649.

III. JURISDICTION BY CONSENT (p. 767)

Filing of answer.—Where in a plenary action by a trustee, the defendant files a full and specific answer to the charges, without suggestion or objection on his part to the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court to hear and determine the issues, consent to jurisdiction sufficiently appears. Seegmiller v. Day, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 177.

Failure to object.—Failure to object to the jurisdiction, on the ground that the action is not one which the bankrupt might have brought, until the brief has been filed in a proceeding for review is equivalent to a consent. In re Berry, (E. D. Mich. 1917) 247 Fed. 700.

IV. RECOVERY OF PREFERENTIAL AND FRAUDULENT TRANSFERS (p. 769)

Jurisdiction to recover property fraudulently or preferentially transferred.—A suit by a trustee in bankruptcy to avoid a transfer which he regards as a voidable preference, within the meaning of the Bankruptcy Act, § 60-b, and to recover the property transferred or its value, may be brought in a federal District Court whose territorial limits include the property sought to be recovered, although such court is not the one in which the bankruptcy proceeding is pending, and although defendant has not given his consent, since by the amendatory Acts of February 5, 1903, and June 25, 1910, an exception was ingrafted on section 23-b which takes such suits out of the restrictive provisions of that section, and there was added to section 60-b a sentence which makes them cognizable in courts of bankruptcy as well as in such state courts as could have entertained them if bankruptcy had not intervened, and to section 2 a new clause was added, investing courts of bankruptcy with power to "exercise ancillary jurisdiction over persons or property within their respective territorial limits, in aid of a receiver or trustee appointed in any bankruptcy proceedings pending in any other court of bankruptcy." Collett v. Adams, (1919) 249 U. S. 545, 39 S. Ct. 372, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —.

Pleading and practice.—The concurrent jurisdiction of the bankruptcy courts to set aside preferences under section 60-b, and fraudulent transfers under sections 67-e and 70-e, extends to a suit in equity brought by a trustee in bankruptcy who invokes by the allegations of his bill the aid of these sections, although the evidence may show that there was no unlawful preference or fraudulent transfer, since jurisdiction must be determined not upon the conclusion on the merits of the action, but upon consideration of the grounds upon which federal jurisdiction is invoked. Flanders v. Coleman, (1919)

250 U. S. 223, 39 S. Ct. 472, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) — (reversing (S. D. Ga. 1918) 249 Fed. 757), wherein the court said: "To justify its conclusion that it was without jurisdiction the district judge cites certain decisions of this court: Bardes v. Hawarden First Nat. Bank, (1900) 178 U. S. 524 [20 S. Ct. 1000, 44 U. S. (L. ed.) 1175], in which this court held that under section 23 of the Bankruptcy Act the District Court could by the consent of the defendant, and not otherwise, entertain suits by the trustee against third persons to recover property conveyed by the bankrupt before the institution of the bankruptcy proceedings. It is sufficient to say of that case that it was decided under the terms of the act before the amendments of 1903 and 1910, respectively, to which we have referred, and which give concurrent jurisdiction to the state and federal courts. The District Court also cited Harris v. Mt. Pleasant First Nat. Bank, (1910) 216 U. S. 382 [30 S. Ct. 296, 54 U. S. (L. ed.) 528], wherein no transfer of the bankrupt's property was alleged in the petition. The suit was one by the trustee to recover securities of the bankrupt, alleged to be held by the bank for the security of an overdraft which, it is averred, had been paid; and also to recover certain notes alleged to have been paid by the bankrupt. The opinion of the District Court shows that it really considered the merits of the case in reaching the conclusion that it was without jurisdiction. As this court has not infrequently said, jurisdiction must be determined not upon the conclusion on the merits of the action, but upon consideration of the grounds upon which federal jurisdiction is invoked."

Process running into another district.—A suit in a federal District Court, whose territorial limits include the property, to set aside a transfer by a bankrupt as a voidable preference and to recover the property transferred, or its value, is a local one, within the meaning of the Judicial Code, § 54 (see vol. 5, p. 523), which enables the court in such suits to reach a defendant who resides in another district in the same state, by original process sent to and served in the district of his residence; and such a suit, apart from the terms of the Bankruptcy Act, is excepted by section 41 (see vol. 5, p. 486) of the Judicial Code from the general provision that a defendant may not be sued in any district other than that of which he is an inhabitant. Collett v. Adams, (1919) 249 U. S. 545, 39 S. Ct. 372, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —.

Pendency of action in state court.—The pendency in a state court of a suit for fraud and deceit in which an attachment of defendant's property was sought does not exclude the jurisdiction of a federal District Court of a subsequent suit by the defendant's trustee in bankruptcy, not a party to the prior suit, to avoid, as a preferential transfer, a conveyance of such property to the plaintiff in such prior suit, made for the purpose of settling that suit, but with a stipulation that if defendant was not adjudged a bankrupt on a petition presented within four months after the transfer was recorded plaintiff should dismiss the suit and pay the unpaid costs, and that if, on a petition so filed, defendant was adjudged a bankrupt, plaintiff should have the right to prosecute the suit to judgment and to enforce all liens acquired through the attachment. Collett v. Adams, (1919) 249 U. S. 545, 39 S. Ct. 372, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —.

V. SUMMARY AND PLENARY JURISDICTION (p. 770)

Necessity of plenary action.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Phoenix Planing Mill, (N. D. Ga. 1918) 250 Fed. 898; In re Joseph R. Marquette, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 419, 166 C. C. A. 51.

Determination of title to land.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see In re Moose River Lumber Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 251 Fed. 409.

Good-faith assertion of title and right of possession constitute an adverse claim, as distinguished from a "proceeding in bankruptcy," and entitle the claimant to a plenary hearing, but only the kind of plenary hearing that would fit the situation. Story, etc., Piano Co. v. Holmes, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 565, 163 C. C. A. 559.

Summary jurisdiction.—To same effect as first paragraph of original annotation, see In re Joseph R. Marquette, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 419, 166 C. C. A. 51.

Property in possession of trustee.—It is essential to the summary jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court to prevent interference with a lease made by the bankrupt, and to determine any adverse claims thereto, that possession of the lease was in the trustee at the time he filed his petition asking the protection of the court in making the sale of the lease and its delivery. Lowhead v. Monroe Bldg. Co., (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 758, 164 C. C. A. 598.

Order for payment of surrender value of insurance policy.—An order requiring a bankrupt to pay or secure to the trustee the cash surrender value of an insurance policy, under the terms of which the beneficiary may be changed, is not a summary proceeding against such beneficiary, as the order does not affect her rights. Richter v. Rockhold, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 941, 165 C. C. A. 383.

Accounts belonging to creditor.—The owner of accounts for goods sold through the bankrupt as agent may recover the same from the trustee by petition in the bankruptcy proceedings, and is not obliged to bring a plenary action therefor. International Agricultural Corp. v. Sparks, (W. D. S. C. 1917) 250 Fed. 318.

Set-off after filing of petition.—A bank coming into possession of funds of a bankrupt through deposit with it after the petition against him was filed, cannot set up its claim of right to apply such sum to the bankrupt's debt to it on a note. A plenary suit is not necessary in such a case, but the delivery to the trustee of the bankrupt's property so acquired and held by the bank after the court's control of it attached, may be ordered in a summary proceeding. Reed v. Barnett National Bank, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 983 163 C. C. A. 233.

VI. JURISDICTION OF STATE COURTS (p. 772)

Construction of will.—A state trial court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit by a trustee in bankruptcy to construe a will under which the bankrupt is claimed to be a devisee. Scott v. Gillespie, (1918) 103 Kan. 745, 176 Pac. 132.

Partition.—A state court has jurisdiction of a partition suit by a trustee against the bankrupt's wife. Harlin v. American Trust Co., (Ind. App. 1918) 119 N. E. 20.

Recovery of land and notes given for rent.—Where in a suit in equity by the bankrupt's trustee against an adverse claimant to recover a tract of land and certain notes given by the tenant for the rent of it, the general scope of the bill is to the effect that, many years prior to the bankruptcy, the father of the bankrupt, who is the defendant, made a parol gift of the land to the bankrupt, who entered into possession of the land, made valuable and permanent improvements thereon on the faith of the gift, and that under the laws of the state the bankrupt became vested with a complete title thereto, and the bankrupt and defendant denied that a parol gift of the land had been made and insisted that the bankrupt's possession was by permission and with the consent of the defendant, it was held that if there was a gift of the land, the title still was in the bankrupt and he had made no transfer of it which a court of equity could cancel and that the trustee's remedy was by a suit in the proper state court to recover the land. Flanders v. Coleman, (D. C. S. D. Ga. 1918) 249 Fed. 757.

Where it is claimed that the bankrupt's father made a gift of certain land to him, which claim is denied, and it appears that the bankrupt executed a lease of the land taking notes for the rent, the rent notes represent the mesne profits or issues of the land, and their ownership and right of possession to same follow the ownership of the land. Flanders v. Coleman, (D. C. S. D. Ga. 1918) 249 Fed. 757.

II. Controversies arising in bankruptcy proceedings.

III. Review by United States Supreme Court direct from United States District Court.

II. CONTROVERSIES ARISING IN BANKRUPTCY PROCEEDINGS (p. 776)

Decisions held appealable.—In the following cases decisions were expressly or impliedly held to be appealable to the Circuit Court of Appeals under this section:

An order setting aside a deed of trust on the ground that it is a voidable preference. Bridgeton Nat. Bank v. Way, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 731, 165 C. C. A. 325.

The question of the validity of an alleged mechanic's lien on a bankrupt's property and its priority, if valid, over the lien of a trust deed in the nature of a mortgage raised by what was properly treated by the parties as an intervening petition of the lien claimant to establish his lien and the answers thereto of the trustee in bankruptcy and the trustee under the trust deed, involves a controversy arising in a proceeding in bankruptcy, which is reviewable only by appeal under this section. Feick v. Stephens, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 191, 162 C. C. A. 327.

Presentation and reservation in lower court of ground of objection.—A claimant's failure to take steps in the District Court to secure a review of the finding of the referee master, disallowing a part of the claim, precludes the consideration thereof by the Circuit Court of Appeals on appeal. Feick v. Stevens, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 185, 162 C. C. A. 321.

Time limit for appeal.—Where brick manufactured by the bankrupt were claimed by a lessee, and his petition to be given possession was opposed by one who had made advances to the bankrupt, it was held that an appeal from an order granting the petition could be taken within six months under section 24-a and was not limited to ten days by section 25-a. Ragland Bank v. Hudson, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 241, 159 C. C. A. 335.

III. REVIEW BY UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT DIRECT FROM UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT (p. 785)

Jurisdiction of District Court in issue.—In Collett v. Adams, (1919) 249 U. S. 545, 39 S. Ct. 372, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, the court determined the certified question of jurisdiction of the district of a certain suit by a trustee in bankruptcy to recover a voidable preference under section 60-b of the Bankruptcy Act; and in Flanders v. Coleman, (1919) 250 U. S. 223, 41 S. Ct. —, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, a suit by such trustee to set aside preferences under section 60-b, and transfers under sections 67-e and 70-a.

Appeal or petition to revise as exclusive or optional right.—An order denying a claim as a lien against a bankrupt estate, when determined on issues of fact, is not reviewable on a petition to superintend and revise, but must be brought up by appeal. Luck v. Staples, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 637.

Appeal treated as petition to revise.—Although an appeal has not been filed within the required time it will not be dismissed if the question it raises is a question of law, and it has been filed within the time allowed for the filing of a petition to revise. In such a case the appeal may be treated as a petition to revise. Graham v. Faith, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 32, 165 C. C. A. 52.

A so-called "petition for review" filed in the District Court, reciting the proceedings and conclusions of the court and alleging that such conclusion is erroneous in law, and asking that it be reviewed by the Circuit Court of Appeals, is ineffectual to bring the case into that court for any purpose. Bridgeton Nat. Bank v. Way, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 41, 165 C. C. A. 665.

Appeal united with petition.—To same effect as original annotation, see Luck v. Staples, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 637.

Questions and orders reviewable or not reviewable on petition—Order refusing to vacate adjudication.—The refusal to vacate an adjudication on motion of a creditor is reviewable by petition to revise. Armstrong v. Norris, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 253, 159 C. C. A. 347.

Order to set aside discharge.—An order denying a motion to set aside a discharge, being reviewable on petition to revise, cannot be reviewed on an appeal from the order granting the discharge. In re White, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 115, 160 C. C. A. 255.

Orders in contempt proceedings.—An order of the District Court dismissing a rule to show cause why a bankrupt should not be adjudged in contempt for failure and refusal to comply with the order of the referee to turn a certain sum of money to the trustee, is not reviewable by a petition to revise. Galbraith v. Rosenstein, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 445, 162 C. C. A. 515.

An order of a court of bankruptcy concerning the commitment of a bankrupt for contempt for not complying with an order to turn over to his trustee property belonging to the bankrupt estate is reviewable only by petition to revise under this section. Horton v. Mendelsohn, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 185.

Refusal of confirmation of composition.—An order dismissing a petition for confirmation of a proposed composition, predicated wholly upon the proposition of law that the proposed offer was not a composition within the meaning of the Bankruptcy Act, and in no manner involved the right of the bankrupt to be discharged, involves a matter of law arising in the bankruptcy proceedings, and is reviewable in the Circuit Court of Appeals upon petition to review and revise, and not on appeal. In re Graham, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 93, 164 C. C. A. 205.

Interlocutory orders.—While the Circuit Court of Appeals has the power to revise interlocutory proceedings in bankruptcy, the resort to that court is not favored when the matter can be raised by appeal or petition from the order or decree finally disposing of the matter. In re Horowitz, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 106, 162 C. C. A. 278.

Where the question of the right of the clerk of the court to receive the rents from the property of a bankrupt is raised in both an appeal from a chancery case involving the matter and a petition for review in the bankruptcy proceedings, and it has been favorably decided on the appeal in the chancery case, it becomes a moot question and no further decision will be rendered thereon. Ward v. Central Trust Co., (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 127, 164 C. C. A. 239.

The surrender of leasehold premises by a trustee in bankruptcy in pursuance to a decree in proceedings on his petition to quiet his title is not a voluntary abandonment and does not render the question moot on a hearing of an appeal from the petition, as in case of a reversal he would be entitled to reobtain possession. Towhead v. Monroe Bldg. Co., (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 758, 164 C. C. A. 578.

Orders of a miscellaneous character in the past few years expressly or impliedly held reviewable on petition are as follows:

An order for the sale of a bankrupt's real estate freed and discharged from the wife's inchoate right of dower, with provision in substance that she should be paid from the proceeds such compensation as the court might thereafter determine to be just. Relly v. Minor, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 115, 164 C. C. A. 227.

A decree of the District Court denying a referee's jurisdiction to investigate the merits of a bill brought by a trustee in bankruptcy to avoid certain conveyances made by the bankrupt. In re Weidhorne, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 28, 165 C. C. A. 48.

Filing of petition.—A petition for revision, filed only with the clerk but treated by the referee as filed with him, is as effective as if it had first been filed with that officer and later by him filed with the clerk. In re Wood, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 246, 160 C. C. A. 324.

Time for filing petition—In general.—The date of the entry of an order, not the date the order bears, is the date from which the time for the filing of a petition for revision is computed. In re Wood, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 246, 160 C. C. A. 324.

Under a standing rule of court.—A petition to revise, not filed within ten days as required by rule 38 of the Circuit Court of Appeals, Second Circuit, will be dismissed. In re Armann, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 483, 159 C. C. A. 537.

Extension of time for filing.—A petition to revise brought within an extension of the time allowed by the rules will be heard. In re Armann, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 954.

"Petition by any party aggrieved."—An alleged bankrupt has no standing in the appellate court to complain of an order for the examination of his wife, he not being the party aggrieved within the meaning of this section. In re Werdenfeld, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 679, 166 C. C. A. 175.

Agreement for review by petition.—Where the parties are agreed that a petition to revise an order relative to the trustee's title to certain leasehold property is the proper method for review and it is immaterial to the result reached, the court will adopt that view and will dismiss an appeal. Lawhead v. Monroe Bldg. Co., (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 758, 164 C. C. A. 598.

Scope of review.—On a petition to review a referee's order in bankruptcy, affirmed in the District Court, the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court of Appeals is limited to the facts as found by the referee and in the trial court. Whitney Cent. Trust, etc., Bank v. U. S. Constr. Co., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 784, 163 C. C. A. 116.

"Matter of law."—To same effect as original annotations, see Hunter v. J. G. Cherry Co., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 458, 159 C. C. A. 512; In re Wood, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918), 258 Fed. 246, 160 C. C. A. 324; Matter of Stitt, (1918) 252 Fed. 1; In re Canister Co., (C. C. A. 3d Cir.) 252 Fed. 70, 164 C. C. A. 182, affirming (D. C. N. A. 3d Cir. 1918), 250 Fed. 75, 162 C. C. A. 247, also holding that the Circuit Court of Appeals will not review on a petition to revise under this section an approved turnover order made in a proceeding in which disputed questions of fact were involved.

Disputed question of fact.—Questions of fact are not reviewed on a petition to revise. Sauve v. M. L. More Invest. Co., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 642, 160 C. C. A. 542.

In proceedings to revise under section 24b of the Bankruptcy Act the court cannot determine questions of fact involved in the finding or order sought to be reviewed, where there is any evidence to support them. In re Wood, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 246, 160 C. C. A. 324.

The petition to revise authorized by section 24b of the Bankruptcy Law cannot involve controverted questions of fact arising upon the evidence, or upon inferences to be drawn from the evidence. In re Lee, 182 Fed. 579, 105 C. C. A. 117; In re Frank, 182 Fed. 794, 105 C. C. A. 226; Hall v. Reynolds, 224 Fed. 103, 109 C. C. A. 659. The question whether the bankrupts had their principal place of business at Cedar Rapids is such a question. There was abundant evidence to support the decision of the trial court. This is true, not only of the direct testimony, but of the inferences properly to be drawn from all the evidence. Hunter v. J. G. Cherry Co., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 458, 159 C. C. A. 512.

Where the allowance or rejection of a claim depends on the determination of a disputed question of fact, it cannot be reviewed on a petition to superintend and revise, such a method of review being confined to questions of law. King Lumber Co. v. National Exch. Bank, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 946, 165 C. C. A. 388.

A proceeding by the trustee to set aside a mortgage as a preference involves a determination of questions of fact, and therefore appeal is the proper remedy and a petition to revise will be dismissed. Bassett v. Evans, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 532, 165 C. C. A. 202.

The question whether a chattel mortgage asserted by the mortgagee against the estate of the bankrupt mortgagor is fraudulent and void is one of fact which can be reviewed by the Circuit Court of Appeals only by appeal under section 25a, and not by a proceeding to superintend and revise under section 24b. In re Russell, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 95, 159 C. C. A. 313.

Whether a creditor receiving a conveyance had reason to believe that a preference would thereby be created so as to invalidate the conveyance under section 60b is a question of fact which will not be reviewed on petition to revise. In re Armann, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918), 247 Fed. 954.

Discretionary orders.—An order on a petition to reopen a bankrupt estate, involving a question of law, is properly reviewable by petition to revise, but as the proceeding is in its nature discretionary, the power of review is limited to considering whether there was an abuse of discretion. In re Graff, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 997, 163 C. C. A. 247.

In In re Horowitz, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 160, 162 C. C. A. 278, it was held that an order relieving against a trustee's default under a stipulation that the application for discharge should be heard on a certain day and on the failure of the trustee to object the referee should report in favor of the discharge, was within the discretion of the District Court, and that it was impossible to say that there was an abuse of this discretion, i. e., unreasonable departure from considered precedents and settled judicial custom, which is error of law.

What are "bankruptcy proceedings."—A petition by a trustee to have a deed by the bankrupt declared to be a mortgage and the land sold subject thereto is not a "bankruptcy proceeding" but is appealable under the general appellate jurisdiction of the Circuit Court of Appeals. Sauve v. M. L. More

Invest. Co., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 642, 160 C. C. A. 542.

Questions considered and determined in general.—When it is assumed on both sides that an order affirming an assessment against stockholders by the referee when they were not parties to the record in any formal way, is a final order subject to appeal, the court will not consider that question but will proceed to the events. Thomas v. Goodman, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 39, 165 C. C. A. 449.

The liability of petitioning creditors who have wrongfully procured the appointment of a receiver, being regarded as presenting a controversy arising in bankruptcy between them and the adverse interests, rather than a step in the administration of the estate, it has been held that an appeal is the proper remedy. The court, however, further said: "This is not to say that there might not be cases in which a petition to revise would properly present an analogous question, but only that, in this case, the issue is so far outside the ordinary administration of the estate and so far between adversary parties in interest as to constitute a real controversy. However, questions as to the distribution of the fund are necessarily involved as collateral to the other issue, and each of the petitions to revise discloses jurisdiction. All motions to dismiss are therefore denied." In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

Plenary actions to recover money only, which it is alleged has been paid as a preference in favor of a principal and surety, are actions at law, and therefore properly reviewable on writ of error. Turner v. Schaeffer, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 654.

Presentation and reservation in lower court of ground of review.—A claim that a specification of objections to a discharge was insufficient because of generality may not be made on appeal where no exception was taken on that ground in the court below, and the questions intended to be raised were fully gone into before the special master and the District Judge. In re Singer, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 51, 163 C. C. A. 301.

Questions of fact—Findings of referee or master.—The decision of a master or referee should not be interfered with unless it is clearly and manifestly erroneous. One who sees the witnesses and hears them is better able to judge of their credibility than one who reviews their testimony as it appears only after having been reduced to writing. In re Nejour, (N. D. Ga. 1917) 251 Fed. 677.

Concurrent findings of referee or jury and court below.—Where a finding of fact by a referee has been concurred in by the District Court, it will be affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals unless it is clearly shown to be wrong. In re Turpin Hotel Co., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 25, 160 C. C. A. 165; In re Model Incubator Co., (C. C. A. 2nd Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 76, 166 C. C. A. 404; Dothan Nat. Bank v. Jones, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 332, 166 C. C. A. 502.

Exclusiveness of remedy.—In In re Greer, (W. D. Ky. 1918) 248 Fed. 131, it was said: "It was distinctly held by the Circuit Court of Appeals of this circuit, in the Case of Ives, 113 Fed. 911, 51 C. C. A. 541, that there is no way open to creditors to contest an adjudication in a voluntary proceeding except as the act gives it. This ruling was followed by this court in the case of R. H. Pennington & Co., (D. C.) 228 Fed. 388, 35 Am. Bankr. Rep. 832, and we suppose, when the adjudication of bankruptcy was made on October 3d, the question of jurisdiction was finally adjudged, subject to allowable appellate proceedings, either by petition for a review under section 24 or appeal under section 25a of the act. We say this because it may be conceivable that within a reasonable time a creditor might show grounds upon which an adjudication might be set aside, if there had been a fraud upon the jurisdiction of the court, and through this means or otherwise it might be that grounds for a review or for an appeal might be made available."

Instructions to jury as error.—Error is not predicable on the court's remarks or its charge to the jury, where the calling of the jury was on the court's own motion. In such a case, the verdict of the jury is not of binding force, but is advisory to the court as in issues of chancery. Morrison v. Riemann, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1917) 249 Fed. 97, 161 C. C. A. 148.

Findings of referee or master.—In In re Lally, (N. D. N. Y. 1919) 255 Fed. 358, in confirming a report of a special master recommending discharge, the court said: "The findings of fact of a special master, or of a referee, in bankruptcy matters, stand in substantially the same position before the court as does the verdict of a jury. They are not to be disturbed, unless unsupported by the evidence or against the weight thereof."

Exclusiveness of remedy by appeal.—To same effect as original annotation, see King Lumber Co. v. National Exch. Bank, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 946, 165 C. C. A. 388.

What constitutes a "debt or claim."—Judgment rejecting lien.—A proceeding to establish a lien on a bankrupt's property is a regular proceeding in bankruptcy under section 2, clause 7 of the Bankruptcy Act, and within the meaning of this section regulating appeals in bankruptcy proceedings; and a judgment rendered thereon is not a judgment "allowing or rejecting a debt or claim," and is not an independent ground of appeal. Whitney Cent. Trust, etc., Bank v. United States Constr. Co., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 784, 163 C. C. A. 116.

An order disallowing a debt and disallowing it as a secured claim was reviewed and affirmed on appeal in Luck v. Staples, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 637.

Validity of chattel mortgage.—The question whether a chattel mortgage asserted by the mortgagee against the estate of the bankrupt mortgagor is fraudulent and void is one of fact which can be reviewed by the Circuit Court of Appeals only by appeal under section 25a, and not by a proceeding to superintend and revise under section 24b. In re Russell, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 95, 159 C. C. A. 313.

Vol. I, p. 829, sec. 25a (3). [Time for taking appeal—hearing.] [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 635.]

Order not within section.—Where brick manufactured by the bankrupt were claimed by a lessee, and his petition to be given possession was opposed by one who had made advances to the bankrupt, an appeal from an order granting the petition may be taken within six months under section 24a and is not limited to ten days by section 25a. Ragland Bank v. Hudson, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 241, 159 C. C. A. 355.

Vol. I, p. 838, sec. 25c. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 641.]

Necessity of giving supersedeas bond.—Although an appellate court may consider an appeal or writ of error by a trustee to review a judgment or decree, even if he gives no supersedeas bond, yet this section does not relieve him of the obligation of giving such a bond as required by R. S. secs. 1000 and 1007, and if given, it is enforceable. Pacific Coast Casualty Co. v. Harvey, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 952, 163 C. C. A. 202.

III. WRITS OF CERTIORARI (p. 840)

Cases in Circuit Court of Appeals "to superintend and revise."—Decisions in such cases were reviewed on certiorari in Cohn v. Malone, (1919) 248 U. S. 450, 39 S. Ct. 141, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —; Richmond v. Bird, (1919) 249 U. S. 174, 39 S. Ct. 186, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —.

Vol. I, p. 844, sec. 29b (1). [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 646.]

v. U. S., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 42, 163 C. C. A. 292.

Concealment of firm assets.—If a member of a partnership, with the knowledge and consent of his associates in the firm, withdraws assets belonging to it, intending to make the assets so withdrawn a part of his individual estate, they become so far a part of that individual's estate that upon his bankruptcy individually and as a member of the firm the trustee appointed to administer the estate would be entitled to take possession of such property and the proceeds thereof as "property belonging to his estate in bankruptcy" and a concealment of such assets constitutes a violation of this section. Malvin v. U. S., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 449, 164 C. C. A. 373.

A partnership is a "person" within the meaning of this section and the members thereof are answerable for the concealment of partnership property although they have not been individually adjudged bankrupts. Conetto v. U. S., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 42, 163 C. C. A. 292.

Conspiracy to conceal.—To same effect as original annotation, see Malvin v. U. S., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 449, 164 C. C. A. 373.

Indictment—Allegation of exemption under state laws.—An indictment under this section need not allege that the property concealed was not exempt from execution under a state law as it does not contain any express exception or refer to the exemptions of the bankrupt, and it is well settled that unless the statute enacting an offense so defines such defense that the latter cannot properly be described without negotiating a violation of such section need not negative the exception. The fact that section 6 of the Bankruptcy Act allows the exceptions provided for by the state laws does not alter the rule. U. S. v. Greenbaum, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 252 Fed. 259.

Description of property concealed.—Where an indictment under this section describes the property alleged to have been fraudulently concealed as "a certain large portion of his property . . . consisting of money and merchandise," stating the value and alleging that a more particular description is unknown, and the bill of particulars shows that the property is all of the property belonging to him on a certain date, except the portion which he subsequently turned over or accounted for to the trustee, the description is sufficient reasonably to inform the defendant as to what particular property is meant, and to protect him, in the event of an acquittal, from a subsequent prosecution on the same charge. U. S. v. Greenbaum, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 252 Fed. 259.

Continuing concealment after bankruptcy.—An indictment is sufficient which describes the property and charges that the same belonged to the bankrupt estate of the defendants, and was in their possession and under their control and was concealed by them, and that "neither they nor either of them have disclosed to the trustee the possession of the said merchandise by them, and have not turned over and delivered the same to the trustee or accounted to him for the same; that at the time of concealment they well knew the same to be the property of the bankrupt estate, and that no accounting has been made to the trustee thereof." Conetto v. U. S., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 42, 163 C. C. A. 292.

The mode of the alleged concealment is immaterial and need not be set forth in the indictment. Hence, it is sufficient to allege a concealment by using the word "conceal," without stating how and in what manner the alleged concealment was accomplished, this though section 1a(22) of the Act provides that the word "conceal" shall include secrete, falsify, and mutilate. U. S. v. Greenbaum, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 252 Fed. 259.

Indictment as compulsory accounting.—Where it is shown that shortly before the filing of a petition in bankruptcy, the bankrupt owned certain property, and that such property was not subsequently accounted for as turned over to the trustee, the inference that such property has been concealed by the bankrupt is justified. Hence, an indictment alleging that on a certain date the bankrupt had in his possession certain property, having a certain value, and that when he became a bankrupt a few months later the aggregate of all the property which he turned over to his trustee was much less than that which he owned on the date first mentioned, states a case and is not open to the objection that it merely seeks to compel the defendant to make an accounting and does not charge a crime. U. S. v. Greenbaum, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 252 Fed. 259.

Exclusion of other prosecutions.—False swearing in a proceeding in bankruptcy is punishable under section 29b(2) of the Bankruptcy Act and not under section 125 of the Penal Code. Rosenthal v. U. S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 684, 160 C. C. A. 584.

False oath — Failure to state all of assets.—When a bankrupt undertakes to answer a question by which it is sought to ascertain the nature and amount of his assets, and fails to state all of his assets, such failure is equivalent to swearing to a statement of assets which is incomplete. U. S. v. Gray, (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 255 Fed. 98.

Proof avoiding limitation.—It must appear that the offense was committed within one year before the indictment. Rosenthal v. U.

S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 684, 160 C. C. A. 584, where no evidence was given as to the date when the accused testified.

Vol. I, p. 852, sec. 30a. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 652.]

Rule XXI, (vol. 1, p. 856) requires that "all such depositions" (to prove debts existing in open account) "shall contain an averment that no note has been received for such account, nor any judgment rendered thereon."

Referees are judicial officers exercising the powers of the court to a large extent. In re McNeil Corporation, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 765.

Mode of review.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Petersen, (D. C. Nev. 1917) 252 Fed. 846.

Taking exceptions before referee.—Exceptions are special demurrers to the report and must point out, article by article, the matter objected to and the cause of objection. Vagueness and generality are good grounds for overruling them. Cases are referred to a master to economize time, and if general exceptions are permitted the court would have to review the whole case, and the effect of the reference thus be lost. In re Association Dairy Co., (D. C. Conn. 1918) 251 Fed. 749.

Scope of review.—An order referring a matter to a referee is not subject to review on a petition to review the referee's finding and order, as such a procedure would in effect be making an order to review an order already made. In re Graff, (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 255 Fed. 239.

On a petition by the trustee to review an order of the referee allowing the bankrupt certain exemptions in wages, certain other exemptions claimed by the bankrupt out of his wages in lieu of other property exempted to the head of a family which were disallowed will also be considered. In re French, (W. D. Wash. 1918) 250 Fed. 644.

Determination on review — Evidence not properly a part of the record.—Testimony given by a bankrupt before the referee which was not properly made a part of the record, may be disregarded by the court on the hearing of a petition to review the order of the referee disallowing claims. In re Anderson, (D. C. R. I. 1918) 252 Fed. 272.

Weight dependent on character of evidence.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Blanchard, (D. C. N. J.) 1918) 253 Fed. 758.

Where the question before a referee for determination is mainly if not entirely one of deduction from established facts and does not turn chiefly upon questions of credibility arising from conflicting evidence, his conclusion in a second report differing from that in an earlier report, the district judge is warranted in drawing his own conclusions from admitted facts and evidence, little influenced by the last report of the referee. Sterling v. Cohen, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1918) 354 Fed. 1, 165 C. C. A. 411.

Presumptions on review of order.—An order of a referee in bankruptcy implies a fact finding adequate to support the order made. Therefore it will be presumed from an order of a referee holding that a lien based on the levy of an execution which was attempted to be asserted eight months after the levy could not be recognized, that there was a finding of fact that the delay was unusual and that nothing was shown to justify it. In re Rayford Truck Co., (E. D. Pa. 1918) 250 Fed. 634.

Examination of witnesses—General rule. To the same effect as the original annotation, see In re Neuman, (D. C. Mont. 1917) 251 Fed. 667.

Weight of evidence.—The credit which should be attached to oral testimony of witnesses appearing before a referee, and the weight which he should attach to sweeping denials of actual knowledge of matters concerning which knowledge or inquiry are to be expected, are matters to be finally determined by the referee. In re Anderson, (D. C. R. I. 1918) 252 Fed. 272.

Authority to perform duties of court—Discharges of bankrupts.—A referee in bankruptcy has no power under this section to interfere in regard to matters of discharge, but the court may, notwithstanding this section, refer matters arising out of a bankrupt's application for discharge to the referee. In such cases, however, the referee acts only as a special master and not as referee. In re Walsh, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 653.

Review of order appointing trustee.—The court, while disinclined to set aside the order of a referee approving the appointment of a trustee, will do so in case of clear error, and in so doing will remand the case for further action by the referee rather than make the appointment itself. In re Parsons Mfg. Co., (D. C. Mass. 1917) 247 Fed. 126.

Costs—Authority to tax.—The prevailing party on an order to a common law assignee to show cause why he should not pay over certain money alleged to be improperly withheld, is not entitled to costs, unless the other party is "in mercy" so that the court can require the payment of costs as a condition of granting its further aid, and the referee is without authority to tax the cost bill or to order it paid out of the bankrupt's estate. In re Reiswig, (D. C. N. D. 1918) 253 Fed. 390.

Furnishing copies of testimony.—Where in the course of an investigation under section 21a of this act, the testimony of a large number of witnesses has been taken stenographically before the referee, without notice to and in the absence of the bankrupt, the latter is entitled to a copy thereof on payment of the required fees. Petition of Moulthrop, (C. Making up records.—The Bankruptcy Act contemplates that the record on review shall be made up by the referee, and certified by him to the bankruptcy court. In re Petersen, (D. C. Nev. 1917) 252 Fed. 846.

Summary of evidence.—On the review of an order of a referee denying the claim of the bankrupt's wife alleged to have been based on fraud, if the existence of fraud is still an issue in the case, there should be a detailed summary of the evidence, and not a mere statement of legal conclusions in relation to the alleged fraud. And an agreement as to what conclusions should be drawn from the evidence does not afford sufficient data for the court to determine whether there has been a misstatement of the evidence, in the absence of such summary. In re Petersen, (D. C. Nev. 1917) 252 Fed. 846.

Services of referee as special master.—In the absence of a stipulation of the parties providing for a higher rate of compensation than that allowed by the court rules to a referee when acting as special master concerning matters not devolving upon him by virtue of his office, his compensation is limited to that prescribed by the rules, and the court will not approve any additional charges. In re Grove Construction Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 961.

Referee's expenses.—The determination of the referee's expenses under this act is within the general jurisdiction of the court which has the power on investigation to determine the actual expenses and to authorize a charge therefor. In re McNeil Corporation, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 765.

Clerical assistance.—In regard to the employment of clerks, it has been said: "It would be wholly impossible for a referee, whose duties require the constant employment of two clerks to perform them properly, to do that work unassisted in addition to his judicial duties under the act. To limit the number of cases sent to a referee to those in which he was personally able to perform the clerical work required would be to put the referee on the basis of mere clerks, which I do not think the act intends. . . . In view of General Order 26, it seems clear that the Supreme Court understood that the referee had the power to employ clerks if necessary in the performance of his duties; and there are many decisions of lower courts to the same effect. In re McNeil Corporation, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 765.

Maintenance of office.—The expense of the maintenance of an office by a referee is ordinarily a proper one, dependent on the conditions in the particular locality. In re McNeil Corporation, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 765.

Method of computing general expenses.—The charge for clerical or general expense may be arrived at on the basis of a general average, covering numerous cases. In re McNeil Corporation, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 765.

Collateral attack on allowance to referee.—Orders made by the court for charges for referee's costs and expenses cannot be collaterally attacked and the clerk is bound to obey and recognize them. In re McNeil Corporation, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 765, wherein the court further said: "If the Department of Justice desires to question such orders or expenses, it should do so by intervening in a bankruptcy case and attacking them directly, if it has standing to do so—which I doubt. It would seem to me that the questions are to be dealt with by the Supreme Court under General Orders if it sees fit to do so; otherwise, by the District Courts."

An order fixing and allowing compensation to a referee in bankruptcy is a judicial order, and like any other order allowing a claim against a bankrupt estate is subject to review for error therein. Consequently even though error was committed in making an order granting an allowance it cannot be corrected in a purely collateral action at law to recover from the referee and his bondsmen. U. S. v. Brainard, (E. D. Okla. 1918) 250 Fed. 1011.

Contempt for failure to turn over assets.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Joseph R. Marquette, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 419, 166 C. C. A. 51.

Turn-over proceedings and proceedings for contempt distinguished.—Turn-over proceedings and proceedings for contempt for violating a turn-over order were distinguished in Frederich v. Silverman, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 75, 162 C. C. A. 247. In a turn-over proceeding the issue is whether the bankrupt had property within his possession or control at the date of bankruptcy which he had retained and concealed from his trustee. Being fundamental, this issue must be raised and decided first. When the court has determined this issue against the bankrupt, and when the bankrupt has failed to comply with the court's order to turn over, the next proceeding is one of contempt. In the contempt proceeding, the question of the bankrupt's possession and concealment of property having previously been determined is not in issue. The only question is, whether the bankrupt is presently able to comply with the court's order previously made, and, accordingly, whether he is defying its order. The difference in the issues of the two proceedings and the dependence of the latter upon the former compel their separate consideration and determination.

Improper interference with assets.—When an alleged bankrupt, who is in fact bankrupt, and he is conscious of the fact, after a petition has been filed against him, deliberately appropriates the money belonging to the bankrupt estate to his own use, spends it in living expenses for himself and family, and in the purchase of clothing for himself, and in payments on claims against himself, debts owing by him, and then shows his financial inability to return it, he may be punished for criminal contempt. In re Mardenfeld, (N. D. N. Y. 1919) 256 Fed. 920.

Institution of suit as contempt.—A creditor of the bankrupt, though having a dischargeable claim against the latter, does not become guilty of contempt of the bankruptcy court merely by taking proceedings in another court to enforce such claim, even with knowledge that the bankrupt has obtained his discharge. The bankruptcy court not having forbidden such creditor to institute and carry out such proceedings, it cannot be said that a creditor who takes such action has committed a contempt. Certainly he would not be guilty of contempt of this court in disregarding its orders or proceedings of which he was without knowledge. In re Weisberg, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 253 Fed. 833.

Review by judge—Approval by referee of trustee.—The court, while disinclined to set aside the order of a referee approving the appointment of a trustee, will do so in case of clear error, and in so doing will remand the case for further action by the referee rather than make the appointment itself. In re Parsons Mfg. Co., (D. C. Mass. 1917) 247 Fed. 126.

"The practice of permitting individual creditors, who conceive themselves aggrieved by the action of the referee in approving the election of a trustee, to take review in their own names, is too well settled in this district to be disregarded (see In re Kellar, infra; In re Rosenfeld-Goldman Co. [D. C. Mass.] 36 Am. Bankr. Rep. 520, 228 Fed. 921; In re William J. Snow [No. 20983] 248 Fed. 295; In re Max Grat [D. C. Mass.] 36 Am. Bankr. Rep. 524, 228 Fed. 925), especially as it has received the silent approval of the Court of Appeals for this circuit (In re Kellar [C. C. A. 1st Cir.] 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 715, 192 Fed. 830, 113 C. C. A. 154)." In re Parsons Mfg. Co., (D. C. Mass. 1917) 247 Fed. 126.

Improper or irregular vote for trustee—Solicitation of claims.—Where both parties to a controversy over the appointment of a trustee have gone beyond the bounds of propriety in soliciting claims but neither has been guilty of fraud, it is error to disfranchise the claims of one party while permitting those of the other to be voted. In re Parsons Mfg. Co., (D. C. Mass. 1917) 247 Fed. 126.

Amendment of claims.—Postponement of a meeting for the election of a trustee to permit applications to amend claims to be filed, made after the election, is within the discretion of the referee. In re Eisenberg, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 251 Fed. 427.

Adjournment of meeting.—The referee may in his discretion adjourn the first meeting from time to time, for the purpose of investigating disputed claims before the voting for trustee is completed. In re Snow, (D. C. Mass. 1915) 248 Fed. 295.

Review of facts.—Where the evidence is not on the record, the findings of the referee as to the claims must be affirmed. In re Snow, (D. C. Mass. 1915) 248 Fed. 295.

Competency of trustee—Attorney for creditors.—It is not improper to appoint as a trustee the attorney of a petitioning creditor. W. A. Lillier Bldg. Co. v. Reynolds, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 90, 159 C. C. A. 308.

Votes for interested candidate.—The fact that a candidate for trustee disputes a large claim made against him by the bankrupt may be a good reason for refusing to appoint him but it does not justify a refusal to receive votes of creditors cast for him. In re Parsons Mfg. Co., (D. C. Mass. 1917) 247 Fed. 126.

Rights of trustee generally.—This section gives to the trustee a lien or the rights of a lienholding creditor, but it does not profess to affect any existing valid lien. The order of priority of valid liens, if any, including the lien or title of the trustee, remains, as before, a matter for the adjudication of the court, according to the settled rules and principles of law and equity. American Laundry Machinery Co. v. Everybody's Laundry, (la. 1919) 171 N. W. 161.

The rights of the trustee are not affected by the fact that there are no judgment creditors. Baldwin v. Kingston, (D. C. N. J. 1918) 247 Fed. 163; Bakersfield Bank v. Moore, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 913, 160 C. C. A. 103; Riggs v. Price, (Mo. 1919) 210 S. W. 420.

The trustee has, under this provision, exactly the same standing as an attaching or other lien creditor and no more. Reeves v. York Engineering Supply Co., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 513.

Trustee's right to collect assets.—Since the amendment of 1910.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see In re Schilling, (N. D. Ohio, 1918) 251 Fed. 966; In re Schilling, (N. D. Ohio, 1918) 251 Fed. 972; Brown v. Crawford, (D. C. Ore. 1918) 252 Fed. 248.

General creditors in a bankruptcy proceeding are represented by the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Imperial Textile Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1919) 255 Fed. 199.

Chattel mortgagee as pledgee.—A trustee in bankruptcy may recover property from the possession of one holding it under an alleged chattel mortgage which is invalid as against creditors because unrecorded as required by a state law, or as pledgee where there was no delivery of possession which is essential to the pledge of chattels. In re P. J. Sullivan Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 660, 166 C. C. A. 158.

Unrecorded "trust receipt."—Where property is delivered under a "trust receipt" according to the rule in Ohio, which governs such a transaction in that state, if the trust receipt was neither verified nor filed in the recorder's office, the effect of the appointment of a receiver by the state court and his seizure of the defendant's property is to fasten the claims of creditors upon it and to give that officer control over it for the benefit of creditors as effectually as the creditors would have held it by attachment or levy and the status of the trustee in bankruptcy is similar to that of the receiver appointed by the state court. A trustee is vested, under this section, as to property delivered under a "trust receipt," in whatever form existing and as to the proceeds of the sale of such property, with all the rights, remedies and powers of a creditor holding a lien by legal or equitable proceedings thereon. In re Bettman-Johnson Co., (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 657.

Right to possession.—Since the trustee has the rights of an execution creditor a bill of sale by the bankrupt gives no right to the transferee while the bankrupt retains possession of the property. Herritt v. Clark, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 100, 159 C. C. A. 318.

A bill in equity may be maintained by the trustee in bankruptcy to obtain possession of property in the custody of another and to restrain a claimant to a part of the property from taking action to prevent the delivery of the property to the trustees, and the fact that in order to determine to what extent the claimant's action was justified it is necessary to decide the controversy does not oust the jurisdiction. Atherton v. Beaman, (D. C. Mass. 1919) 256 Fed. 871.

Rights as to fixtures.—Even though a trustee in bankruptcy has the rights of an attaching creditor and does not stand in the place of the bankrupt mortgagor, his rights in the property did not accrue before bankruptcy, and, if prior to that event the property had become annexed to the mortgaged property, his rights would not be different, whether he stood as an attaching creditor or as the bankrupt. Keefe v. Worcester Trust Co., (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 536, 165 C. C. A. 206.

A mortgagee of lands belonging to the bankrupt who consents to the removal by the bankrupt of a logging railroad thereon loses his lien, as against the trustee, on the railroad and its appurtenances. Herritt v. Clark, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 100, 159 C. C. A. 318.

Where a bankrupt so joins store fixtures which he has bought on a conditional sale contract with other fixtures belonging to him that they cannot be severed without partial destruction, his trustee cannot sever them without paying to the seller an amount sufficient to restore the fixtures belonging to him to the same state they were in prior to the changes made by the bankrupt. In re Dana, (S. D. Fla. 1918) 250 Fed. 268.

Rents of mortgaged property collected by trustee.—In construing a mortgage the federal court will give the same meaning to its words as that adopted by the state court. Therefore where the state court has laid down the rule that a mortgagee is not entitled to rents and profits of the mortgaged premises unless he takes actual possession or until possession is taken in his behalf by a receiver, the federal court will allow the receiver in bankruptcy to retain in his possession all rents due or collected by him, on property mortgaged by the bankrupt, prior to the time when the receiver appointed in the foreclosure proceedings acquired the right to possession of the premises by entry of the order of his appointment. In re Brose, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 664, 166 C. C. A. 162.

Recovery of property not scheduled or surrendered.—Where a trustee brings proceeding to compel the bankrupt to turn over property not scheduled or surrendered, he lays a foundation when he shows by any competent evidence, including the claims or assertions of the bankrupts themselves, that they had unscheduled property a reasonable time before petition filed; the bankrupt must then account for said property, or otherwise rebut the trustee's prima facie case by credible testimony. In re Chavkin, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 342.

Where a trustee brings proceedings to compel the bankrupt to turn over to him property not scheduled or surrendered, a financial statement made by the bankrupt for the purpose of obtaining credit prior to bankruptcy is admissible and is persuasive though not conclusive. In re Chavkin, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 342.

Diverted property.—A trustee may maintain an action for the recovery of property of the bankrupt which was unlawfully diverted where such action could have been maintained by the bankrupt before his bankruptcy. Miley v. Heaney, (1918) 168 Wis. 58, 169 N. W. 64.

Effect of judgment against mortgage trustee.—The holders of the bonds of a bankrupt corporation, having been represented by the trustee of the mortgage issued to secure the bonds, are bound by a decree in an action against such trustee to set aside the mortgage, declaring the bonds to be illegal and void, and on motion by the trustee in bankruptcy of the mortgagor may be compelled to surrender and deliver up the bonds. In re Franklin Brewing Co., (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 254 Fed. 910.

Bond for title.—Where by the law of the state in which land is situated there is no lienable interest in the holder of a bond for title, the lien acquired by a trustee under this section is subordinate to the claim of a creditor holding an assigned or transferred bond for title though unrecorded where recordation is not required. In re Phenix Planing Mill, (N. D. Ga. 1918) 250 Fed. 899.

Property delivered to bankrupt under trust receipt.—The status of a trustee under this section is not unlike that of a receiver appointed by a state court, and where by the state law the effect of the appointment of a receiver and his seizure of property held under an unverified and unrecorded trust receipt is to fasten the claims of creditors upon it, the trustee likewise becomes and is vested as to such property with all the rights, remedies and powers of a creditor holding a lien by legal or equitable proceedings thereon. In re Bettman-Johnson Co. (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 657, 163 C. C. A. 3.

Property omitted from mortgage by mistake.—Where property is not covered by any mortgage and there is nothing to show that it was intended to be included in the mortgage, the lien acquired by the trustee under this section is prior to that of one who merely claims that it was the intention of the owner of the property to include it in the mortgage made by him. In re Scruggs, (S. D. Ala. 1917) 252 Fed. 322.

Redemption of mortgaged property.—A trustee does not stand in the right of lien creditors as it pertains to mortgaged property sold by a sheriff more than two years before the adjudication in bankruptcy, and having no lien by reason of the provisions of this section or otherwise upon the mortgaged property, he is not in a position to exercise the right of redemption from the mortgage. Without the lien, if he redeems from the mortgage, he occupies the position of a volunteer, and would be without the right of subrogation so as to avail himself of the lien of the mortgagee. Brown v. Crawford, (D. C. Ore. 1918) 252 Fed. 248.

Right to sue.—It is not necessary for a trustee in bankruptcy to obtain an order of court authorizing him to institute suit for the collection of the debts due the estate before he may sue for the collection of such debts. Chalman v. Dodd, (Ga. App. 1919) 99 S. E. 150.

Right to intervene in suit in state court.—Where a debtor was adjudged a bankrupt shortly after proceedings were commenced against him in a state court by his creditors to set aside a conveyance made by him to his wife as fraudulent, it is proper to permit the trustee in bankruptcy to intervene on behalf of all the creditors to the end that each may get a proper share of the assets belonging to the bankrupt and subject to his debts. McCrory v. Donal, (1918) 119 Miss. 256, 80 So. 643.

Sale of property.—Sales free from incumbrances.—To same effect as original annotation, see Kelly v. Minor, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 115, 164 C. C. A. 227.

Where a tract of land, subject to an oil and gas lease, is subdivided in a proceeding in bankruptcy, and such subdivisions sold separately by the trustee to different purchasers, the purchaser of each subdivision takes the same subject to such oil and gas lease; and should the lessee in such oil and gas lease thereafter produce oil or gas from such tract of land the royalties will be payable to the owner of the subdivision upon which the wells are drilled from which such production is had. Pittsburgh & West Virginia Gas Co. v. Ankrom, (W. Va. 1918) 97 S. E. 593.

Sale subject to attachment lien.—A company whose property had been sold by a trustee in bankruptcy and the sale confirmed, subject to an attachment lien in favor of plaintiff, was held not to be in position to complain of an order sustaining his motion for judgment on the pleadings where the judgment ran only against its property and not against anyone personally. Strong v. Butte, etc., Corporation, (1918) 54 Mont. 584, 172 Pac. 1033.

Dower rights.—To same effect as original annotation, see Kelly v. Minor, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 115, 164 C. C. A. 227.

"Where a creditor may sell the real estate of his debtor clear of the wife's inchoate right of dower in the state courts, it is unjust and inequitable to creditors that such rights should be denied them in a court of bankruptcy within the same state. These views are in harmony with, and not in contravention of, the provisions of section 8(a) of the Bankruptcy Act . . . providing that, in case of death, the widow and children shall be entitled to all rights of dower and allowances fixed by the laws of the state of the bankrupt's residence. The laws of the state of Pennsylvania give a lien creditor the right to sell the real estate free of dower, and the wife is therefore not deprived of any right she would have as against a creditor having a lien on her husband's real estate under the laws of Pennsylvania." In re Kligerman, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 253 Fed. 778, disapproving In re Chatiner, (W. D. Pa. 1914) 216 Fed. 916.

Time as of which trustee takes status of creditor.—Where a bankrupt held property under a conditional sales contract which was recorded after the petition was filed but before the adjudication it was held that the reservation of title was void as against the trustee in view of this section and the New Jersey statute, which makes unrecorded agreements of this nature "absolutely void as against judgment creditors not having notice thereof." In re Capital City Cap Co., (D. C. N. J. 1918) 251 Fed. 664, wherein the court said: "The invoking of the Bankruptcy Act secured rights to the general creditors which, in the event of an adjudication, could not be avoided by any act of either Knowlton & Co. or the bankrupt subsequent to the filing of the original petition in bankruptcy. Adjudication having been obtained, the recording of the 'conditional sales agreement' after the filing of that petition, in legal effect, is the same as if a judgment had been previously recovered against the bankrupt and levy made on the property in question."

The trustee begins to occupy the status of a judgment creditor with execution returned unsatisfied as of the date when the bankruptcy proceedings are begun. If before that date possession is taken by the mortgagee under an unrecorded chattel mortgage and no liens in favor of creditors have attached, the trustee's right is inferior to that of the mortgagee. Jones v. Excelsior Springs Bank, (Mo. App. 1919) 213 S. W. 892.

Control by court.—The court has power to order the trustee to accept a payment on account of a debt to the bankrupt secured by mortgage, and to release part of the property from the mortgage in consideration thereof. In re East Stroudsburg Supply, etc., Co., (M. D. Pa. 1918) 248 Fed. 356.

Accounting for gains unlawfully made out of estate.—The trustee's paramount duty is to conserve and advance the interests of the estate intrusted to him by keeping himself clear of alliances which tempt him to make the estate's interest subordinate to his own. If he fails in this particular, he must account, not only for losses sustained by the beneficiaries, but for gains made by him in dealing with the trust estate. Consequently where it appeared that a trustee, through the medium of his wife, entered into a partnership with a salesman employed by him while he was continuing the bankrupt's business, and paid to such partnership considerable sums as commission, the share of such commission received by his wife was held to have been paid to himself and his account was surcharged by that sum. In re Webster Loose Leaf Filing Co., (D. C. N. J. 1918) 252 Fed. 959.

Commissions on reclaimed property.—A trustee's commissions where the bankrupt is a stockholder should not be calculated on funds which include either securities or their proceeds which claimants have successfully reclaimed. In re Wilson, (S. D. N. Y. 1917) 252 Fed. 631.

Receiver's expenses—Court may order expenses paid out of assets in first instance.—“Ordinarily, when the receivership ends and the assets are turned over to the trustee, the current expenses of the receiver have been paid out of the current receipts and any lawful indebtedness may be deducted from the assets which go to the trustee. There can be no doubt that such debts are a charge on those assets at that time, and if they are not paid, the assets clearly remain subject to that charge. Not only does this charge result from the nature of the case, but it is expressly recognized by the distribution section (section 64) which gives priority to those expenses which were necessary for the preservation of the property; and the expenses of the receivership fall under this class by the very language which is used with reference to the creation of the receivership. No receiver can be appointed excepting as a step in what is absolutely necessary for the preservation of the property. It follows that, in this case, the lawful debts of the receiver must be paid out of the assets in the hands of the trustee, excepting so far as claims with priority may prevail.” In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

Court may compel petitioners to pay receiver's expenses.—In cases where the receiver had never come into possession of the estate, or where there was no fund in court, excepting that which was the property of those who had always and successfully resisted the appointment of a receiver, it has been held that those who procure his appointment must pay his compensation and expenses. This doctrine apparently rests on the rule of necessity. Since there is no estate or fund which can rightly be charged, and since the expenses must be paid by some one, those causing the receivership must respond. In re Veler, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 633.

Referees' bonds in and of themselves neither create nor give any right of action to the obligee therein named or to the use of the persons for whom they are given but are in the nature of a collateral security given by the referees to insure their faithful performance of the duties imposed by law. Accordingly the United States cannot recover from referees in bankruptcy, for the benefit of private individuals, sums allowed and retained by them out of bankrupt estates in excess of the compensation provided for in this Act. U. S. v. Brainerd, (E. D. Okla. 1918) 250 Fed. 1011.

Charges by clerk for preparing and sending notice to creditors.—In regard to charges by the clerk in respect to notices it has been declared in one case: “There is one provision in the General Orders which relates solely to the clerk. General Order No. 35 (89 Fed. xii, 32 C. C. A. xii) explicitly provides that the statutory compensation of the clerks shall ‘not include * * * expenses necessarily incurred in publishing or mailing notices or other papers.’ It seems to follow that the clerk is entitled to charge the reasonable expense of preparing and sending notices required to be sent by him including the expense of clerical assistance. The present rate therefor, five cents each, represents as nearly as can be ascertained the actual cost of that work. The clerk may properly make that charge for it and it may be collected for him by the referee. The question is immaterial so far as the clerk's personal interest is concerned, because his office returns each year to the government a large surplus over and above all its expenses, including his own compensation.” In re McNeil Corporation, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 765.

Defective claims.—To the same effect as the first paragraph of the original annotation, see In re Eisenberg, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 251 Fed. 427, wherein the court said: “In each case the date was given, but this represented the date the statement was prepared, and while, in some instances, the date is given in the body of the bill or statement, the year is not given, and it cannot be presumed, as claimed by the objecting creditor, that the month indicated a purchase during that month in the year 1917. The objection may be considered technical, still I think it has legal force. Depositions to prove claims against a bankrupt estate should be correctly prepared, and indicate a date of obligation which, of necessity, excludes the possibility of the defense of the statute of limitations."

Necessity and manner of proving claims.—Creditors must file their claims with the trustee, and seek protection by appeal to the referee, rather than prosecute independent actions because of dissatisfaction with the trustee's acts. De Muth v. Faw, (1918) 103 Wash. 279, 174 Pac. 18.

Amendment of proofs.—To the same effect as original annotation, see In re Keller, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 252 Fed. 942.

Proofs filed by trustee under a mortgage in behalf of bondholders.—Where a deficiency arises on a sale under foreclosure of a mortgage given to secure an issue of bonds, and the trustee under the mortgage files, in behalf of the bondholders, a claim in bankruptcy for such deficiency, an amendment to the claim, ratifying the action of the trustee and making it a direct one by the bondholders themselves, may be allowed, it being declared that in such a case it is proper to permit the real parties in interest to take the trustee's place on the record. In re Ellis, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 483, 164 C. C. A. 399. As to the filing of the claim by the trustee the court, however, while expressing no opinion said: "The claim set forth all the facts with particularity, and expressly stated that the company was acting for the bondholders. Every one knew the facts and was aware that the company did not own the bonds and could not benefit by the balance still due on the mortgage debt. Whether it had a formal legal right to use its own name while collecting the money for the bondholders was a matter of dispute; if it had, the bondholders did not need to file individual claims, and we see no reason why they might not safely wait until that question should be finally decided. In re Standard Co., (D. C.) 186 Fed. 586. Instead of waiting, however, the bondholders assumed that the company might be wrong, and (pending the final decision) took steps to amend the claim, thus acquiring the second string for their bow. Save in the disputed point, the company's proof was complete; the objection made to it was wholly based on a rule of procedure, and had no support in the merits, for the balance was undoubtedly due to the bondholders, and the company had authority to make the claim as agent."

Who may prove claim—Former ward of bankrupt.—The mere pendency of proceedings by a ward against her guardian for the opening of the settlement of his guardianship does not preclude her from filing claims against his estate in bankruptcy, as there is no inconsistency in seeking to have the guardianship settlement opened and claiming that her former guardian or his bankrupt estate is liable on a note which he had given her for an amount admitted to be due her. Beavan v. Stuart, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 972, 163 C. C. A. 222.

Effect of proving claims—In general.—Where a contractor for school district work prior to his entering into the contract assigned all amounts coming to him from the school district to a bank and carried that assignment into effect by delivering the warrants to the bank, a subcontractor's right under state laws to maintain an action to enforce payment out of the moneys coming to the contractor, warrants on which had been assigned, is not lost by his filing proof of his claim in the estate of the bankrupt contractor as an unsecured debt and his receiving dividends from such estate. Baker Lumber Co. v. A. A. Clark Co., (Utah, 1919) 178 Pac. 764.

Claims founded on written instruments—Loans made by checks.—Loans made to the bankrupt in the form of checks cannot be said to be founded on an instrument in writing so as to require the filing of the checks with proof of the claim for such loan, as the check is merely a medium by payment. In re Keller, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 252 Fed. 942.

Claims founded on note.—The note of a bankrupt indorsed by a claimant, with payments made to the payee also indorsed thereon, filed in the cause in connection with the proof of claim of such payee, must be held to have been filed in behalf of both the payee and indorser, as it is obvious that it could not have been filed by both of them. In re Keller, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 252 Fed. 942.

Claims for rent.—A claim for rent due and payable on a written lease from the claimant to the bankrupt, must be supported by filing the lease or a verified statement of its loss or destruction. In re Keller, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 252 Fed. 942.

Vol. I, p. 967, sec. 57d. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 703.]

Allowance of claims—Effect of formal proof.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Arthur E. Pratt Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 917.

Claims of relatives of a bankrupt should be closely and carefully scrutinized, and not allowed unless the evidence is clear and convincing. In re Blanchard, (D. C. N. J. 1918) 253 Fed. 758.

Allowance a matter of discretion.—A claim for rent for a period of time in which the possession of property was withheld from the claimant because of his unwarranted assertion to ownership of certain property on the premises belonging to the bankrupt presents a case for administrative exercise of discretion which could have been met by either the trustee or landlord or both calling to the attention of the court. In such a case the creditors will not be made to suffer through the fault, at least in part, of the landlord and it is within the discretion of the court to refuse to allow the claim for rent. Reynolds v. Harrigan, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 690, 166 C. C. A. 182.

Objections to allowance — Evidence.—On objection to the allowance of a claim for the unpaid balance of a note given by the claimant to the bankrupt corporation on the ground that it was given for the purchase of stock in the corporation, evidence is admissible to show that the note was given merely as a loan to the company and that the stock was taken as security, and further, that the stock was pledged to the bank discounting the note as additional security for its loan on the note. In re Arthur E. Pratt Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 917.

Form of objection.—It is not necessary for creditors to present their objections to the allowance of a claim by the referee in writing in order to secure a review of the proceedings before the referee, where it appears that they seasonably appeared before the referee by counsel, and not only objected to the claim but also contested it and reserved exception to the ruling of the referee. Irwin v. Maple, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 10, 164 C. C. A. 122.

Law governing validity of security.—The validity of a mortgage given by the bankrupt must be determined on objection by the trustee, by the law of the state in which the mortgage was made and where the property was situated. In re Petersen, (D. C. Nev. 1917) 252 Fed. 849.

Proof of secured claim not obligatory.—A secured creditor is not required to file a formal proof of his claim, though where the trustee has taken possession of the property and sold it he may file a petition to obtain the proceeds of the lien in the hands of the trustee. In re North Star Ice, etc., Co., (E. D. Tenn. 1918) 252 Fed. 301.

Effect of proving secured claim — Formal proof.—Where the proof of a secured claim is entirely formal and contains no prayer for the enforcement of the petitioner's security by the bankruptcy court, nor any allegation of insufficiency in the security, and the petitioner took no steps as provided by this section to have the value of its security determined in order that its claim might be allowed for any excess of the value of the securities, it is not entitled to have its claim allowed in any amount in order that it may participate in the creditors' meetings. In re North Star Ice, etc., Co., (E. D. Tenn. 1918) 252 Fed. 301.

Express waiver of security.—To same effect as original annotation, see Morrison v. Rieinan, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1917) 249 Fed. 97, 161 C. C. A. 149.

Surrender essential — Surrender optional.—Under section 57(g) of the Act, the creditor may keep a preference, if reasonable cause for belief that it was intended as a preference does not exist, but if he elects to do so he is debarred from having any balance on his debt allowed as a participating claim in the estate of the bankrupt. De Forrest v. Crane & Ordway Co., (1919) 55 Mont. 489, 178 Pac. 291.

In case of a preference which extinguished entirely an unsecured debt of the defendant, leaving in its place a debt secured, if the defendant is not satisfied with the security he may surrender the same to the bankruptcy court and share equally with the other creditors in the dividends declared. McAleer v. Peoples' Bank, (Ala. 1918) 80 So. 94.

Sale of mortgaged property.—Where a fourth mortgagee, after adjudication of the mortgagor as a bankrupt, with permission of the federal court, brought suit in the state court to foreclose the mortgage, which proceeding resulted in a deficiency judgment, and filed a proof of debt in bankruptcy, relying on the deficiency judgment as a liquidation by him of his claims under section 57-h of the Bankruptcy Act, it was held that the claim was properly disallowed on the ground that the trustee not having been made a party, the deficiency judgment did not constitute a liquidation of the claim by the mortgagee under the mortgage. It was, however, held that the judgment roll, while not sufficient to support a liquidation of the mortgage, was some evidence of value. In re Soltmann, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 455.

Allowance for balance only — Proof against indorser.—Where a bank held an indorsed note which was not due at the time of the bankruptcy of both the maker and indorser, and on which it had received a payment from the estate of the maker prior to the bankruptcy of the indorser, it was held that it could prove against the estate of the in-dorser only for the amount due after crediting the payment received. In re Shatz, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 251 Fed. 351.

Vol. I, p. 980, sec. 57k. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 711.]

Conditional allowance of claim.—On the reconsideration of a claim under this section it must be re-allowed or rejected in whole or in part. Accordingly an order of a referee allowing a claim in favor of an insolvent bank, provided its receiver makes a payment to the bankrupt's trustee of money deposited by the receiver of the bankrupt in such bank, is improper. In re United Grocery Co., (S. D. Fla. 1918) 253 Fed. 267.

Laches.—Formal compliance with the rule regulating the extension of time in which a petition for the re-examination of claims may be filed is not absolutely essential where the delay does not result in injury to a complainant. In re Caledonia Coal Co. (E. D. Mich. 1918) 254 Fed. 742, wherein it was said: "Rule 32 of the Bankruptcy rules for this district. This rule provides that—

"Petition for re-examination of claims shall be filed within sixty days after the filing thereof, unless the time therefor shall be extended by the court upon cause shown and after such notice to the claimant of the hearing of the said application as the court may direct."

"As already stated, the petition of the trustee was filed about a year after the filing of the claims in question, and it does not appear that there has been any formal compliance with the rule just quoted. In view, however, of the fact that due notice was sent to all of the claimants of the hearing on such petition, and as one of the questions raised by claimants and argued by both parties here is whether the petition of the trustee can be filed after the lapse of the time mentioned, I am disposed to consider this petition as if it included an application for the extension of time contemplated by the rule referred to. No motion to dismiss the petition as improperly filed was made, and the merits of the case have been fully argued. Reasons for the delay have been explained by the attorney for the trustee and are now before the court, so that no good purpose would be served by insisting upon the presentation of a formal application for an extension of time. Treating the petition, then, as involving such an application, I am of the opinion that the delay of the trustee has been satisfactorily explained, and that sufficient cause has been shown for the necessary extension of time."

The phrase liquidated by litigation is to be construed in connection with section 63-b and contemplates liquidation under the direction of the bankruptcy court. In re Edelen, (W. D. Ky. 1918) 248 Fed. 580.

Time of proving claims liquidated by litigation.—The clause applies only to claims liquidated by litigation within thirty days; in other words one year and ninety days is the utmost possible extension of time. In re Edelen, (W. D. Ky. 1918) 248 Fed. 580.

Form of judgment obtained after discharge in bankruptcy.—This section intended to permit proof of claim, after the discharge of debtors and after the expiration of a year subsequent to the adjudication, in every case where the debt was unliquidated at the time of adjudication but had become thereafter by a final judgment "liquidated by litigation." It is equally manifest that the permission of the statute would be but a vain and empty form if by reason of the discharge before judgment a final judgment in liquidation could not be obtained. It would seem to follow as a necessity of the situation, that a final judgment establishing the amount of the debt or claim should be framed in such a limited form as not to involve a judgment in personam, but be adequate to enable the creditor to reap the benefit of a proof of claim under the Act. Barry v. New York Holding, etc., Co., (1918) 229 Mass. 308, 118 N. E. 639.

Notices essential.—The requirement of this section regarding the giving of notice is positive and should be strictly complied with, and where such notice is not given an order of discharge is unauthorized and without the jurisdiction of the court to make. In re Langfeldt, (E. D. Fla. 1918) 253 Fed. 458.

I. Who may file petition in involuntary bankruptcy.

II. Form, averments, and amendment of petition.

I. WHO MAY FILE PETITION IN INVOLUNTARY BANKRUPTCY (p. 990)

Creditors having provable claims—Assignee of creditor.—An assignee of a creditor who was a creditor at the time of the act of bankruptcy may sign a petition in involuntary bankruptcy, unless the assignment was taken as part of an unlawful and oppressive scheme, and there is no requirement of law that a copy of the assignment be annexed to the petition. In re H. E. Page Motor Car Co., (D. C. Mass. 1918) 251 Fed. 318.

Secured creditor waiving security.—A creditor who holds security rendering his claim improbable and who is therefore disqualified to be petitioning creditor may by voluntarily surrendering the security qualify himself to proceed as an unsecured creditor. Morrison v. Rieman, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1917) 249 Fed. 97, 161 C. C. A. 149.

Preferred creditors.—To same effect as original annotation, see Morrison v. Rieman, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1917) 249 Fed. 97, 161 C. C. A. 149.

II. FORM, AVERMENTS AND AMENDMENT OF PETITION (p. 994)

Averment of facts.—"Involuntary proceedings in bankruptcy, being in theory prosecuted against the will of defendant, necessarily vary greatly from voluntary ones, as regards the allegations of their pleadings; therefore it has been settled by numerous precedents: (1) that the essential facts necessary to give the bankruptcy court jurisdiction in such cases must appear affirmatively and distinctly; (2) that general averments of legal conclusions are not sufficient; (3) nor are averments of the acts of bankruptcy in the language of the statute, unaccompanied by a statement of facts affirmatively and distinctly showing them to exist; (4) such statement should state the specific facts relied on, with time, place, and circumstances, so that the alleged bankrupt may be distinctly apprised of what he is required to answer; and (6) it must be based upon something more than hearsay, rumors, or suspicion." In re McGraw, (N. D. W. Va. 1918) 254 Fed. 442.

Time petitioners became creditors.—It is not necessary that an involuntary petition show on its face that the petitioners were creditors at the time of the act of bankruptcy alleged. The proceedings date from the filing of the petition, and, prima facie at least, it is sufficient if a petitioner is alleged to be a creditor on that date. H. E. Page Motor Car Co., (D. C. Mass. 1918) 251 Fed. 318.

Averment of commission of act of bankruptcy.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re McGraw, (N. D. W. Va. 1918) 254 Fed. 442.

A petition showing on its face an act of bankruptcy is essential to jurisdiction. In re D. F. Herlehy Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 247 Fed. 369.

Sufficiency of petition.—A petition alleging an act of bankruptcy through suffering, while insolvent, a creditor to obtain a preference through legal proceedings, which fails to show that execution was issued and levied on the property, with sale thereof advertised, and a failure to vacate and discharge five days before such sale, together with the fact that the judgment was obtained within the four months period within which it could be assailed, is insufficient. In re McGraw, (N. D. W. Va. 1918) 254 Fed. 442.

Language of Act insufficient.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re McGraw, (N. D. W. Va. 1918) 254 Fed. 442.

Amendment of petition.—The amendment of a petition in involuntary bankruptcy more than four months after an alleged act of bankruptcy occurred does not preclude the consideration of such act. In re C. W. Bartleson Co., (S. D. Fla. 1918) 253 Fed. 296.

Amendment to bring in omitted creditor.—Omitted creditors may be added to a schedule of creditors contained in a petition, but such amendment relates to the date of the filing of the petition. Bramham v. Lanier, (1917) 138 Tenn. 702, 200 S. W. 830.

Amendment to establish set-off.—Amendment of the petition may be made in order to a correction of schedules for the purpose of establishing a set-off against the demand of a creditor who filed a petition in bankruptcy proceedings (In re Progressive Wallpaper Corp. (D. C. N. Y. 1917) 240 Fed. 807) and equally, it seems, to defeat a claim of set-off put forward in a suit such as the one before us. Bramham v. Lanier, (1917) 138 Tenn. 702, 200 S. W. 830.

Verification.—While it is better practice for proposed amendments to a petition in bankruptcy to be prepared, signed and sworn to in strict conformity with the terms of the Bankrupt Act, it is a sufficient verification when by a consent order the court has made the amendments a part of the petition for amendment, which was properly signed and sworn to by the petitioning creditors. In re C. W. Bartleson Co., (S. D. Fla. 1918) 253 Fed. 296.

Vol. I, p. 1001, sec. 59f. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 727.]

Purpose of section.—The provisions of this section were not intended to allow creditors to come in and answer at any time. In re D. F. Herlehy Co., (D. C. N. D. N. Y. 1918) 247 Fed. 369.

Joining in petition—Intervention after dismissal.—To same effect as original annotation, see Trammell v. Yarbrough, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1919) 254 Fed. 685, 166 C. C. A. 183.

Conclusiveness of adjudication against creditor failing to intervene.—An adjudication in bankruptcy, based upon a master's finding in involuntary proceedings that the debtor had been insolvent for four months or more before the filing of the petition, and, while so insolvent, had made certain preferences, is not conclusive, as against a creditor receiving payments during that period who was not a party to the proceedings and took no part therein, as to the fact of insolvency at the time such payments were made, despite the provisions of this section and section 18b, under which any creditor may intervene in the bankruptcy proceeding, since these sections are permissive, not mandatory, and until the right is exercised the creditor remains a stranger to the litigation, and as such is unaffected by the decision of even essential subsidiary issues. Gratiot County State Bank v. Johnson, (1919) 249 U. S. 246, 39 S. Ct. 263, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, reversing (1916) 193 Mich. 452, 160 N. W. 544.

Vol. I, p. 1003, sec. 59g. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 729.]

Reinstatement of petition.—An order dismissing a petition in bankruptcy in pursuance of an agreement for settlement consented to by the creditors, will not be reopened on the ground that the order was obtained by fraud and was not faithfully carried out by the bankrupt. In such a case the jurisdiction of the court is lost, a complainant must seek his remedy in the state court, or in new bankruptcy proceedings. In re Kaufman, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 301.

- I. Creation of preferences.
- II. Constituent elements.

I. CREATION OF PREFERENCES (p. 1005)

Construction.—The word "required" as used in this and the following section does not mean required for any purpose, and where a state statute provides that a mortgage as between the parties, though unrecorded, shall be valid, the failure to record a mortgage given by the bankrupt cannot be regarded as sufficient evidence in the absence of other circumstances, of a tacit agreement between him and the mortgagee to withhold it from record for improper purposes, thereby making it in effect a fraudulent transaction. In re Anderson, (D. C. R. I. 1918) 252 Fed. 272.

A trustee's right of recovery of property transferred is not limited to the bankruptcy law, but it has been held that if the transfer is preferential and void under the law of the state in which made he is entitled to recover under the trust fund doctrine as recognized and enforced in the state tribunals. In this connection it is said: "The trust fund doctrine from first to last is to the effect that the property and assets of an insolvent corporation constitute a trust fund in the hands of the managers of the corporation for the benefit of each and all of its creditors ratably, and although a private debtor may prefer creditors, even to the exhaustion of all his assets, an insolvent corporation will not be permitted to do or suffer anything which will permit one or more creditors to obtain a preference, no matter what the good faith of such creditor may be." Williams v. Davidson, (1918) 104 Wash. 315, 176 Pac. 334.

Under the trust fund doctrine, a creditor of an insolvent corporation who in good faith purchases all the assets, assuming all debts under misrepresentations, is liable to the trustee in bankruptcy although not liable under the Bankruptcy Act, and is not protected by compliance with the sales in bulk statutes. In such case, the liability on securing the preference is limited to the pro rata share which excluded creditors would have been entitled to upon a ratable distribution of the assets. Williams v. Davidson, (1918) 104 Wash. 315, 176 Pac. 334.

In an action by a trustee to recover the value of property alleged to have been transferred as a preference it has been held that, under the statutes of Washington, the taking of the property, being unlawful under the Bankruptcy Act, becomes a conversion from which an implied promise to pay arises, and that where the value of the property converted is certain, known and properly alleged the writ of garnishment may issue. State v. Superior Court, (Wash. 1919) 178 Pac. 827.

Preference created by transfer.—See to same effect as original annotation, Farmer's State Bank v. Freeman, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 579.

Injunction against resale by purchaser at sheriff's sale.—In an action by a trustee to obtain an order temporarily restraining the purchaser at a sheriff's sale, and certain banks alleged to be the real purchasers, from removing, or transferring, the title to said property or any portion thereof, it being alleged that such a transfer would result in a preference, relief was refused on the grounds set forth in the following extract from the opinion:

"This application must be decided upon the bill of complaint, the exhibits thereto, and the affidavits filed at the hearing. The only allegations in the bill connecting the two banks with any claim to the property sold, or any intent to sell or dispose of same, is made upon information and belief, and no affidavit filed with the bill from any one having personal knowledge of those facts. Nor does the bill contain any allegation which would tend to show irremediable damage, in that the defendants were unable to respond in any amount equal to the value of the property, or that the property had some peculiar value which could not be compensated for in damages. The bill fails to show any necessity for the drastic remedy by injunction, and, failing to do this, a court of chancery will deny the application. For these several reasons, the application for a temporary restraining order will be denied." Lile v. Perry, (D. C. S. D. Fla. 1918) 250 Fed. 307.

Transfer of corporate assets to officer.—

It is a rule that if a corporation has creditors to the knowledge of any of its officials or agents, by whose knowledge it would in ordinary business affairs be bound, it is held to that knowledge, and is presumed to act in the light of it, in the case of transfers by which it is alleged a preference has been created. In re Boston-West Africa Trading Co., (D. C. Mass. 1919) 255 Fed. 924, so holding where a person as treasurer of a corporation paid to himself out of the corporate funds a sum equal to the amount of a claim which he held against the corporation, where, although he believed the claim of another creditor to be impounded, such belief was not shared in by another officer of the corporation.

Conveyance to prefer surety.—When a surety or indorser on the note of a person or corporation who is insolvent knows of such insolvency within four months of bankruptcy, filing the petition, causes or procures him or it to pay the note or notes upon which he is indorser, in whole or in part, for the purpose of or with the intent of relieving or exonerating himself from liability, and thus obtaining a preference over other creditors of the same class, he receives a preference, which may be recovered by the trustee in bankruptcy. Chapman v. Hunt, (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 248 Fed. 160.

Taking back property from debtor.—Where it appears from the evidence that a creditor, who took back property from the debtor, had, at the time, actual knowledge of the latter's financial condition and that he contemplated going into bankruptcy, a recoverable preference is created. Egner v. Parshelsky Bros., (D. C. E. D. N. Y. 1918) 254 Fed. 907.

Transfer in performance of prior valid agreement.—Acts done in performance of a prior valid contract, as for instance the transfer of security to which the creditor was entitled at the time the agreement was executed, to secure him against loss for accommodation indorsements, do not amount to a preference though the creditor had reasonable cause to believe the debtor was insolvent at the time such transfer was actually made. Chapman v. Hunt, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 768.

Where a person has the right to act, not as a general creditor but under a contract, a voluntary transfer of possession by the bankrupt to such person in accordance with a provision of that contract is not a preferential transfer. Stennick v. Jones, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 345.

A surrender of leased premises to the lessor on the forfeiture of a leasehold, for nonpayment of rent, the property being at that time, in fact and in law, the property of the lessor, is not a preference. Hills v. Stimson Co., (1918) 102 Wash. 1, 172 Pac. 1181.

Payment by contractor of subcontractor's debts with money due him.—Where contractors, in order to clear of liens buildings which they were under contract to deliver free from all claims, paid the debts of a subcontractor with money due to him, a preference was held to have been made. De Forrest v. Crane-Ordway Co., (1919) 55 Mont. 489, 178 Pac. 291.

Conditional sale.—Property transferred to a person under a valid conditional contract of sale.—To the same effect as the original annotation see Delaval Separator Co. v. Jones, (1918) 117 Me. 95, 102 Atl. 968, wherein it was held that certain conditional sale notes called in Maine "Holmes notes" were not voidable preferences where it appeared that they were recorded prior to the filing of the maker's petition in bankruptcy, because, first, Holmes notes did not constitute a transfer by the bankrupt of any of his property, and secondly, because there was nothing to show that the maker was insolvent on the day when the notes were recorded.

Preference created by mortgage.—To same effect as original annotation, see Irwin v. Maple, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 10, 164 C. C. A. 122.

Unrecorded chattel mortgage.—A chattel mortgage given more than four months before bankruptcy and which under the state law need not be recorded does not constitute a preference. Bonner v. Athens First Nat. Bank, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 692, 160 C. C. A. 592.

Banking transactions.—Transfer to pay overdraft.—Where there was evidence that accounts were assigned by the bankrupt and that the assignee, a bank, received the proceeds, not in the usual course of banking business, but with the specific understanding that they were to be applied to the reduction of an overdraft and there was no previous agreement between the bank and the depositor that the latter should assign accounts to the bank for collection to pay overdrafts as they might occur, a preference was held to have been created. First Nat. Bank v. Harper, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 641.

Deposit by bankrupt's receiver.—A deposit in a checking account by a receiver of a bankrupt to his credit as receiver with a bank to which the bankrupt is indebted has been held not to be a preference which is voidable under section 60b. In re United Grocery Co., (D. C. S. D. Fla. 1918) 253 Fed. 267.

Agreement maturing obligations at date prior to which they were originally due.—An arrangement between a debtor and a bank, within four months of the filing of a petition in bankruptcy, the object of which was to change existing obligations of the former to the latter, so that they would mature at a date prior to that when by their terms they became due and to provide the bank with funds at the date of the earlier maturity by the assignment of moneys then to become due to the debtor under contracts, has been held to create a preference, the surrounding circumstances being such as to charge the bank with knowledge of the debtor's insolvency. Fifth Nat. Bank v. Lytle, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 361.

Bank discounting notes and crediting payee with proceeds.—In Bridgeton Nat. Bank v. May, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 731, it appeared that a creditor when it took notes and a deed of trust from the bankrupt had reasonable cause to believe that the latter was insolvent and that the enforcement of the security would give it a preference over other creditors. When the notes were discounted for the payee, less than a month before the bankruptcy of the maker, the bank advanced no money to the payee, but simply placed the proceeds to its credit. On an appeal by the bank from a decision by the referee setting aside the deed as a preference the court declared that the bank's claim to the fund in question was no better than the creditor's.

II. CONSTITUENT ELEMENTS (p. 1014)

Insolvency.—To same effect as original annotation, see Stephens v. Union Sav. Bank, etc., Co., (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 192, 162 C. C. A. 328; In re Keller, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 252 Fed. 942.

"To constitute a voidable preference under the Bankruptcy Act, the person receiving the payment, or to be benefited by it, must have had reasonable cause to believe that the debtor was at the time insolvent and that the payment would effect a preference; and insolvency under the act means something more than that the debtor was financially embarrassed and hard pressed by his creditors. This condition may exist, and the debtor still be solvent, so that if the executor, who received payment, simply knew that the debtor said that he was having difficulty in financing his firm, it would not, taken alone, be reasonable cause to believe him insolvent, especially in view of the fact that he had made the same remark a year before, and had thereafter told him that he had 'financed' and was 'all right again.' The law is well established that, even if the creditor entertains doubts concerning the solvency of the debtor, it is not enough. He must have a knowledge of such facts as will carry him beyond this and furnish a reasonable ground to believe that the payment will give him preference over other creditors." In re Salmon, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 249 Fed. 300.

Preference must be given to creditor.—Transfer made to another for creditor's benefit.—To constitute a transfer it is not necessary that the transfer be made directly to the creditor. It may be made to another for his benefit. De Forrest v. Crane & Ordway Co., (1919) 55 Mont. 489, 178 Pac. 291.

Validity confined to present consideration.—The substitution of a mortgage for a lien under which the lienor had the right to assume immediate possession and which would have operated as a preference if it had been retained, is not open to the objection of creating a preference although the transaction occurred within four months prior to the debtor's bankruptcy, and is valid and enforceable against the trustee in bankruptcy to the extent of the rights given up under the original lien. Hogan v. McNeill, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 716, 165 C. C. A. 310.

In calculating the four months.—Instrument valid under state law.—Where the statutes of the state where land is situated do not require a deed to be recorded as to subsequent purchasers in good faith, the four months period fixed by the Bankruptcy Act is computed from the date of the deed and not from the date when it is recorded when the rights of innocent purchasers are not involved. Hoshaw v. Cosgriff, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 22, 159 C. C. A. 240.

Where recording required.—Where the recording of chattel mortgages is required by the state law a chattel mortgage withheld from record until within four months of the bankruptcy of the mortgagor may be avoided by the trustee. Bakersfield Bank v. Moore, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 913.

I. Elements of voidability.

II. Recovery of voidable preferences.

I. ELEMENTS OF VOIDABILITY (p. 1026)

In general.—In order to make a preference under section 60b, it is necessary for the plaintiff to show that the debtors were insolvent at the time they made the transfer; that it was within four months of filing the petition in bankruptcy; that its effect was to give a larger percentage to the defendants than to other creditors of the same class; that the persons receiving the preference were to be benefited by it either by direct payment of their debt or by relieving them from their indorsements or guaranties; that they were acting as agents of others who were so benefited; and that the persons or the agents had reasonable cause to believe that a transfer would operate as a preference. Smith v. Coury, (D. C. Me. 1918) 247 Fed. 168.

Reasonable cause to believe transaction would effect preference.—To same effect as third paragraph of original annotation, see Bassett v. Evans, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 532, 165 C. C. A. 202, also holding that "reasonable cause to believe," under this section, covers substantially the same field as "notice" in determining whether a person is a bona fide purchaser of property.

This section declares that the consequences of a transfer specified in section 60a shall be that it may be avoided by the trustee and the property, or its value, recovered by him for the benefit of the bankrupt's estate, provided the preference was given within the prescribed limit prior to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, or the adjudication, and the creditor to whom the transfer was made had at the time reason to believe a preference was intended. DeForrest v. Crane & Ordway Co., (1919) 55 Mont. 489, 178 Pac. 291.

Though a transfer is made which amounts to a preference, yet it is not unlawful within the meaning of section 60b, unless the creditor receiving it had reasonable cause to believe that the debtor intended thereby to give him a preference, that is, to pay him a larger percentage of his claim than others would receive. DeForrest v. Crane & Ordway Co., (1919) 55 Mont. 489, 178 Pac. 291.

A creditor taking over a bankrupt's stock in good faith, after diligent inquiry as to the total indebtedness of the insolvent, and agreeing to pay all debts in full, is not liable to the trustee for receiving a preference, under subd. b of § 60 of the Bankruptcy Act, which requires that such person have reasonable cause to believe that he was receiving a preference. Williams v. Davidson, (1918) 104 Wash. 315, 178 Pac. 334.

Courts must hold persons to have "reasonable cause to believe" what sensible business men standing in their place and possessing their knowledge would have believed. Bassett v. Evans, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 532, so declaring in the case of notes and a mortgage given to creditors.

Conveyance to agent of creditor.—A conveyance to the husband or brother of a creditor acting as agent for her is a preferential transfer within section 60b. Smith v. Coury, (D. C. Me. 1918) 247 Fed. 168.

Indorser or guarantor as creditor.—An indorser or a guarantor of the bankrupt is a creditor within the meaning of section 60b. Smith v. Coury, (D. C. Me. 1918) 247 Fed. 168.

Preference of wife.—The payment by a bankrupt of a debt whereby he releases securities of his wife which she had loaned him to pledge as security, is a preference of the wife and accordingly voidable, she being in effect a surety. Smith v. Tostevin, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 102, 169 C. C. A. 320.

A circuitry of arrangement will not avail to deprive a payment of its character as a preference, as where a bankrupt, who is joint maker of a note, pays his co-maker who in turn pays the payee. In such a case reasonable cause to believe the transfer would effect a preference being shown, recovery may be had from the payee. First Nat. Bank v. Blackburn, (C. C. A. 3rd Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 527.

Payment conditioned on surrender of financial statement by debtor.—A demand by the president of a debtor corporation of a financial statement made by him as a condition of the payment of the debt, coupled with a prior declaration to the creditor by a third party, apparently in a position to have knowledge, doubting the accuracy of the statement, is sufficient to give the creditor notice that the statement is apparently untrue and to create a belief that the payment was intended to prefer. In re Cramer & Rogers Grocery Co., (C. C. A. 3rd Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 112.

Question of fact.—The question whether a person to whom property was transferred by the bankrupt within four months prior to adjudication had reasonable cause to believe that the person transferring it was insolvent and that the transfer would effect a preference is a question of fact for the trial court. Whitmore v. Swank, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 135.

Instruction to jury.—In an action to recover a preference under this section, although the court in instructing the jury should employ the language of the statute in respect to "reasonable cause to believe" yet an omission of the word "reasonable" will not be sufficient cause for reversal and the ordering of a new trial, where it appears that no specific exception was made to the omission to use the word as required by rule 10 of the Court of Appeals of the Circuit. Campbell v. Krauss, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 670.

Reason to suspect insufficient.—To same effect as original annotation, see Bank of Commerce v. Brown, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 37, 161 C. C. A. 97; Smith v. Powers, (N. D. N. Y. 1919) 255 Fed. 582; Cohen v. Tremont Trust Co., (D. C. Mass. 1918) 256 Fed. 399.

It is not enough that the creditor receiving a transfer has some cause to suspect the insolvency of his debtor. He must have such a knowledge of facts as to induce a reasonable belief of his debtor's insolvency in order to invalidate a security taken for his debt. Whether the facts known to the creditor meet this requirement is ordinarily a question of fact. Donohue v. Dykstra, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 247 Fed. 593.

Although there is a close relationship, by reason of common officers, between a bank and a bankrupt's creditor for whom it has discounted notes of the bankrupt, it has been held that whatever suspicion may be thus created it is not sufficient to charge the bank with knowledge of the debtor's insolvency in view of positive evidence showing a lack of knowledge. Bridgeton Nat. Bank v. Way, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 731.

Positive knowledge unnecessary.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Campion, (N. D. N. Y. 1919) 256 Fed. 902.

Knowledge of one who was attorney both for the creditor and the bankrupt will be regarded as knowledge of the creditor. Farmers' State Bank v. Freeman, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 579.

Knowledge at the time of a transfer that the bankrupt was an absconding insolvent necessarily carried with it the further knowledge that he could not pay his creditors the amounts due them and that any one of them, including itself, receiving a payment would necessarily receive a preference over all the other creditors. DeForrest v. Crane & Ordway Co., (1919) 55 Mont. 489, 178 Pac. 291.

Notice of circumstances indicating preference.—Where a chattel mortgage is withheld from record and before it is recorded the mortgagee becomes apprised of facts indicating that it operates to give a preference the chattel mortgage is voidable under section 60b. Bakersfield Nat. Bank v. Moore, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 913.

In Farmers' State Bank v. Freeman, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 579, 161 C. C. A. 505, "it was charged in the complaint: That on January 13, 1915, the bankrupt was indebted to the appellant bank in the sum of

$3,196 and interest thereon, evidenced by its promissory note. The note had been overdue since October, 1914, and was unsecured. That on that day the defendant, E. M. Fowler, Mr. Clark, the cashier of the appellant bank, and the president of the Jones Company agreed upon and carried out the following scheme: The bankrupt executed to E. M. Fowler a bill of sale, whereby it conveyed to him 8,000 gallons of apple juice, belonging to it, for the expressed consideration of $3,500. That the said Fowler, not being possessed of the money, borrowed it from the appellant, executing his note for said sum of money, and as security for the loan pledged the bill of sale executed to him by the bankrupt. That the bank gave Fowler credit on its books for that sum of money, and Fowler immediately thereafter gave his check on the bank to the bankrupt for the $3,500. The check was thereupon deposited by the bankrupt with the appellant, and that evening, after banking hours, the bank charged the bankrupt with the amount of the note. That Mr. Fowler was the attorney for the bank, as well as of the bankrupt at the time. That for a long time prior to this transaction the bankrupt had kept its account with the appellant bank, which showed that for a considerable time the bankrupt was overdrawn at the bank, and when it had balances they were for very small sums. That at the time this transaction took place the bankrupt was insolvent, which was known to the appellant, as well as Mr. Fowler, its attorney. That the application of the money thus deposited to the credit of the bankrupt was not made in good faith in the usual course of business, but for the purpose of enabling the appellant to secure an unlawful preference, in violation of the provisions of the Bankruptcy Act. Defendants filed separate answers, denying that the bankrupt was insolvent at the time, and alleging, if it was insolvent, that neither of the defendants knew it or had reasonable cause to know it; that the transaction was made in good faith, and not for the purpose of obtaining thereby the apple juice as a security for the bankrupt's indebtedness to appellant, and that the payment was not an unlawful preference, but a set-off, as the bank had a right to make. The hearing was upon oral evidence, and the court found that the bankrupt, at the time this transaction took place, was insolvent, and that the transaction was in pursuance of an understanding between the officers and attorney of the bank and of the bankrupt, for the purpose of giving the bank a preference in the collection of its note, and rendered a decree against the bank for the amount claimed, but no decree was rendered against the defendant Fowler. From this decree the appellant prosecutes this appeal." The court said: "A careful reading of the evidence convinces that the entire transaction was merely a scheme for the purpose of enabling the appellant bank to secure payment of its debt in full, and enable it to bring the transaction within the rule laid down in N. Y. County Bank v. Massey, 192 U. S. 138, 24 Sup. Ct. 199, 48 L. ed. 380. Mr. Fowler had no money of his own to lend; the bank advanced it to him; he loaned it to the bankrupt, taking as security therefor the bill of sale of the apple juice; the check he gave to the bankrupt was on the appellant bank, and was deposited immediately by it with the bank; and on the same day, after banking hours, the note was charged by the bank to Jones Bros. & Co."

Duty of inquiry.—To same effect as first and second paragraphs of original annotation, see In re Campion, (N. D. N. Y. 1919) 256 Fed. 902.

Cessation of activity in the account of a depositor, coupled with a request for larger loans, has been held sufficient in connection with other facts to excite inquiry by a trust company as to the solvency of such depositor. Cohen v. Tremont Trust Co., (D. C. Mass. 1918) 256 Fed. 399.

Knowledge presumed—Knowledge of officer of corporation.—A corporation does not stand in any better position because knowledge of facts sufficient to lead a careful man to the conclusion that a debtor was insolvent was split up among several of its officers or agents, who did not exchange information. Cohen v. Tremont Trust Co., (D. C. Mass. 1918) 256 Fed. 399.

Facts shown by books.—On the question of reasonable cause to believe it has been decided that a corporation must be held to knowledge of such facts as are evident from its own books. Cohen v. Tremont Trust Co., (D. C. Mass. 1918) 256 Fed. 399.

Intent to prefer.—To same effect as original annotation, see Cohen v. Goldman. (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 599, 162 C. C. A. 615.

In In re Campion, (N. D. N. Y. 1919) 256 Fed. 902, the court said as to the question of intent: "Intent to give a preference and intent to obtain a preference have nothing to do with the question of actually obtaining a preference. The questions under the act as amended are: (1) Was the debtor insolvent? (2) Within four months of filing the petition did he make a transfer of any of his property? (3) Would the effect of the enforcement of such transfer be to enable any one of his creditors to obtain a greater percentage of his debt than any other of such creditors of the same class would receive? (4) Did the person receiving it, or to be benefited thereby, or his agent acting in the matter of obtaining it, then have reasonable cause to believe that the enforcement of the transfer, here the taking or enforcement of the mortgage, would effect a preference; that is, give to the creditors receiving the transfer a greater percentage of his debt than any other of such creditors of the same class would or will receive? Answer these questions in the affirmative, and we have a preference voidable by the trustee. Reasonable cause to believe assumes that the one receiving the transfer, or his agent, had knowledge of the insolvency, or such information on that subject as would put a man of reasonable intelligence on inquiry, and that means of obtaining knowledge was at hand and knowledge obtainable, and that knowledge would have been obtained if inquiry had been made."

Instructions.—In First Nat. Bank v. Blackburn, (C. C. A. 3rd Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 527, a refusal to give the following instruction was held proper: "If the jury believe from the evidence that the $600 note, which is a part of the $3,100 paid to the bank on October 30, 1914, was not a primary indebtedness of J. F. Kenney, the bankrupt, the bank, the defendant in this case, cannot be charged with receiving said amount in preference to Kenney's other creditors."

II. RECOVERY OF VOIDABLE PREFERENCES (p. 1038)

Jurisdiction.—Dividends which have been unlawfully paid to a stockholder within four months of bankruptcy are recoverable by the trustee under this section. Seegmiller v. Day, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 177.

Evidence—The burden of proof.—To same effect as first paragraph of original annotation, see In re Campion, (N. D. N. Y. 1919) 256 Fed. 902.

To same effect as second paragraph of original annotation, see Bank of Commerce v. Brown, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 37, 161 C. C. A. 97.

In an action by a trustee to recover alleged preferences the plaintiff has the burden proving his charges; judgment cannot be founded on suspicion. Turner v. Schaeffer, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 654.

It must be shown that the creditor had reasonable cause to believe that the transfer would effect a preference. DeForrest v. Crane & Ordway Co., (1919) 55 Mont. 489, 178 Pac. 291.

In a suit by a trustee to recover a payment on the ground that it constituted a preference in order to entitle the plaintiff to recover, he must first show that at the time of the transfer the bankrupt was insolvent, as that word "insolvent" is understood to mean in the Bankruptcy Act; that is, that a fair valuation of the bankrupt's property was insufficient in amount to pay his debts, and further that the payment operated as a preference in favor of the bank, and that the bank had reasonable cause to believe that the enforcement of the payment would effect a preference. McAleer v. Peoples' Bank, (Ala. 1918) 80 So. 94.

For the purpose of showing notice on the part of the creditor of the bankrupt or insolvent condition of the debtor, evidence is admissible of the common report in the locality where the creditor and debtor were both doing business, that the latter contemplated bankruptcy at the time, or was about to go into bankruptcy on account of his insolvent condition. McAleer v. Peoples' Bank, (Ala. 1918) 80 So. 94.

In an action by a trustee to recover a payment alleged to have been a preference it has been held that evidence is admissible that the person who loaned the money to the bankrupt insisted as a condition for the loan of the full sum requested, a considerable part of which was required to pay off a mortgage, that the debtor pay the unsecured indebtedness, which payment is complained of as the preference. McAleer v. Peoples' Bank, (Ala. 1918) 80 So. 94.

Question for jury.—In an action by a trustee to recover a payment alleged to have been a preference the question whether there was in fact a preference is for the jury. McAleer v. Peoples' Bank, (Ala. 1918) 80 So. 94.

The question whether a person had "reasonable cause" to believe is one for the jury. McAleer v. Peoples' Bank, (Ala. 1918) 80 So. 94.

Vol. I, p. 1045, sec. 60d. [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 747.]

Order for restoration of excess.—Where the evidence shows that a payment was made by the bankrupt out of his estate in contemplation of bankruptcy, for services rendered or to be rendered the bankrupt by an attorney in the matter of his bankruptcy proceedings, and that the amount thus received was in excess of the fair and reasonable value of the services rendered, the recipient may properly be required to return the excess. In re Porter, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 552.

Necessary expenses allowed—Allowances to a special master and the expenses for stenographic minutes must come preliminarily out of the general estate. If it should turn out that there are not sufficient funds in the general estate to permit a reasonable allowance to the master and the payment of stenographer's charges, then such balance as is necessary to be paid to the master or the stenographer, or to both, as the case may be, should be equitably apportioned among the successful claimants. The reason for this is that it would not be possible otherwise for the court to determine the rights of the claimants, and the court will protect its own officer in such circumstances. In re Wilson, (S. D. N. Y. 1917) 252 Fed. 631.

Stationery used by referee.—Where information is requested of the referee by creditors, requiring answers by mail, the cost of the stationery used in replying to such inquiries is an "actual and necessary expense" in the administration of such estate, for which the referee is entitled to reimbursement. In re Capital Security Co., (M. D. Tenn. 1918) 251 Fed. 927.

Stenographer hired by referee.—"The duty of furnishing . . . information . . . rests upon the referee, under the specific provisions of the Act. His compensation, prescribed by sec. 40 of the Act, is in full for all services performed by him under the Act and General Orders. This compensation cannot be increased in any guise or form. . . . Clerical assistance aiding him in the discharge of the duties devolved upon him in a particular case does not, in general, constitute a necessary expense for which he may be reimbursed. . . . And if the referee, without any necessity therefor, and as matter merely of personal convenience, instead of answering the inquiries of creditors himself, employs stenographic assistance to aid him in the discharge of such duty, this is manifestly not a necessary expense for which he is entitled to reimbursement. The 35th General Order (89 Fed. xiii, 32 C. C. A. xiii), however, recognizes, impliedly at least, that it may sometimes be necessary for a referee to employ a 'clerk' to assist him in the performance of his duties in a particular case which has been referred to him. And I think it clear that if, in the administration of a particular case, the exigency is such, due either to the volume or urgency of the duties to be performed by the referee, as to render it necessary for him to employ stenographic or other clerical assistance in order that he may adequately and efficiently perform such duties, as where the volume of correspondence with creditors is such as to render it impossible for him to personally answer their letters, the expense so incurred should be allowed as an actual and necessary expense in the administration of such estate." In re Capital Security Co., (M. D. Tenn. 1918) 251 Fed. 927.

Expenses of accountants.—Where, in the case of the bankruptcy of stockholders, it has been necessary for the trustee to engage accountants to unravel the details of the bankrupt's books in order to trace securities of creditors, disbursements for such services are chargeable to the claimants, except as to those who were able to trace their securities without the aid of the accountants. The court also further declared: "In order to avoid misunderstanding, I think it desirable to state that under this heading I am referring only to the case of a bankruptcy of stockbrokers. In the ordinary mercantile bankruptcy, the claimant can point to his specific merchandise, and in such case usually he is entitled to reclaim without contribution of any kind; but a bankruptcy of the character of that at bar must be treated differently because of the practical considerations above referred to. Possibly, when the figures are rearranged, this discussion as to contribution to expenses may prove academic." In re Wilson, (S. D. N. Y. 1917) 252 Fed. 631.

A mortgagee who elects to present his case as a part of the proceedings in the bankruptcy court is not required by this section to pay a part of the fees, charges and costs of that court. In re Russell Falls Co., (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 260.

Form of referee's report of expenses.—Where the referee filed a certificate stating that he had been to certain expense for stationery and hire of a stenographer in answering inquiries of creditors, the court held that the expenses would have to be reported under oath, in detail, before they could be allowed. In re Capital Security Co., (M. D. Tenn. 1918) 251 Fed. 927.

Attorney's fees—Allowance by referee.—Where a referee makes a lump sum allowance for attorney's fees and it is impossible to determine what services were rendered "other than to say that the allowance to the attorneys appeared very large," it is proper for the district court to reverse the allowance and refer the matter to the referee for further consideration. In re Wood, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 246, 160 C. C. A. 324.

Fees of trustee's attorney—Additional compensation to attorneys for the trustee and petitioning creditors is allowed only in peculiar cases, where it is shown to the satisfaction of the court that the services rendered have been unusual and extraordinary, where the bankrupt estate has been materially increased through the diligent efforts of attorneys in discovering assets, or where the duties of the attorneys have been onerous and burdensome with litigation incident to the winding up of the bankrupt estate. Where, however, the bankrupt estate consisted entirely of a stock of goods which was disposed of in bulk and there had been no litigation which placed added labors on the attorneys, and no testimony was offered to take the case out of the ordinary run of bankruptcy cases in respect to fees, additional compensation was denied. In re W. B. Terrell Co., (W. D. S. C. 1917) 250 Fed. 317.

In the case of a bankrupt stockholder no allowance to the attorney for the trustee can be made out of securities or their proceeds which claimants have successfully reclaimed. In re Wilson & Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1917) 252 Fed. 631.

Fees of bankrupt's attorney—Proof required.—It is the duty of an attorney who presents a claim for compensation for services rendered to the bankrupt clearly to establish the value of his services. In re U. S. Molybdenum Co., (D. C. Me. 1918) 255 Fed. 790.

Fees of creditors' attorneys.—To same effect as first paragraph of original annotation, see In re Siegel, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 197.

Vol. I, p. 1055, sec. 63a (1). [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 753.]

Judgments—Judgment for tort.—A judgment against a bankrupt for injuries to a vehicle caused by the bankrupt's "negligence" is a provable claim. In re Cunningham, (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 663.

A judgment for damages recovered in an action against the defendant for negligently running his automobile on the highway so that it collided with and seriously injured a taxicab belonging to the plaintiff is a provable debt. Jefferson Transfer Co. v. Hull, (1918) 166 Wis. 438, 166 N. W. 1.

Notes.—Where, after creditors of a corporation had received their proportionate share from the estate of the debtor, certain stockholders of the bankrupt corporation gave their note for the balance of the debt, it was held that the note being without consideration, the transaction constituted a legal fraud on the creditors of such stockholders and that a claim founded thereon was invalid and not provable in bankruptcy. In re Hawkins, (D. C. N. D. Ga. 1918) 249 Fed. 355.

Surety debts.—One who has deposited collateral as security for a loan to another and subsequently pays the loan, with the knowledge and at the request of the debtor, may prove his claim for the amount so paid against the estate of the debtor on the latter's becoming a bankrupt. In re Maiman, (D. C. Me. 1919) 256 Fed. 127.

Cosurety who loaned stock.—Where it appears that a claimant's stock occupied the position of a cosurety with others for the payment of a note, the mere fact that the claimant has paid and acquired the note in order to save his stock, does not entitle him to recover against one of his cosureties more than his proportionate share of the debt which he paid. In re Blanchard, (D. C. N. J. 1918) 253 Fed. 758.

Certificates of indebtedness of building and loan association.—Where by the trustee's pleaded and proven objections to the allowance of claims founded on certificates of indebtedness of a building and loan association it appears that the issuance of the certificates to the claimants originated in fraud and that the bankrupt had received no consideration therefor, the burden is cast on the claimants to prove that they were good faith purchasers for value. Mere proof of possession of the certificates is not enough. In re German Sav. & L. Assn., (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 722, 165 C. C. A. 316.

Rent.—Where after the breach of the renting contract and surrender of the premises by the bankrupt, the lessor, after using reasonable diligence in securing a new tenant, finally relets them, the difference between the stipulated rent for the term specified in the lease with the bankrupt and the rent payable under the new rental contract is the amount which is allowable as damages for the breach and may be proved as a claim against the estate. In re Mullings Clothing Co., (D. C. Conn. 1918) 252 Fed. 667.

Adjudication as anticipatory breach of contract.—Liability under a contract to pay out of "actual and net earnings" is not, by an adjudication of bankruptcy against the promisor, rendered fixed so as to be provable. In re 35% Automobile Supply Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1917) 247 Fed. 377.

Effect of ultra vires and illegality.—Corporate notes.—Where a bank loaned money to a manufacturing corporation on notes secured by two indorsements and the corporation agreed to pay the bank 20 per cent. of its profits, but the bank never received any compensation as there were no profits, it was held that the trustee in bankruptcy of the corporation could not set up as a defense an estoppel by way of ultra vires or illegality. In re Machine Metal Products Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 280, 163 C. C. A. 436.

Contracts and open accounts.—In general.—The validity of a claim for goods sold, where the purchaser resides in a state other than that of the seller, is, for the purpose of provability, to be determined by the place of sale, which under ordinary circumstances is the place where the seller is doing business. Thompson Belden & Co. v. Leisy Brewing Co., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 462.

Renting contracts.—Where a lease contained a covenant against assignment and the lessee made an assignment for the benefit of creditors and thereafter the lessor received rent from the assignee for rent accruing after he took possession, the court, in disallowing a claim for breach of the covenant, said: "If an acceptance of the lease by the assignee was essential to constitute an assignment of it, and he never accepted it, it necessarily follows that there never was a breach of the covenant against assignment, and if it was accepted by the assignee, so that there was a breach of the covenant, we think the breach was waived by the unqualified demand and receipt of rent from the assignee that accrued thereafter." Ratschesky v. Whiting, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 268, 163 C. C. A. 424.

A landlord cannot be allowed rent for the use of premises while he himself is in possession. In re H. M. Lasher Co., (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 53, 163 C. C. A. 303.

Where a landlord refuses to accept a surrender of the lease and holds a bankrupt tenant for rent for the balance of the term, the trustee is entitled to whatever the demised property produced during that period, before meeting obligations of the estate to the landlord. The landlord in such a case may prove his claim as a general creditor but will be required to deliver to the trustee any rents received by him from tenants holding under the lessee during that period. Rosenblum v. Uler, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 584.

Right to attack deficiency judgment.—A trustee who was a party to a suit in a state court to foreclose a mortgage given by the bankrupt is not entitled to have the deficiency judgment set aside merely because the property was sold for an inadequate price, where there was no fraud or collusion. In re Falsone, (S. D. Fla. 1917) 247 Fed. 607.

Contingent claims.—A claim against a bank director to enforce his liability for violation of the banking law, on which a suit is pending wherein liability is denied, is not provable in bankruptcy against the estate of the director. In re Hutchcraft, (E. D. Ky. 1917) 247 Fed. 187. The court said: "Section 63b does not cover debts not covered by section 63a. It simply covers debts so covered which are not liquidated, and provides for their liquidation. If the claims in question are within section 63a, it is because they are covered by clause (4); i. e., are debts founded 'upon a contract express or implied.' It is not claimed that they are otherwise within it. Possibly as, if they are valid claims, it is because of the statute, it cannot be truly said that they are founded upon contract. I do not find it necessary to determine this question. It is sufficient to say that, conceding that they were so founded, they were not 'absolutely owing at the time of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy.' They were contingent debts. . . . That contingent debts are not provable under the present act is an inference from the fact that provision was made in the act of 1841 (Act Aug. 19, 1841, c. 9, 5 Stat. 440) for the proof of 'uncertain and contingent demands,' and in the act of 1867 (Act March 2, 1867, c. 176, 14 Stat. 517) for the proof of 'contingent debts and contingent liabilities,' 'if the contingency shall happen before the order for the final dividend,' and 'at any time' of the 'present value' thereof 'ascertained and liquidated' 'in such manner as the court shall order,' and that there is no such provision therein. Possibly, however, as under the act of 1841 the 'uncertain and contingent demands' provable thereunder were limited to demands whose present value should be determined as held in Riggin v. Magwire, 15 Wall. 549, 21 L. Ed. 232, and under the act of 1867 'the contingent debts and contingent liabilities' provable thereunder were limited to such debts and liabilities whose present value could be determined, to be inferred from the provision as to the proof of present value thereof, the provision in section 63b for the liquidation of unliquidated demands should be taken as evidence of an intent that contingent debts whose present value is capable of ascertainment are prov-able under the present act. But clearly contingent debts whose present value is not so capable are not provable thereunder."

Construction.—"Creditors" as used in this section means general creditors. Richmond v. Bird, (1919) 249 U. S. 174, 39 S. Ct. 186, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, affirming (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1917) 240 Fed. 545, 153 C. C. A. 349.

Taxes entitled to priority.—Interest on tax claims.—Holders of tax certificates are entitled out of the bankrupt's estate to interest on the amounts paid at ordinary legal rate. Dayton v. Pueblo County, (1916) 241 U. S. 588. See In re Clark Realty Co., (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 938.

Order of priority.—The expenses of administration are preferred over the claim of a state for taxes. Polk County v. Burns, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 399, 159 C. C. A. 453.

The unsecured claim of a municipality for unpaid personal taxes which was given no superior rights by the local law cannot be said to have been given priority over a valid lien for rent upon the personal property of the taxpayer, perfected before his bankruptcy, by reason of the provision of this section that the bankruptcy court shall order the trustee to pay "all taxes legally due and owing by the bankrupt to the United States, state, county, district, or municipality, in advance of the payment of dividends to creditors," in view of the protection afforded such a lien by the provision of section 67d (see vol. I, p. 1115) of that Act, that liens given or accepted in good faith, and not in contemplation of or in fraud upon the Act, shall not be affected by it. Richmond v. Bird, (1919) 249 U. S. 174, 39 S. Ct. 186, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, affirming (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1917) 240 Fed. 545, 153 C. C. A. 349, wherein the court said: "Respondents therefor must prevail unless priority over their lien is given by § 64a to claim for taxes which, under state law, occupied no better position than one held by a general creditor. Section 67d, Bankruptcy Act, quoted supra, declares that liens given or accepted in good faith and not in contemplation of or in fraud upon this act, shall not be affected by it. Other provisions must, of course, be construed in view of this positive one. Section 64a directs that taxes be paid in advance of dividends to creditors; and 'dividend' as commonly used throughout the act means partial payment to general creditors. In § 65b, for example, the word occurs in contrast to payment of debts which have priority. And as the local laws gave no superior right to the city's unsecured claim for taxes we are unable to conclude that Congress intended by § 64a to place it ahead of valid lien holders. New Jersey v. Anderson, (1906)

203 U. S. 483 [27 S. Ct. 137, 51 U. S. (L. ed.) 284], is not decisive of any point here contested; it only adjudged that New Jersey's claim was for a tax within the meaning of § 64a and entitled to be treated accordingly. See New Jersey v. Lowell, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1910) 179 Fed. 321 [102 C. C. A. 505, 31 L. R. A. (N. S.) 988]."

Priority over liens.—Section 64a relates merely to administration and does not disturb the priorities fixed by the substantive law. Polk County v. Burns, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 399, 159 C. C. A. 453, holding that under the Iowa statute personal property taxes were a lien on a stock of goods superior to a landlord's lien.

Duty of trustee to pay taxes—Tax certificates.—Holders of tax certificates who have paid the taxes and assessments on property of the bankrupt sold for nonpayment of taxes are entitled to an order directing the payment of such taxes out of the bankrupt's estate. Dayton v. Pueblo County, (1916) 241 U. S. 588; In re Clark Realty Co., (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 938.

Services rendered to bankrupt—In involuntary cases.—The amount allowed to an attorney for the bankrupt must be reasonable to be determined on the evidence of the service performed and its value. The limitation is also imposed that an allowance can be made only for such service as is rendered to the bankrupt "while performing the duties imposed upon him by the act." This excludes compensation for service rendered the bankrupt prior to filing the petition, resisting the adjudication, or in proposing or urging the acceptance or confirmation of a composition. In re Mumford, (E. D. N. C. 1919) 255 Fed. 108.

Attorneys' fees for creditors—In involuntary cases.—The petitioning creditors or their attorneys are entitled as a matter of right to an allowance for attorney's fees under this section. The amount must, of course, be reasonable and be determined on the evidence of the service performed and its value. In re Mumford, (D. C. E. D. N. C. 1919) 255 Fed. 108, wherein the court said: "It is uniformly held, and is in accordance with the plan provided by the act for dealing with such cases, that the allowance is to be confined to 'services actually rendered' in filing the petition and prosecuting it to the adjudication of the bankrupt. When this is accomplished, the estate passes under the jurisdiction and control of the court and its officers; the interest of the petitioning creditors, usually a small minority in number and amount of the general creditors, is merged into that of all of the creditors. The purpose of the act, the seizure and administration of the property of the bankrupt for the benefit of all the creditors, is accomplished. There is neither necessity nor opportunity for the attorney of the petitioning creditors to render 'actual service' to the estate."

Construction of clause.—This clause must be read in connection with the preceding clause, which indicates an intention of Congress to provide a fixed and certain preference for wage claims as such, without regard to the varying degrees of priority accorded to such claims by the laws of the different states. This provision, therefore, supersedes the state laws on the same subject; the authority of Congress over this subject being, to the extent to which it is exercised, exclusive. In re Caledonia Coal Co., (D. C. E. D. Mich. 1918) 254 Fed. 742.

"Wages."—Stockholders who permit the corporation to retain and use money due them as wages must be held to have loaned such money to the company, and claims therefor are not entitled to priority as labor claims. In re Caledonia Coal Co., (D. C. E. D. Mich. 1918) 254 Fed. 742.

Who may claim wages—Salesmen.—A claim has been held not entitled to priority as being one for wages due traveling salesmen where the following facts appeared. The claimants were partners, and represented other houses besides that of the bankrupt. They were not under any obligation to devote all their time to selling goods for the bankrupt, and apparently could control their time as they pleased. They were compensated on a commission basis; that is to say, if their orders were accepted, they were entitled to their commissions. They had an office of their own, with their own business cards, and were, for all practical purposes in their relations with the bankrupt, a commission house. In re Kerniners, (D. C. S. D. N. Y. 1916) 252 Fed. 183.

Landlord's right to priority.—By virtue of the Pennsylvania statute, a landlord, who had, at the time the petition in bankruptcy was filed, a right, or the lawful power, to distrain upon goods and chattels upon premises demised to the alleged bankrupt, is entitled to priority of payment of the rent in arrear (up to the limit of one year's rent) out of the proceeds of the sale of such goods and chattels. In re Delaney, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 251 Fed. 425; Rosenblum v. Uler, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 584.

Rent of earlier tenant.—The right of a landlord to assert priority of payment over other creditors of a bankrupt tenant being based on his right of distraint, he cannot be accorded such priority for rent due by a tenant who immediately preceded the bankrupt although the bankrupt on taking possession of the premises took over the personal property of the former tenant then on the premises. In such a case the relation of landlord and tenant as existing between the landlord and the prior tenant was dissolved on the making of the lease to the bankrupt, and as the landlord has no right to distrain as against the bankrupt tenant for rent due by his predecessor, he cannot claim priority therefor. In re West (E. D. Pa. 1918) 253 Fed. 963.

Priority under composition agreement.—One who lends money to a bankrupt for the purpose of enabling it to carry through a composition agreement, which fact is communicated to the creditors, cannot claim priority over the creditors in any liquidation of the assets of the bankrupt, but as between them and the lender the loan is a subordinated indebtedness. In re George C. Burns Co., (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 840.

Equitable rights—Assignment.—An order given by a bankrupt to a contractor for the payment of construction work, drawn on a bank as trustee of a mortgage fund raised for the purpose, cannot be considered as an equitable assignment of the fund giving the contractor preference over the other creditors, where it appears that the contractor acquiesced in and consented to another plan of disbursement, whereby the bankrupt issued checks on the mortgage funds which had been credited to it instead of to the trustee under the mortgage. In re Hawley Dawn Draft Furnace Co. (E. D. Pa. 1919) 256 Fed. 555.

Priority of mortgage bondholders.—"In the administration and distribution of the property of insolvent corporations in equity the claims of subsequent creditors without notice are superior and entitled to preference in payment over the holders with notice of mortgage bonds of the corporation whose only consideration was the purchase by the mortgagor corporation of its own stock, either for itself or for another." Edgar v. Ames, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1919) 255 Fed. 835.

The principle that valid parts of a severable contract which contains both valid and void or voidable parts may be enforced, if the consideration and the agreement are tainted with no fraud or immorality, although the void or voidable parts cannot be, has been applied in the case of corporate bonds. Edgar v. Ames, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1919) 255 Fed. 835.

Secured claims.—This section does not relate to claims secured by specific liens on the property protected by section 67 of the Bankruptcy Act. In re North Star Ice Co., etc., Co., (E. D. Tenn. 1918) 252 Fed. 301.

State may claim priority.—The right of a state to priority is limited to those cases expressly provided for or judicially recognized by the laws and courts of that state. State v. Martin, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 313.

Secured and priority creditors.—A creditor holding collateral security which by consent of the trustee he applies to his claim and which together with a part of the dividends thereon are sufficient to pay a claim for which the bankrupt is primarily liable may apply additional dividends to a claim for which the bankrupt is secondarily liable, but after such claim is paid the trustee may be subrogated to the creditor's rights in future dividends on a claim filed by the creditor against another bankrupt for which the first bankrupt is secondarily liable. In re American Paper Co., (D. C. N. J. 1919) 255 Fed. 121.

Payment of dividend not new promise.—The payment of dividends by the trustee in bankruptcy on a claim is not an acknowledgment of the debt by the bankrupt and a promise to pay it which takes the debt out of the state statute of limitations. American Woolen Co. v. Samuelson, (1919) 226 N. Y. 61, 123 N. E. 154.

Purpose of section.—This provision does no more than give to the trustee a right to dispute an alleged lien to the same extent which other creditors could have asserted had there not been an adjudication of bankruptcy. American Laundry Machinery Co. v. Everybody's Laundry, (Ia. 1919) 171 N. W. 161.

Section 67a does no more than to provide that creditors having no valid liens as against other creditors at the date when a debtor goes into bankruptcy shall have no lien upon the bankrupt's estate. In other words, the relative positions and relative rights of the individual creditors of the bankrupt as they exist when the jurisdiction of the federal court attaches are to remain unchanged, and claimants or creditors in whose favor there is then no valid lien as against other creditors cannot thereafter assert such alleged lien as against the trustee of the bankrupt estate. Section 67d recognizes the validity of liens created in good faith for a consideration and have been duly recorded if record was necessary to impart notice. American Laundry Machinery Co. v. Everybody's Laundry, (Ia. 1919) 171 N. W. 161.

Validity determined by state law.—Validity of chattel mortgage determined by law of state as to filing. In re Steiner, (D. C. E. D. N. Y. 1918) 249 Fed. 880.

The question of the validity of a chattel mortgage is one of local law. Garrison v. Kurt, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 672.

Mortgaged personal property removed from state where mortgage executed.—"The general consensus of judicial opinion seems to be that when personal property, which at the time is situated in a given state, is there mortgaged by the owner, and the mortgage is duly executed and recorded in the mode required by the local law so as to create a valid lien, the lien remains good and effectual, although the property is removed to another state, either with or without the consent of the mortgagee, and although the mortgage is not recorded in the state to which the removal is made. The mortgage lien is given effect, however, in the state to which the property is removed, solely by virtue of the doctrine of comity. Hence a state may by appropriate legislation decline to observe the rule of comity and may require all mortgages affecting personal property which is situated therein or brought therein to be recorded, as a condition precedent to the recognition of their validity in that state." Shapard v. Hynes, 104 Fed. 449, 45 C. C. A. 271, 52 L. R. A. 675; In re Davis, (D. C. W. D. Tenn. 1919) 256 Fed. 52.

Invalid chattel mortgage or pledge.—The claim of a city to title to tools and equipment of a contractor, taken by the city on the contractor's abandonment of his contract, cannot be enforced against a trustee in bankruptcy on the theory of the city's right to the property as mortgagee where the instrument alleged to constitute the mortgage is not recorded in accordance with the provisions of a state statute; nor can such a claim be based on the rights of the city as pledgee where there was no delivery of possession, which is essential to a pledge of chattels. In re P. J. Sullivan Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 660, 166 C. C. A. 158, affirming (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 247 Fed. 139.

Retention of possession by the mortgagors of a stock of goods and their authority to make sales and to retain receipts, which elements tend to invalidate a mortgage, may be insufficient for that purpose, when qualified by other conditions, as where other creditors extended credit with actual or constructive notice of the mortgage and the entire transaction showed the utmost good faith on the part of the mortgagee. Garrison v. Kurt, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 672.

Secret equity of wife.—Where a wife, with knowledge that her husband has taken title in his own name to property purchased with funds belonging to her, permits him to retain title and possession, and credit is extended to him upon the faith of his apparent ownership, she will be estopped from asserting her secret equity as against a trustee in bankruptcy seeking to recover the property to be applied upon debts arising from credits extended on the faith of the husband's apparent ownership. Krueger v. MacDougall, (1918) 148 Ga. 429, 96 S. E. 867.

to suspend the right of action for a debt against the bankrupt person. If the creditors have a lien or equitable claim, by mortgage or otherwise, upon the property of the bankrupt, such right or rights remain uneffective. The independent collateral agreement given by way of security outlives the remedy on the debt which it was given to secure. Bisby v. Walker, (Ia. 1918) 169 N. W. 467.

Rights of lienor.—Under section 70 of the Bankruptcy Act the trustee is vested only with the bankrupt's title to property. Hence where the bankrupt's property is subject to a mortgage or other incumbrances, the trustee takes only the bankrupt's equity therein, subject to such incumbrances; and since under section 67 of the Act the validity of the pre-existing liens is not affected, the lienholder, unless restrained by the order of the bankruptcy court, may enforce the same dehors the court. Nevertheless the bankruptcy court may in the interest of general creditors regulate the method of enforcing such lien in order to realize as much as possible from the bankrupt's equity. If the property comes into the possession of the bankruptcy court it may sell the property free from the lien and award the lienholder a preferential payment representing the proceeds of his lien. This practice is, however, of doubtful propriety where the right to a lien is disputed and its determination would involve a controversy productive of delay in the bankruptcy proceedings. Or the bankruptcy court may, in its discretion, sell merely the bankrupt's equity in the property; that is, sell the property subject to the incumbrance and leave the lienor to enforce his lien upon the property by appropriate proceedings. In thus selling the property subject to lien "the trustee acts only in the interest of general creditors." In re North Star Ice, etc., Co., (E. D. Tenn. 1918) 252 Fed. 301.

The state law governs.—To same effect as original annotation, see New York Fifth Nat. Bank v. Lytle, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 361, 162 C. C. A. 431.

The state law as interpreted by the state courts governs as to the validity of an unrecorded chattel mortgage given by the bankrupt. Jones v. Excelsior Springs Bank, (Mo. App. 1919) 213 S. W. 892.

The effect to be given to an unrecorded chattel mortgage where the possession of the mortgaged article is not given to the mortgagee is to be determined by the law of the state in which the case arises. Stewart v. Asbury, (1918) 199 Mo. App. 123, 201 S. W. 949.

Where under a provision of the state constitution creating liens, the existence of a lien is not dependent on any action taken under the terms of a statute, the seller of property which comes within the provision of the constitution acquires an enforceable lien against the trustee having notice thereof, regardless of any statute as to the filing of the contract when in writing, such enactment being considered as merely providing for notice and no rights having arisen on the part of any one because of the failure to record the instrument. Reeves v. New York Engineering etc. Co., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 513.

Chattel mortgages.—A chattel mortgage covering goods sold for use in a retail store, and providing that its lien should extend to goods bought to replace those sold from the store, is good as between the parties, and creates an equitable lien on the subsequently acquired property which may be perfected by the mortgagee taking possession of such property. Consequently a purchaser of the store and goods who assumes the mortgage is bound by its terms, and if he subsequently becomes a bankrupt, that part of the replacement goods which the mortgagee has reduced to possession prior to the bankruptcy is not subject to the control of the bankrupt court and may be held by the mortgagee who has thus perfected his equitable lien. In re Roseboom (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 136.

Unrecorded chattel mortgage.—A chattel mortgage which is not required by the law of the state to be recorded cannot be avoided by the trustee. Bonner v. Athens First Nat. Bank, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 692, 160 C. C. A. 592.

"The bank is not in a position to claim an equitable lien, which can precede the title of the trustee, for notwithstanding the knowledge which its officers had of the situation it deliberately kept the existence of the mortgages secret, and refrained from putting them upon record." Bakersfield Nat. Bank v. Moore, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 913.

An assignee of chattel mortgages taken by the bankrupt to secure payment to him for goods sold, which assignments were made to secure loans by the assignee to the mortgagee, has been held entitled to moneys collected by the mortgagee within the four months period. In re Michigan Furniture Co., (D. C. S. D. N. Y. 1918) 249 Fed. 978.

Redemption by trustee.—The trustee may, and if it is to the interest of creditors to do so, should redeem property from a pledge by the bankrupt. In re East Stroudsburg Supply, etc., Co., (M. D. Pa. 1918) 248 Fed. 356.

Right of mortgagee to rents.—A mortgagee is entitled to receive on his claim for a deficiency, rents collected by the trustee from the mortgaged premises, as against the general creditors. Bindseil v. Liberty Trust Co., (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1917) 248 Fed. 112, 160 C. C. A. 252.

Mechanics' and kindred liens.—A person holding a mechanic's lien against the land of a bankrupt, who also files his claim based on such lien in the bankruptcy proceedings, is entitled to share in the distribution of the proceeds from the land sold free from liens, although he has not complied with the provisions of a state statute requiring a writ of scire facias to be issued within two years, as there was no legal necessity that the writ be issued after the lien had been divested by the sale under the bankruptcy proceedings. In re Dubasky, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 253 Fed. 794.

Proceedings in bankruptcy under which the property of a building contractor was sold by the trustee, and the subcontractors and other lienholders were called upon to show cause why they should not have their inscriptions erased and their claims referred to the proceeds of the sale of the property to which the liens had attached, do not operate as a "concursum" under a state statute which provides that the failure of the holder of a lien against a contractor to assert any objection to the sufficiency or solvency of the surety on the contractor's bond has the effect of remitting him to his remedy against the surety company and therefore of releasing any claim he might otherwise have against the proceeds of the sale of the property to which the lien attached. C. C. Hartwell Co. v. Miller, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 273.

Compliance with state statute.—An order of a referee disallowing a mechanic's lien on the ground that the contractor had failed to file the statement required by a state statute, will be reversed on petition for review and the lien allowed on a showing that such a statement had been filed which was acquiesced in by counsel for the other parties in interest. In re Williams, (N. D. Ohio 1918) 252 Fed. 924.

Trust deeds.—Where a trust deed, which has been given to certain creditors to secure the payment of their claims, is by its terms subordinate to a prior trust deed given for an amount deemed sufficient to liquidate all claims against the debtor, and is also delivered on the condition that nothing is to be paid thereon until all the claims of creditors are satisfied, the lien of the creditors under the second deed is subordinate to the claims of the bankrupt's other creditors irrespective of the validity of the earlier deed. In re Cloverdale Creamery Co., (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 194.

Equitable liens.—The surety of a bankrupt contractor who is liable for labor and material claims will be given an equitable lien on a sum of money paid to the contractor by the owner where the specific fund may be traced into the hands of the trustee. Cox v. New England Equitable Ins. Co., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 955, 160 C. C. A. 655.

Where a bankrupt mingled funds alleged to have been obtained by fraud with his general funds, all of which was deposited in bank from day to day in order to meet overdrafts which were also secured by the pledge of certain collateral security, the defrauded claimant cannot claim a preference in the proceeds of the sale of the collateral on the ground that the mingling of the funds had created a trust in his favor on such collateral, nor can he be subrogated to the rights of the bank against the collateral. Knouth v. Knight, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1919) 255 Fed. 677.

A surety advancing money to his bankrupt principal to take up the secured claims, the money being used for that purpose in connection with money of the bankrupt and being mingled with the general funds of the bankrupt, is not entitled to an equitable lien. Chapman v. Hunt, (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 248 Fed. 160.

Pledges.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see Griffin v. Smith, (1918) 177 Cal. 481, 171 Pac. 92.

A pledge by a bankrupt of lumber held by a storage company in carload lots, a "carload" representing either the load of a particular car which was kept separate by the storage company, or lumber of the value of two hundred dollars, is not invalid because of indefiniteness, and the storage company may be required to set aside the amount of lumber pledged in so-called "carload lots" as against the claims of the trustee in bankruptcy, even though some of the lumber delivered to it was shipped by water and not in cars. Atherton v. Beaman, (D. C. Mass. 1919) 256 Fed. 871.

Administration by court of incumbered property.—A bankruptcy court is not required to administer property burdened with liens, and should only do so when it is for the interest of the general estate. In re North Star Ice, etc., Co., (E. D. Tenn. 1918) 252 Fed. 301.

Distinction between fraud and preference.—The distinction between fraudulent transfers avoidable under section 67e and preferential transfers avoidable under section 60b was pointed out in Smith v. Coury, (D. C. Me. 1918) 247 Fed. 168, as follows: "Under section 67(e) the basis of invalidity is much broader than under section 60(b); it covers every transfer made by the bankrupts within four months before the filing of the petition with the intent and purpose to hinder, delay, or defraud their creditors or any of them; for a transaction may be invalid both as a preference and as a fraudulent transfer. It is clear that, whatever the conveyance be, wherever the transferee receives property and advances, or pays money therefor, with knowledge or reason to believe that the money so advanced is to be used to make a payment to creditors, which would be preferential because of the insolvency of the maker of the transfer, it is a fraudulent transfer and void, under section 67(e). In Dean v. Davis, 242 U. S. 438, 37 Sup. Ct. 130, 61 L. Ed. 419, speaking for the Supreme Court, Mr. Justice Brandeis has made a clear exposition of the law on this subject, and has added a table of valuable citations. In Van Iderstine v. Nat. Discount Co., 227 U. S. 575, 582, 33 Sup. Ct. 343, 57 L. Ed. 652, the distinction is pointed out between the intent to prefer and the intent to defraud. It is shown that one is inherently always vicious; the other innocent and valid except when made in violation of the express provisions of a statute. A fraudulent conveyance is void regardless of its date, while a preference is valid unless made within the prohibited period."

Intent to hinder, delay or defraud essential.—Neither the fact that a mortgage given by a bankrupt was to a relative of his nor that it was not recorded was notice of a fraudulent intent. Kimbrough v. Alred, (Ala. 1918) 80 So. 617.

The fact that a person selling property on which he had given a mortgage to a relative was heavily indebted does not as against the purchaser make the transfer fraudulent if based on a good consideration as a bona fide sale, though the purchaser had knowledge of the mortgage and required that a part of the consideration paid be used to discharge such mortgage. Kimrough v. Alred, (Ala. 1918) 80 So. 617.

A conveyance by a bankrupt made without intent to defraud cannot be avoided under the first paragraph of section 67e, which requires that actual fraud must be shown. Baldwin v. Kingston, (D. C. N. J. 1918) 247 Fed. 163.

Transfer of individual property to partnership.—Where a person who is not shown to be insolvent at the time, organizes a partnership and transfers his individual property to the partnership, this act is not in itself a hindering and delaying of creditors within the meaning of the Bankrupt Act. In re Stringer, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 352, 165 C. C. A. 134.

Transfer of corporate property by corporate officers.—Where a corporation, knowing itself to be insolvent, sells its property and in so doing disables itself from carrying on its business or performing its contracts, and with the proceeds pays the claims of certain creditors who are largely its friends, it is guilty of transferring its property with the intent to hinder, delay and defraud its creditors. Smith v. Powers, (N. D. N. Y. 1919) 255 Fed. 582.

Transfers void under state law.—Where the transfer of the property by an insolvent corporation is made invalid by a state law the trustee in bankruptcy of the corporation may recover such payments under this section when made within four months prior to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, and it is immaterial what the intent and purpose of the recipient was or whether or not he had knowledge of the insolvency of the corporation. Smith v. Powers, (N. D. N. Y. 1919) 255 Fed. 582.

Transfer by husband to wife.—In the case of a conveyance by a husband to his wife more than four months before he filed a voluntary petition, which conveyance was alleged in a suit by the trustee to have been in fraud of creditors, it has been said: "The mere relationship of husband and wife between the parties to a transfer is not sufficient ground for setting aside a conveyance, although the question of the circumstance of such relationship may be considered on the question of fraud. . . . Transactions between husband and wife to the prejudice of the husband's creditors will be closely scrutinized to see that they are fair and honest, and not merely contrivances resorted to for the purpose of placing the husband's property beyond the reach of creditors. Where the conveyance is made, even though by an insolvent, for the purpose of discharging an indebtedness incurred in good faith, and the bona fides of the consideration is not attacked, other than by possible inference or a belief that possibly the transaction was colorable, courts will not undertake to defeat the will of such grantor, even though it have the effect of preventing other creditors from subjecting the property in satisfaction of their indebtedness." Swan v. Bailey, (Okla. 1918) 174 Pac. 1065.

Transfer to corporation organized for that purpose.—Where a bankrupt, while insolvent and before his adjudication, forms a corporation in combination with near relatives as nominal stockholders, and transfers his property to such corporation with the purpose of hindering, delaying and defrauding his creditors, such a corporation will not be subrogated to execution liens paid off by it before the adjudication. To allow this would be to allow the bankrupt to be reimbursed through this means for debts he was legally bound to pay and of which the law at the time was compelling payment. In re Tiller, (N. D. W. Va. 1918) 253 Fed. 845.

Transfer to new or another corporation.—In New York it is lawful for a business corporation to transfer its entire property to a new or another corporation, and leave its creditors to collect from such other or successor company, unless the creditors object; but, if they do object, they cannot be compelled to recognize as their debtor any one with whom they did not contract; and the conveyance, good inter partes, becomes fraudulent as to the nonconsenting creditors, who by appropriate suit (as for sequestration) may pursue the property that was their debtor's unless prevented by some equity other than that of the transferee and recover from the estate in bankruptcy of the transferee. In re American Candy Mfg. Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 87, — C. C. A. —, reversing (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 248 Fed. 145.

Money is leviable property and may be reached by a creditor's suit when fraudulently disposed of. Kimbrough v. Alred, (Ala. 1918) 80 So. 617.

Bank deposits.—The deposit by a receiver in bankruptcy of funds under his control in a bank to which the bankrupt was indebted and which later became insolvent, does not amount to a conveyance or transfer, etc., void or voidable under this section. In re United Grocery Co., (S. D. Fla. 1918) 253 Fed. 267.

Gift.—In Murray v. Ray, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 866, 164 C. C. A. 82, it was held that a conveyance by the bankrupt without consideration, was a gift, and voidable at the suit of the trustee in bankruptcy.

Payments for services rendered.—A trustee may recover funds which have been transferred in the form of exorbitant payments for services rendered, supplies furnished and the like. Kimbrough v. Alred, (Ala. 1918) 80 So. 617.

Chattel mortgages.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see In re Schilling, (N. D. Ohio 1918) 251 Fed. 966; In re Schilling, (N. D. Ohio 1918) 251 Fed. 972.

Where chattel mortgagees have unlawfully foreclosed the mortgage and disposed of the property so that it cannot be turned over to the trustee, they cannot be heard to complain that they are required to pay to the trustee the value of the property, instead of an amount sufficient to pay the claims filed, where the trial court's judgment fully protects them by providing that any surplus left after the trustee has discharged the obligations of the bankrupt's estate, shall be paid over to the mortgagees. Simpson v. Combes, (Wash. 1919) 182 Pac. 566.

In a suit by a trustee to set aside a foreclosure and sale of property under a chattel mortgage and to recover the property involved or the value thereof, fraud or conspiracy is not established by evidence merely that the mortgagee did not attempt to foreclose the mortgage when it became due by reason of default in payments by the mortgagor. Simpson v. Combes, (Wash. 1919) 182 Pac. 566.

No part of section 67 makes invalid a chattel mortgage merely because it was given at a time when the bankrupt is insolvent and within four months prior to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy and for a past consideration. A chattel mortgage given under these conditions is valid or invalid as provided in section 60. In re Schilling, (N. D. Ohio 1918) 251 Fed. 972.

Mortgage given but not recorded.—The fact that a mortgagor may, where the mortgage is not recorded, be permitted to remain in possession of the mortgaged property, is not necessarily controlling on the question of fraud. Kimbrough v. Alred, (Ala. 1918) 80 So. 617, wherein the court, after citing cases referred to in support of the view that such retention of possession showed a fraudulent intent, said: "These cases, however, dealt with transactions wherein the mortgagor was permitted to remain in possession of the mortgaged property, such as stock of goods or lumber, with the right to dispose of the same, as had been the previous custom, on his own behalf, and thereby reserving a benefit to the mortgagor, which rendered the mortgage fraudulent. These cases are, in our opinion, not in point in the instant case. The mortgagor here was not left in possession of the property with the authority to dispose of the plant in the ordinary course of trade, as in the case of a stock of goods, and the very nature of the property distinguishes it in every way from a stock of merchandise. The mere retention therefore by the mortgagor, in such a case, was not such a reservation of a benefit to him as invalidates the instrument against creditors."

Other conveyances held fraudulent.—In Smith v. Coury, (D. C. Me. 1918) 247 Fed. 168, a conveyance was held to be fraudulent in fact, the court saying: "The proofs show that close family relations existed between the defendants and the bankrupts; that the Courys knew the Hobarts were doing a losing business; that they were not attending to their trade; that they were increasing their indebtedness all the time; that on December 2, 1915, they were conveying away all their real estate. Simon Hobart admitted that he knew of his insolvency, and that the effect of the transfer would be that creditors, other than the Courys, would not get their pay. He must then have known that the effect of the transfer would be to hinder, delay, and defraud creditors. His brother must have known it. The proofs convince me, too, that Amos and Selim Coury had such facts brought home to them as would put reasonably prudent men on inquiry, and that inquiry would inevitably have revealed insolvency. They must be held then to have known that this transfer would effect a preference, and would hinder, delay, and defraud other creditors. I am satisfied that the transaction in question was voidable in its entirety as a transfer made with intent to hinder, delay, and defraud creditors under section 67(e)."

Recovery by trustee.—A suit to set aside, as in fraud of creditors, certain conveyances, to declare certain transactions void and to recover property and funds thus transferred is properly brought in the name of the trustee. Kimbrough v. Alred, (Ala. 1918) 80 So. 617.

In a suit to set aside as in fraud of creditors, certain conveyances, to declare certain transactions void and to recover property and funds thus transferred, the bankrupt is properly made a party defendant. Kimbrough v. Alred, (Ala. 1918) 80 So. 617.

Action for recovery—Pleading must set out facts.—Since a trustee in bankruptcy has no greater rights than the creditors, in an action to obtain possession of property of the bankrupt fraudulently conveyed or subject to creditors' liens he must allege and prove that he has not sufficient assets in his hands to satisfy claims of creditors of the bankrupt. Hibschman v. Bevis, (1918) 103 Wash. 317, 174 Pac. 5, wherein the court said: "A trustee in bankruptcy has no greater right, nor is he accorded higher standing in the civil courts, than a creditor would have if the suit were brought by him in his own behalf. He is subject to the same rules of pleading and is bound to meet the same measure of proof as if no bankruptcy proceeding were pending. In consequence, the rule is quite universal that a trustee in bankruptcy cannot maintain an action unless it is alleged and sustained by proof that he has not sufficient assets in his hands to satisfy the claims of the creditors of the debtor. . . . The theory of the law is that a suit by a trustee in bankruptcy is essentially a creditor's bill, and that the insufficiency of the property left in the debtor's hands is an essential to the right to question a fraudulent conveyance, whether the suit be maintained by a creditor or by a trustee in his own behalf."

Upon the issue as to whether a bankrupt had, at the time of making a gift, retained property fully sufficient and available for the satisfaction of his then creditors, as required by a state law in order to render the gift a valid one, allegations in his answer and his evidence, in attempting to show that he had done so, to the effect that "he owed little or nothing more than he had property to pay," is insufficient for the judge to reverse a negative finding of the jury and answer the issue in the affirmative, it being for the jury to find thereon as to the debtor's solvency or insolvency at the time of making the gift. In such a case it is the determination by the jury of the fact whether the donor had retained property amply sufficient to pay his creditors at the time of his making the gift, within the intent and meaning of the statute, which determines the validity of the transaction, and the question of his intent to defraud has no significance. Garland v. Arrowood, (1919) 177 N. C. 371, 99 S. E. 100.

Where a bill sufficiently shows a scheme on the part of the bankrupt to defraud his creditors, and that resort was had to the various transactions, as set up in the bill, for the consummation of this one purpose, it has been held that the bill is not multifarious for having made respondents those parties charged with participation or knowledge of the fraud, although in separate transactions which had no connection one with the other. Kimbrough v. Alred, (Ala. 1918) 80 So. 617.

Evidence and proof.—Where it is claimed in a suit by a trustee in bankruptcy to recover property conveyed by the debtor to his wife more than four months before the filing of a petition in bankruptcy, on the ground that such conveyance was in fraud of the creditors of the bankrupt, it is incumbent upon the trustee to prove that the conveyance was either made without a fair and valuable consideration, or in bad faith, or for the purpose of hindering, delaying, or defrauding the creditors of the grantor. True, it is not necessary that fraud should be established by direct proof; for such purpose it is competent to resort to circumstantial or presumptive evidence. Swan v. Bailey, (Okla. 1918) 174 Pac. 1065.

Where it was claimed, in an action by a trustee to recover commercial paper transferred by the bankrupt to his son's wife, that the transfer was in fraud of creditors, it was held that the claim was not sustained where the transferee testified that she purchased such paper with her own funds at no more than a reasonable discount, and other testimony tended to show the possession of abundant means by her with which to have made the purchase and that she had engaged in various businesses in which she had been usually successful, and furthermore tended to refute any idea of knowledge of a fraudulent purpose on the part of the bankrupt. Mohamara v. Farnsworth, (Wash. 1919) 180 Pac. 466.

Concurrent jurisdiction.—An objection to a complaint in a state court by a creditor, to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance, on the ground that the plaintiff has not a legal capacity to sue and that the trustee is the only proper party to bring such an action, cannot, it is held, be sustained for the reason that proceedings in bankruptcy do not prevent an action in the state courts to set aside fraudulent transactions on the part of the bankrupt, it being also declared that even if the proceedings in bankruptcy could be regarded as in the nature of an action in the federal court, the state court has jurisdiction to determine the issues. Board of Directors v. Lawrence, (S. C. 1919) 97 S. E. 830.

III. Judgment liens.

IV. Attachment and garnishment liens.

V. Liens on exempt property.

I. ANNULMENT OF LIENS GENERALLY
(p. 1130)

Voluntary and involuntary proceedings included.—This section is applicable to voluntary as well as involuntary bankruptcies. Ford v. Henderson, (Ore. 1919) 179 Pac. 558.

Landlord's lien.—A judgment obtained against a bankrupt one day before he filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy is void under this section, and consequently cannot be superior to a chattel mortgage on the bankrupt's property given nearly two years prior to his bankruptcy, nor does the fact that the lien acquired by the judgment is provided for by a state statute affect the operation of the rule under this section. In re Chambers (N. D. Ia. 1919) 254 Fed. 506.

Annulment of liens obtained through legal proceedings.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Chambers, (N. D. Ia. 1919) 254 Fed. 506.

III. JUDGMENT LIENS (p. 1134)

Judgment against husband and wife.—This section applies to a judgment against husband and wife rendered within four months of the bankruptcy of the husband as to leasehold property owned by the two as tenants by the entirety. Ades v. Caplan, (1918) 132 Md. 66, 103 Atl. 94, L. R. A. 1918 D. 276.

Lien on salaries of state employees.—A state statute provided for the filing within 30 days after entry of judgments against officers or employees of the state or of any municipal corporation, and for the payment after the expiration of 30 days to the owner of the judgment by the disbursing officer of the state or of the municipal corporation of such sum as was then due or might thereafter become due to such officer or employee as salary or wages, not exceeding the amount of the judgment, and not including such sums as were exempt from garnishment. It was held that the lien given by such statute was affected by this section. Jefferson Transfer Co. v. Hall, (1918) 166 Wis. 438, 166 N. W. 1.

Judgment acquired prior to four months period.—While it is true that the Bankruptcy Act avoids only those liens of executors issued within the four months period, when the owner of a lien based on an execution issued before that time has lost it by reason of his unreasonable delay in enforcing it by sale, he cannot claim the benefit of that provision. In such a case the lienor loses the benefit of his lien as against other execution creditors, not because the levy was intended to defraud other creditors, but because of the policy of the law not to permit the use of executions for other than legitimate purposes, and levies made to secure and hold a lien could easily be made to hinder and delay other creditors. In re Rayford Truck, etc., Co., (E. D. Pa. 1918) 250 Fed. 634.

Right of judgment creditor to file answer.—A judgment creditor whose judgment is invalid under this section because obtained within the four months period, may nevertheless answer the petition as an unsecured creditor by virtue of sections 1(9), 18(b) and 59f supra. In re Carey, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 688, 166 C. C. A. 186.

Debtor solvent when judgment entered.—If the debtor was solvent at the time the judgment was entered his subsequent bankruptcy will not invalidate the lien unless there was actual intent to defraud. Farmer's Nat. Bank v. Slaton, (1918) 180 Ky. 700, 203 S. W. 565.

Effect of execution sale after filing of petition.—On the filing of a petition the property of the bankrupt is in custodia legis, and a sale thereafter made under a judgment entered less than four months before bankruptcy is a nullity. Archenhold Co. v. Schaefer, (Tex. 1918) 205 S. W. 139.

IV. ATTACHMENT AND GARNISHMENT LIENS (p. 1136)

Effect of section.—The effect of this provision as working a dissolution of an attachment is not affected by a state act providing: "From the date of the attachment, until it be discharged or the writ executed, the plaintiff, as against third persons, shall be deemed a purchaser in good faith and for a valuable consideration of the property, real or personal, attached." Ford v. Henderson, (Ore. 1919) 179 Pac. 558.

Attachment and garnishment liens.—An attachment lien on a crop acquired within four months is void. Ford v. Henderson, (Ore. 1919) 178 Pac. 381.

Attachment for rent.—An attachment for rent is not the equivalent of a distress for rent, where the levy perfects an existing inchoate lien which does not require a judicial proceeding to make it effective, but merely serves to sequester and control in the custody of the court the means of satisfying any judgment later secured on the merits. Consequently the lien secured by such an attachment if levied within four months prior to the petition in bankruptcy is void under this section. Jones v. Ford, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 645, 166 C. C. A. 143.

V. LIENS ON EXEMPT PROPERTY (p. 1138)

Rights acquired in exempt property by contract or waiver of exemptions.—Where a judgment creditor issues execution out of a state court and levies on personal property of the defendant, who, pending the sale under the execution, has a petition in bankruptcy filed against him, and who subsequently fails or refuses to file any claim for exempt property, the creditor is not deprived of his lien by this section and his right to receive payment in full out of the assets of the estate thus previously liened on up to the amount of the debtor's exemption which had been waived in favor of the judgment creditor, as this section does not defeat rights in exempt property acquired by contract or by waiver of the exemption. In re Goldberg, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 254 Fed. 440.

Object and scope of section.—Set-offs are authorized only in cases of "mutual debts or mutual credits." This does not enlarge or change—it only recognizes—what under general law may constitute set-offs. Lehigh Valley Coal Sales Co. v. Maguire, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 581, 163 C. C. A. 575.

Federal decisions are controlling in an action in a state court as to the right of set-off as against a trustee in bankruptcy. Whaley v. King, (Tenn. 1918) 206 S. W. 31.

Set-off against claim.—The holder of a mortgage on the property of a bankrupt is entitled to file and have allowed his claim against the estate for the difference between the debt due and the value of the security covered by the mortgage, and in determining the difference the amount of outstanding taxes against the property covered by the mortgage should be deducted. When the holder of the mortgage has purchased these tax certificates he is entitled to receive from the estate the sum represented by them, but in such case his claim representing the difference between the amount of the bankrupt's indebtedness to him and the value of the security should be reduced in accordance with sections 57k and 57l supra to the extent of these certificates. In re Clark Realty Co., (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 938, 66 C. C. A. 38.

Time as of which account is stated and liquidated.—Incorporated in all bankrupt systems, English and American, is the idea that everything stops at a certain date, as of which reckonings are made, and to which status and rights relate. For the purpose of testing rights upon liquidation, the date of the filing of an involuntary petition by the bankrupt is this date. The estate of the bankrupt as it then stands goes into administration, and a creditor's right to a set-off or counterclaim is determined as of that date. The proceeding in bankruptcy impounds the bankrupt's existing estate, but it does not reach forward and affect the wages, earnings, profits, or transactions that subsequently arise. While they belong to the bankrupt, they are parts of his new estate. A "new estate" of a bankrupt may be defined to be that estate which is built up by or accrues to him after the test date which is the line of demarcation between such and the "old estate"—the date of filing of the petition. In order to a set-off mutuality is necessary, and in order to mutuality the debts or credits must exist at the time thus indicated. Bramham v. Lanier, (1917) 138 Tenn. 702, 200 S. W. 830.

Money due by creditor under court orders.—Where, at the time of the adjudication, the bankrupt had in its possession certain raw material of another corporation upon which it was under contract to perform certain machine work, part of which work it had already performed, and such material was turned over to the owner by the receiver upon the order of the bankruptcy court which provided that the owner was to pay to the receiver the value of the work already performed by the bankrupt, it was held that the owner could not set off the amount due against its claim for breach of the contract. In re Barnes Gear Co., (N. D., N. Y. 1918) 251 Fed. 764.

Money given for specific purpose.—Where a creditor receives money from his debtor, with instructions not to apply it on the debt, but to hold or use it for a specific purpose, the right of set-off does not exist, because the creditor has become, not the debtor of his debtor, but the trustee of a specific trust.

Lehigh Valley Coal Sales Co., v. Maguire, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 581, 163 C. C. A. 575.

Set-off between bank and depositor.—Where a bank, on the insolvency of another bank, appropriated a deposit credit of the insolvent bank and credited it on notes of which it was indorsee from the latter bank, it was held that on the bankruptcy of the makers of the notes the indorsee bank being the legal owner of such paper was entitled to dividends from the estate of the maker, although an allowance of interest in the sum thus appropriated was properly refused. Coats Shingle Co. v. Chester, etc., Co., (Wash. 1919) 179 Pac. 862.

Set-off after adjudication.—A deposit made by a receiver in bankruptcy after the adjudication in a bank to which the bankrupt was indebted cannot be used in payment of this indebtedness. In re United Grocery Co., (S. D. Fla. 1918) 253 Fed. 267.

Trustee takes bankrupt's title.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see In re Moose River Lumber Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 251 Fed. 409; In re Roseboom, (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 136.

The trustee of a bankrupt mortgagor stands in no better position than the bankrupt in a controversy between him and the mortgagee. In re Russell Falls Co., (D. C. Mass. 1918) 249 Fed. 260.

The payment by a corporate officer of his personal debts from the funds of the corporation, which fact was known to his fellow officers who owned nearly all of the stock, is ratified by their silence and failure to object, and as the trustee in bankruptcy of the corporation has, under the circumstances, no greater rights than the corporation, he cannot set up the fact that such payments were improperly made. Atherton v. Beaman (D. C. Mass. 1919) 256 Fed. 871.

Title as if by purchase.—The trustee in bankruptcy takes title as if by purchase. He takes an absolute title, which of course carries with it the right of possession. Harlin v. American Trust Co., (Ind. App. 1918) 119 N. E. 20.

Valid liens and incumbrances.—Property obtained by bankrupt's fraud.—A trustee in bankruptcy takes the property of the bankrupt acquired by fraudulent representations made to a seller subject to the same rights and liabilities as those of the bankrupt would have been if bankruptcy proceedings had not been instituted, except in cases where there has been a conveyance or incumbrance of the property which is void as against the trustee by some positive provision of the Bankruptcy Act. In re F. Grave Construction Co. (N. D. N. Y. 1919) 256 Fed. 907.

III. TIME WHEN TITLE PASSES (p. 1154)

Effect of commencement of proceedings.—Property in custodia legis.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see In re Capital City Cap Co., (D. C. N. J. 1918) 251 Fed. 664, holding that property held under a conditional sale contract passed to the trustee where the contract was recorded after the petition was filed but before the adjudication.

Effect of adjudication.—Trustee takes title as of date of adjudication. In re Soltmann, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 455.

Since the trustee is vested with the bankrupt mortgagor's title as of date of adjudication, if the mortgagee brings suit to foreclose after that date, though before the trustee is selected, and the trustee is not made a party, his equity of redemption is not barred by the judgment in the foreclosure proceeding. In re Soltmann, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 455.

VI. EXEMPT PROPERTY (p. 1162)

Title remains in bankrupt.—This section excepts property which is lawfully claimed by the bankrupt as exempt and does not confer on the bankruptcy court jurisdiction to administer it. McBride v. Gibbs, (1918) 148 Ga. 380, 96 S. E. 1004.

VII. RECLAMATION PROCEEDINGS (p. 1165)

Right to reclaim.—Claim allowed from proceeds of sale.—A creditor may reclaim merchandise which was obtained by means of false representations which were relied on by him, so long as it remains in the hands of the bankrupt. And even when such merchandise has been disposed of he may claim the proceeds, provided he can identify the fund. In re Askin Dress Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 926, 166 C. C. A. 26.

Where hogs were sold to which persons asserted claims it was said: "It has further been contended that certain stockholders of the National Hog Company had rights or claims to some of the hogs in the herd, and that their rights had been denied them by the seizure and sale of the herd. It is proper for us to add that it is quite apparent that there was a pressing necessity to very promptly sell this herd, as there were no funds with which to feed the hogs. But the substitution of the purchase money for the herd in no way changes the rights of litigants, and if any stockholders of the company had any rights, claims, or property in any of the hogs, it is certainly in the power, and we doubt not will be the wish, of the court below, if it be shown such rights exist, by proper proceedings and order, to afford such persons an opportunity to litigate and establish their several rights."

Gealey v. South Side Trust Co., (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 189.

Where a bankrupt obtains possession of goods by fraud, misrepresentation, and deceit, and then fraudulently and wrongfully sells them, and afterwards collects a part of the proceeds of the sale, which are traced into the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy, the person from whom the goods were obtained may rescind the sale to the bankrupt and may recover such proceeds from the trustee. In re Liebig, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 458, 166 C. C. A. 534.

Demand upon receiver for property held by him.—Whatever rights the holder of an unverified and unrecorded trust receipt, under which he delivered property to a bankrupt, may have in view, a paper demand made by him on a receiver appointed by a state court for the possession of the property and subsequent appropriate demands on the receiver in bankruptcy are not prejudiced by the treatment of the property requisite to its marketing or by its subsequent sale when possessed, or by its intermingling with other property, though consented to by the holder of the receipt. His rights must be regarded as fixed as of the date of the appointment of the receiver by the state court, and to be the same as if the property was susceptible of delivery in the original packages in which they were first received. In re Bettman Johnson Co., (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 657, 163 C. C. A. 3.

Reclamation precluded by act of claimant.—Failure to file.—The vendor of goods to a bankrupt taking a chattel mortgage to secure the purchase price cannot reclaim the property from the receiver in bankruptcy where he has failed to have the mortgage recorded as required by a statute of the state in which the sale was made, providing that such a contract shall be void as against the creditors of the mortgagor unless filed in accordance with the provisions of the statute. In re American Steel Supply Syndicate, (E. D. Mich. 1919) 256 Fed. 876.

The surrender value of a life insurance policy on the life of a bankrupt, payable to a third person as beneficiary, cannot be cancelled except with the consent of such person and consequently does not fall within the powers which a bankrupt might have exercised for his own benefit, which pass to his trustee under this section. In re Simmons, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1919) 255 Fed. 521, 166 C. C. A. 589.

Property sold by a bankrupt but retained in his possession passes to the transferee, if sold in good faith, where, under the decisions of the state where the transaction takes place, such a sale is good if such a change of possession is not practical or possible. In re Komara, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 57, 163 C. C. A. 297, wherein the court upheld a sale by a son-in-law to his mother-in-law, a woman of seventy years, whose only home was with the son-in-law.

I. IN GENERAL (p. 1171)

Transferable and leviable property passes to trustee.—To same effect as original annotation, see Brown v. Crawford, (D. C. Ore. 1918) 252 Fed. 248.

Local laws govern.—It is well settled that whether any particular property of a bankrupt might have been transferred by him or levied upon and sold under judicial process against him prior to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy is a question to be determined by the laws of the state in which such property was located. In re Berry, (E. D. Mich. 1917) 247 Fed. 700.

Stock of goods acquired by administratrix.—Where an administratrix, instead of proceeding forthwith to liquidate the business of the decedent, continues it, incurs new debts, and creates new accounts due without the authority of the Surrogate's Court, if she is thereafter adjudicated a bankrupt, such merchandise as remains on hand, acquired after she was appointed administratrix, and all outstanding accounts arising after such appointment, are the property of the receiver in bankruptcy. In re Tietje, (D. C. E. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 283.

Retroactive increase of wages.—A demand for increased wages taken under consideration, under an agreement that if granted the allowance would be retroactive from a date specified, constitutes a claim which passes on the adjudication of an employee as a bankrupt, to his trustee in so far as any allowance may be made for wages earned prior to the date of adjudication. In re Evans, (W. D. Tenn. 1918) 253 Fed. 276.

Assignment of money to become due.—In Montgomery v. Philadelphia, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 253 Fed. 473, it appeared that as part of the inducement to the surety to become such, a contractor made a valid assignment of all moneys which became payable under the contract by the city, including a reserve payable on completion of the contract. The assignment became operative in the event of a default by the contractor upon its contract. This assignment was duly executed and delivered, but no notice thereof was given to the city, nor was there other delivery than of the assignment. The contractor defaulted, and the city thereupon regularly declared, and notified the surety of, the default, and called upon the latter to complete the work. This the surety did at a cost in excess of all payments under the contract, including the sum which had been held back from the contractor by the city by virtue of the right given to it by the contract, and it was held that the title to the reserve fund was in the surety as against the trustee.

II. INTERESTS IN REAL PROPERTY, ETC. (p. 1174)

Generally.—To same effect as original annotation, see Tripplehorn v. Cambron, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 605, 162 C. C. A. 621.

Life interest.—Where a life estate is created, although a power of disposition is given in favor of the widow the remainder to be equally divided among the children, the latter are vested with a clearly existent right or interest which passes to their trustees in bankruptcy by operation of law. Markham v. Waterman, (S. C. Kan. 1919) 181 Pac. 621.

Estate by the entirety.—Under the law of Michigan the interest of a bankrupt in land which he and his wife have contracted to buy is that of a tenant by the entirety and does not pass to the trustee because incapable of being levied on for his debts. In re Berry, (E. D. Mich. 1917) 247 Fed. 700, holding also that a Michigan corporation was not so restricted in its power to convey as to reduce to personality the interest passing by its contract to convey and thereby to avoid the rule as to estates by the entirety.

Title in name of bankrupt and wife.—Without proof of actual fraud a trustee may recover in ejectment land paid for by the bankrupt where title is originally taken in the names of the bankrupt and wife although it appears that subsequent creditors will benefit by the recovery. Shaver v. Mowry, (1918) 262 Pa. St. 381, 105 Atl. 505.

Encumbered property.—The purchaser at a foreclosure sale, under a decree in a foreclosure proceeding commenced after adjudication and to which the trustee was not made a party, becomes a mortgagee in possession, and if on a sale thereafter of the premises under a prior mortgage a surplus be paid into court, the purchaser at the foreclosure sale becomes entitled to it and if there remain a surplus after that it will go to the trustee as the owner of the equity of redemption. In re Soltmann, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 455.

Landlord's interests.—Where a decedent leaves real estate which is transferred to the bankrupt by the next of kin, as was the case here, and the bankrupt has title to the real estate when the petition is filed, no proceedings to sell the same to pay decedent's debts having been instituted, the creditors of the decedent have no such interest in the real estate as will justify this court in preventing the receiver in bankruptcy from collecting the rents. In re Tietje, (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 283.

Tenant's interest in leasehold.—A trustee may, at his option, assume a lease of the bankrupt or decline to assume it as an asset of a bankrupt estate; and he has a reasonable time within which to exercise this option. If he considers the lease of value to the estate and assumes it, bankruptcy operates like any other assignment, and the bankrupt is released from all liability for rent thereafter. But if he deems the lease of no value to the estate and refuses it, this does not avoid the lease but leaves the bankrupt lessee liable as before. Rosenblum v. Uber, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 584.

Rights and obligations of trustee.—A trustee or receiver has the right to use the premises occupied by the bankrupt for a reasonable period, sufficient to enable him to dispose of the bankrupt's property without unnecessary loss, and to do so by selling it there, if that be the best way. Such use of the premises is not an adoption of a lease to the bankrupt. In determining the rent allowable to the lessor in such cases it has generally been thought that the rent reserved in a lease to the bankrupt was, under ordinary conditions, the fair measure of what the use and occupancy was fairly worth. In the absence of an express agreement for a lower rental, there is a presumption in favor of that sum; and it will ordinarily be allowed, unless unusual circumstances appear making it plainly unreasonable. In re Crawford Plummer Co., (D. C. Mass. 1918) 253 Fed. 76.

Surrender of lease by trustee.—The trustee may, if the landlord consents, surrender the lease; whereupon the landlord regains possession of the premises, and all unmatured obligations between the parties depending upon the continuance of the leasehold estate are terminated. But in surrendering the lease, the trustee has no greater right than the tenant, had he attempted to make a surrender before bankruptcy. To be a valid surrender in either case there must be, not only an offer by the lessee (or the trustee) to yield up the leasehold, but an acceptance of that offer by the lessor. This principle was applied where the trustee, acting on the instruction of the creditors, offered to surrender the demised premises to the land and symbolized his offer by the delivery of the key to the landlord's attorney. But nothing appeared in the stipulated record which showed or even suggested that the landlord or his attorney accepted the tender as made; but on the contrary the record showed that the attorney, speaking for the landlord on accepting the key, specifically stated: "That he accepted same upon the express condition that he would care for the building and rent it if possible, for the benefit of the estate." The court declared that instead of being an acceptance of surrender, the act of the landlord was, in fact, a rejection of surrender, and left the lease where it was before the attempt to surrender was made. Rosenblum v. Uber, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 584.

Fixtures.—Where a tenant refuses to install fixtures at his own expense under an agreement that they shall become the property of the landlord, and subsequently installs them without any warning from the landlord that he would claim such fixtures, an order for their return should not be made after they have been sold as a part of the tenant's estate in bankruptcy. In re West, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 253 Fed. 963.

III. PLEDGES (p. 1178)

Property pledged by bankrupt—Invalid pledge.—To same effect as original transaction, see In re P. J. Sullivan Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 660, 166 C. C. A. 158.

In the case of In re Germantown Almegum Mfg. Co., (E. D. Pa. 1918) 251 Fed. 755, the following facts appeared. In the regular course of its business the bankrupt had bought crude rubber. This, for the purpose of being used as collateral, was put on storage in the Rex Warehouse, an independent depository, and was pledged to the Philadelphia Warehouse Company for advances made. The bankrupt then applied to a trust company for a loan or advances, offering as security whatever value there was in rubber over and above the debt due the warehouse company. The trust company agreed to make the advances, and received a paper, which recited the fact of the rubber being on storage with the Rex Company, described its character, quantity, and value, and further set forth, "All of our right, title, and interest to and in this rubber is assigned to Pelham Trust Company as further protection and security," etc., and added authority in the pledgee to have the goods insured for the pledgee's benefit. The assignment was delivered, and knowledge of it conveyed to the storage company and first pledgee. It was held that the second pledge was valid.

Property pledged by pledgee.—Where the owner of corporate stock pledges it to a corporation to secure advancements made by it to another corporation in which he is interested, and the pledgee deposits the stock with a bank as collateral security for its indebtedness to the bank, which, on its debtor being adjudicated bankrupt, sells the stock to satisfy its debt, at which sale one of the active managing officers of the bankrupt corporation becomes the purchaser, and the officer so purchasing it had full knowledge at the time of its deposit with his company by the owner that it was only deposited for the purpose aforesaid, and became an indorser on the notes for which the stock was deposited with the bank as collateral, knowing that it was being used by his company in violation of the contract under which it holds the same, such managing officer so becoming the purchaser of the stock cannot hold it against the true owner thereof after all advancements for which the stock was deposited as security have been paid. Kay v. Piney Coal & Coke Co., (W. Va. 1919) 99 S. E. 501.

Stock brokerage transactions—Effect of conversion by broker.—As to rights and equities under particular circumstances of customers where stocks pledged by a stock broker have been sold by the pledgee, see In re Wilson, (S. D. N. Y. 1917) 252 Fed. 631.

Pledged stock.—Under the Massachusetts law, stock pledged with a stock broker remains the property of the pledgor, subject to the rights created by the pledge, and the trustee in bankruptcy takes no greater rights than the bankrupt had, as the Massachusetts law gives no special rights to a creditor holding a lien unless there has been actual or constructive seizure by legal or equitable process. In re Gay, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 251 Fed. 420.

IV. CONDITIONAL SALES (p. 1181)

If the sale is valid and binding.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re American Steel Supply Syndicate, (E. D. Mich. 1919) 256 Fed. 876.

VII. SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR STOCK (p. 1188)

Trustee may recover stock subscriptions.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Phoenix Hardware Co., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 410.

It is the duty of the trustee to reduce unpaid stock subscriptions for the benefit of the creditors. De Muth v. Faw, (1918) 103 Wash. 279, 174 Pac. 18.

Unpaid subscriptions to the stock of a corporation constitute a trust fund and in case of bankruptcy may be recovered for the benefit of the creditors. In re Phoenix Hardware Co., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 410.

Stock of bankrupt corporation disposed of at inadequate price.—Where a corporation has disposed of its shares of stock at a grossly inadequate price, or without consideration, an action may be brought by the trustee in bankruptcy for the benefit of those creditors who have extended credit in reliance upon the capital stock of the corporation. The theory upon which the action may be maintained by a trustee in bankruptcy against a stockholder who has paid an agreed price for stock in a corporation, is that the capital stock of a corporation is a trust fund for the benefit of its creditors, and its officers may not fraudulently convey it away, and that, if so fraudulently conveyed away, the contract may be vacated and the stock may be recovered for, and must be based upon the following premises: (1) That the capital stock is the property of the corporation, a trust fund for the benefit of the corporation and its creditors; (2) that creditors have a right to rely and do rely on such capital stock in extending credit to the corporation; and (3) that in disregard of the rights of such creditors the corporation has disposed of its capital stock either in actual fraud, or for such inadequate consideration as to work a constructive fraud. In pursuing such trust fund the trustee's right must come from the amendment to the Bankruptcy Act, rather than from the original act, and he has not only the rights of a creditor "armed with process," but also the remedies of such a creditor. Since some of the creditors may not be entitled to recover, and under the broad power of a court of equity what creditors, if any, are entitled to participate may be determined, what persons, if any, are liable to account may be decreed, and sufficient to liquidate the claims of those entitled to participate, and no more, may be awarded against such persons as may be liable, the case will be remanded to the equity court to be there disposed of. Courtney v. Youngs, (1918) 202 Mich. 384, 168 N. W. 441.

Liability of stockholder.—Whether a stockholder of a bankrupt corporation is liable to the estate for the difference between the par value of the stock held by him and the amount originally paid therefor is determined by the law of the state where the company was incorporated. In re Manufacturers' Box, etc., Co., (D. C. N. J. 1918) 251 Fed. 957.

Parties to whom stock has been issued, thus becoming holders thereof, are as equally liable for the payment of calls as if they were original subscribers thereto. And the fact that such holders turned over a stock of merchandise taking corporate stock in payment thereof, does not relieve them from this liability where it appears that the concern was greatly over-capitalized, though it is proper to credit them with the value of the merchandise thus turned over to the corporation. In re Phoenix Hardware Co., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 410.

Nature of stockholder's liability.—The liability of subscribers to the capital stock of a corporation is several and not joint. In re Phoenix Hardware Co., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 410.

Liability contingent on call.—Where the liability of a stockholder for the unpaid balance due on his stock is contingent on a call, the statute of limitations does not commence to run until a call has been made. Therefore, where the call is first made by the referee in bankruptcy, the statute does not attach until that time. In re Phoenix Hardware Co., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 410.

Order of court for assessment as res adjudicata.—In a case in which this question arose it is said: "In making the assessment, the federal court 'took the place and exercised the office of the directors' (Great Western v. Purdy, 162 U. S. 336, 16 Sup. Ct.

813, 40 L. Ed. 986), and the order of the court settles the question of the necessity for the assessment and of the authority of the trustee in bankruptcy to sue to recover it, not, it would seem, on the principle of res adjudicata, because the order is not a judgment, but on the principle that such necessity and authority are things which the stockholder may not gainsay, since the directors of the company might make the assessment or give the authority without his knowledge or consent or against his protest. Not so, however, as to the question whether the stock is full paid; on that he has a right to be heard on an issue properly made by pleadings, and he may have a jury as in any case in assumpsit or debt. It follows that the appearance of the defendants before the federal court to resist the motion for an assessment does not give to the order the effect of res adjudicata. We think therefore that by reason of the modification of the order, or even without that modification, the defendants had the right, notwithstanding the order, to show, if they could, that their stock was full paid." Sweet v. Barnard, (Colo. 1919) 182 Pac. 22.

Jurisdiction.—After appointment of a trustee in bankruptcy for an insolvent corporation, creditors making claim against stockholders on their unpaid stock subscriptions must wage their causes in the bankruptcy proceeding, the federal courts being vested with exclusive jurisdiction, and the trustee being charged with the duty of reducing unpaid stock subscriptions, if necessary, for the benefit of creditors. De Muth v. Faw, (1918) 103 Wash. 279, 174 Pac. 18.

As soon as it appears in an action by creditors in a state court to recover stock subscriptions that the corporation has been adjudged a bankrupt, and that its affairs are being handled by a trustee under the direction of the federal court, the state court should dismiss the cause without attempting to determine the merits of a controversy, solely within the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court. De Muth v. Faw, (1918) 103 Wash. 279, 174 Pac. 18.

Enforcement of liability.—The liability of a stockholder of a corporation for the difference between the par value of the stock and the consideration paid cannot be enforced in a summary proceeding on the objection of a creditor to a claim of such stockholder against the corporation. In re Manufacturers' Box, etc., Co., (D. C. N. J. 1918) 251 Fed. 957.

Pleading.—In an action by a trustee to recover the balance due on the purchase price of corporate stock it is not necessary to allege that he is without sufficient funds to pay all the creditors and the expenses of the bankruptcy proceedings. Benner v. Billings, (Wash. 1919) 181 Pac. 18.

The fact that the petition alleges a subscription for the stock and that the proofs show that the stock was issued without the formality of a subscription is a variance which is immaterial. In re Phoenix Hard- ware Co., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 410.

VIII. MEMBERSHIP IN STOCK EXCHANGE
(p. 1189)

Property rights in seat on stock exchange pass to trustee.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Stringer, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 352, 165 C. C. A. 134.

IX. CONTRACTUAL INTERESTS AND OBLIGATIONS (p. 1191)

Bankruptcy does not terminate contractual relations.—Voluntary bankruptcy not being an anticipatory breach, except for the purpose of making a provable claim under section 63, the trustee may enforce a contract of the bankrupt. Planter's Oil Co. v. Gresham, (Tex Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 145.

The trustee of an estate in bankruptcy succeeds to the bankrupt's rights in the premises, but subject to his liabilities. He takes his contracts and can compel their performance, provided he performs them upon the bankrupt's part. First Trust, etc., Bank v. Bitter Root Valley Irrigation Co., (D. C. Mont. 1918) 251 Fed. 320.

Interest as vendee.—The fact that the interest of the bankrupt was that of a vendee in a contract does not prevent it from passing to the trustee. In re Berry, (E. D. Mich. 1917) 247 Fed. 700. The court said: "An adjudication in bankruptcy does not dissolve or terminate the contractual relations of the bankrupt. . . . Its effect is to transfer to the trustee all the property of the bankrupt, except his executory contracts, and to vest in the trustee the option to assume or to renounce these."

Goods consigned to bankrupt for sale as agent.—Where an agreement between the parties providing that merchandise shipped to the bankrupt was to remain the property of the consignor and to be sold by the consignee as their agent only, was ignored by the parties and it appeared that the business was not carried on in accordance with the agreement, and that the consignor had so acted upon the breach as to show, with respect to future consignments, that title passed in the transactions and that they were sales and not bailments, it was held that the consignors were not in a position to invoke the written agreement as against the trustee so as to shield them in the retention of property which had been surrendered into their possession by the bankrupt. Taylor v. Fram, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 465. In this case it appeared that an agreement was entered into providing in substance as follows: (1) That all merchandise delivered to the bankrupt shall, at all times, be the property of the defendant; (2) that he shall sell the merchandise at retail as their agent, and in that capacity only; (3) that the price for the merchandise shall be designated on certain signed statements and memorandum bills; (4) that the bankrupt shall not sell for less than the amount therein stipulated; (5) that any excess retained shall not be retained by the bankrupt for his services; (6) that the bankrupt shall account for all the moneys received by him weekly and pay over same to the defendants; (7) that the defendants shall be at liberty at all times to demand the return of the merchandise on hand; (8) that nothing in said agreement shall be construed as vesting any title in the bankrupt; (9) that nothing in said agreement shall be changed or altered unless it be in writing; (10) that all business relations between the bankrupt and the defendants shall be governed absolutely and entirely by the provisions in said agreement contained. In determining the character of this agreement, which was ignored by the parties in their subsequent transactions, the court said: "There are numerous cases which may be cited to show that such an agreement creates a bailment, and not a sale, and that the bailor is at liberty at any time to retake his merchandise, irrespective of whether bankruptcy proceedings intervene or whether the debtor is solvent or not. All this we concede, and no citation of authorities is necessary. But the above doctrine only applies where the agreement is entered into in good faith, and without intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors. . . . In the case at bar the district judge was convinced that there was a lack of good faith in the making of the original contract. . . . If the bankrupt had given the defendants a mortgage upon the stock in his store, and had been permitted to sell the stock covered by it and to deposit the moneys received in his general account, and use them to meet his liabilities as if no mortgage existed, instead of paying them over to the mortgagee, we should be obliged to hold that the mortgage was fraudulent as against the trustee in bankruptcy. . . . If that be so as to a mortgage of record, and of which creditors have constructive notice, it should follow a fortiori that an agreement of which creditors have no constructive notice, which reserves title to the consignor, who nevertheless and contrary to its terms permits the consignee to make sales, and deposit the proceeds of sales in his general bank account, and use them for his own purposes, is equally fraudulent as against the trustee."

Goods held on consignment by trustee.—Under a state statute providing that if any person transact business under his own name without any addition disclosing the name of his principal or partner, all property used in such business shall, as to creditors of such person, be liable for his debts, the trustee in bankruptcy of the trader so doing business takes title to all the stock used in the business, including goods held by the bankrupt on consignment, to which he did not have title as between himself and the consignor. The fact that the consignor repossessed himself of the goods shortly before the bankruptcy proceedings were instituted does not alter the rule and the trustee may recover them or their equivalent in money by proper petition. Virginia Book Co. v. Stiles, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 46, 165 C. C. A. 456.

Life insurance policy.—A life insurance policy which by the laws of the state is exempt from the claims of creditors does not pass to the trustee. Elledge v. Sumpter, (1918) 140 Tenn. 11, 203 S. W. 346.

Accounts due agent holding as trustee for principal.—Where a company acting as agent for another under a contract authorizing it to make sales of products of the principal and providing that all notes, mortgages, liens or cash taken in payment by the agent shall be held in trust for the principal, fails in many cases to take notes, liens or mortgages for the purchase money, its trustee in bankruptcy may be required in a summary proceeding to turn over to the principal accounts for such sales. International Agricultural Corp. v. Sparks, (D. C. W. D. S. C. 1917) 250 Fed. 318.

Where the lessee of a building agrees to install certain equipment therein which by the terms of the contract is immediately to become the property of the lessor as part of the consideration for the lease, the lessor becomes the owner when it is installed and is entitled thereto on a surrender of the lease as against the trustee in bankruptcy. Hills v. Stimson Co., (1918) 102 Wash. 1, 172 Pac. 1181.

X. LICENSES (p. 1193)

The right to renew a liquor license does not pass to the personal representatives of the licensee but inures to the benefit of those to whom the personal representative stands in the relation of trustee, that is the creditors and beneficiaries of the estate. In case, however, the representative obtains a transfer of the license to himself and conducts the business as his own the creditors to whom he becomes personally indebted have a primary right to have the proceeds of a sale of the license by his trustee in bankruptcy applied to the payment of their debts incurred in carrying on the business. In re Mitchell, (D. C. E. D. Ga. 1918) 250 Fed. 1003.

XI. EFFECT OF COMMINGLING PROPERTY (p. 1195)

Money given to purchase drafts.—Persons who gave money to a banker for the purchase of drafts and who obtained the same cannot, on the bankruptcy of such banker, claim against a fund of the bankrupt on deposit in another banking institution because such paper remains unpaid, and, in the absence of any active fraud or deception, their status is that of general creditors. In re Boglognesi, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 770.

When property traceable.—In so far as any claimant may have given money to a bankrupt for investment in a specified manner, the bankrupt undoubtedly, by accepting the deposit, undertook to act in the interest of the depositor-claimant, and thereby assumed toward him a fiduciary relation, and in so far as such claimants may trace their funds into a fund deposited by the person in a banking institution they are prima facie entitled to share therein. In re Boglognesi, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 770.

A replenishing of a depleted trust account cannot (per se) be considered as restoring the trust; and it follows that when it appears that the moneys impressed with a trust have been "mingled with the [trustee's] general account, and a certain amount remains in the account at the end of the period, and the account has not been, in the interval, depleted below the trust amount or final amount, that final amount will be presumed to include the trust money." But where such commingled fund comes into the hands of a receiver, trustee in bankruptcy, or the like, what is responsible for the claims of the cestuis que trust is the remainder so coming into the hands of the officer of the court, "not exceeding the smallest amount the fund contained subsequent to the commingling." In re Boglognesi, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 770.

Burden of proof.—It is necessary in order to identify money to trace it to some specific fund or property. In re Boglognesi, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 770, 166 C. C. A. 216.

Vol. I, p. 1196, sec. 70a (5). [Policy of insurance.] [First ed., 1912 Supp., p. 835.]

Reason underlying enactment of provision.—"It was known that in bankruptcy proceedings the court would often be confronted with a fact situation under which the policies of insurance were outstanding upon the life of the bankrupt, who because of advanced years or condition of health was no longer an acceptable insurance risk. It was recognized, also, that because of the peculiar character of the insurance contract it was not property which could be sold, because of the principle of law that no one could recover under such a contract who had not an insurable interest in the life of the insured. Under such circumstances, there might be outstanding policies which were of real value to the insured, but this value would be one available to creditors only at the cost of the payment of premiums for an indefinite period. The situation would frequently make it impracticable for the bankrupt estate to continue such policies in force, and if the bankrupt, or some members of his family, were not permitted to keep them in force, they would lapse, thereby resulting in a wasteful loss, or, if they were put up for sale, the possible purchasers would be so limited that the bankrupt estate would realize nothing. If the policies had a cash surrender value, the trustee had no recourse other than to give up the policies on receipt of such value. The doing of this would result in a loss to the insured and his family, and often result in benefit to no one except the insurance company. The difficulties of such a situation were happily met by the provision, to which we have referred, which enabled the bankrupt to reclaim the policy upon payment of the surrender value. This gave to the bankrupt estate all of the value which the policy had to the creditors, and at the same time saved to the bankrupt and his family any redundant value it might have. In choosing a phrase to incorporate this thought into the bankruptcy laws, the framer of the statute gave to the bankrupt the right referred to whenever the policy had "a cash surrender value," etc. In all other cases the policy was to pass to the trustee, unaffected by this provision." In re Williams, (D. C. E. D. Pa. 1918) 250 Fed. 288.

Policies having surrender or other value.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Simmons, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 253 Fed. 466.

What constitutes surrender value.—The phrase "surrender value" we think must now be held to cover any and every policy which the insured by his own efforts, unassisted by any beneficiary or assignee, can obtain from the insurer in cash and in cancellation of the policy at the date of the petition filed; the amount being determined in accordance with a fixed and definite method of compensation, uniform in all cases. The amount which can be thus obtained is the cash surrender value of the policy. It makes no difference whether the amount he can obtain is secured to him by a statute, or rests upon the mere willingness of the company to buy out the policy at the particular time. The material and important fact is that at the time of the adjudication the policy had a value which the company was willing to pay and which the bankrupt by his own act could obtain. The theory of the law is that the creditors of a bankrupt are entitled to everything that a bankrupt could get out of the policy by his own act at the time he was put into bankruptcy. In re Gannon, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 932, 160 C. C. A. 122.

Amount to which trustee is entitled.—Whatever may have been the view in some of the earlier decisions, it is now settled law that the right of the trustee in bankruptcy is limited to the amount which the bankrupt might have received on the policy at the time of the bankruptcy as a cash asset. In re Simmons & Griffin, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1919) 255 Fed. 521.

Date of cash surrender value.—If a policy is not one which on the day of the filing of the petition has a cash surrender value payable to the bankrupt, his estate, or his personal representatives, the trustee has no claim on it. In re Jones, (D. C. Md. 1917) 249 Fed. 487.

The trustee in bankruptcy is entitled to whatever cash value the policies in question had on the date of adjudication. In re

Samuels, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 775.

Policy not payable to bankrupt or his estate or personal representatives.—Where a policy is payable to the wife of the insured and cannot be surrendered without her consent, the surrender value is not "property which, prior to the filing of the petition, he could by any means have transferred or which might have been levied upon" and therefore does not pass to the trustee. In re Simmons & Griffin, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1919) 255 Fed. 521.

Effect of right to change beneficiary.—See to same effect as original annotation, In re Jones, (D. C. Md. 1917) 249 Fed. 487; Rawls v. Penn. Mut. L. Ins. Co., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 725, 165 C. C. A. 319; Cohn v. Malone, (1919) 248 U. S. 450, 39 S. Ct. 141, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, affirming (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1916) 236 Fed. 882, 150 C. C. A. 144. In the case last cited the court said: "In 1902 and 1905 the bankrupt took out two policies on his life in the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, loss under one payable to his 'executors, administrators or assigns,' under the other to his sister and brother with full power in the assured 'while this policy is in force and not previously assigned, to change the present beneficiary or beneficiaries.' By formal written instruments dated July 15, 1910, he assigned both policies to his wife 'if she outlives me, otherwise to my estate, with full power to the insured to change the beneficiary or surrender this policy to said company at any time, this to be done by instrument in writing under his hand and seal to be recorded at the home office of the company.' While both policies were in the bankrupt's possession, the trustee demanded them in order that their cash surrender value might be secured and distributed under the Bankruptcy Act. The bankrupt defended upon two grounds: First, that the cash surrender value was not property which could have been transferred by him prior to bankruptcy; and second, that the assignment to his wife could not be defeated by the trustee because protected by section 2498, Georgia Code 1910, which provides—'The assured may direct the money to be paid to his personal representative, or to his widow, or to his children, or to his assignee; and upon such direction given, and assented to by the insurer, no other person can defeat the same. But the assignment is good without such assent.' The Court of Appeals held both grounds of defense bad, 236 Fed. Rep. 882. As to the first, its ruling accords with the doctrine recently announced in Cohen v. Samuels, 245 U. S. 50. In respect of the second that court declared:

"Nothing in the terms of the statute, especially when they are considered in the light of the circumstances of its enactment, indicates that it had any other purpose or effect than to deny to anyone other than the assured himself the power to defeat a direction by him to pay to his personal representative, or to his widow, or to his children, or to his assignee, the money payable in a life policy issued to him. The provision does not purport to make every such direction by the assured irrevocable by him, or to invalidate a stipulation in a life policy giving the assured the right to change the beneficiary at any time during the continuance of the policy. The statute puts a direction by the assured to pay to his widow on the same footing as one to pay to his assignee. If a policy is assigned as security for a debt which the assured pays during his life, certainly the statute is not to be given the effect of putting it out of the power of the assured to change the beneficiary upon the reassignment of the policy to him by the satisfied creditor. Nothing in its terms justifies giving a different operation or effect in the case of a direction to pay to the widow. We are not of opinion that the provision quoted had the effect of conferring on the bankrupt's wife, as the result of her having been named as the beneficiary, a vested and indefeasible interest in policies by the terms of which the beneficiary could be changed by the bankrupt at any time.' And we approve its conclusion."

Where by the terms of a policy payable to the wife of the insured he has the absolute right to change the beneficiary, the trustee is entitled to whatever cash value the policy may have. In re Samuels, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 775, 166 C. C. A. 221.

Surrender value subject to valid liens—Pledge.—Where full paid policies on the life of a bankrupt have been borrowed on to their full loan value, and the interest on the loans exceeds the dividends and none of them have a cash surrender value in excess of the loans, they do not pass to the trustee. In re Williams, (D. C. E. D. Pa. 1918) 250 Fed. 288.

Policies having no cash value.—Where a policy allows a change of beneficiary and provides "a loan value" but does not refer to "a cash surrender value" which the company issuing the policy declines to pay or recognize, it is proper to require the bankrupt to pay or secure to the trustee the cash surrender value of the policy and to direct that if this value which is fixed in the order is so paid the policy shall be delivered to him and that otherwise the policy shall pass to the trustee as assets of the estate. The court, on appeal, in confirming such an order said:

"Whether or not a company, by its policy or otherwise, recognizes a cash surrender value, the value exists. If there is a difference between the loan value and the cash surrender value, the difference would, ordinarily, be in favor of the latter. By payment of the cash surrender value, the company escapes all future liability. The value to the company is there, and what it amounts to in dollars is a matter of ascertainment by computation, if it is not indicated by the policy. It is a value that has been created by and from the business or estate of the bankrupt, and his creditors are entitled in law and good morals to the benefit of it. On the other hand, the creditors having received this value, there can be no reason why the bankrupt should not get the benefit of life insurance which he might not at that time be able to secure, and at a premium rate less than would be demanded upon a new policy. It is within the rights and the ability of the bankrupt to secure from the life insurance company the amount required by the order to continue his policy, and if he does not pay the cash surrender value, as legally and properly ascertained, the referee should take such steps as may be necessary and proper to secure for the creditors the benefit of the asset evidenced by the policy." Richter v. Rochhold, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 941, 165 C. C. A. 383.

Insurer not bound to accept surrender.—A policy of which the insurer is not bound to accept a surrender has no cash surrender value though the insurer is authorized to purchase its policies and has sometimes done so, where it is not bound by law or custom to do so in any particular instance. In re Gannon, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 932, 160 C. C. A. 122.

Exempt policies do not pass.—In re Jones, (D. C. Md. 1917) 249 Fed. 487.

The matter is one of state law. In re Samuels, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 775.

A statutory provision as to exemptions of life insurance policies is to be read in the light of a constitutional provision limiting the power of the legislature in respect to the amount for which exemptions may be granted. In re Jones, (D. C. Md. 1917) 249 Fed. 487.

The right to sue for a personal tort—Action for damages under Sherman law.—An action to recover triple damages under the Sherman law is personal and nonassignable and does not pass to the trustee of the bankrupt. Bonvillain v. American Sugar Ref. Co., (D. C. E. D. La. 1918) 250 Fed. 641.

Action for purchase price.—An action lies by the trustee for the purchase price of property leased to the defendant with an option to purchase at a fixed price, which option was exercised before the bankruptcy proceedings were instituted. *Buell v. ## II. SALES

Sale of assets free of incumbrances—In general.—To same effect as original annotation, see In re Franklin Brewing Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 333.

A court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction to order a sale free of incumbrances without first determining either the validity or the amount of the lien. In re Franklin Brewing Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 333.

Where an order, which is made for the sale of property free of incumbrances, is not unlawful and there is no abuse of discretion there is no error available on a petition to revise. In re Franklin Brewing Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 333.

Although in making an order for a sale free of incumbrances there may be a drastic exercise of authority yet circumstances may justify it as a matter of discretion. In re Franklin Brewing Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 333.

When sale free from incumbrance will be ordered—Generally.—In one circuit it is said that it is good practice, and the usual procedure in that circuit, not to order sales free of incumbrances unless there is a fair prospect that the proceeds will at least discharge the lien. The court further said: "The reason, or one very good reason, for this forbearance, is that, unless more is produced by sale than the lien debt, there is nothing coming to the estate in bankruptcy; therefore the bankruptcy court does not meddle with what it can never administer. But this is not a rule of law, and where (for instance) the very existence of any lien is in litigation, and property is wasting while waiting decision, it must be matter of discretion whether or not to sell promptly and save expense. Nor does a mortgage clause giving the right to bid on bonds in any way limit the power of the court, however much it may influence its discretionary application." In re Franklin Brewing Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 333.

Manner of selling assets—In general.—Where property incumbered is made up of property both real and personal, thus constituting a business entity which in its entirety has been hypothecated by an agreement good until set aside by competent authority, an order directing the sale of the personalty alone would be unlawful. And the same result would follow where, after ordering a sale of the entire property, the court should confirm a sale only of the personalty. In re Franklin Brewing Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 333.

Releasing purchaser from bid.—The successful bidder at a sale of the bankrupt's property on condition that the purchaser pay the war tax on the property sold is not entitled to be relieved from his bid on the ground that the property was appraised too high where it appeared that another bidder had offered an amount nearly equal to that accepted, nor on the ground that the bidder was disappointed in his expectation of being able to give bond for the tax instead of paying the same in cash, no such condition being a part of the terms of the sale. In re McCann, (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 250 Fed. 1006.

Sale pursuant to reorganization plan.—Since a bankrupt court can under no circumstances compel creditors to accept an aliquot interest in the assets of the estate of a bankrupt under the guise of a sale, it cannot compel them to accept stock in a reorganized corporation to which the bankrupt's assets have been transferred. On the other hand a dissenting creditor cannot compel the reorganized corporation to pay him his pro rata share of the assets. In re Prudential Outfitting Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 250 Fed. 504.

Setting sale aside—Failure to appraise property.—The sale of a deceased bankrupt's real estate lying in another state before causing the same to be appraised as provided by this section, and an advertisement describing the property as the bankrupt's one-third interest in two tracts of land located in a certain county and state, containing a certain number of acres each, without stating its nature and accessibility to transportation, will be set aside by a court of bankruptcy. In re Irvine, (W. D. S. C. 1919) 255 Fed. 168.

Opposition by receiver after discharge.—After a receiver is discharged he has no further interest in the proceedings, consequently he cannot oppose a petition to set aside a sale made by himself of the assets of the bankrupt to a reorganized corporation. Where, however, both the lender and the reorganized corporation were served with the order and are parties to the proceeding, the attorney for the receiver will be accepted by the court as representing them for the purposes of the contest, though strictly speaking they appear to have allowed the matter to go by default. In re Prudential Outfitting Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 250 Fed. 504.

Contrasted with section 67f.—Section 70e of the Bankruptcy Act differs from section 60f of that Act, in that the former does not contain any provision to the effect that property, or its value, recovered by the trustee in a suit which that section authorizes him to bring when he elects to avoid a transfer by the bankrupt of his property which any creditor of such bankrupt might have avoided, shall "pass to the trustee as part of the estate of the bankrupt." It may be that property or its value so recovered by his trustee might have been made a part of the bankrupt's estate, not subject to any priority in favor of the creditor or creditors who alone had had the right to avoid the transfer brought into question. But it is significant that the statute does not so provide, while it does provide for the passing to the trustee, as a part of the estate of the bankrupt, of property, or its value, acquired by him as a result of the preservation and enforcement of a lien obtained through legal proceedings against an insolvent within four months prior to the filing of a petition in bankruptcy.

against him, without making any exception based upon the circumstance that the lien so preserved and enforced was obtained by a creditor or creditors who alone had the right to obtain it; the right being one not possessed by other creditors. The statute gives notice to any one obtaining a lien by legal proceedings against an insolvent person that, if the insolvent's bankruptcy occurs within four months after the lien is obtained, it may be preserved and enforced for the benefit of the bankrupt's estate, the proceeds of such enforcement to pass to the trustee as part of the estate of the bankrupt. The provision having this effect deals with "levies, judgments, attachments, or other liens" obtained through legal proceedings against an insolvent within four months prior to his bankruptcy, and with property affected by a lien so obtained. It does not deal with the rights of creditors who have not so obtained a lien. American Trust, etc., Co. v. Duncan, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 780, 166 C. C. A. 226.

Construction—In general.—This section has been construed as limiting actions to cases where the defendant is alleged to claim title, and its consequent advantages, under the bankrupt by virtue of a transfer from him. Flanders v. Coleman, (D. C. S. D. Ga. 1918) 249 Fed. 757.

Not limited to transfers within four months.—Transfers made more than four months before bankruptcy may be set aside under section 70e. Riggs v. Price, (Mo. 1919) 210 S. W. 420.

Effect of state law.—Under section 70e the trustee may avoid any transfer by the bankrupt which any creditor of the bankrupt might have avoided, under the laws of the state, had not bankruptcy intervened, irrespective of the time when the transfer was made and of the financial condition of the bankrupt at that time, provided only that conveyances to bona fide holders for value are protected. It is a necessary conclusion, of course, that, if the four months limitation does not apply in a case brought under section 70e, neither is the question of the insolvency of the bankrupt at the time of the conveyance of any materiality, except it be made so by the state law, because one is as essential an element of section 67e as the other. It is also the right of a trustee to avoid a transfer, under section 70e, although there are no creditors who, because they had no liens or judgments, would have been in a position, at the time of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy to attack the transfer. . . . Not only is the language of section 70e sufficiently comprehensive to alone justify this latter rule as the above-cited cases point out, but, since all of them were decided, the amendment of 1910 to section 47a specifically vests a trustee with such a lien as is sufficient to enable a creditor to attack a fraudulent conveyance in a court of equity in most, if not all, states. Hence, it follows that the plaintiff may attack the conveyance in question, irrespective of the solvency or insolvency of the bankrupt at the time the conveyance was made, provided that it could have been attacked by any creditor in the courts of New Jersey, had not bankruptcy intervened. Baldwin v. Kingston, (D. C. N. J. 1918) 247 Fed. 163.

State law governs as to validity.—Whether a transfer is one which any creditor might have avoided within the meaning of section 70e is to be determined by the law of the state where the property is situated. Hall v. Glenn, (S. D. Cal. 1917) 247 Fed. 997.

Limitation of actions.—The time to sue to set aside a fraudulent conveyance is to be determined by the state statute applicable to actions of that character. Riggs v. Price, (Mo. 1919) 210 S. W. 420.

Necessity of diverse citizenship.—Where the action is solely to set aside a conveyance made more than four months before the adjudication, diversity of citizenship is essential to confer jurisdiction on a federal court, but where the bill seeks, as under section 70e it may, to recover and collect the value of property so transferred, a court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction under section 23-b, without regard to the citizenship of the parties. Hall v. Glenn, (S. D. Cal. 1917) 247 Fed. 997.

Power conferred on trustee—Property transferred in violation of state statute.—A trustee in bankruptcy may maintain an action against the vendee when a sale by a bankrupt is made in violation of a state "Bulk Sales Law" and against the person who received the purchase money with knowledge of the fact, by virtue of the provisions of this section and sections 47a (2) and 70a (4) supra. Brown v. Kossore, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1919) 255 Fed. 806.

Under this section a trustee in bankruptcy has the right to recover property transferred in violation of state law. Irwin v. Maple, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 10, 164 C. C. A. 122.

Conveyance not invalid under state law.—A conveyance by a man separated from his wife of property to her for her support is not voluntary under the law of New Jersey and hence cannot, on the bankruptcy of the grantor, be avoided under section 70e. Baldwin v. Kingston, (D. C. N. J. 1918) 247 Fed. 163.

Where there are no judgment creditors.—Since by the amendment of 1910 to section 47a (2) giving the trustee the rights of a judgment creditor, the fact that there are no judgment creditors does not prevent the trustee from avoiding a voluntary transfer by the bankrupt under section 70e. Baldwin v. Kingston, (D. C. N. J. 1918) 247 Fed. 163.

Agreement to withhold mortgage from record.—A mortgage given under an agreement that it will not be recorded because of the possible effect on the mortgagor's credit is fraudulent as to creditors and may be set aside at the suit of the mortgagor's trustee in bankruptcy without regard to the four months limitation. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Penland, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 247 Fed. 480, 159 C. C. A. 534.

Property of wife.—In a suit to set aside a conveyance made by a bankrupt, evidence was held to sustain a finding that the property was the separate property of the wife of the bankrupt and that when conveyed it was occupied as a homestead by the bankrupt and his wife. Young v. Evans, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 282, 163 C. C. A. 438.

Chattel mortgages.—In Calkins v. Lichtig, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 844, 164 C. C. A. 60, it was held that a sale of the interest of one partner to the other partner and the giving of a chattel mortgage on the stock of goods to the withdrawing partner were merely a scheme to defraud subsequent creditors.

A suit by a trustee to set aside a foreclosure and sale of property under a chattel mortgage and to recover the property involved or the value thereof, the suit being in substance one to recover property wrongfully or fraudulently disposed of, is not subject to the defense that the trustee had no authority to institute and maintain the suit because at the time of the filing the petition in bankruptcy and the appointment of the trustee, the property had been foreclosed without contest, the sale made and the mortgagor had lost all interest in the property. Simpson v. Combes, (Wash. 1919) 182 Pac. 566.

Dividends unlawfully paid to a stockholder prior to four months before bankruptcy are recoverable under this section. Seegmiller v. Day, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 177.

Trustee vested with rights of creditor—Setting aside liens.—There is no question that the federal Bankruptcy Act empowers a trustee to enforce the rights of creditors of the bankrupt to set aside liens which are void under the state law for want of recording or for other reasons. Stewart v. Asbury, (1918) 199 Mo. App. 123, 201 S. W. 949.

Persons entitled to share in recovery.—Where by virtue of this section, a trustee in bankruptcy recovers from the bankrupt's wife property given to her by the bankrupt at a time when he was indebted, though many years before his adjudication, the proceeds cannot be placed in the general assets of the bankrupt but must be paid to the creditors whose debts were existent at the time the gift was made. American Trust, etc., Bank

v. Duncan, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 780, 166 C. C. A. 228.

Pleading.—A petition by a trustee to set aside a fraudulent conveyance by the bankrupt need not allege the names of the creditors or show the amount and nature of any claim to which the property sought to be recovered can be applied. Riggs v. Price, (Mo. 1919) 210 S. W. 420.

Right to injunction pendente lite.—Though the action is for the value of property rather than for the recovery of the property itself an injunction against its further transfer pendente lite may issue. Hall v. Glenn, (S. D. Cal. 1917) 247 Fed. 997.

Scope of decree by state tribunal.—Where pending proceedings in a state court by creditors the debtor was adjudicated a bankrupt and the trustee permitted to intervene in the state proceedings, it is held to be proper for the state tribunal to decree title in the bankrupt's property to be in the trustee without ascertaining the amount due the respective creditors. "The bankrupt court has jurisdiction to determine the amount due each creditor by the bankrupt, and what amount and what properties of his assets shall go to each particular creditor, and in case the property brought more than enough to pay the creditors, the bankrupt court would make the proper disposition of the funds, or, if the bankrupt or his wife should satisfy the creditors by paying into the bankruptcy court sufficient funds to pay all debts, the court could make proper order conveying the property back to the appellant or to the bankrupt, according to right and justice of the case. It was not the duty of the chancery court to ascertain and enter into a controversy or hearing to ascertain the rights between the respective creditors and the bankrupt, but the chancery court made proper order." McCrory v. Donald, (1918) 119 Miss. 256, 80 So. 643.

Right of bankrupt, after discharge, to stay of execution levied on property transferred to wife.—Where a judgment is recovered against a person who subsequently becomes a bankrupt, and after his discharge in bankruptcy execution is issued on the judgment and a levy is made on property which he had conveyed to his wife before bankruptcy, on the ground of fraud in the conveyance, he has no standing to move to stay the execution on such property as he is not an aggrieved party. Deposit Nat. Bank v. Hay, (1918) 262 Pa. St. 388, 105 Atl. 463.

BILLS OF LADING

1918 Supp., p. 73, sec. 1.

Constitutionality.—Bills of lading for the movement of interstate commerce are instrumentalities of that commerce which Congress, under its power to regulate commerce, has authority to deal with and provide for. U. S.

v. Fenger, (1919) 250 U. S. 199, 39 S. Ct. 445, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) — [reversing (S. D. Ohio 1918) 256 Fed. 388], wherein the court said: "That bills of lading for the movement of interstate commerce are instrumentalities of that commerce which Congress under its power to regulate commerce has the authority to deal with and provide for is too clear for anything but statement, as manifested not only by that which is concluded by prior decisions, but also by the exertion of the power by Congress. . . . That as instrumentalities of interstate commerce, bills of lading are the efficient means of credit resorted to for the purpose of securing and fructifying the flow of a vast volume of interstate commerce upon which the commercial intercourse of the country, both domestic and foreign, largely depends, is a matter of common knowledge as to the course of business of which we may take judicial notice. Indeed, that such bills of lading and the faith and credit given to their genuineness and the value they represent are the producing and sustaining causes of the enormous number of transactions in domestic and foreign exchange, is also so certain and well known that we may notice it without proof."

The purpose of the section undoubtedly was to protect goods in transit and in possession of a carrier against seizure until the carrier should be first liberated from liability and attack by the surrender of the order bill. The bill is made the res rather than the goods. Brimberg v. Hartenfeld Bag Co., (1918) 89 N. J. Eq. 425, 105 Atl. 68.

1918 Supp., p. 81, sec. 41.

Validity.—The fraudulent fabrication and use of fictitious interstate bills of lading could be prohibited and punished, as was done by this section, as a means of protecting and sustaining the vast volume of interstate commerce operating and moving in reliance upon genuine bills of lading. U. S. v. Ferger, (1919) 250 U. S. 199, 39 S. Ct. 445, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) — [reversing (S. D. Ohio 1918) 256 Fed. 388], wherein the court said: "With this situation in mind the question therefore is, Was the court below right in holding that Congress had no power to prohibit and punish the fraudulent making of spurious interstate bills of lading as a means of protecting and sustaining the vast volume of interstate commerce operating and moving in reliance upon genuine bills? To state the question is to manifest the error which the court committed, unless that view is overcome by the reasoning by which the conclusion below was sought to be sustained. What was that reasoning? That the bills were but 'pieces of paper fraudulently inscribed' and 'did not affect interstate commerce, directly or indirectly . . . and had nothing whatsoever to do with it, or with any existing instrumentality of it.' But this rests upon the unsustainable assumption that the undoubted power which existed to regulate the instrumentality, the genuine bill, did not give any power to prevent the fraudulent and spurious imitation. It proceeds further, as we have already shown, upon the erroneous theory that the credit and confidence which sustains interstate commerce would not be impaired or weakened by the unrestrained right to fabricate and circulate spurious bills of lading apparently concerning such commerce. Nor is the situation helped by saying that as the manufacture and use of the spurious interstate commerce bills of lading were local, therefore the power to deal with them was exclusively local, since the proposition disregards the fact that the spurious bills were in the form of interstate commerce bills which in and of themselves involved the potentiality of fraud as far-reaching and all-embracing as the flow of the channels of interstate commerce in which it was contemplated the fraudulent bills would circulate. As the power to regulate the instrumentality was coextensive with interstate commerce, so it must be, if the authority to regulate is not to be denied, that the right to exercise such authority for the purpose of guarding against the injury which would result from the making and use of spurious imitations of the instrumentality must be equally extensive." See to the same effect U. S. v. Ferger, (1919) 250 U. S. 207, 39 S. Ct. 447, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, (reversing (S. D. Ohio 1918) 256 Fed. 388) decided on the authority of the above case, the court saying: "This case is disposed of by the ruling just announced in No. 776, ante, 199. The indictment here was for conspiring to do the various acts charged in the previous case, that is, the fraudulent fabrication and uttering of the same fictitious bills of lading and the obtaining of money thereon by delivering the same to the Second National Bank of Cincinnati as collateral. The demurrer which was sustained by the court below in the previous case was also sustained as to this. While there is a separate writ of error and a separate record in this case, it is conceded by all parties that the cases are in legal principle the same and that the decision of one concludes the other. It follows, therefore, that for the reasons stated in the previous case, No. 776, the judgment in this must be and it is reversed and the case remanded for further proceedings in conformity with this opinion."

"Holder."—The definition of a "holder" here given does not fit one who has no right of property or interest in the bill of lading, or control of it, or right of possession beyond its safe keeping. French v. Pere Marquette R. Co., (Mich. 1919) 171 N. W. 491.

CARRIERS

Vol. II, p. 10, sec. 5. [First ed., vol. I, p. 724.]

Employment of surgeon.—To same effect as original annotations, see The Korea Maru, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 397, 165 C. C. A. 617.

In The Great Northern, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 826, 163 C. C. A. 660, the court said: "In the present case the regulations of the statute were complied with, a surgeon or medical practitioner was employed, who was carried on the ship's articles, and hospital accommodations and medicines were provided. The services of the physician were engaged by the marine superintendent of the steamship, after having made diligent inquiry and relying, also, upon the written recommendations of the assistant general manager of the Oriental Steamship Company, the recommendation of the master of the steamship Honolulan, and upon the certificate of the Medical Society of the State of California, stating that the physician was a regular graduate physician, licensed to practice in that state, 'and for some time has been known favorably to this office.' We think it clear that the appellees had discharged their full duty when they employed the physician, after taking pains, as they did, to inquire of his antecedents and his fitness. But it is said that the physician was incompetent, and that the vessel is liable for the failure of the owners and master thereof to comply with the provisions of the statute, which required them to employ a competent physician. We do not think that the statute requires more than that in the selection of a physician reasonable care shall be exercised. We add that in our opinion the evidence fails to show that the physician was in fact incompetent."

Vol. II, p. 17, sec. 4278. [First ed., vol. I, p. 719.]

Municipal regulations as to storing.—Notwithstanding this section and sections 4279 and 4280, infra, a municipality may enact ordinances designating the place or places within its harbor where explosives, being transported in interstate or foreign commerce, shall be handled, kept, or stored. Seattle v. Lloyds' Plate Glass Ins. Co., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 321, 165 C. C. A. 103, wherein the court said: "It is beyond question that where Congress has legislated in respect to either foreign or interstate commerce, no state or other subordinate legislation upon the same subject is of any validity. But we find no legislation of Congress with respect to the place or places within any harbor of the United States where any kind of explosives shall be handled, kept, or stored. Section 4278 above cited makes it unlawful to transport, carry, or convey, ship, deliver on board, or cause to be delivered on board, certain specified kinds of explosives, including nitroglycerin, upon or in any vessel or vehicle used or employed in transporting passengers by land or water, between a place in any foreign country and a place within the limits of any state, territory, or district of the United States, or between a place in one state, territory or district of the United States and a place in any other state, territory or district thereof; and section 4279 of the same statutes makes it unlawful to ship, send, or forward any quantity of such explosives by a vessel or vehicle of any description, by land or water, between a place in a foreign country and a place within the United States, or between a place in one state, territory, or district of the United States, and a place in any other state, territory, or district thereof, unless the same shall be securely inclosed, deposited, or packed in a certain prescribed way; and the next section (4280) declares that the two preceding sections shall not be so construed as to prevent any state, territory, district, city, or town within the United States from regulating or from prohibiting the traffic in or transportation of those substances between persons or places lying or being within their respective territorial limits, or from prohibiting the introduction thereof into such limits for sale, or consumption therein. In all this we see nothing in any way relating to the place or places in any harbor of the United States where any kind of an explosive in course of foreign or intrastate commerce shall be placed, kept, or stored; and while, as has been said, it is beyond question that where Congress has legislated in respect to either foreign or interstate commerce no state or other subordinate legislation upon the same subject is of any validity, yet we understand the law to be that, where Congress is silent, the state may legislate in aid of, but without burdening, both foreign and interstate commerce. Such we understand to be the effect of the last of the decisions above cited of the Supreme Court, where, at page 436 of 222 U. S., at page 142 of 32 Sup. Ct. (56 L. Ed. 257), the court cited, with apparent approval, its previous decisions in the cases of Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co. v. Mazursky, 216 U. S. 122, 30 Sup. Ct. 378, 54 L. Ed. 411, and Western Union Tel. Co. v. James, 162 U. S. 650, 16 Sup. Ct. 934, 40 L. Ed. 1105, saying, among other things, that—and prompt performance of duty within the limits of the state upon the part of those engaged in interstate commerce.” Such exercise of power, it was further said, was in aid of interstate commerce, and, although incidentally affecting it did not burden it.”

CHINESE EXCLUSION

Vol. II, p. 67, sec. 1. [First ed., vol. I, p. 774.]

Merchant afterward becoming laborer.—To the same effect as the first paragraph of the original annotation, see Ex p. Hor Yuk Sang, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 251 Fed. 403; U. S. v. Lew Loy, (N. D. Ohio 1918) 253 Fed. 784.

In Ex p. Hor Yuk Sang, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 251 Fed. 403, the court, after a consideration of the evidence in the case of a Chinaman who entered as a merchant, but five months afterwards was found working in a laundry, said: “Under all the circumstances, it does not seem to me that the fact that the petitioner, five months after his admission, engaged in manual labor, affords any reasonable proof that he was not a merchant when he entered the country, nor any sufficient ground for canceling and setting aside, as fraudulently obtained, the certificate made after such investigation as was deemed necessary at the time of entry, and in pursuance of our treaty obligations.”

Where the status of a Chinese person as a merchant is established before he visits China, the mere fact that he works as a laborer during a part of the time after his return to this country does not of itself forfeit his right to remain in the United States as one of the exempted class. U. S. v. Moy Nom, (N. D. Ia. 1918) 249 Fed. 772.

Vol. II, p. 71, sec. 6. [First ed., vol. I, p. 778.]

Certificate prima facie evidence only.—The certificate does not have the force and effect of a judgment, but, being issued under a statute of the United States made in pursuance of a treaty entered into by this country with a foreign power, it is not to be set aside and disregarded without substantial evidence. Whether there is such evidence is for the courts to determine. Ex p. Hor Yuk Sang, (D. C. Mass. 1918) 251 Fed. 403.

Wives and minor children of Chinese merchants.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see U. S. v. Gin Ong, (S. D. Cal. 1918) 253 Fed. 210.

The minor son of a Chinese merchant is entitled to enter this country and remain with his father as one of the exempted class, during his minority at least. And if during that time he succeeds to the business interests of his father, either by purchase or gift from him, and engages in the same business, he acquires the status of his father as one of the exempted class, although the latter returns to China. U. S. v. Moy Nom, (N. D. Ia. 1918) 249 Fed. 772.

Vol. II, p. 82, sec. 7. [First ed., vol. I, p. 770.]

Estoppel of government to question status.—The defendant, a Chinese person, prior to leaving the United States for a visit to China, presented himself to the Bureau of Immigration for preinvestigation as to the status claimed by him as a merchant. The bureau examined him and other witnesses, found him to have been there engaged for the required time as a merchant, and gave him a certificate accordingly, with a copy of the evidence taken by it, which was delivered to the Bureau of Immigration at the port from which he sailed. Upon his return from China, the latter bureau again examined him and gave him a certificate of identity, which permitted him to re-enter the United States as a returning merchant. It was held on these facts that the government was estopped from questioning his status as a merchant, unless it alleged and established by competent proof some fraud on his part in obtaining re-entry to the United States. U. S. v. Moy Nom, (N. D. Ia. 1918) 249 Fed. 772.

Vol. II, p. 94, sec. 3. [First ed., vol. I, p. 763.]

Evidence—Of citizenship.—To the same effect as the second paragraph of the original annotation, see U. S. v. Charlie Dart, (N. D. Ga. 1918) 251 Fed. 394.

Undisclosed evidence in possession of commissioner as ground for setting aside findings.—Finding of an immigration commissioner rejecting admission to a Chinese applicant, will not be set aside because of the fact that at the time of the hearing the commissioner had in his possession a report of an inspector containing information material to the case given him by an undisclosed witness, which report was not shown to the applicant or his attorney, where it appears that the commissioner did not consider the report in reaching his decision. Kwock Jan Fat v. White, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1919) 255 Fed. 323, 166 C. C. A. 493.

Unfair hearing.—A Chinese woman's hearing on her application for admission to this country as the wife of a Chinese merchant, is unfair where her attorneys are not allowed to interview her pending the determination of the application by the immigration authorities, and where such authorities base their determination on confidential communications, the source, motive, or contents of which are not disclosed to the applicant or her counsel and no opportunity afforded them to offer testimony in rebuttal thereof. Chew Hoy Quong v. White, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 869, 162 C. C. A. 103.

Burden and measure of proof.—A person of Chinese descent claiming to be a native-born citizen of the United States, who is required by this section to establish, by affirmative proof, his lawful right to remain in the United States, is not required to make the same degree of proof as an alien who has come into the country and is attempting to avoid deportation, but is entitled to the lawful presumption of the right to remain while the other is subject to the lawful presumption in favor of deportation. The affirmative proof required is hereby proof to establish a prima facie case sufficient to call for rebuttal. Moy Jik v. U. S., (1918) 47 App. Cas. (D. C.) 498, wherein it was further held that there was sufficient proof that a person of Chinese descent was born in the United States, in the absence of any proof to the contrary, to overcome the statutory presumption against him and to create a prima facie case in his favor, where there was proof of his residence in this country since he was four years old; and he testified that his parents told him he was born in San Francisco, which was the place associated with his earliest recollections and where his parents resided and conducted a business until they returned to China, which was after he was fifteen years old, and it further appeared that he had gone with his uncle to Washington, where he had since maintained a permanent residence, with a steady business or occupation, and had conducted himself in such an honorable and upright manner as to have the confidence and respect of the community.

Conspiracy to secure approval of application under rule 15 of Department of Labor.—In U. S. v. Fung Sam Wing, (N. D. Cal. 1918) 254 Fed. 500, the defendants were charged with a conspiracy to defraud the United States by securing from the Commissioner of Immigration at Angel Island for Fung Sam Wing, a Chinese person, claiming to be a merchant domiciled in this country, the approval of the application of said Fung Sam Wing, pursuant to the provisions of rule 15 of the Department of Labor, governing the admission of Chinese, for the preinvestigation of his claim that he was such domiciled merchant, with the intent that said application should, when approved, enable the said Fung Sam Wing to go abroad and return to the United States without difficulty, because of his approved status as such domiciled merchant. The indictment further averred that a lawfully domiciled Chinese merchant within the meaning of this section was a Chinese person who, for at least one year immediately preceding the date of the application for a preinvestigation of his status, had been engaged in the occupation of a merchant and had not performed any manual labor, except such as was necessary in the conduct of his business as such merchant. It was then averred that the said Fung Sam Wing was not, as defendants well knew, a lawfully domiciled merchant, within the meaning of the Chinese Exclusion Laws, at the time of his said application; that is to say, a Chinese person who had been engaged for at least one year immediately preceding the date of the said application, in the occupation of a merchant, and had not performed any manual labor, except such as was necessary in the conduct of his said occupation. The indictment then charged the commission of certain overt acts in furtherance of the conspiracy. A demurrer to the indictment was sustained and the court gave the following reasons for its decision: "The act requires of a returning merchant proof that he was such for at least one year immediately preceding his departure. The rule, based thereon [rule 15] requires the naming of at least two witnesses by the applicant for preinvestigation, who will testify that he was a merchant for at least one year immediately preceding the date of proposed departure. This application must be filed at least 30 days prior to the date of the proposed departure. The indictment, however, charges that the conspiracy was to secure the approval of an application fraudulently, because the applicant had not been a merchant for one year preceding the date of his application, and that the witnesses well knew that he had not been a merchant as defined by the statute for a period of one year immediately prior to the date of his application. But this fact might well be true, and still no fraud committed or attempted, as neither the law nor the rule requires proof of the existence of the mercantile status for a year prior to the date of the application, but for a year prior to the date of the proposed departure, which by the very terms of the rules must be at least 30 days subsequent to the date of the application."

CITIZENSHIP

Child of native born Chinaman.—This section "applies to all persons alike, without any discrimination as to race or place of birth," and consequently includes a child born in China whose father although belonging to the Chinese race was a native born American citizen. Quang Hing Sun v. White, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 402, 165 C. C. A. 622, wherein it was said: "The appellant was first examined as to his right to admission under the provisions of the immigration laws, and was found qualified to be admitted. He was then examined by the immigration inspector under the Chinese Exclusion Act, and his application for admission denied, on the ground that the applicant had failed to establish the fact that he was the son of Quan Hay; but it was stated by the inspector that the applicant was excluded under rule 9 (f) of the then rules governing the admission of Chinese. This finding was approved by the Commissioner of Immigration, and upon appeal to the Secretary of Labor the decision of the Immigration Commissioner was affirmed. It is claimed on behalf of appellant that the action of the officers of the Immigration Bureau and of the Department of Labor in holding the appellant for deportation was an abuse of discretion committed to them by statute, and resulted in denying him a fair hearing, to which he was entitled under the law. The objection to the hearing is that under the regulations prescribed by the Commissioner General of Immigration a different procedure was pursued by the immigration officers in determining appellant's right to admission into the United States from that pursued under other statutory regulations for determining the right of persons other than those of the Chinese race to enter the United States. . . . To apply to a person of Chinese birth the procedure provided by the rules of the Department of Labor governing the admission of Chinese, for the purpose of determining whether the applicant's father was a citizen of the United States, and to all others making this claim, the procedure provided by the immigration statute is plainly a discrimination against the person of Chinese birth, and the hearing measured by the immigration statute distinctly unfair."

Vol. II, p. 122, sec. 2. [First ed., 1909 Supp., p. 68.]

Foreign oath of allegiance of husband as forfeiting wife's citizenship.—Where the enlistment of a citizen of the United States in the Canadian expeditionary force for the European war, although it requires his taking a qualified oath of allegiance to Canada, does not forfeit his wife's American citizenship, she cannot be barred from returning to this country on the ground that she is an alien. (1915) 30 Op. Att.-Gen. 412.

Vol. II, p. 125, sec. 6. [First ed., 1909 Supp., p. 69.]

Foreign-born children of American-born Chinese fathers are entitled to enter the United States as citizens thereof notwithstanding the fact that they continued to reside for some time in China after reaching their majorities, without any affirmative action on their part indicating an intention to remain citizens of the United States. (1916) 30 Op. Otty.-Gen. 529.

CIVIL SERVICE

Vol. II, p. 156, sec. 2. [First ed., vol. I, p. 809.]

Correction of mistakes in certification.—The Civil Service Commission may, at any time prior to appointment, correct a mistake in its certification, but after an appointment has been made and accepted by the appointee, without any fraud on his part or concealment of material facts, and the matter involved is not jurisdictional, it is then too late for the commission to attempt to correct its certification. (1913) 30 Op. Atty.-Gen. 169.

Investigation of violation of civil service rules.—The Civil Service Commission has authority under clause 4 of this section to investigate alleged violations of civil service rules prohibiting political discrimination in the classified service. (1916) 30 Op. Atty.-Gen. 512.

Vol. II, p. 168, sec. 7. [First ed., 1909 Supp., p. 716.]

Non-assembled examinations.—The provision of this section requiring that all examinations for positions in the government service shall be had in the state or territory in which the applicant resides, does not apply to the so-called non-assembled examinations. (1913) 30 Op. Atty.-Gen. 194.

Vol. II, p. 169, sec. 4. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 44.]

Effect of proviso.—The proviso of this section does not prohibit the head of a department from conforming the salary of such employees to the grade or character of work they may be called upon to perform. (1913) 30 Op. Atty-Gen. 167.

CLAIMS

Vol. II, p. 179, sec. 3477. [First ed., vol. II, p. 7.]

Effect of assignment as between parties.—In Lay v. Lay, (1918) 248 U. S. 24, 39 S. Ct. 13, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, affirming (1918) 118 Miss. 549, 79 So. 291 the court stated the proposition involved and its conclusion as follows: "The right to a fund resulting from the payment of an appropriation by Congress to satisfy a judgment for the value of property taken during the Civil War is the issue here involved. The contestants are the heirs at law of the original claimant and persons holding under an assignment by her of all her right to the claim or fund. The court enforced the assignment. Under the assumption that the claimant was prohibited by the law of the United States (§ 3477, Rev. Stat.) from making an assignment, the heirs at law prosecute error to correct the federal error thus assumed to have been committed. But the assumption indulged in as to the effect of the law of the United States is without merit. McGowan v. Parish, 237 U. S. 285, 294, and cases cited. This renders it unnecessary to consider whether, if the heirs at law were entitled to the fund, they would be liable to pay the full sum of the attorney's fee contracted for by the transferee and the duty to pay which the transferee and those in privity do not dispute."

Claim arising out of use of patent.—There can, under this section, be no valid assignment to the assignee of a patent of any unliquidated claim against the federal government under Act of June 25, 1910 (see vol. 7, p. 375) arising out of the use of such patent by the government before he became the owner of the patent. Brothers v. U. S., (1919) 250 U. S. 88, 39 S. Ct. 426, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, affirming (1917) 52 Ct. Cl. 462.

As between rival claimants the statute has no application where the United States has no interest, and so where the claim has been paid the statute cannot be set up in an action by a rival claimant against the person receiving the payment. Lay v. Lay, (1918) 118 Miss. 549, 79 So. 291.

Consolidation of corporations as assignment.—Where two corporations enter into an agreement to merge or consolidate into a new corporation, the transaction in legal contemplation is similar to a purchase by the new corporation of the railroads and properties of the two former companies, so far as the right to collect the debts or claims of the former companies is concerned, and the new company cannot sue for such claims in view of the statute forbidding assignment of claims against the United States. Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. U. S., (1918) 53 Ct. Cl. 107.

Vol. II, p. 203, sec. 1. [First ed., vol. II, p. 28.]

Expiration of time for presenting claims.—The right to present claims under this Act for reimbursement for horses lost in the military service in consequence of the failure of the United States to supply sufficient forage, or in any case where the loss resulted from any exigency or necessity of the military service without fault or negligence of the owner, finally expired under the Act of January 9, 1883 (see vol. 2, p. 204) and the Act of August 13, 1888 (see vol. 2, p. 206). U. S. v. Babcock, (1919) 250 U. S. 328, 39 S. Ct. 464, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, reversing (1918) 53 Ct. Cl. 629, 54 Ct. Cl. 1.

Vol. II, p. 205. [Property of officers, etc.] [First ed., vol. II, p. 26.]

Jurisdiction of court of claims.—Jurisdiction of the court of claims to determine whether recovery may be had under this act for property of officers and enlisted men in the military service which has been lost or destroyed in that service, is excluded by the provision of that act that "any claim which shall be presented and acted on under authority of this act shall be held as finally determined, and shall never thereafter be reopened or considered," since these words express clearly the intention to confer upon the Treasury Department exclusive jurisdiction and to make its decision final. U. S. v. Babcock, (1919) 250 U. S. 328, reversing 39 S. Ct. 464, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, (1918) 53 Ct. Cl. 629, 54 Ct. Cl. 1.

Extension of rights to inhabitants.—Applying the cardinal principle of statutory construction, of ascertaining the legislative intent by reference to all circumstances surrounding the passage of the law and the history of the subject matter thereof, to the Act of January 11, 1915, 38 Stat. 791, it is clear that the Congress intended to grant to inhabitants of the United States the same rights, and nothing more, that were given to citizens of the United States by the Act of March 3, 1891, 26 Stat. 851. *Rex v. ## COLLISIONS

Vol. II, p. 379, art. 5. [First ed., vol. II, p. 155.]

Failure to have light burning.—In The Lexington, (S. D. N. Y. 1917) 256 Fed. 63, affirmed (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 65, it was held that the failure of a sailing vessel to have her port light burning was such negligence as would bar recovery of damages in an action against a steamer for collision, where the latter vessel was not at fault.

Vol. II, p. 385, art. 11. [First ed., vol. II, p. 158.]

Section as only applicable to anchored boats.—This section is applicable only to a boat lying at anchor and not expecting to move from her position. It does not apply to a boat drifting with a small anchor dragging for the purpose of retarding her progress and keeping her from going ashore while repairs are being made to the engine. The O'Brien Bros., (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 185.

Failure to display anchor light.—Failure of a pile driver at anchor to display an anchor light precludes recovery in an action at law. Houchen v. Oregon-Washington R., etc., Co., (1918) 103 Wash. 598, 175 Pac. 316.

Sailing ship must use fog horn.—In The Middlesex, (D. C. Mass. 1916) 253 Fed. 142, it was contended that a schooner was at fault for a collision at sea in a fog because she did not show flares or blow danger signals on her steam whistle, in addition to sounding proper warnings on her fog horn. Answering this contention, the court said: "As to blowing the whistle, I think that would have tended rather to confuse and mislead than to assist the approaching vessel. The schooner was certainly not at fault for failing to do it. As to the flare, while I think that an unusually careful master would perhaps have displayed one, I cannot say that the course and distance of the on-coming steamer were so apparent to the men on the schooner that they were required to do so in the exercise of prudent seamanship. Additional warnings of this character are intended to be used either to attract the attention of an approaching vessel which apparently has overlooked the vessel resorting to them, or to warn an approaching vessel when she cannot otherwise be expected to locate accurately the place of the vessel showing the flare. In this case the schooner had a fog horn which, upon the great weight of the testimony, was a suitable one, and was being sounded at frequent intervals after the steamer's whistle was heard. The steamer was approaching from ahead and the schooner's horn was pointed in that direction. It was not evident on the schooner that the horn would not afford to the steamer adequate information of her presence and location. To hold her at fault for not showing a flare would practically amount to establishing a rule that sailing vessels were bound to do so whenever they became aware of danger from a steamer approaching in a fog at night. I do not think that the failure of the schooner to display a flare was a fault on her part." To the same effect, see The Chepstow Castle, (D. C. Mass. 1916) 253 Fed. 147.

Fog signals held adequate.—In The Sagamore, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 743, 159 C. C. A. 601, a sailing vessel run down by a steamer in a fog was held to have complied adequately with the requirement as to fog signals.

Vol. II, p. 388, art. 15 (c). [First ed., vol. II, p. 159.]

Evidence regarding signals.—In an action to recover damages because of a collision between a steamer and a sailing vessel, testimony of witnesses from the latter ship as to what signals were actually sounded is not overcome by testimony of persons aboard the former ship as to signals heard by them when the ships were some distance apart. The Melbourne P. Smith, (E. D. Va. 1919) 256 Fed. 45.

What constitutes moderate speed.—To same effect as second paragraph of original annotation, see The Beaver, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 312, 165 C. C. A. 94, also holding that the words "moderate speed" as used in this section do not necessarily mean less than full speed, if that speed is slow enough to be regarded as moderate in view of the circumstances of the case.

In The Middlesex, (D. C. Mass. 1916) 253 Fed. 142, it was held that a speed of four knots an hour at night in a fog was not excessive for a long, heavily loaded schooner where it was necessary to give her steerage-way.

A speed of  $5\frac{1}{2}$  miles per hour by a large steamer navigating in a dense fog at a place where fishing boats are apt to be encountered is excessive. The Sagamore, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 743, 159 C. C. A. 601, wherein the court discussed the "rule of sight" and the right to maintain steerage-way, and said that while the rules approach inconsistency they are both to be applied so far as possible.

Excessive speed.—In Puget Sound Nav. Co. v. Canyon Lumber Co., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 574, 166 C. C. A. 132, a collision between a tug with tows and a steamer was held to be due to the fault of the latter in running fifteen miles an hour through a fog and for attempting to cross the tug's tow line after having safely passed her.

The speed in a fog was held to be excessive under the particular facts in The New London, (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 842.

Suspensions of pilot's license.—Where a notice to a pilot of charges against him for causing a collision stated that he was "charged with inattention to your duties and violation of section 4442, R. S. U. S." in that he disregarded this article, setting out the article, it was held that the general reference to section 4442 of the Revised Statutes (see vol. 6, p. 1256) was surplusage, and that the inspectors had no jurisdiction to suspend or revoke his license for violation of said section. Benson v. Bulger, (W. D. Wash. 1918) 251 Fed. 757.

Vol. II, p. 393, art. 18. [First ed., vol. II, p. 161.]

Different crossing proposed.—Where two vessels are on a meeting course and one of them proposes a starboard to starboard crossing she undertakes the risk of the venture. The Hokendaqua, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 562, 163 C. C. A. 556.

Case within rule.—Evidence held to present a case of vessels meeting end on within article 18 and not a case of vessels crossing. The City of Norfolk, (E. D. Va. 1917) 248 Fed. 780.

Vol. II, p. 393, art. 19. [First ed., vol. II, p. 162.]

Meeting, not crossing case, shown.—Where there was a collision between a boat which was going up the west channel of the East river and one coming out of the Harlem river around Horn's Hook, it was held that there was a meeting and not a crossing. The Hokendaqua, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 562, 163 C. C. A. 556.

Failure to maintain course and speed.—In The Cherokee, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 851, it was held that in a collision between a steamer and a tug both vessels were at fault, the steamer, being the privileged vessel, for failure to maintain its course and speed, and the tug for failing to keep out of the steamer's way.

Sailing vessel in tow.—A sailing vessel in tow has no claim whatever to superior rights as a sailing vessel. The M. Moran, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 277, 163 C. C. A. 433.

Negligence of sailing vessel.—In The M. Moran, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 277, 163 C. C. A. 433, the facts were as follows: On a fair summer afternoon, with the tide ebb and a light south southwest wind (barely enough to give a sailing vessel steerage-way), the small schooner Oakwoods went down Buttermilk Channel in tow of a tug. At the same time the tug Moran, with two scows on a steel towing hawser, also passed through the channel. Not far from the lower end of Governor's Island the Moran stopped to lengthen hawsers, as she was bound to sea. The Oakwoods and her tug were nearer the Brooklyn shore than the Moran and when off the bell buoy below Governor's Island she cast off from the tug and began to sail, admittedly on the port tack. Thereafter she came about on the starboard tack, and her port bow then came in collision with the forward starboard corner of the starboard scow in the Moran's tow. Unless hindered by the Moran and her scows, there was nothing in the Oakwoods' path requiring her to go about when she did. The schooner was injured by collision, and brought suit. The court said:

"Confessedly there was a time when the Oakwoods on her port tack was heading for the Moran's hawser; she declares that she came about to avoid fouling that hawser, yet after so doing she admittedly struck the starboard scow with her port bow. This difficult, if not impossible, performance is sought to be accounted for by saying that the scows sheered toward Brooklyn, so as to present the one to starboard to the swinging schooner. If this happened, it could only have occurred by the Oakwoods tacking directly in front of the scows. But the lower court found that the Moran let her steel hawser run out and sink, and the Oakwoods passed entirely over it. We see no reason to doubt this finding, and it follows therefrom that whatever danger the schooner apprehended from the hawser was avoided by the skillful action of the Moran's master, and the Oakwoods had no excuse for going about where she did and failing to beat out her tack. . . . Under such circumstances the schooner must show some justification for crossing or approaching the Moran's hawser. We find none; there was plenty of room for her on the Brooklyn side of the Moran, nor was she bound to go off on a port tack. So far from the Moran creating the situation of danger, we find that she was executing a lawful maneuver when the Oakwoods cast off, and the latter created her own danger by unnecessarily interfering with said maneuver. A sailing vessel's privilege does not extend to being towed close to a tug lengthening hawser, then resuming the privileged role, and complaining because the maneuver she could plainly see interfered with, not what she had to do, but what she preferred doing."

Negligence of steam vessel.—In The Dorothy, (E. D. Va. 1918) 254 Fed. 477, it was held that a steamship was solely at fault for a collision at night with a schooner, for not observing the latter's lights until within a mile of her, at which time she showed her own lights, but continued at full speed on her course after noting that the schooner had changed her course.

Steamer overtaking tow.—A steamer overtaking a tug with barges in tow, and colliding with one of the barges which has its lights set, is solely at fault for such collision where it is caused by the navigation officer of the steamer having his attention fixed on another vessel, by his changing the course of the steamer shortly before the collision and not discovering the barge until too late to avoid it. The Howard, (D. C. Md. 1916) 253 Fed. 599.

Duty of overtaken vessel.—It is the duty of an overtaken vessel, when the danger of collision is apparent, to sound a warning signal to the overtaking vessel. It is also the duty of the overtaken vessel to maintain its course and speed, and it is at fault for slackening its speed for the purpose of allowing hawsers to barges in tow to sink so as to permit the overtaking vessel to pass between the barges. The Howard, (D. C. Md. 1916) 253 Fed. 599.

Rule violated.—In The Hokendaqua, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 562, 163 C. C. A. 556, it was held that a vessel was in fault for failing to give the backing signal required by this article.

Vol. II, p. 398, art. 29. [First ed., vol. II, p. 163.]

Failure to maintain lookout.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see The Gaston, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 887, 164 C. C. A. 103.

Vol. II, p. 413, rule 26. [First ed., vol. II, p. 172.]

Rule applied.—A vessel proceeding at full speed down a river and disregarding a refusal of passage by a vessel attempting to turn in the river, is solely at fault for a collision with the latter vessel. The Norman B. Ream, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 409, 164 C. C. A. 333.

A side-wheel steamer which collided with a steam freighter just inside the main harbor entrance of Cleveland was held culpably negligent for continuing on her course without stopping or reversing her engines in accordance with this rule after receiving no response to her signals, and in failing to properly note and observe the movements and position of the freighter after giving the signals. The freighter was also held to be culpably negligent in not answering the steamer's signals and in maneuvering across the harbor entrance in her path. The City of Erie, (N. D. Ohio 1918) 250 Fed. 259.

Vol. II, p. 415, sec. 1. [Definitions.] [First ed., vol. II, p. 174.]

Vessel when "under way."—A vessel lying dead in the water while taking in tow barges which have been dropped by another vessel, must under this Act be deemed to be "under way" as it is "not at anchor, or made fast to the shore, or aground." The George W. Elder, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 956, 162 C. C. A. 154.

Vol. II, p. 417, art. 3. [First ed., vol. II, p. 175.]

Failure to light tow.—A tug with tow navigating in a river at night will be held responsible for a collision between the tow and a launch, where it appears that the tow was not lighted, and that the launch was navigated properly but it was too dark to see the tow. The Barge No. 12, (S. D. Fla. 1918) 250 Fed. 923.

Vol. II, p. 419, art. 11. [First ed., vol. II, p. 176.]

Anchored vessel at fault.—In The Josephine, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 296, 159 C. C. A. 390, a collision between a scow anchored in a harbor and a schooner seeking anchorage therein, was held to be due to the failure of the scow to carry an anchor light.

Vol. II, p. 420, art. 15. [First ed., vol. II, p. 177.]

A vessel approaching a pier when another vessel collides with it, is not at fault because it fails to give the fog signals required by this section. The El Monte, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 59, 164 C. C. A. 171.

Collision of vessel about to anchor with one at anchor.—A vessel which when entering an anchorage ground in a fog fails to give more frequent signals is at fault for a collision with an anchored vessel which is sounding signals at proper intervals. The Quevilly, (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 415.

Signals by vessels in tow.—Where the whistle signal, required by this section and made exclusive of all other signals, is given by a tug with a barge in tow, the barge, which cannot whistle, is not negligent in failing to give other signals. The Washington, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 436, 162 C. C. A. 506.

Vol. II, p. 421, art. 16. [First ed., vol. II, p. 178.]

Navigation in fog.—Where a vessel in a fog hears the fog signal of another vessel "apparently forward of her beam" she is not required under the provisions of this section to ascertain the position of the vessel by sight, and if she recognizes and locates the vessel by her signal, knows the locality and the usual course of such vessel, she may continue her navigation accordingly. The Pemaquid, (D. C. Me. 1918) 255 Fed. 709.

In the following case a vessel was found guilty of fault in navigating at an excessive speed in a fog. The El Monte, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 59, 164 C. C. A. 171.

Vol. II, p. 423, art. 18, rule I. [First ed., vol. II, p. 178.]

Failure to carry out passing agreement.—In the following case a vessel was held to be in fault for failure to carry out a passing agreement: The Florida, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 22.

Steamer at rest—tug passing.—In The New York Central No. 17, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 220, it appeared that a ferryboat was lying at rest in the East river awaiting the departure of a sister boat of the same line, from the slip to which the ferryboat was bound. While so lying a tug came up the river close to the shore in violation of the duty imposed on her by section 757 of Ash's Greater New York Charter, to keep to the middle of the river. Each vessel was in plain view of the other, and as the tug approached the ferryboat signalled her to pass across her bow. The tug proceeded straight ahead on her course without answering the signal but suddenly changed her course as she approached the ferryboat and collided with her. It was held that the tug was solely at fault for violation of her statutory duty and the ordinary rules of navigation.

Vol. II, p. 426, rule V. [First ed., vol. II, p. 179.]

Applicability to vessel not in motion.—The rule as to bend signals does not apply to a vessel lying at a bend but not in motion. The Transfer No. 21, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 248 Fed. 459, 180 C. C. A. 469.

Collision with ship being backed from slip.—In The Tambor, (D. C. Md. 1919) 256 Fed. 717, it was held that a tug with scows in tow which collided with a steamship while the latter was being backed out of her slip in a harbor, after having given the proper signal, was solely in fault for not having kept out of the steamship's way, the starboard hand rule not applying.

Vol. II, p. 428, art. 19. [First ed., vol. II, p. 180.]

Collision through mistaking signals.—In The Musconetcong, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 675, it was held that a tug which was passing down Hudson river was solely responsible for a collision with a crossing ferryboat, where it appeared that it was a clear day, that the ferryboat was the privileged vessel under the starboard hand rule, and that although the tug mistook the ferryboat's signal, she had time after realizing her mistake to change her course.

Refusal of consent to pass.—A steamer which overtakes on a river a vessel engaged in taking barges in tow, and collides with it while attempting to pass, is solely at fault where it continued on its course after the overtaken vessel had refused to consent to its passing, for this article makes the overtaken vessel the judge of the time when the overtaking vessel may pass safely. The George W. Elder, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 956, 162 C. C. A. 154.

Overtaking vessel going astern after passing.—Where a tug with tow, while proceeding down a river, overtakes two other tugs with tows and passes between them without exchanging signals, but, on encountering a crossing ferryboat, is compelled to go astern of them and collides with one of them in doing so, it is solely at fault. The Bronx, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 843, 163 C. C. A. 157.

Avoiding anchored vessel.—In The Vedamore, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1917) 247 Fed. 108, 159 C. C. A. 326, a tug with tow was held at fault for failure to give sufficient clearance in passing a dredge anchored in the channel.

Custom.—A local custom based on peculiar conditions to pass starboard to starboard is not illegal. The Transfer No. 21, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 248 Fed. 459, 160 C. C. A. 469.

Dredge at anchor in channel.—In The Bern, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 325, 166 C. C. A. 495, it was held that where a dredge at the time of a collision with a tug towing canal boats, was anchored in a channel at such a point as to obstruct navigation, it was solely liable for damages.

Ferryboat and propeller both at fault.—In Carroll v. New York, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 453, 161 C. C. A. 411, a ferryboat and a propeller were held both to be at fault for a collision in the East river, the former in failing to observe sooner the lights of the latter, which had the right of way under the starboard hand rule, and the latter in violating a harbor regulation as to speed and proximity to the shore.

Special circumstances.—Ferryboat crossing course of tug and tow, held bound to navigate under the special circumstances rule and not entitled to stand in the starboard hand rule. The Pierpont, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1917) 248 Fed. 682, 160 C. C. A. 582.

In The Dorset, (E. D. Va. 1918) 250 Fed. 867, the collision occurred in the daytime between a steamship, being moved by a tug from her slip into a river, and a tow on a 600-foot hawser in charge of another tug proceeding down the river. When some distance way the latter tug gave a signal of two whistles which was similarly answered by the steamship, whereupon the tug proceeded at full speed upon its course and safely passed the steamship, but its tow collided with it. It was held that both tugs were at fault for failure to navigate so as to avoid collision after the exchange of signals, the tug with tow also at fault for using a longer hawser than permitted by the harbor regulations, and the steamer for giving such a signal and continuing to back from her slip into the channel, which was very narrow.

Steamers backing out of berths.—This rule applies to a steamer backing out of its berth preparatory to getting on its definite course. The Bouker No. 2, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 579, 166 C. C. A. 137; The Transfer No. 17, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 673, 166 C. C. A. 171; The M. Moran, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 766, 166 C. C. A. 212.

Vol. II, p. 442, art. 29. [First ed., vol. II, p. 181.]

Duty of lookout.—"A lookout's duty is to report as soon as he sees, not only any vessel with which there is danger of collision, but any which may in any way affect the navigation of his own. He may not himself engage in speculation about the probabilities of collision, or the relative movements of the two. That responsibility rests upon the master alone." The Madison, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 850, 163 C. C. A. 164.

Failure of lookout to report vessel.—A vessel whose lookout fails to report the proximity of another vessel with which it subsequently collides has the burden of showing that such failure did not contribute to the collision. The Madison, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 250 Fed. 850, 163 C. C. A. 164.

COPYRIGHT

Vol. II, p. 546, sec. 1 (a). [First ed., 1909 Supp., p. 81.]

Sale of play by play broker to moving picture companies.—The mere possession of the manuscript of a play by a play broker is not of itself sufficient to give him authority to make a contract for the sale of the copyright to moving picture companies, and in a suit against these companies by the author for an infringement of the copyright by producing the play on the screen the defendants have the burden of showing that the broker had the play for sale and that they purchased it. Stodart v. Mutual Film Corp., (S. D. N. Y. 1917) 249 Fed. 507, affirmed without opinion (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 513, 161 C. C. A. 439.

Vol. II, p. 548, sec. 1 (e). [First ed., 1909 Supp., p. 81.]

Counsel fees and punitive damages.—Evidence examined and held to show that letters sent by defendant to plaintiff were the notices required under section 25, clause (e), and were not, when taken in connection with the defendant's replies thereto, contracts for the use of the plaintiff's composition, and that the trial court should have exercised its discretion under section 1 (e) to allow a reasonable counsel fee and punitive damages. Feist v. American Music Roll Co., (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 245, 163 C. C. A. 401. The same case is again reported in (E. D. Pa. 1918) 253 Fed. 860, where the court said: "The decree in this case was reversed (251 Fed. 245), with direction to this court to exercise its discretion concerning the allowance of a reasonable counsel fee and punitive damages under section 1, clause (e), Act March 4, 1909, c. 320, 35 Stat. 1075. The controversy in the case has been upon the question whether the use by the defendant of the plaintiff's copyrighted musical compositions was under the compulsory license provisions of the act as contended by the plaintiff, or under a voluntary license as contended by the defendant. That question has now been decided in favor of the plaintiff. I am of the opinion that the plaintiff should be allowed a reasonable counsel fee. If the fee asked by plaintiff's counsel, $750, were awarded, the court would be applying, in fixing the amount of the fee, the punitive provisions of the act, which apply only to damages. The fee, to be a reasonable one, must be based upon the professional services rendered in the preparation and trial of the case and in the appellate proceedings. The amount of royalties due, as fixed by the former decree, is $373.74. The amount in controversy has its bearing upon the amount of the fee. No complicated questions of law or fact were involved. In my judgment, a fee of $150 is adequate and reasonable. Passing to the question of damages, they may be imposed in case of failure to pay within 30 days after demand. The court may, no doubt, take into consideration the intent and acts of the defendant in failing to make payment and its willful disregard of the provisions of the act. The defendant was in default in failing to render monthly reports and to make payment within 30 days after demand. There was nothing in these features of the case indicating an intention of concealment or piracy in the use of the copyrighted works. In fact, the liability of the defendant for the statutory two cents royalty was consistently admitted throughout the transactions. Moreover, there is nothing upon the record to show bad faith of the defendant in defending against the application of the compulsory license provision, and, if punitive damages were based upon the resistance of the defendant to liability to punitive damages, the court would be punishing the defendant for setting up what the court, in its former decision, considered to be a good defense against such liability, but which has been held to be error in law. Punitive damages will therefore be awarded, based upon failure to make payment within 30 days after demand, and, in aggravation thereof, failure to make monthly reports. The sum of $100 is, in my judgment, an ample allowance for damages, and will be awarded."

What may be copyrighted—News matter.—In International News Service v. Associated Press, (1918) 248 U. S. 215, 39 S. Ct. 68, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, the court commenting on the subject of news matter and whether it was property and the subject of copyright said: "In considering the general question of property in news matter, it is necessary to recognize its dual character, distinguishing between the substance of the information and the particular form or collection of words in which the writer has communicated it. No doubt news articles often possess a literary quality, and are the subject of literary property at the common law; nor do we question that such an article, as a literary production, is the subject of copyright by the terms of the act as it now stands. In an early case at the circuit Mr. Justice Thompson held in effect that a newspaper was not within the protection of the copyright acts of 1790 and 1802 (Clayton v. Stone, 2 Paine, 382; 5 Fed. Cas. No. 2872). But the present act is broader; it provides that the works for which copyright may be secured shall include 'all the writings of an author,' and specifically mentions 'periodicals, including newspapers.' Act of March 4, 1909, ch. 320, §§ 4 and 5, 35 Stat. 1075, 1076. Evidently this admits to copyright a contribution to a newspaper, notwithstanding it also may convey news; and such is the practice of the copyright office, as the newspapers of the day bear witness. See Copyright Office Bulletin No. 15 (1917), pp. 7, 14, 16-17. But the news element—the information respecting current events contained in the literary production is not the creation of the writer, but is a report of matters that ordinarily are publici juris; it is the history of the day. It is not to be supposed that the framers of the Constitution, when they empowered Congress 'to promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries' (Const., art. I, § 8, par. 8), ntended to confer upon one who might happen to be the first to report a historic event the exclusive right for any period to spread the knowledge of it."

A photograph.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see Altman v. New Haven Union Co., (D. C. Conn. 1918) 254 Fed. 113, wherein the court said: "Prior to 1865 it was held that a photograph was not a 'print, cut or engraving,' within the meaning of the earlier law, and was not therefore a proper subject of copyright. Congress, however, in 1865, extended copyright protection to negatives and photographs by expressly including them among the articles for which copyright was provided. Act March 3, 1865, c. 126, 13 Stat. 540. This express designation of photographs has been continued in all subsequent statutes. Act July 8, 1870, c. 230, § 86, 16 Stat. 212 (R. S. § 4952); Act March 3, 1891, c. 565, 26 Stat. 1107; Act Jan. 7, 1904, c. 2, 33 Stat. 4; Act March 3, 1905, c. 1432, 33 Stat. 1000. Although it was questioned whether a photographer is an author, and a photograph a writing, within the constitutional provision under which copyrights may be granted, the constitutionality of the act was sustained. Thornton v. Schreiber, 124 U. S. 612, 8 Sup. Ct. 618, 31 L. Ed. 577; Burrow-Giles Lith. Co. v. Sarony, 111 U. S. 53, 4 Sup. Ct. 279, 28 L. Ed. 349; Harper v. Kalem Co., 169 Fed. 61, 94 C. C. A. 429. Accordingly, since the act of 1865, photographs have been, and now are, copyrightable as such, and photographers have frequently been protected in the enjoyment of a copyright in their photographic productions. Thornton v. Schreiber, supra. The basis and justification of such copyrights is the undeniable fact that a photograph may embody original work and artistic skill, and be in fact an artistic production, the result of original intellectual conception on the part of its author. Pegano v. Chas. Beseler, (D. C.) 234 Fed. 963; Gross v. Seligman, 212 Fed. 930, 129 C. C. A. 450; Bamforth v. Douglass Post Card Co., (C. S.) 158 Fed. 355. The fact that the photographer arranged the light, the grouping, the posing, and other details of a photograph, so as to produce an artistic and pleasing picture, is sufficient to sustain a copyright for such photograph. Burrow-Giles Lith. Co. v. Sarony, supra; Pegano v. Beseler Co., supra."

Agents.—Under the Copyright Act no power exists in an "agent" to copyright anything; that privilege is reserved to the "authors or proprietors." Societe des Films Menchen v. Vitagraph Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 258, 163 C. C. A. 414.

Photographer.—In Altman v. New Haven Union Co., (D. C. Conn. 1918) 254 Fed. 113, a photographer making a group picture of a high school class was held to be the owner of the negative on the facts there shown and therefore entitled to a copyright. The court said: "The relevant facts upon which this decision must be based are found to be as follows:

"The graduating class of the New Haven High School of 1914, acting through a committee duly appointed, arranged with The New Haven Printing Company to print its Class Book, which was to contain, among other things, a group photograph of the class.

"In order to secure this photograph, a committee of the class was appointed to make the necessary arrangements, to the end that a proper photograph could be secured, which could also be sold separately to such of the individual members of the class as desired to secure a copy.

"After conferring with various photographers, arrangements were finally made with the plaintiff, whereby he was to take the picture of the class on the front steps of the High School building, and for which he was to receive $1.50 for each photograph sold to such members of the class as desired to purchase a copy at that price. The plaintiff was under no other contract as to price than as stated; i. e., no arrangement or contract was made whereby he was to receive any pay for his services as a photographer. At the appointed time the class, some 500 in number, assembled on the front steps of the High School. The plaintiff is, and has been for some years past, one of the leading photographers of the city, and has had a wide and varied experience in taking all kinds of indoor and outdoor photographs, and thoroughly understands the art. He grouped the members of the class, arranged their positions, and did all of the work necessary to secure a proper negative, from which an acceptable photograph could be made, and which resulted in a pleasing, satisfactory, and, so far as such a production may be, an artistic photograph, at least sufficiently so as to bring it within the realm of those things which may be copyrighted in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright Law of 1909, as amended.

"As soon as the photograph was developed, steps were immediately taken by the plaintiff to protect his rights in the same by applying to the Copyright Office in Washington, and pursuant to the steps so taken, and in conformity with law, on May 23, 1914, plaintiff received his certificate of registration under the seal of the Copyright Office. The negative from which the photographs were printed was marked by the plaintiff in conformity with the provisions of law, so that all photographs made from the negative were properly and legally marked.

"Where the photographer takes the portrait for the sitter under employment by the latter, it is the implied agreement that the property in the portrait is in the sitter, and neither the photographer nor a stranger has a right to print or make copies without permission from the sitter. Moore v. Rugg, 44 Minn. 28, 46 N. W. 141, 9 L. R. A. 58, 20 Am. St. Rep. 539. Where, however, the photograph is taken at the expense of the photographer and for his benefit, the sitter loses control of the disposition of the pictures, and the property right is in the photographer. Press Pub. Co. v. Falk, (C. C.) 59 Fed. 324. So here, no other conclusion is possible, under the evidence, save the one here reached, that the plaintiff was the lawful owner of the right in the photograph, bound only to sell each photograph at a price not to exceed $1.50 to each member of the class desiring to purchase one. By no possible stretch of the evidence could it be said that the class had or owned the right in the photograph."

Failure to comply strictly with copyrighted rules as invalidating copyright.—A copyright of an unpublished song under this section is valid, where all the necessary steps have been taken, although the composer deposits a printed rather than a typewritten or manuscript copy as required by the regulations of the Copyright Office, and there is a slight variance as to the date of delivery of the copy. Turner v. Crowley, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 749, 164 C. C. A. 589. "But, as we read the evidence, it shows that the plaintiff, before publication, sent a copy of the title, words, and music of the song to the Register of Copyright at Washington, D. C., as an unpublished work, and received from that official a certificate of registration. It is said that under the rules of the Copyright Office (rule 20, subdivision 1), in order to secure copyright of an unpublished work, it was necessary for plaintiff to 'deposit one typewritten or manuscript copy of the work.' Plaintiff, however, having proved that she deposited a printed copy, by every reasonable construction the legal effect must be the same as if there had been a deposit of a written or typewritten manuscript. Plaintiff forwarded two copies of the words and music, and made a second registration after publication, and received certificate of copyright. The certificate issued after publication recited that the copies were received September 5, 1914, and that the date of publication was September 10, 1914, while the first certificate for the unpublished work recites that the copy was received by the Register of Copyright on September 26, 1914. The certificate showing that the date of publication was September 10, 1914, varies from the allegations of the plaintiff's complaint, wherein it is alleged that, in order to secure copyright, on September 21, 1914, she mailed to the Librarian of Congress a printed copy of the title, words, and music of the song, together with the necessary fees. This variance, possibly due to an error on the part of plaintiff, or to a clerical error in the certificate of registration, ought not to deprive the plaintiff of the benefit of her original registration to secure copyright of the unpublished song. We assume that the rules of copyright require reasonable strictness of interpretation; but, where it is shown by a claimant that the essential steps have been taken to secure copyright of an unpublished work prior to publication, slight variance in dates ought not to destroy the proof of copyright. Macgillivray on Copyright, p. 257. But in the present case, even if the first registration could not be sustained, surely plaintiff, by proof of the second registration, fulfilled the terms of the Copyright Act, inasmuch as the record proves that that copyright notice was appended to the published copies of the song. Bobbs-Merrill v. Straus, 210 U. S. 339, 28 Sup. Ct. 722, 52 L. Ed. 1086."

Number of infringements and damages awarded for each.—This section at the beginning says that the liability is imposed for infringing "the copyright in any" copyrighted "work." The words are in the singular and each copyright is treated as a distinct entity. Westermann Co. v. Dispatch Printing Co., (1919) 249 U. S. 100, 39 S. Ct. 194, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) (reversing (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1916) 233 Fed. 609, 147 C. C. A. 417) wherein the facts as stated by the court were as follows:

This was a bill for an injunction against future infringement of certain copyrights and to recover damages for past infringement. The injunction was granted and in this both parties acquiesced. In addition, the District Court found that there were seven cases of infringement and awarded $10 as nominal damages for each case—$70 in all. The plaintiff appealed, insisting that for each case it was entitled under the copyright law to an award of not less than $250. The Circuit Court of Appeals sustained that contention, but held that what the District Court regarded as seven cases was only one and directed that the decree be modified by awarding $250, instead of $70, as damages. 233 Fed. Rep. 609. A writ of certiorari granted on the plaintiff's petition brings the matter here.

Whether there were seven cases of infringement or only one, and whether the damages should have been assessed at not less than $250 for each case, are the questions to be considered. The facts bearing on the solution of these questions are as follows:

The plaintiff designs and produces pictorial illustrations of styles in women's apparel and supplies the same to dealers in such apparel for use in advertising their goods. All the illustrations are separately copyrighted and all authorized copies carry the required copyright notice. The plaintiff grants exclusive licenses to use the illustrations for limited periods, each license being restricted to a particular locality. The dealer obtaining the license pays a fixed charge for it. Ordinarily the fact that the license is exclusive makes it attractive, serves as an incentive for paying the charge and is a helpful feature of the plaintiff's business. But when infringers use the illustrations the strength of that feature diminishes and the plaintiff's business suffers accordingly.

At the time of the infringing acts in question the Morehouse-Martens Company, a dealer at Columbus, Ohio, had an exclusive license from the plaintiff covering the use of the illustrations in that locality.

The defendant publishes at Columbus a daily newspaper, each issue comprising as many as 30,000 copies widely circulated. Without the consent or authority of the plaintiff or its licensee the defendant reproduced and published in its newspaper six of the plaintiff's copyrighted illustrations. They were published separately, each in a distinct issue and in all the copies. Five were published once and the other one twice, the illustrations being used in each instance as part of an advertisement by some competitor in trade of the plaintiff's licensee. The two advertisements having the same illustration were by different advertisers and were separated by an interval of twenty-six days.

The court reversed the judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals on the question of the number of cases of infringement, taking the view held by the District Court. On this question the court said: "The statute says that the liability thus defined is imposed for infringing 'the copyright in any' copyrighted 'work.' The words are in the singular not the plural. Each copyright is treated as a distinct entity, and the infringement of it as a distinct wrong to be redressed through the enforcement of this liability. Infringement of several copyrights is not put on the same level with infringement of one. On the contrary, the plain import of the statute is that this liability attaches in respect of each copyright that is infringed. Here six were infringed, each covering a different illustration. Thus there were at least six cases of infringement in the sense of the statute. Was there also another? The illustration covered by one of the copyrights was published on two separate occasions, each time in a different advertisement. There was no connection between the two advertisements other than that the inclusion of the same illustration in both. Each was by a different advertiser and was published at his instance and for his benefit. The advertisers were not joint, but independent, infringers, neither having any connection with what was done by the other. By publishing their advertisements, the defendant participated in their independent infringements. In these circumstances, we think the second publication of the illustration must be regarded as another and distinct case of infringement. Whether it would be otherwise if that publication had been merely a continuation or repetition of the first, and what bearing the "third" and "fourth" subdivisions of section 25, before quoted, would have on the solution of that question, are matters which we have no occasion to consider now. They are mentioned only to show that no ruling thereon is intended. We conclude, as did the District Court, that there were seven cases of infringement in the sense of the statute."

Taking up the subject of damages the court said: "On the question of the amount of damages to be awarded for each case we are in accord with the Circuit Court of Appeals. Both parties recognize that under the proofs the damages must be assessed under the alternative provision requiring the infringer, in lieu of actual damages and profits, to pay such damages as to the court shall appear to be just, etc. The fact that these damages are to be 'in lieu of actual damages' shows that something other than actual damages is intended—that another measure is to be applied in making the assessment. There is no uncertainty as to what that measure is or as to its limitations. The statute says, first, that the damages are to be such as to the court shall appear to be just; next, that the court may, in its discretion, allow the amounts named in the appended schedule, and finally, that in no case shall they be more than $5,000 nor less than $250, except that for a newspaper reproduction of a copyrighted photograph they shall not be more than $200 nor less than $50. In other words, the court's conception of what is just in the particular case, considering the nature of the copyright, the circumstances of the infringement and the like, is made the measure of the damages to be paid, but with the express qualification that in every case the assessment must be within the prescribed limitations, that is to say, neither more than the maximum nor less than the minimum. Within these limitations the court's discretion and sense of justice are controlling, but it has no discretion when proceeding under this provision to go outside of them."

Publication in several editions of newspaper as single.—The publication of a copyrighted map in the regular edition of a newspaper and in a noon edition on the same day may be treated as a single infringement. Sauer v. Detroit Times Co., (E. D. Mich. 1917) 247 Fed. 687, wherein the court said: "I think that, under all the circumstances, including the fact that the defendant appears to have acted in good faith, and ceased its infringement and surrendered its infringing plates as soon as its attention had been called to the matter, it is equitable to consider, and it should be held, that the acts of the defendant constituted one infringement, for the purpose of computing the damages, and that the plaintiff should recover the minimum amount allowed by the statute for one infringement, namely, $250 and costs."

Liability of lessor for lessee's infringement.

—The owner of a concert hall, who has no interest in a performance held therein except the rental, is not liable for an infringement of copyright because he permits the lessee's artist to render certain copyrighted music after being advised, subsequent to the execution of the lease, not to permit the performance without the consent of the plaintiff. Fromont v. Aeolian Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 254 Fed. 592. In discussing the liability of lessors in such cases, Mayer, J., said: "Plaintiff asks this court to hold, under such circumstances, that the owner of a building or a room, who has had no connection whatever with the performance of a copyrighted work, other than to let the said premises without any notice or knowledge, shall be held as an infringer. Of course, if, as in at least one English case, the owner of the premises had arranged for the infringing production, and was to receive profit therefrom, the situation would be quite different. If this court were to sustain the view advanced by the plaintiff, it might well result in the owners of buildings, such as are occupied by hotels and restaurants and department stores, in being held as co-infringers merely because, either by permission or contract arrangement, performances are had where some performer, without any prior agreement with the owner of the building, publicly performed some copyrighted work. It is matter of common knowledge that entertainments of all kinds are given, not merely in theaters or other regular places of amusement, but in hotels, and assembly rooms, department stores, and open grounds, such as the stadium and the Polo Grounds, and other large fields adapted for the giving of concerts or pageants.

"It is significant, although, of course, not controlling, that there is not to be found in the reports of American cases any case which has dealt with a cause of action similar to that here urged. To hold the defendant liable would, in my view, be to stretch both the purpose and the provisions of the Copyright Law (Act March 4, 1909, c. 320, 35 Stat. 1075) far beyond even the imagination of the Legislature. While unquestionably this exceedingly useful statute was passed primarily to protect authors, composers, and artists of various kinds, and to secure for them the reward of their labors, yet the act is constructed in such a manner as to safeguard the public against financial loss and damage unexpectedly and unwittingly incurred. Thus all of the preliminary provisions as to copyrighting are surrounded with great care. The notice of copyright must be given in a particular way, as the statute points out. The provisions as to damages and penalties are carefully set forth and guarded.

"Viewing the act and its purpose, it seems to me that a defendant cannot be called a co-infringer who is in no sense an inducing party to the infringement, who derives no profit from the infringement, excepting in the very remote way in which it is urged that this defendant landlord derived profit here; and where, as here, a defendant enters into an ordinary everyday business contract, without any knowledge whatever of a threatened infringement, and thus becomes bound under the contract, it seems to me that the construction contended for by plaintiff would result in visiting upon innocent landlords a penalty which the statute never contemplated."

Enlarged edition of work as infringement of earlier edition.—A history of the World War in two volumes held not infringed by a four volume work on the same subject by the same author. Kennerley v. Simonds, (S. D. N. Y. 1917) 247 Fed. 822.

Subsection (b)—No actual damage sustained.—To warrant the recovery of the sum allowed by the act it is not necessary that any actual damages shall have been sustained. Sauer v. Detroit Times Co., (E. D. Mich. 1917) 247 Fed. 687.

In Waterson, etc., Co. v. Tollefson, (S. D. Cal. 1918) 253 Fed. 859, it was held that the minimum damages for an infringement of a copyrighted musical composition should be $250 where no actual damages were shown. The court said: "As before stated, the infringement complained of concerns the performance of a 'musical composition,' as distinguished from other infringements referred to in section 25 of the Act of March 4, 1909 (35 Stat. 1081, c. 320). I confess that, on the first reading of this statute, I was of the opinion that $10, being the sum specifically mentioned in clause 'fourth' of the section cited as recoverable for such an infringement, should be the amount allowed as liquidated damages, in the absence of proof of actual damage. However, upon more careful study of the section and consideration of its various terms, and more particularly upon considering and reading the section as it appeared previous to its amendment in 1909, I am of the opinion that this is one of the 'other cases' referred to in clause 'b' of section 25 supra, and that the minimum damages to be awarded for the infringement shown should be $250.

"The provision for an allowance of 'ten dollars' must be held to apply where a large number of infringements have been shown; this figure may be used by the court as a basis for its computation of the entire damages by assessing each infringement at $10, if such method of computation, under all the circumstances, 'shall appear to be just'; but in the event the total number of infringements, computed on the $10 basis, do not amount to $250, nevertheless, pursuant to the mandatory terms of the statute contained in the provision last above referred to relating to 'other cases,' the court may not award damages in a sum less than $250. So, also, no matter how many separate infringements may be proved, no 'actual' damages being shown, the court may not mulct the defendant in damages in excess of the maximum sum mentioned, to wit, $5,000."

Innocent infringements.—One who reproduces and distributes free as advertising matter an article taken from a copyrighted magazine with the permission of the magazine, but without knowledge of the rights of the owner of the copyright, is liable to damages in an amount commensurate with the injury caused by the infringement. Insurance Press v. Ford Motor Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 896.

Infringement of song as warranting allowance of one dollar for each copy made.—In Turner v. Crowley, (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 749, 164 C. C. A. 589, an award of damages amounting to $7,000 for the infringement of the copyright of a song, the award being based on the fact that 7,000 copies were found in the possession of the defendant, was held excessive and the amount reduced to $560, it appearing that the retail price of each copy was only fifteen cents. The court said: "Appellee offered no proof of actual loss or of profits, but we gather from the testimony that at a retail price of 15 cents a copy for the song the profit to the plaintiff would not have exceeded 8 cents per copy. If, therefore, the plaintiff had received 8 cents per copy upon 7,000 copies found in the possession of Turner & Dahmken, her total damage would have been $560, which we think would be a fair estimate. Plaintiff said that she expected and authorized orchestrations of her song to be used, but did not authorize use of it as made by defendant. The allowance of $7,000, or $1 per copy of the song and music, seems to have been based upon the view that $1 per copy is a fixed sum, to be allowed under any circumstances of infringement after notice. But, as we do not so construe the law, the duty of the court was to award damages as justified by the nature and circumstances of the case as developed upon the trial. Thus, while the discretion of the court may be used to award damages where no proof of actual damage is offered, yet the award should have relation to such inferences as are reasonably deducible from the whole case of infringement, and such damages are not to be awarded as based upon the idea of punishment. 13 Corpus Juris, p. 1179. The allowance of attorney's fees was proper (Haas v. Leo Feist, Inc. [D. C.] 234 Fed. 105), and as the case before the court showed the exact number of copies which were found in the possession of the infringers, and no accounting in other respects was called for, there was no need of reference to a master. The decree is affirmed in all respects except as to the award of $7,000 damages. In respect to that item the direction is that the sum awarded shall be $560, and the decree is modified accordingly, and, as so modified, it is affirmed."

Commenting on the subject of damages generally the court said: "In Hendricks v. Thomas Publishing Co., 242 Fed. 37, 154 C. C. A. 629, the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, through Judge Hough, commenting upon the language of section 25 of the Copyright Act relating to the assessment of damages and profits, traced it as the growth of years resulting from the efforts of Congress 'to avoid that strictness of construction which historically attaches to any statute inflicting penalties and to confer upon an injured copyright owner some pecuniary solace even when the rules of law render it difficult if not impossible, as it often is, to prove damages or discover profits,' and held that the statute limits the discretion of the court to a minimum award of $250, and a maximum of $5,000, in lieu of actual damages, and that it was the intent of Congress to preserve the right of the plaintiff to pursue damages and profits by the historic methods of equity if he chooses so to do and to give the new right of application to the court for such damages as shall appear to be just in lieu of actual damages. Gross v. Van Dyk Gravure Co., 230 Fed. 412, 144 C. C. A. 554, was approved by the court. In the last case Judge Learned Hand said that it was the duty of the court under section 25b to estimate the damages by the best inference it can even though the complainant would fail for lack of evidence if the issue were tried before a jury and that it was intended that a plaintiff should not fail for lack of proof. Weil on Copyright deduces from the later decisions that a copyright proprietor now has three means of monetary compensation afforded him upon infringement of his rights. He may recover profits made by the infringer. He may recover actual damages in addition to such profits or in lieu of profits, and actual damages he may, if he so elects, recover arbitrarily as damages, not by way of penalty, and which in the case of musical compositions, as referred to in section 5 of the Copyright Act, are fixed at $1 per copy found in the possession of the infringer, or made or sold by him. There is also in section 25b, following the exceptions named in the statute, a provision to the effect that the exceptions "shall not deprive the copyright proprietor of any other remedy given him under this law nor shall the limitations as to the amount of recovery apply to infringements occurring after actual notice to a defendant either by service of process in a suit or other written notice served upon it." As it was very clearly proved upon the trial of the present case that notice of infringement was served upon the appellants and that there was a continuance of the infringement after such notice was served, this provision must be considered in reviewing the damages which the lower court allowed. In our opinion the rule of the better authorities is that the court may, in its discretion and subject to the qualification that the damages must be just, allow $1 for each copy made or sold by or found in the possession of the infringer or his agents or employees; and penalties in the strict sense being done away with, the court has power to award more than $5,000, where there has been an infringement after notice, provided the evidence warrants a finding that the complainant was damnified in excess of $5,000. Westermann Co. v. Dispatch Printing Co., 233 Fed. 609, 147 C. C. A. 417."

Subsection (e) — "Notice of intention."—In Feist v. American Music Roll Co., (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 245, 163 C. C. A. 401, it was held that certain letters sent by the defendant to the plaintiff were the notices required by this clause of section 25.

Vol. II, p. 592, sec. 34. [First ed., 1909 Supp., p. 90.]

Effect of decision in state court.—In DeBekker v. Frederick A. Stokes Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 248 Fed. 838, it appeared that the rights of the complainant were based on a decree of a state court vesting a copyright in him and divesting the defendant thereof. It was held that he could not sue in the federal court for infringement merely because dissatisfaction with the damages allowed as for breach of contract in the state court, since his rights depended on the state decision and he could not go behind it.

Vol. II, p. 593, sec. 36. [First ed., 1909 Supp., p. 91.]

- I. What constitutes infringement.
- II. Injunctions and accounting.

I. WHAT CONSTITUTES INFRINGEMENT (p. 594)

Infringement of play by motion picture.—A copyrighted play is infringed by a motion picture play having the same characters, the scene laid in the same place and the plot based on the same incident as the plaintiff's play. That the title of the plaintiff's play was old and that an earlier novel contained similar incidents are immaterial, for an old title does not render the entire copyright invalid and an author, while not entitled to protection of an old plot used by him, is entitled to be protected as to additions which he has made to it and his treatment of it. Stodart v. Mutual Film Corp., (S. D. N. Y. 1917) 249 Fed. 507, affirmed without opinion (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 249 Fed. 513, 161 C. C. A. 439.

A bill was held to be insufficient to show an infringement of a copyright for a moving picture play in the case of Societe des Films Menchen v. Vitagraph Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 258, 163 C. C. A. 414.

Dramatic composition.—In Underhill v. Belasco, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 254 Fed. 838, it was held that a copyrighted play depicting convent life was not infringed by a play of entirely different theme which also related to convent life and contained convent scenes of similar character.

Permission to use earlier edition.—Permission to use a copyrighted map does not warrant the use of the same map with additions copyrighted later. Sauer v. Detroit Times Co., (E. D. Mich. 1917) 247 Fed. 687. The court said: "It is undisputed that this 1916 map differed in some respects from that of the previous year. The defendant admits it 'contains a few subdivisions marked on it that Exhibit 6 (the 1915 map) does not contain,' but contends that these new subdivisions covered a space on the map of 'possibly a square inch' and that, therefore, the two maps should be considered as substantially the same. I am unable to agree with this contention. It seems to me clear that in considering differences between maps the substantial character between such differences cannot be tested in terms of inches. It appears that the main purpose in publishing new editions of these city maps was to keep pace with the growing development of the city and adding to the map of the previous year the new subdivisions platted and placed upon the market since the previous year. The object of the defendant in using this new map was to aid in advertising these new subdivisions, and for this purpose the old map would have been inadequate. The very reason for publishing the 1916 map, instead of the earlier one, was the desire to obtain the benefit of the latest map. The permission thus relied on by defendant as excusing its conduct in publishing the 1916 map was not broad or general enough to cover any map except that furnished at the time."

II. INJUNCTIONS AND ACCOUNTING (p. 601)

Preliminary injunction.—A preliminary injunction enjoining the defendants from publishing, printing, reprinting, and selling a certain musical composition in violation of the plaintiff's copyright, will be denied where it appears that the affidavits made by the defendants deny allegations made by the plaintiff and make further allegations and that the plaintiff was guilty of laches in applying for an injunction in that he knew of the alleged acts of infringement by the defendants something like a year before he applied for the injunction. Flanagan v. Coleman, (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 255 Fed. 178.

Defenses.—Ignorance of the plaintiff's copyright, or honest intention, affords no defense to a suit to enjoin an infringement of a copyright of a photograph. Altman v. New Haven Union Co., (D. C. Conn. 1918) 254 Fed. 113, wherein the court said: "And as a last defense the defendant pleads, and the court finds as a fact, that its infringement was entirely innocent. Under the law, is that a defense? The law is decisive and clear on this point, and rules against the defense, for it has been repeatedly held that ignorance of a copyright or honest intention affords no defense to an action for infringement. In Morrison v. Pettibone, (C. C.) 87 Fed. 330, at page 332, the court said: 'The authorities are clear that the question of knowledge or intent does not enter into consideration upon the issue of infringement.' In Stern v. Jerome H. Remick & Co., (C. C.) 175 Fed. 282, Judge Hand said: 'It is not necessary that the defendant should have intended to violate the copyright of the plaintiff. He had means of knowledge from the copyright office that the song had been in fact copyrighted; and he, like any one else, took his chances when he published the song without any inquiry.' Judge Hollister, in Meccano v. Wagner, (D. C.) 234 Fed. 912, at page 921, said: 'Intention is held to be immaterial, if infringement otherwise appears.' The author's property is absolute when perfected by copyright, and the intent or purpose of an invasion is nowhere made an excuse for it."

Joint and independent infringers.—A person who publishes a copy of a photograph in ignorance of the fact that it is an infringement of the copyrighted original, is an independent, and not a joint, infringer. Altman v. New Haven Union Co., (D. C. Conn. 1918) 254 Fed. 113.

Admissibility of evidence.—A receipt given by the plaintiff to another infringer on the settlement of a previous suit, is not admissible in evidence as a bar to a recovery but may be admitted as bearing upon the equities between the parties. Altman v. New Haven Union Co., (D. C. Conn. 1918) 254 Fed. 113.

Vol. II, p. 609, sec. 42. [First ed., 1909 Supp., p. 91.]

Scope of assignment.—The assignment of the copyright of a song does not carry a separate copyright taken out on an orchestral arrangement. Edmonds v. Stern, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 897, 161 C. C. A. 15.

Vol. II, p. 621, sec. 62. [First ed., 1909 Supp., p. 95.]

Publication.—No publication other than the deposit in the office of the librarian is essential to the validity of the copyright. Cardinal Film Corp. v. Beck, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 248 Fed. 368, wherein the court said: "Section 62 of the Copyright Law, which provides that the date of publication in the case of a work, of which copies are reproduced for sale or distribution, shall be held to be the earliest date when copies of the first authorized edition were placed on sale, sold or publicly distributed by the proprietor of the copyright, or under his authority, was an enactment to fix the date from which the copyright term should begin to run, and not a general definition of what constituted publication."

COSTS

Vol. II, p. 624, sec. 823. [First ed., vol. II, p. 276.]

Contingent fee of attorney.—A contract by one having a claim against the United States for private property taken by the United States military authorities during the Civil War, with an attorney to pay him a fee equal to 50 per cent. of the amount which may be collected upon the claim, and giving the attorney a lien on any warrant that may be issued in payment of the claim, is valid under this section. Newman v. Moyers, (1917) 47 App. Cas. (D. C.) 102 Am. Cas. 1918E 528.

Vol. II, p. 628, sec. 824. [First ed., vol. II, p. 278.]

On decree pro confesso.—A docket fee may be taxed on the entry of a decree pro confesso in equity. Peerless Light Co. v. Leviton, (S. D. N. Y. 1916) 247 Fed. 606.

Vol. II, p. 641, sec. 974. [First ed., vol. II, p. 289.]

Preliminary hearing before commissioner.—On a conviction of a violation of the White Slave Traffic Act a motion to tax against the defendant the costs upon the commissioner's hearing in the preliminary examination will be denied. U. S. v. Schwartz, (N. D. Ia. 1918) 249 Fed. 755, wherein the court said: "The government has filed an elaborate brief in support of its contention that, under section 974 of the Revised Statutes, the costs upon the preliminary hearing of a person before a United States commissioner held to appear before the grand jury are taxable as a part of the costs of the prosecution if the defendant is convicted, and should be included in the judgment against him upon his conviction. Such has not been the practice in this district since its creation.

"This question was before Judge Trieber in United States v. Briebach, (D. C.) 245 Fed. 204, where, upon a careful consideration of the statute and applicable authorities, he held that such costs were not a part of the prosecution of the defendant, and were not properly taxable, and ordered them excluded from the taxation of costs in that case, where they had been taxed by the clerk against the defendant at the instance of the Attorney-General. . . .

"Section 1014 of the Revised Statutes [see vol. II, p. 654] expressly provides that the hearing before a commissioner or other magistrate under that section shall be 'at the expense of the United States.' It seems clear that neither of these sections directly authorizes the costs of the hearing before the commissioner to be taxed against the defendant. The commissioner, of course, is not a court, and has no power to enter a judgment against a person brought before him upon a preliminary hearing, for any purpose. Todd v. United States, 158 U. S. 278, 15 Sup. Ct. 889, 39 L. Ed. 982. He can only inquire and determine whether or not there are reasonable grounds to hold the person to appear before the court having cognizance of the offense with which he is charged; and proceedings before the commissioner as an examining magistrate are not the commencement of a prosecution for the offense of which the person may be accused. Virginia v. Paul, 148 U. S. 107, 119, 13 Sup. Ct. 536, 37 L. Ed. 386.

"The rule is familiar that costs can only be awarded by a court to a successful litigant when the statute clearly so authorizes; and they should not be so awarded upon a strained or technical construction of the statute. The amendment of sections 5399 and 5406 of the Revised Statutes by sections 135 and 136 of the Criminal Code [see vol. III, pp. 688, 692], whereby were added the words, 'or in any examination before a United States commissioner or officer acting as such,' were obviously intended to meet the decision of the Supreme Court in Todd v. United States, 158 U. S. above; but such amendment does not constitute the commissioner a judge, or a court of the United States, nor render a preliminary examination before a commissioner a proceeding 'in any court of the United States.'

"As well might it be claimed that the fees of witnesses before a grand jury and of the marshal in summoning them before that body, in case an indictment is found, shall be taxed as a part of the prosecution of the cause, in the event an indictment is found and the defendant convicted upon a plea of guilty or a trial thereof, shall be taxed as a part of the prosecution of said cause, and this motion to tax 'all costs of the prosecution' is broad enough to include such fees and costs; but apparently the government does not contend that such fees could rightly be so taxed. The opinion of Judge Trieber in United States v. Briebach, above, and the cases there cited, so clearly state the rule that seems to me correct that it is unnecessary to consider the matter further."

Vol. II, p. 644, sec. 983. [First ed., vol. II, p. 291.]

Cost of printing record.—The cost of printing the record in a patent case is properly taxed. Christensen v. General Electric Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 248 Fed. 284.

CRIMINAL LAW

Vol. II, p. 654, sec. 1014. [First ed., vol. II, p. 321.]

Following state practice—generally—"Mode of process."—To same effect as original annotation, see Safford v. U. S., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 471, 164 C. C. A. 655, wherein the court said: "The defendant contends that the language 'agreeably to the usual mode of process against offenders in such states' means only 'the process itself, such as warrants, commitments, etc., as distinguished from procedure, which may embrace hearings.' We think it means procedure, and the Code of Criminal Procedure of the state of New York (sections 188-200) provides for just such examinations. United States v. Dunbar, 83 Fed. 151, 27 C. C. A. 488; Cohen v. United States, 214 Fed. 23, 130 C. C. A. 417; United States v. Greene, (D. C.) 100 Fed. 941."

Authority of examining magistrate.—A United States commissioner has authority to conduct a hearing and administer oaths in the case of a person charged with perjury under section 125 of the Penal Laws. Safford v. U. S., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 471, wherein the court said: "At the outset and throughout the case the defendant's attorneys objected that the United States commissioner had no authority to conduct a hearing or administer an oath to the defendant, or to do more than issue a warrant of arrest and either imprison or admit him to bail. If this is so, the defendant would not be guilty of perjury under the statute, even if he had knowingly testified falsely, because the crime can only be committed if the officer has authority under the laws of the United States to administer the oath. Section 125, U. S. Criminal Code. Ever since circuit court commissioners, now called United States commissioners, were appointed, it has been the practice for them to conduct judicial hearings for the purpose of inquiring whether any crime has been committed, and, if so, whether there is reasonable ground for connecting the prisoner with it, and thereupon either discharging him, imprisoning him, or admitting him to bail. It would be a scandal to arrest and imprison citizens without giving them a hearing, and we would not interfere with this uniform and wholesome practice except under absolute necessity."

Form of bail bond.—Under the provisions of this section the form of a bail bond taken by a United States commissioner should conform in all substantial particulars to the requirements of the laws of the state in which the commissioner is sitting so far as such laws are applicable. Accordingly, such a bail bond is sufficient where it states, in accordance with the requirements of a state statute, that the offense with which the defendant is charged is a felony. U. S. v. Buchanan, (W. D. Tex. 1919) 255 Fed. 915.

REMOVAL OF ACCUSED TO TRIAL DISTRICT (p. 667)

The District of Columbia.—To same effect as original annotation, see Easterday v. McCarthy, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 651, 168 C. C. A. 45, affirming (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 250 Fed. 800.

In U. S. v. McCarthy, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 250 Fed. 800, Judge Learned Hand said: "The theory of Judge Brown in Re Dana, 68 Fed. 886, has been definitely overruled, that Revised Statutes, § 1014, does not apply to offenses committed in the District of Columbia, at least when they are crimes against the general laws of the United States. Benson v. Henkel, 198 U. S. 1, 25 Sup. Ct. 569, 49 L. Ed. 919; In re Price, (C. C.) 83 Fed. 830; Price v. McCarty, 89 Fed. 84, 32 C. C. A. 162. That theory rested upon the idea that the removal must be to courts existing at the time of the passage of the Judiciary Act and before the District of Columbia had been set apart, or at least that it must be to courts deriving their authority from the Judiciary Act. Judge Brown, however, went further than this, and held that in any event, disregarding that point, the removal could not apply to offenses which arose under the 'local laws,' as he called them, of the District of Columbia. His notion as to these was that it would put the District of Columbia at a relative advantage over the states, which was not to be understood. The contrary of such a doctrine was announced obiter in Benson v. Henkel, 198 U. S. 1, 14, 25 Sup. Ct. 569, 49 L. Ed. 919, and decided by Judge McPherson in United States v. Campbell, (D. C.) 179 Fed. 762, and perhaps in result in United States v. Wimsatt, (D. C.) 161 Fed. 586, though it is not clear whether the indictment there was not, as in Re Price, supra, under R. S. § 5356. I see no reason to suppose that a crime created by an act of Congress, applying specially to the District of Columbia, should not be removable under section 1014, if for no other reason than because it cannot be tried there otherwise. Concededly there is no extradition between the District of Columbia and a state. It is certainly unreasonable to suppose that there is no way of removing to the District of Columbia one who has offended against a local law, but who cannot be reached by bench warrant."

Contentions that the removal to the District of Columbia of a person there charged with an offense against the United States amounts to an invasion of defendant's constitutional right to a speedy trial on indictments relating to the same transactions, found against him in the district from which the removal was sought, and that the consent of the federal District Court for that district to such removal ought not to have been given without requiring from the representative of the government a statement of reasons, raised nothing more than a question of discretion, the determination of which is not reviewable by the Supreme Court. Rumely v. McCarthy, (1919) 250 U. S. 283, 39 S. Ct. 483, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, affirming (S. D. N. Y. 1919) 256 Fed. 565.

Indictment—Technical objections.—To the same effect as the original annotation, see Conetto v. U. S., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 251 Fed. 42, 163 C. C. A. 292.

Want of probable cause.—Want of probable cause is not shown so as to defeat the removal to another federal district for trial of a person there charged with an offense against the United States, viz., the failure to make a report to the Alien Property Custodian as required by the Act of October 6, 1917 (see 1918 Supp., p. 846), by the assertion—even if well founded—that to compel such disclosure makes the defendant a witness against himself, where the accusatory averments of the indictment, admitted to be true, make out a prima facie case of an offense against the laws of the United States, indictable in the district to which removal is sought, since the constitutional point merely raises a probability that a defense will be interposed and that thus a controversy will arise the determination of which is within the proper jurisdiction of the court in which the indictment was found. Rumely v. McCarthy, (1919) 250 U. S. 283, 39 S. Ct. 483, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, affirming (S. D. N. Y. 1919) 256 Fed. 565.

Vol. II, p. 676, sec. 1024. [First ed., vol. II, p. 337.]

Discretion of court.—To same effect as original annotation, see Foster v. U. S., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 207.

Offenses held to have been properly joined.—Counts for violations of different sections of the Oleomargarine Act may be joined in one indictment under the provisions of this section. Kreuzer v. U. S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1919) 254 Fed. 34, 165 C. C. A. 444.

Indictments held to have been properly consolidated.—An indictment for conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States may be consolidated under this section with an indictment for the commission of the offense. Vane v. U. S., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 28, 165 C. C. A. 438.

Vol. II, p. 681, sec. 1025. [First ed., vol. II, p. 340.]

Following language of statute.—"An indictment is generally sufficient which charges a statutory crime substantially in the words of the statute, except in such cases where other precedents have been firmly established in analogous offenses at common law, or where such a charge would not fairly inform the accused of the nature of the charge preferred against him." Jelke v. U. S., (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 264, 166 C. C. A. 434.

Particularity.—"The allegations of the information need only be so specific as fairly to inform the defendant of the crime intended to be alleged, and to make available a plea of former acquittal or conviction, if a second prosecution were instituted for the same offense." Dr. J. H. McLean Medicine Co. v. U. S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 694, 165 C. C. A. 288.

An indictment under Penal Laws, section 225 [7 Fed. Stat. Ann. 851], charging a postmaster with refusing to remit money order funds of his post office to a designated depository and with having failed to account for such funds upon demand by the Postmaster-General through a duly authorized inspector, is sufficient although it does not allege by what means the depository was designated and the inspector made the authorized agent of the department, as no prejudice can result to the defendant from the alleged imperfect averment, and, if imperfect, it is cured by this section. Foster v. U. S., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 207.

Reference to sections of act.—The fact that an indictment under section 37 of the Penal Laws for conspiracy to violate the Selective Service Act, by the writing and publication of a newspaper urging persons of military age not to register, names only section 5 of the act, whereas the offense is also based upon section 6, is immaterial in view of the provisions of this section, as the act and not the mere numbered sections thereof is material. Sugar v. U. S., (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 79, 164 C. C. A. 191, wherein the court said: "Possibly the language of the indictment is not as clear as it might be because it, unnecessarily, names section 5 of the Selective Draft Act as the legislation involved, when, in fact, the offense charged must, in connection with section 37 supra, have its basis not only in that section, but also in section 6 of the act. In these circumstances, and in view of section 1025, R. S., Bennett v. United States, 194 Fed. 632, 114 C. C. A. 402, and Daniel v. United States, 196 Fed. 465, 116 C. C. A. 233, we hold that the indictment is based on those provisions of the act the language of which covers the offense charged, whether that language is found in section 5 or elsewhere—the act, and not the mere numbered sections of it, being the substantial thing to be regarded, and particularly when the language of the indictment clearly points out what conduct is aimed at and sought to be punished."

Recital instead of direct allegation.—In Dosset v. U. S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 248 Fed. 902, 161 C. C. A. 20, the statute was applied to sustain an indictment for introducing liquor into Indian territory which stated the character of the territory by recital rather than by direct averment.

Duplicity.—On a motion for a new trial, an indictment will not be held to be defective because it charges in separate counts offenses against different statutes. U. S. v. Stilson, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 254 Fed. 120, wherein the court said: "In the supplemental paper book which has been submitted the point is made that the indictment under which the defendants were tried is bad for duplicity. The proposition of law that it is bad pleading to incorporate in one count two offenses, made such by different statutes, and calling for different measures of punishment, is a proposition the soundness of which must be admitted. Ammerman v. United States, 216 Fed. 326, 132 C. C. A. 470. This admission, however, does not carry with it the further admission that the principle is applicable to this indictment.

"The first count presents the fact of the United States being in a state of war, and that during the time of the existence of this state the defendants entered into a conspiracy to have committed certain acts which at such time were offenses against the law. One of them was the offense of causing insubordination. Another was to obstruct enlistments. And it further charges that in pursuance or furtherance of this unlawful conspiracy the defendants committed certain overt acts, and indicates the conspiracy charge to be that which is defined, and the punishment of which is provided for, in section 4 of the Act of June 15, 1917, c. 30, 40 Stat. 219.

"The second count differs from the first, in that it charges that the object of the conspiracy was to bring about the offense of inducing men in the military service to desert; the offense being that defined, and the punishment of which is provided for, in the fifth section of the Act of May 18, 1917, c. 15, 40 Stat. 80.

"It is true that we have two acts of Congress declaring and defining the offense of conspiracy. One is that which was re-enacted in the 1909 Criminal Code (Act March 4, 1909, c. 321, 35 Stat. 1088). The other is that which is to be found in section 4 of the Act of June 15, 1917. A conspiracy to have committed any of the acts which are offenses against the law in the Act of June 15, 1917, would have been, within the limitations imposed, an offense against the law under the Criminal Code provision of 1909. The two enactments are substantially the same in their provisions, section 4 of the 1917 act being a re-enactment of the act of 1909, except that its provisions are limited to the acts declared by that act to be offenses, while the act of 1909 applies to any act which is an offense against the law. It would not, we assume, be asserted that an indictment charging a conspiracy to have committed any of the offenses defined in the Act of June 15, 1917, would not have been good under section 4 of that act. It would not, we assume again, be asserted that an indictment for a conspiracy to have committed the offenses defined in the other sections of the act would not have been a good indictment under the provisions of the Criminal Code of 1909, if there had been no section 4 in the act of 1917.

"The offense which the defendants are charged to have conspired to have committed by the second count of the indictment is an offense defined by the Act of May 18, 1917, and is, we think, properly charged as an offense against the 1909 enactment. In the sense intended by counsel, the charge of conspiracy in count 1 is in legal intendment a different offense from the conspiracy charge in count 2. Had the two offenses been charged in one count of the indictment the count would have been bad for duplicity, and on demurrer would have been so held. It does not follow, however, that an indictment charging the two offenses in separate counts would be open to the same criticism."

Raising questions of procedure by demurrer.—If the wish is to secure a ruling upon the question argued, the record should be put in such shape as to present that question only. The approved practice in the courts of the United States is to discourage the raising of mere procedure questions by demurrers to indictments by reason of formal defects or otherwise. This discouragement extends to raising by demurrer questions which can as well or better be raised as trial questions. R. S. 1025 is a command to ignore all defects in pleadings except such as "tend to the prejudice of the defendant." It is the right of the people, as well as the defendants, that there shall be open public inquiries into every charge of crime, and that the guilt of the defendant shall be submitted to a jury as the lawfully constituted tribunal to pass upon it. This, of course, does not lessen the responsibility of prosecuting officers and grand juries to see to it that no defendant shall be unjustly harassed by unfounded charges, nor does it relieve the trial judge of the duty of unflinchingly pronouncing judgment that the evidence is insufficient to convict, if such be the case, and of seeing to it that no man be unjustly convicted, if entitled to an acquittal under the facts or the law. It does mean, however, that when officials charged with that responsibility have submitted an indictment, and a grand jury has found a true bill, the court shall not usurp the functions of the trial jury, and shall not dismiss the indictment unless it charges no offense against the law, or discharge the defendants unless the evidence will not warrant a conviction. U. S. v. Werner, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 247 Fed. 708.

Failure to allege character of drugs.—The failure of an indictment for violation of section 2 of the Harrison Act [4 Fed. Stat. Ann. 178] to allege that cocaine is a derivative of coca leaves and that morphine and heroin are salts and derivatives of opium, is a harmless imperfection in view of this section. Melanson v. U. S., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 783, 168 C. C. A. 129, wherein the court said: "The first count is criticised because it contains no direct averment that cocaine is a derivative of coca leaves, and that morphine and heroin are salts or derivatives of opium. It is averred in the first count of each indictment that the respective defendants, at the time of the commission of the offense, knew that cocaine was a derivative of coca leaves, and that morphine and heroin were salts and derivatives of opium. It is difficult to see how they could know this to be a fact, unless it was a fact, and the averment that it was known by them to be a fact implies the averment that it was a fact. It certainly informs the defendants sufficiently of the charge against them, and, if an imperfect averment, is a harmless imperfection, carrying no consequences, in view of R. S. § 1025."

1918 Supp., p. 122, sec. 3.

Constitutionality.—A public speech so expressed that its natural and intended effect is to obstruct the military recruiting or enlistment service is not protected by the constitutional guaranty of freedom of speech from condemnation under this section by reason of the immunity of the general theme, viz., socialism, its growth, and prophecy of its ultimate success, or because it is part of a general program to obstruct war, and expressed a general and conscientious belief. Debs v. U. S., (1919) 249 U. S. 211, 39 S. Ct. 252, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —.

The provision of the Espionage Act may not be invalidated on the theory that some of the matters dealt with are treasonable and punishable as treason or not at all, and that such acts as were not treasonable could not be punished. Nor may the provisions be invalidated as abridging free speech. Frohwerk v. U. S., (1919) 249 U. S. 204, 39 S. Ct. 249, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —.

This section does not violate the First Amendment to the Constitution forbidding Congress to make any law abridging the freedom of speech or of the press. Schenck v. U. S., (1919) 249 U. S. 47, 39 S. Ct. 247, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —.

Effect of 1918 amendment to section.—The amendment of 1918 did not invalidate a prosecution for acts committed before the amendment. Frohwerk v. U. S., (1919) 249 U. S. 204, 39 S. Ct. 249, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —.

Liability of corporations.—On the ground that it is responsible for the acts of its agents, an incorporated publishing company may be held criminally liable for violating this section by printing and publishing a pamphlet advocating insubordination. U. S. v. Nearing, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 223, wherein the court said: "Finally, the defendants urge that a corporation cannot be guilty of the crime of conspiracy, or of any crime involving specific intent. This question simply turns upon how far the law has gone in imputing to a corporation the acts of its agents. Specifically it turns upon how far a publishing company, authorized to publish a pamphlet, is responsible for the acts of its officers, when actuated by the requisite intent. It is a question upon which the law has always tended towards larger and larger liability. In torts the liability is now established in the kindred case of libel (Evening Journal v. McDermott, 44 N. J. Law, 430, 43 Am. Rep. 392), as in malicious prosecution (Cornford v. Carleton Bank, [1889] 1 Q. B. 392). Certainly corporations may be guilty of criminal frauds. Cohen v. U. S., 157 Fed. 651, 85 C. C. A. 113; Kaufman v. U. S., 212 Fed. 613, 129 C. C. A. 149, Ann. Cas. 1916C, 466. Now, there is no distinction in essence between the civil and the criminal liability of corporations, based upon the element of intent or wrongful purpose. Each is merely an imputation to the corporation of the mental condition of its agents. It was, it is true, for long supposed that the criminal liability of corporations could not extend beyond the neglect of those positive duties imposed by law; but that depended upon the theory that acts of malfeasance being illegal must be ultra vires. It did not survive a more generous view of the doctrine of ultra vires. Joplin Mercantile Co. v. U. S., 213 Fed. 926, 935, 131 C. C. A. 160, Ann. Cas. 1916C, 470, a case affirmed without consideration of this question in Joplin Mercantile Co. v. U. S., 236 U. S. 531, 35 Sup. Ct. 291, 59 L. ed. 705. That the criminal liability of a corporation is to be determined by the kinship of the act to the powers of the officials who committed it is true enough, but neither the doctrine of ultra vires, nor the difficulty of imputing intent or motive, should be regarded any longer to determine the result."

"Willfully."—The word "willfully" as used in the provision of this section making it an offense for one to "willfully cause or attempt to cause, or incite or attempt to incite, insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny, or refusal of duty, in the military or naval forces of the United States," means "intentionally" or "with the purpose of." Von Bank v. U. S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 641, 165 C. C. A. 267.

"Military and naval forces" as including Red Cross and Y. M. C. A.—The National Red Cross, being a part of the sanitary service of the military and naval forces of the United States, and the Y. M. C. A. being recognized by the President as an adjunct to such forces, must be regarded as being a part of the "military and naval forces of the United States" within the meaning of this section, and this conclusion is not prevented because the Treaty of Geneva of August 22, 1864, recognizes the former organization and provides that its members are to be treated as neutrals if captured. Accordingly, one who makes false statements concerning these organizations to persons soliciting funds on their behalf, with the intent to interfere with the collection of such funds, is guilty of a violation of this section. U. S. v. Nagler, (W. D. Wis. 1918) 252 Fed. 217.

Disloyal utterances.—The provisions of this section do not apply to all disloyal utterances but only to those which affect the military and naval forces and persons subject to the recruiting and enlistment service. U. S. v. Schutte, (D. C. N. D. 1918) 252 Fed. 212.

Advice or counsel.—This section applies not only to gratuitous advice or counsel against enlistment to persons eligible for military service but also to the utterance of words which do not advise or counsel but which are apt to dissuade them and are uttered with that intent. U. S. v. Nearing, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 223.

"Support or favor."—Intent is a necessary element of the offense of supporting or favoring the cause of any country with which the United States is at war, the words "support or favor" as used in this section importing willfulness and intent. U. S. v. Schulze, (S. D. Cal. 1918) 253 Fed. 377.

"Obstructing recruiting or enlistment service."—Selective Draft Act.—An obstruction of the Selective Service Act (see vol. IX, p. 1136) is within the prohibition of this section. U. S. v. Prieth, (D. C. N. J. 1918) 251 Fed. 946.

A conspiracy to obstruct the draft is included in the words "obstruct the recruiting or enlistment service." Schenck v. U. S., (1919) 249 U. S. 47, 39 S. Ct. 247, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, wherein the court said: "Recruiting heretofore usually having been accomplished by getting volunteers the word is apt to call up that method only in our minds. But recruiting is gaining fresh supplies for the forces, as well by draft as otherwise. It is put as an alternative to enlistment or voluntary enrollment in this act. The fact that the Act of 1917 was enlarged by the amending Act of May 16, 1918, c. 75, 40 Stat. 553, of course, does not affect the present indictment and would not, even if the former act had been repealed. Rev. Stats. § 13."

A person may be convicted of a conspiracy to obstruct recruiting by words of persuasion circulated in newspapers. Frohwerk v. U. S., (1919) 249 U. S. 204, 39 S. Ct. 249, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, wherein the court said: "It is said that the first count is bad because it does not allege the means by which the conspiracy was to be carried out. But a conspiracy to obstruct recruiting would be criminal even if no means were agreed upon specifically by which to accomplish the intent. It is enough if the parties agreed to set to work for that common purpose. That purpose could be accomplished or aided by persuasion as well as by false statements, and there was no need to allege that false reports were intended to be made or made."

It is argued that there is no sufficient allegation of intent, but intent to accomplish an object cannot be alleged more clearly than by stating that parties conspired to accomplish it. The overt acts are alleged to have been done to effect the object of the conspiracy and that is sufficient under § 4 of the Act of 1917. Countenance we believe has been given by some courts to the notion that a single count in an indictment for conspiring to commit two offenses is bad for duplicity. This court has given it none. Buckeye Powder Co. v. DuPont Powder Co., (1919) 248 U. S. 55, 60, 61, [39 S. Ct. 38, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —]; Joplin Mercantile Co. v. U. S., (1915) 236 U. S. 531, 548 [35 S. Ct. 291, 59 U. S. (L. ed.) 705, 713]. The conspiracy is the crime, and that is one, however diverse its objects."

A conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the Selective Service Act exists although the alleged conspiracy was formed after the day originally set for registration, June 5, 1917. U. S. v. Prieth, (D. C. N. J. 1918) 251 Fed. 946.

"Obstruct."—The word "obstruct" as used in this section should be given a broad meaning in order to carry out the undoubted intention of Congress and should be held to mean to hinder, impede, embarrass, and retard, in whole or in part, the recruiting and enlistment service of the United States. Doe v. U. S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 903, 166 C. C. A. 3.

As here used "obstruct" does not mean that same physical force, obstacle, or impediment must be employed. Thus, a speech by the defendant in which he made the statement that persons enlisting in the army for service in France would be used for fertilizer, is an obstruction to the recruiting or enlistment service in violation of this section. O'Hare v. U. S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 538, 165 C. C. A. 208.

In Deason v. U. S., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 259, 165 C. C. A. 547, it was held that the word "obstruct" was used in this section not as the equivalent of "prevent," but rather as meaning "to make difficult," and that there was a violation of this section if the defendant's words or acts rendered enlistments more difficult although no actual prevention of enlistments was shown. The court said: "The exact contention of the defendant's counsel is that the statutory word 'obstruct' is equivalent to the word 'prevent,' and that success in the sense of an actual prevention of the performance of duty is essential to be proven before a conviction can be had. We do not agree with this contention. It is true that the statute does not punish an attempt to obstruct, and the indictment does not charge an attempt to obstruct. Yet there may be an unsuccessful obstruction that is more than an attempt. We construe 'obstruct,' not as the equivalent of 'prevent,' but rather as the equivalent of 'to make difficult' or 'to present obstacles to the accomplishment of a thing.' The obstacles may have failed to prevent accomplishment, but if they served to make accomplishment more difficult, either in the instant case for the members of the local exemption board against whom the threats were made, or in the future performance of their duties as such members, then we think the service was obstructed, within the meaning of the statute, to the injury of the service or of the United States, though the local board in the case of defendant overcame the obstruction and performed their duty by refusing to reclass him on his demand. That a threat of the nature indicated by the record would make it more difficult for the members of the local board to do their duty, both in defendant's case and in classifying future drafted men, is obvious. Presenting such an obstacle to the performance of the duty of the board in classifying under the draft act, we do not think the government was required to go further, and prove that the obstruction prevailed to the extent of causing a miscarriage in a particular case. It was enough that it proved that the natural and inevitable tendency of such threats was to make it more difficult for the members of the board who were threatened to do their duty impartially than it would otherwise have been."

To same effect, see U. S. v. Nearing, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 223.

The measure of liability for obstructing the enlistment service ought not to be larger than for causing insubordination. U. S. v. Nearing, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 223.

Mere use of abusive language regarding the United States and the President at a place where no recruiting or enlistment service is in progress or in contemplation, is not a violation of this section. U. S. v. Mayer, (W. D. Ky. 1918) 252 Fed. 868.

Acts which tend to hinder or make it more difficult for the government to recruit or enlist men into the service, constitute violations of this section even though they do not actually prevent enlistments or recruiting. Rhuberg v. U. S., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1919) 255 Fed. 865. To same effect see Coldwell v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 805, 168 C. C. A. 151.

Grievance expressed over timber rights.—A person is not guilty of willfully obstructing the recruiting and enlistment service of the United States, or of willfully causing and attempting to cause disloyalty, insubordination, and mutiny in the military forces of the United States in violation of this section, because he uses coarse and obscene language in a conversation with forest officers concerning a grievance over a timber right in forest reservation, if he says nothing regarding enlistments and does not know that the officers are engaged in recruiting. Doll v. U. S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 646, 165 C. C. A. 272.

Obstructing enlistments and causing insubordination.—A person who states in the presence of a soldier of the national army and others, that he will never go into the United States army, that the Kaiser can defeat England and France and that he will soon come to the United States and that every one will be forced to acknowledge him victorious, is guilty of violating this section, as such statements might obstruct the enlistment and recruiting service of the United States and might also cause insubordination in the military and naval forces. U. S. v. Dembowaki, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 252 Fed. 894.

Causing insubordination.—In so far as the statute forbids causing insubordination, it forbids incitement to the commission of crime, since all insubordination is a crime committed by the independent will of others. It must therefore be taken as forbidding those acts which would make the authors accessories before the fact to insubordination, disloyalty, refusal of duty, and the like. Indeed, it is doubtful whether that clause adds to the criminal responsibility at common law of those who should cause or attempt to cause others to commit such crimes. U. S. v. Nearing, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 223.

Attempting to cause insubordination and refusal of military duty.—In U. S. v. Boutin, (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 251 Fed. 313, the indictment charged the defendant with circulating a pamphlet which, among other things, contained the following statement:

"We must teach the whole world that human beings are not here to knife one another for the sake of personal interest or to carry a point of ambition. We are here for a short visit, and should treat each other like brother and sister, whether we are born on this side or the other side of the iron post, or on the other side of a great body of water. We should all respect and help one another. War is pure ignorance. After a few years we die, and never, never return. It shows on its face that we are worse than the savage. He is the one forced to shoulder the gun, to kill and be killed, and just as long as the fancy class teaches that it is right, that it is patriotic to fight (murder) for your country, just so long will war reign."

In overruling a demurrer to the indictment, Ray, District Judge, said:

"It is sufficient to say that the teachings of the pamphlet tend to suppress patriotic feelings, and to cause unrest and insubordination among those who, under the Selective Draft Law, are called into the service, or made subject to military service, and that the teachings of this pamphlet, if read, also tend to incite and cause refusal of duty on the part of those subject to military duty and service under the Selective Draft Law (Act May 18, 1917, c. 15). The teachings of this pamphlet may be repudiated and rejected by a majority of the readers, but that fact makes it none the less pernicious and of a nature calculated to cause or bring about a refusal of duty on the part of those chosen for military duty and subject to military duty under the Selective Draft Act. Such sentiments, inculcated into the minds of those drafted into the service of the United States, tend to destroy military ardor and inclination to cheerfully perform military duty. It is for a jury to say whether or not the statements and teachings of the pamphlet will or will not have that effect, and whether or not the teachings of the pamphlet were intended by the writer thereof to have that effect. This pamphlet plainly teaches, or attempts to teach, that fighting for your country, to maintain its rights, is the equivalent of murder. By section 273 of the United States Penal Code (Act March 4, 1909, c. 321, 35 Stat. 1143) 'murder' is defined thus: 'Murder is the unlawful killing of a human being with malice aforethought.' This document teaches, and was intended to teach, if the writer meant what he said, that the one who is called to the colors and goes into the battle line and does his duty there is guilty of the unlawful killing, or engaged in the unlawful killing or attempt to kill, his fellows with malice aforethought. This is not only a false and a misleading statement, but one well calculated to promote the success of the enemies of the United States, and cause or bring about a refusal to perform duty in the military and naval forces of the United States. The teaching of the pamphlet is equivalent to stating that the United States in prosecuting this war against the German Empire is engaged in the commission of, or attempt to commit, numerous murders, and that all men in the military forces of the United States, who go on the fighting line and do their duty, are engaged in an attempt to commit murder. Does not this tend to cause insubordination and refusal of duty? And may not a jury find that the one who promulgates such a doctrine is attempting to cause refusal of duty in the military and naval forces of the United States?"

Men between the ages of 18 and 45 are not by virtue of that fact alone made a part of the military or naval forces of the United States within the meaning of this section, and the use in their presence of abusive language regarding the United States and the President is not punishable hereunder as an attempt to cause insubordination in such forces. U. S. v. Mayer, (W. D. Ky. 1918) 252 Fed. 868.

Newspaper articles.—The publication and circulation of a newspaper containing matter calculated and intended to induce persons available and eligible for enlistment and recruiting in the military forces to fail and refuse to enlist for service therein, and to induce persons liable to military service pursuant to the Selective Service Act to refuse to submit to registration and draft for service in the military forces, is a violation of this section. U. S. v. Prieth, (D. C. N. J. 1918) 251 Fed. 946, wherein it was held that the section is not confined to such obstructions as are in the nature of a tort, directed against the persons actually engaged in the recruiting or enlistment service or the service itself.

Conspiracy to cause insubordination.—Rules governing.—In a prosecution under this section for conspiracy to cause insubordination, the same rules govern as in an attempt to obstruct enlistments, and the results are immaterial if the words used are likely to cause insubordination and are uttered with that intent. U. S. v. Eastman, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 232.

Advice or counsel.—In a prosecution under this section for conspiracy to cause insubordination and obstruct the enlistment service, words which do not themselves amount to advice or counsel to violate the law, nevertheless make their author criminally responsible if they are in fact the cause of the forbidden results, and if they are uttered or written with the specific intent of producing those results. U. S. v. Nearing, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 223.

Failure to purchase Liberty Bonds.—A citizen may not be prosecuted under this section for failure to purchase Liberty Loan bonds and thrift stamps and for a failure to contribute to Red Cross drives, provided he does not attempt to persuade others to follow his example. Likewise, he is not liable to prosecution under this section for giving his reasons for not subscribing for Liberty Loan bonds and thrift stamps and contributing to Red Cross drives, when requested to do so in the privacy of his own home and in the presence of nobody except the members of a duly authorized committee, especially when the reasons are mere matters of opinion apparently honestly held. U. S. v. Pape, (S. D. Ill. 1918) 253 Fed. 270.

Making false reports or statements.—In Kirchner v. U. S., (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918), 255 Fed. 301, 166 C. C. A. 471, the court, in answering the contention that false reports or statements in order to be an offense under this section must be made to, or within the hearing of, persons who are, or who are liable to become, members of the military or naval forces, said: "The success of the military and naval forces is aided or hampered in large measure by the spirit of the civilian population. Shipbuilders, munition makers, coal miners, lumber producers, buyers and sellers of Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps, women and girls making Red Cross supplies, merely begin the list of civilians whose patriotic ardor is almost as essential to the success of our military and naval forces as is the spirit of the men composing these forces. Excepting only those who are too unintelligent to understand, there is no class of our population on whom some false statements may not have a pernicious effect in the direction of restraining patriotic endeavor. In drawing the indictment it was unnecessary for the pleader to negative the fact that the statements alleged against the defendant were made only in the hearing of those too unintelligent to understand them. The return of the indictment necessarily imported that the defendant's statements were made to some person who understood them and repeated them before the grand jury. It follows that, unless the false statement be made only to children of very tender years or to imbeciles, the intent to interfere with the operation or success of the military or naval forces may exist. The crime denounced is not that of interfering with the success of our forces. If the false statement is willfully made with the intent denounced, the offense is complete; and if the effect of the statement may reasonably be to chill the ardor or restrain the efforts of any of those who hear the statement, the proscribed intent may exist. The statute does not discriminate between an intent to indirectly interfere with the operation or success of the military forces; and hence we have no reason for making such distinction."

Publication of false statements in book.—Where a book contains false statements to the effect that our entry into the war was for the purpose of saving England from defeat and to aid capitalists and munition manufacturers, and is evidently intended to arouse dissatisfaction with the war and to induce readers to oppose its continuance, its publication constitutes a violation of this section, as being the willful making of false statements with intent to interfere with military operations, to cause insubordination and to obstruct the recruiting or enlistment service. U. S. v. Binder, (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 253 Fed. 978.

The possession of an I. W. W. certificate of membership by one accused of using abusive language regarding the United States and the President, without any evidence being introduced regarding the real aims and objects of that organization, does not support a charge of attempting to obstruct recruiting and enlistments and to cause insubordination in violation of this section. U. S. v. Mayer, (W. D. Ky. 1918) 252 Fed. 868.

Indictment—Duplicity.—Under this section the making of false reports with intent to interfere with military operations, the willful causing or attempting to cause insubordination, and the obstruction of the recruiting or enlistment services, are three separate offenses which cannot be joined in one count of an indictment as a single offense committed by different acts. But an indictment under this section is not duplicitous because it charged in one count an attempt to cause insubordination and the causing of insubordination, as they are merely different modes of causing one offense. U. S. v. Dembowski, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 252 Fed. 894.

Following language of section.—An indictment for conveying false reports is insufficient where it merely follows the language of the section, which is general in its nature, and does not inform the accused what the reports were, wherein they were false, nor to whom they were made. Foster v. U. S., (1918) 253 Fed. 481.

But an indictment for willfully obstructing the recruiting and enlistment service, is sufficient where it follows the language of the statute in charging the offense. Doe v. U. S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 903, 166 C. C. A. 3.

An indictment charging the defendant with having made false reports with intent to interfere with the operation of the military and naval forces, is sufficient where it merely follows the words of this section. Collins v. U. S., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 609, 165 C. C. A. 637.

Effect of defendant's utterances.—An indictment for a violation of this section which charges the defendant with making a speech to a public meeting with intent to cause insubordination in the military or naval forces of the United States, is sufficient although it does not allege that the utterances "caused any injury to the military or naval service and to the United States." Coldwell v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 805, 168 C. C. A. 151.

Obstructing recruiting by public speech.—An indictment charging that defendant obstructed and attempted to obstruct the military recruiting and enlistment service of the United States, and to that end and with that intent delivered to an assembly of people a public speech therein set forth, is sufficient in form to charge an offense under this section forbidding obstructions or attempts to obstruct such recruiting or enlistment service. Debs v. U. S. (1919) 249 U. S. 211, 39 S. Ct. 252, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —.

Obstructing recruiting by public speech.—An indictment for obstructing the recruiting and enlistment service is sufficient, where it charges that the defendant made a public speech in which, with intent to obstruct the recruiting and enlistment service, he stated that persons enlisting in the army for service in France would be used for fertilizer. O'Hare v. U. S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1918) 253 Fed. 538, 165 C. C. A. 208.

Distribution of pamphlets.—A count of an indictment which charged that the defendant unlawfully, willfully, and feloniously made and distributed to a person named and others false reports and false statements through a pamphlet called "Pure Common Sense," and alleged that statements quoted from the pamphlet were false, and that they were willfully made and conveyed, and that such false statements and reports were made and conveyed with intent to interfere with the operation and success of the military and naval forces of the United States and to promote the success of its enemies, was held good on demurrer. U. S. v. Boutin, (N. D. N. Y. 1918) 251 Fed. 313, wherein the court said: "If the statements are false, and were made with the intent charged, and were made and conveyed as charged, then the crime was complete. It is immaterial what the court may think as to whether such statements charged in the indictment were in fact false, as the court cannot act on its own information or opinion, but must act on the allegations of the indictment itself."

Making false statements.—An indictment for making false statements in violation of this section should show that the language was willfully uttered, that it was of such character as to cause some of the results denounced by this section, and that it was uttered on an occasion such that a reasonable mind could say that it might produce one or more of the results mentioned in this section. Thus, an indictment which alleges that the defendant willfully stated that "this is a rich man's war and it is all a damn graft and swindle," but which fails to set forth in any manner the circumstances under which the language was used, is insufficient. U. S. v. Schutte, (D. C. N. D. 1918) 252 Fed. 212. Regarding the defect in the indictment, the court said: "So far as the indictment discloses, it may have been spoken to persons who have and could have no relationship to the military or naval forces, or the recruiting and enlistment service of the United States. If it were spoken under such circumstances, it would not be a violation of the statute. Suppose the language had been spoken to men all of whom were past 40 years of age, or to a woman's club; would any one claim that the purpose of the speaker was to produce the results forbidden by the statute? It is elementary criminal law that when language does not constitute a crime if uttered under some circumstances, and does constitute a crime if uttered under other circumstances, it is incumbent upon the government to specify in the indictment the circumstances under which it was uttered sufficiently to show that its utterance would probably produce the forbidden result. This cannot be left to speculation or inference, but must be clearly and directly charged. The circumstances are an element of the crime. It is not enough to charge that the language was uttered with intent to violate the law. That would be a mere legal conclusion, when proper pleading requires a statement of facts. The question is not for the pleader, but for the court, and the facts must be set forth, so that the court can say whether or not they constitute the crime."

Conspiracy.—An indictment for a conspiracy to violate this section by causing insubordination and obstructing the enlistment service, need not allege the means by which the conspiracy was attempted to be put in effect. Where, however, it is alleged that pamphlets were to be distributed among persons subject to military service and persons already in the service as a means of carrying out the conspiracy, the individuals need not be named. U. S. v. Nearing, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 223.

In U. S. v. Prieth, (D. C. N. J. 1918) 251 Fed. 946, it was contended that an indictment was defective because it did not allege that the articles which the defendants conspired to publish, or those which they did publish, in furtherance of the conspiracy, were intended to be publications which the defendants might not lawfully publish, or that they were untrue in fact. The court said: "But this contention completely ignores the allegations of the indictment that the defendants willfully, unlawfully, and feloniously conspired to obstruct the recruiting and enlistment service . . . by newspaper articles ... calculated and intended by the defendants to induce persons available not to enlist," etc. Without attempting to discourse upon the limitations of the 'freedom of the press,' it is sufficient, I think, to observe that the before-quoted words stamp the defendants' object as a felonious one, and make their conspiracy, under the statute, a criminal act. The propaganda such as these defendants, as would appear from the articles annexed to the indictment, were carrying on, ordinarily, was intended to be within the law and beyond the pale of punishment, as recent experience has taught. The test is, however, not whether the defendants thought that their publications were lawful or true, but whether they intended to accomplish a particular object, namely, the obstruction of enlistments and recruiting."

An indictment for violating this section by the publication and circulation of newspaper articles tending to induce persons not to enlist and to fail to register under the Selective Service Act, is not defective because it neither sets forth the names of the persons whom the conspiracy was designed to induce not to enlist and to refuse to submit to the draft, nor alleges that their names were unknown to the grand jury. U. S. v. Prieth, (D. C. N. J. 1918) 251 Fed. 946, wherein the court said: "Those whom the conspirators contemplated would be induced not to enlist were all eligible persons, to whose attention the newspaper articles should come, either directly or indirectly, and who would be affected by what was contained therein. Manifestly, in the very nature of things, the names of such persons would be unknown, either to the grand jurors or to the defendants. An allegation, therefore, that their names were unknown to the grand jurors, would have been idle and useless, so far as acquainting the defendants with the nature and cause of the accusation against them. That had already been sufficiently described. All that was required was that the indictment should acquaint the defendants with the nature and cause of the accusation, set forth the charge with sufficient definiteness to enable them to make their defense and to avail themselves of the record of conviction or acquittal, for their protection against further prosecution, and to inform the court of the facts charged, so that it might decide as to their sufficiency, in law, to support a conviction, if one should be had, and that the elements of the offense should be set forth with reasonable particularity of time, place, and circumstance."

Attempting to cause insubordination.—Although in an indictment under this section for attempting to cause insubordination it is usually necessary to allege that the words were uttered under such circumstances that they were in the course of events likely to reach members of the military forces, an allegation that the words were contained in a magazine distributed throughout New York and the United States is sufficient. U. S. v. Eastman, (S. D. N. Y. 1918) 252 Fed. 232.

Amendment of indictment.—An indictment which is duplicitous because it charges in one count three of the offenses denounced by this section, may not be amended by allowing the United States attorney to elect which offense he will prosecute and to nol. pros. the others, as such an election would amount to an amendment of the indictment in violation of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution. U. S. v. Dembowski, (E. D. Mich. 1918) 252 Fed. 894.

Defenses.—In a prosecution for making false reports aiding the enemy, the fact that the motive of the defendants in being parties to the publication of such reports was to promote the interests of an organization with which they were connected, rather than disloyalty, is not a defense. U. S. v. Schafer, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 254 Fed. 135.

Evidence.—The records of certain convictions for violating the Selective Draft and Espionage Acts are admissible on the trial of another person for violating the latter Act by obstructing the military recruiting or enlistment service by the delivery of a public speech in which he attacked such convictions, since such evidence tended to show what he was talking about, and to explain the true import of his expressions of sympathy for the defendants, and to throw light on the intent of his speech. Debs v. U. S., (1919) 249 U. S. 211, 39 S. Ct. 252, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —.

An anti-war proclamation, which the defendant in an indictment charging the obstruction of the military recruiting or enlistment service, contrary to the section by delivering a public speech, had, shortly before his speech, approved in spirit and substance, such proclamation recommending "continuous, active, and public opposition to the war through demonstrations, mass petitions, and all other means within our power," is admissible against him as evidence that if in his speech he used words tending to obstruct the military recruiting or enlistment service, he meant that they should have that effect. Debs v. U. S., (1919) 249 U. S. 211, 39 S. Ct. 252, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —.

Statements made prior to Act.—In a prosecution for obstructing enlistments, statements made by the defendant prior to the passage of this Act are admissible in evidence as showing the intent with which he made statements after the passage of the Act and which are relied upon as a ground for conviction. Deason v. U. S., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1918) 254 Fed. 269, 165 C. C. A. 547.

Statements made by the defendant, prior to the entry of the United States into the war against Germany, which tend to show his attitude toward Germany and limited to that purpose, are admissible as evidence in a prosecution under this section for making statements tending to obstruct recruiting or enlistments. Rhuberg v. U. S., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1919) 252 Fed. 865.

Threats against President.—In a prosecution under this section for making false reports and statements with intent to interfere with the success of the military and naval forces of the United States and for doing other acts in violation thereof, evidence that the accused made threats against the President, not connected with the offenses for which he was being tried, is inadmissible. Hall v. U. S., (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 748, 168 C. C. A. 94.

Circulars opposing conscription.—In a prosecution for making statements with intent to cause insubordination and to obstruct the recruiting and enlistment service, circulars opposing conscription alleged to have been distributed by the defendant are admissible in evidence as showing the intent with which the defendant made the statements. Coldwell v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 805, 168 C. C. A. 151.

Conspiracy to violate section.—On the trial of an indictment charging conspiracy to violate this section by sending documents through the mails tending to obstruct the draft such documents if seized are admissible in evidence against one of the defendants who was general secretary of Socialist headquarters where the documents were obtained, it appearing that he was largely instrumental in sending out the documents. Schenck v. U. S., (1919) 249 U. S. 47, 39 S. Ct. 247, 63 U. S. (L. ed.) —, wherein the court said: "It is argued that the evidence, if admissible, was not sufficient to prove that the defendant Schenck was concerned in sending the documents. According to the testimony Schenck said he was general secretary of the Socialist party and had charge of the Socialist headquarters from which the documents were sent. He identified a book found there as the minutes of the executive committee of the party. The book showed a resolution of August 13, 1917, that 15,000 leaflets should be printed on the other side of one of them in use, to be mailed to men who had passed exemption boards, for distribution. Schenck personally attended to the printing. On August 20 the general secretary's report said: 'Obtained new leaflets from printer and started work addressing envelopes,' etc.; and there was a resolve that Comrade Schenck be allowed $125 for sending leaflets through the mail. He said that he had about fifteen or sixteen thousand printed. There were files of the circular in question in the inner office which he said were printed on the other side of the one-sided circular and were there for distribution. Other copies were proved to have been sent through the mails to drafted men. Without going into confirmatory details that were proved, no reasonable man could doubt that the defendant Schenck was largely instrumental in sending the circulars about. . . . It is objected that the documentary evidence was not admissible because obtained upon a search warrant, valid so far as appears. The contrary is established. Adams v. New York, 192 U. S. 585; Weeks v. United States, 232 U. S. 383, 395, 396. The search warrant did not issue against the defendant but against the Socialist headquarters at 1326 Arch street, and it would seem that the documents technically were not even in the defendants' possession. See Johnson v. United States, 228 U. S. 457. Notwithstanding some protest in argument the notion that evidence even directly proceeding from the defendant in a criminal proceeding is excluded in all cases by the Fifth Amendment is plainly unsound. Holt v. United States, 218 U. S. 245, 252, 253."

Variance.—Evidence that the defendants, publishers of a newspaper, received no dispatches from news agencies, but that before publishing dispatches taken from other papers they changed them in such a manner as to give aid to the enemy, sufficiently supports an indictment under this section for making false reports by changing original news dispatches before publication. U. S. v. Schafer, (E. D. Pa. 1918) 254 Fed. 135.

An indictment under this section for obstruction of recruiting and enlistments, which alleges that the defendant made certain statements in the presence of two named persons, is supported by proof that the statements were made in the presence of one of them. Rhuberg v. U. S., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1919) 255 Fed. 865.

Evidence of statements by the accused, similar in nature to those set out in an indictment for making false statements or reports in violation of this section, is admissible. Kirchner v. U. S., (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1918) 255 Fed. 301, 166 C. C. A. 471.

Instructions.—In a prosecution for a violation of this section by making a speech to a public meeting with intent to cause insubordination in the military forces and to obstruct recruiting and enlistments, the court may properly submit to the jury the question of the likelihood of the utterances to produce insubordination or cause obstruction to recruiting. Coldwell v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 805, 168 C. C. A. 151.

Questions for the jury.—In a prosecution under this section for making false statements, it is a question of fact for the jury to determine whether the language used by the defendant did produce any of the results forbidden herein. U. S. v. Schutte, (D. C. N. D. 1918) 252 Fed. 212.

In a prosecution under this section for statements alleged to have been made by the defendant in a speech to a public meeting, whether the statements constituted, under the circumstances, an attempt "to cause insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny or refusal of duty in the military or naval forces of the United States" or an obstruction of "the recruiting or enlistment service of the United States to the injury of the service or of the United States," are questions for the jury. Coldwell v. U. S., (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1919) 256 Fed. 805, 168 C. C. A. 151.

1918 Supp., p. 124, sec. 4.

See preceding note for cases relating to conspiracy to violate provisions of the Act.

1918 Supp., p. 128, sec. 1.

Review of issuance.—A commissioner's issuance of a search warrant under the provisions of this title may be reviewed on motion by the court. In re Rosenwasser, (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 254 Fed. 171, wherein it was said: "The various sections giving the commissioner the power under the warrant to determine whether probable cause actually exists, and to pass upon the materiality of the articles seized, do not restrict the right of the court to consider whether the record shows a basis for the entire proceeding. If there was no probable cause for the issuance of the original search warrant, the court can still set aside the entire action."

1918 Supp., p. 128, sec. 2. [Grounds for issuance.]

In general.—This Act "contemplates the issuance of search warrants only when felonies have been committed that are presently prosecutable within the United States." Veeder v. U. S., (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1918) 252 Fed. 414, 164 C. C. A. 338.

1918 Supp., p. 129, sec. 5.

Contents of affidavit.—"Probable cause must be shown from the facts alleged. It is not sufficient to aver nothing beyond the belief of an individual that such facts could be set forth. The conclusion from the averments of facts must be that of the magistrate, and not the opinion of the affiant. United States v. Tureaud, (C. C.) 20 Fed. 621; United States v. Baumert, (D. C.) 179 Fed. 735, and cases therein cited. But the averments of the facts need not be by an eyewitness. Allegations on information can be stated, if the facts so referred to and the source of the information are stated. The expression of belief in those facts is customary and required, but does not of itself constitute an allegation which will take the place of the statement of the alleged facts themselves. Beavers v. Henkel, 194 U. S. 73, 24 S. Ct. 605, 48 L. Ed. 882. But the evidence need not be given in detail, nor need the allegations be made by all the parties who will be called to prove them at the hearing. A direct affidavit that facts exist from which probable cause is inferable is sufficient. So is a statement that information as to the facts has been obtained from named sources, if the facts are recited. Beavers v. Henkel, supra, 194 U. S. at page 86, 24 Sup. Ct. 605, 48 L. Ed. 882." In re Rosenwasser, (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 254 Fed. 171.

In determining whether probable cause exists for the issuance of a search warrant, the commissioner may consider not only the affidavit upon which the warrant is requested, but also the complaint and affidavit upon which the warrant for arrest for the crime charged is sought. In re Rosenwasser, (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 254 Fed. 171.

Description of books sought.—Affidavits for search warrants under this Act to seize certain books alleged to have been used in the commission of a felony, are insufficient where they allege mere conclusions regarding the commission of the offense and do not sufficiently describe the books sought to be seized. In re Tri-State Coal, etc., Co., (W. D. Pa. 1918) 253 Fed. 605.

Materiality of documents sought.—The affidavit need not set forth the entire details for exactly passing upon the materiality of every document which the search warrant may properly produce. General allegations showing materiality to the issue would seem to be sufficiently specific. In re Rosenwasser, (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 254 Fed. 171.

1918 Supp., p. 130, sec. 13.

Corporation records may be taken under a search warrant even though they may be evidence against the corporation and against individual defendants arrested at the time of the execution of the warrant. In re Rosenwasser, (E. D. N. Y. 1918) 254 Fed. 171.

1918 Supp., p. 132, sec. 1.

Use of mails to obstruct recruiting and enlistment service.—In Shaffer v. U. S., (C. C. A. 9th Cir. 1919) 255 Fed. 886, it was held that the use of the mails by the defendant, when the United States was at war, to distribute a book in which it was stated that patriotism was identical with murder and the spirit of the devil, that the war was wrong and its prosecution a crime, was a violation of this section. Elaborating on the question of what may be considered such an obstruction, the court said: "We think it should not be said, as a matter of law, that the reasonable and natural effect of the language quoted from the publication was not to obstruct—that is, not to impede, retard, or render more difficult—the recruiting or enlistment service, and thus to injure the service of the United States. Printed matter may tend to obstruct the recruiting and enlistment service, even if it contains no mention of recruiting or enlistment, and no reference to the military service of the United States. It is sufficient if the words used and disseminated are adapted to produce the result condemned by the statute. The service may be obstructed by attacking the justice of the cause for which the war is waged, and by undermining the spirit of loyalty which inspires men to enlist or to register for conscription in the service of their country. The greatest inspiration for entering into such service is patriotism, the love of country. To teach that patriotism is murder and the spirit of the devil, and that the war against Germany was wrong and its prosecution a crime, is to weaken patriotism and the purpose to enlist or to render military service in the war."

1918 Supp., p. 135, sec. 3.

"Attempt."—One who willfully advises, solicits, and attempts to influence another to commit a violation of this section, may be convicted for an attempt. U. S. v. De Bolt, (S. D. Ohio 1918) 253 Fed. 78.

CUSTOMS DUTIES

Vol. II, p. 730, par. 17. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 60.]

A compound or combination, in the general understanding, is necessarily something composed of more than one component material, and these expressions in this paragraph are not applicable to a natural product. Monticelli Bros. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 21.

The expression "medicinal compounds, combinations, and all similar articles" means, first, strictly medical compounds and combinations, and, second, compounds or combinations similar thereto in that, while not strictly medical because possessing properties which adapt them to other uses, are nevertheless susceptible of medicinal uses and, in the form and condition imported, are specially designed therefor and so chiefly used. Monticelli Bros. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 21.

"Medicinal."—The use of the word "medicinal" in this paragraph, with reference to compounds or combinations, requires that the compound or combination should have healing or curative properties, and probably that it should be commonly so regarded and used. Monticelli Bros. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 21.

The expression "all similar articles," used in this paragraph, with reference to compounds or combinations, applies only to a compound, combination, mixture, or preparation composed of more than one substance or material. Monticelli Bros. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 21.

Vol. II, p. 734, par. 36. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 62.]

Desiccated chicle.—Chicle, the sap having been drawn from the tree and coagulated by artificial heat into hard chunks in Mexico, shipped to Canada and there ground and dried, the grinding and drying bearing no relation to transportation and being a process in the manufacture of chewing gum, known commercially as desiccated chicle, is dutiable under this paragraph, as chicle "advanced in value by drying, straining, or any other process or treatment whatever beyond that essential to the proper packing," and not as "chicle, crude." Sheldon & Co. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 9, distinguishing U. S. v. Sheldon & Co., (1912) 2 U. S. Cust. App. 485.

Vol. II, p. 735, par. 44. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 62.]

"Oils, rendered."—"Oils, distilled and essential."—The expressions "Oils, rendered," in this paragraph, and "Oils, distilled and essential," in paragraph 46, do not exclude all distilled and essential oils from this paragraph and all rendered oils from paragraph 46. Stone & Downer Co. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 368.

"Oleine."—"Dressing oil."—Heavy oils, derived from a wool-grease base by distillation, invoiced as "oleine," "dressing oil," "soluble oleine," and "leather dressing oil," are dutiable, not under paragraph 46, as distilled oils, but under this paragraph, as animal oils not specially provided for. Stone & Downer Co. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 368.

Adeps lanæ anhydrous—Lanolin.—Scientific authorities, dictionaries, and encyclopedias do not class adeps lanæ anhydrous as lanolin. Presumptively commercial usage is the same, and, in the absence of any showing of commercial usage to the contrary, the board's classification of it as "wool grease . . . refined or improved in value or condition," and not as "lanolin," under this paragraph, will be affirmed. U. S. v. Merck, (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 172.

Vol. II, p. 735, par. 45. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 62.]

Sweet almond oil and castor oil, in small bottles each containing not more than 3 to 4 ounces, are dutiable eo nomine under this paragraph, and not as "chemical and medicinal compounds, combinations, and all similar articles" under paragraph 17 of this Act. Monticelli Bros. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 21.

Linoleum cement.—Merchandise invoiced as linoleum cement, to be used, after grinding and mixing with other ingredients, in the manufacture of lincrusta wall paper, is dutiable as oxidized linseed oil under this paragraph. Germania Importing Co. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 219.

Acetone oil.—A by-product obtained in the distillation of acetone from acetate of lime, known commercially as "acetone oil," but not known commercially as an oil, shown not to be an oil, used in the same industries and for many of the same purposes as acetone, is a kind of acetone, and not a kind of oil. It is classifiable as acetone under this paragraph, and not as a distilled oil under paragraph 3. McEnany v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 329.

Nonrefillable device for bottles.—Where bottles of whisky are imported, fitted with nonrefillable devices to be used with the bottles during the consumption of the whisky to keep the bottles automatically closed, the devices are not nondutiable packing charges of the whisky but are correctly assessed with duty as parts of the bottles under this paragraph, which levies duty upon bottles. Draz & Co. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 382.

Vol. II, p. 745, par. 84. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 67.]

"Ornamented or decorated in any manner."—The expression "ornamented or decorated in any manner" in this paragraph should not be construed to mean that an article, to be dutiable under the paragraph, must have been ornamented or decorated by a process different from that of its manufacture. Thus, thin glass bottles, having figures of sprays of leaves and fruits molded into the glass as a part of the manufacture of the bottles, are dutiable under this paragraph as "glass bottles . . . ornamented or decorated in any manner," and not under paragraph 83 as "plain green or colored, molded or processed . . . glass bottles." Smith & Co. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 256.

Vol. II, p. 749, par. 95. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 68.]

Brooches, pendants, etc., composed of paste.—Brooches, pendants, bracelets, combs, hatpins, and hairpins, composed of metal and paste, paste chief value, are classifiable as manufactures in chief value of paste under this paragraph, and not as jewelry under paragraph 356. Bloomington Bros. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 314.

Vol. II, p. 752, par. 104. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 69.]

"Structural shapes."—The expression "structural shapes," in this paragraph, refers to many other kinds of structures than buildings, ships, and similar erections. It was intended by Congress to import a capacity to sustain heavy weights or to resist great tension, or both. Simon v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 273.

Steel channels—steel bars or grates.—Steel channels for use in the construction of a large and ponderous brewery mash box filter are dutiable eo nomine under this paragraph.

Steel bars or grates for the same use are dutiable as "structural shapes" under the same paragraph. Cast-iron frames, plates, centerpieces, heads or ends, and posts for the same use are castings of iron "not made up into articles or finished machine parts" within paragraph 125. It is error to classify any of them as manufactures of metal, under paragraph 167. Simon v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 273.

Vol. II, p. 756, par. 125. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 71.]

"Not made up into articles."—The expression "not made up into articles," in this paragraph, does not contemplate finished castings which are to be used as materials for the manufacture of something else, but finished castings which have been advanced beyond the stage of materials and have become manufactures ready for ultimate use. Simon v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 273.

Machine.—A machine is a mechanical contrivance for utilizing, applying, or modifying energy or force, or for the transmission of motion. A brewery mash filter is not a machine within the meaning of the expression "finished machine parts" in this paragraph. Simon v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 273.

Steel tubes.—Seamless tubes of chromium steel, finished as tubes, but designed to be used, not as tubes but as material for the manufacture of other articles (such as "ball races" for ball bearings) are dutiable as "all other iron or steel tubes, finished, not specially provided for in this section" under this paragraph, and not as "all steels by whatever process made, containing alloys such as . . . chromium . . ." under paragraph 110. Ball v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 144.

Vol. II, p. 759, par. 135. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 73.]

Needlecases.—The definitions of needlecases found in the dictionaries involve the idea that a needlecase is a "case of metal or other material for the holding of needles," and this definition has been enlarged by this paragraph, for tariff purposes, so as to permit such a case to accommodate and its contents to include other articles. To be a needlecase within the paragraph, however, an article must be primarily a needlecase in the common acceptation of the term. Cross Co. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 196.

Vol. II, p. 761, par. 151. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 74.]

Combination collar and cuff buttons composed of a metal shank with a hinged metal top, the back or base of the button being faced with celluloid or bone, the component material of chief value being metal, are dutiable as metal buttons under this paragraph, and not as buttons not specially provided for under paragraph 339 of this Act. U. S. v. Buas & Co., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 5.

Vol. II, p. 761, par. 152. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 74.]

"Regulus of copper."—A matte composed more largely of lead than copper in quantity, more largely of silver than either lead or copper in value, and not ready for the process of smelting to recover the copper content cannot properly be called a copper matte, and is not admissible free of duty as "regulus of copper," under paragraph 461, but is dutiable by similitude as a lead-bearing ore under this paragraph. It is not dutiable under paragraph 153 as "lead dross, lead bullion, etc." U. S. v. Consol. Kansas City Smelting, etc., Co., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 226.

Vol. II, p. 765, par. 167. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 76.]

Curling irons are not classifiable as "nippers and pliers" under paragraph 160, Tariff Act of 1913, but as articles in chief value of metal under this paragraph. Bloomington Bros. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 314.

Surgical instruments with pivoted jaws.—Surgical forceps and other instruments, with two lever handles working on a pivot, and with cutting, gripping, or punching jaws, are dutiable as manufactures of steel under this paragraph, and not as nippers and pliers under paragraph 166. U. S. v. Intercean Forwarding Co., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 155.

Leather-cased desk sets.—A desk set consisting of a long pair of shears and a letter opener in a sort of leather scabbard is dutiable as a nonenumerated metal article not plated with gold or silver, under this paragraph. U. S. v. Glück, (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 12.

Watch bracelets.—Wristlets or straps for holding wrist watches are not articles worn on the person for comfort, convenience, or adornment, nor are they parts of any such article or like any such article made dutiable under paragraph 356, because so worn. They are separate entities just as belts are, and, being in chief value of metal, are classifiable under this paragraph as miscellaneous articles in chief value of metal. U. S. v. Wittnauer Co., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 370; U. S. v. Strasburger & Co., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 376.

Trimnings in chief value of lame or bullions.—Trimnings composed in chief value of bullions or lame are dutiable, not as trimmings under either paragraph 358 or 150, but as articles composed in chief value of metal, under this paragraph. U. S. v. Veit, Son & Co., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 291.

Evidence—Presumption in favor of collector.—Appellant entered the merchandise in controversy upon an invoice which specified different parts shown to be a complete marine engine in a knockdown condition. It was for use in the construction of four American-built vessels, which required nine such engines. It was short shipped as to the bedplate and crank shaft, which came in another shipment more than a month later. It was installed in one of the vessels, but there is nothing to show whether or not it was fitted with a bedplate and crank shaft imported at the same time and which, though designed for some other vessel, was so standardized as to make it equally available for use on the first one. The collector found that the complete engine was imported in a "knockdown condition" and installed in one of the vessels. With no evidence to impeach his findings, the decision of the Board of United States General Appraisers sustaining the collector's classification of the merchandise as miscellaneous metal manufactures under this paragraph, rather than as outfit and equipment or machinery building materials under section 4, paragraph J, subsection 5, should be sustained. Carlin v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 392.

"Cabinet wood."—The term "cabinet wood," in this paragraph, is not limited to woods used in the manufacture of movable furniture. The fact that a wood is chiefly used for the interior trimming of rooms does not per se exclude it from classification under this paragraph. If considerable mechanical skill and artistic conception are employed and required to produce a highly ornamental and decorative appearance in the interior trim, wood so used may be properly classified as cabinet wood under this paragraph. That highly ornamental and decorative results are often produced in the interior trimmings of rooms and that the skill required to produce such results rises to the dignity of cabinet work are common knowledge. Mexican Hardwood Lumber Co. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 300.

Juanacosta lumber, shown to be chiefly used for the interior trim of rooms and not for making movable furniture, is dutiable as cabinet wood under this paragraph, and not entitled to free entry under paragraph 647. Mexican Hardwood Lumber Co. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 300.

Boxes containing lemons.—The expression, "boxes . . . containing . . . lemons," in this paragraph, does not mean that boxes, to be dutiable hereunder, must have a substantial value after the lemons have been sold out of them. The usual and ordinary lemon boxes containing lemons when imported are dutiable under the paragraph, notwithstanding they are so frail as to have little or no value after having discharged their function as containers of lemons and are not salable except possibly for kindling or some very inferior use. Maynard & Child v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 297.

"Chair reeds."—The provision in this paragraph for "chair reeds" is more specific than that for "reeds unmanufactured," in paragraph 648. Hence, selected and extra selected reeds, although within the latter provision, are classifiable under the former if in fact they are such. Peabody & Co. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 204.

Raffia, being material derived from the raffia palm, which is a tree, is classifiable either as "wood" or as "like material," under this paragraph. Cane is also classifiable as wood under this paragraph. Steinhardt & Bros. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 404.

Baskets.—Woven basket-work frames of stained bamboo or like material, having the shape of vases, fern pots, jardinières, lamp stands, or similar articles, fitted with tin bowls or buckets of the same shape and size to make them water-tight and hence more serviceable, and trays of the same construction fitted with glass bottoms, the wood in each case being chief value, are not removed from the classification of baskets by reason of such tin or glass fittings. They are dutiable under this paragraph as baskets, and not under paragraph 176 as manufactures in chief value of wood, not specially provided for. Moremura Bros. v. U. S., (1917) U. S. Cust. App. 211, distinguishing U. S. v. Muhlen, (1913) 4 U. S. Cust. App. 496; U. S. v. Vantine, (1913) 4 U. S. Cust. App. 516.

Baskets made of raffia, wood, cane, and willow, and lined with silk, the silk being greater in value than any one of the other component materials, but less than all, are classifiable, not under paragraph 318, as miscellaneous manufactures in chief value of silk, but under this paragraph, as baskets "in chief value of . . . wood," or "like material." Steinhardt & Bros. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 404.

Cuban sugar.—Under the rates of duty imposed by this paragraph, which became effective on March 1, 1914, the twenty per cent preferential on Cuban sugar imported into the United States continues on and after that date. (1914) 30 Op. Atty.-Gen. 259.

Vol. II, p. 777, par. 201. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 79.]

The term "sauces of all kinds" as used in this section includes not only dressings or condiments used with meat, fish, or vegetables, but also numerous things made chiefly of fruit pulp and many other products of culinary skill, such as sauces for puddings and various other dressings or preparations used at meals. It is narrower than the term "fruits, preserved" used in paragraph 217. Thus, merchandise known commercially as "Melba sauce" (a liquid which flows quite freely, is sweetish to the taste, contains a pulpy substance or something which simulates it, and has a raspberry flavor), used as a sauce, dressing, or preparation to be poured over and taken with fruit, is dutiable under this paragraph as a "sauce" rather than as a "preserved fruit" under paragraph 217 of this Act. U. S. v. Meyer, (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 27.

Cut tulip flowers.—Tulip flowers severed from the plant are not dutiable as "tulips," but as "cut flowers" under this paragraph. U. S. v. American Express Co., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 195.

Tulip bulbs.—The change made by Congress from the adjective "tulip," paragraph 263 of this Act, to the noun "tulips," in this paragraph, must be given a meaning; accordingly, tulip bulbs are not dutiable as "tulips," but as "other bulbs," under this paragraph. U. S. v. Maltus & Ware, (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 199.

Vol. II, p. 778, par. 212. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 79.]

Flaxseed.—Where flaxseed is imported directly from the farms, contains a percentage of wild buckwheat, wild mustard, wheat, barley, oats, chaff, and foxtail, but practically no dirt, and after importation is separated into flaxseed and screenings, each being bought and sold as such, the flaxseed is dutiable as such under this paragraph, and the screenings as a nonenumerated unmanufactured article under paragraph 385. Consolidated Elevator Co. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 267.

"Allowance."—The term "allowance" in this paragraph refers to draft or tare or some abatement from the full weight of imported merchandise. Segregation is not an "allowance." Consolidated Elevator Co. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 267.

"Other impurities."—The proviso of this paragraph "that no allowance shall be made for dirt or other impurities in seeds provided for in this paragraph" should be so construed as to limit the "other impurities" to such as correspond to the one named, at least in the essential particular of having no separate tariff status for dutiable purposes. It should not be so construed as to abrogate the rule that where two or more articles subject to different tariff rates are present in an importation they may be separately assessed at the several rates provided for each. Consolidated Elevator Co. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 287.

Peppers.—This paragraph classifies peppers of all kinds, at least such as are, generally speaking, spices. This is made quite certain by the fact that, to those peppers made dutiable by preceding acts, this paragraph adds pepper, black or white, which theretofore had been given free entry. Vandegrift & Co. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 1.

Paprika, not being provided for eo nomine by this Act, being in fact a capsicum or red pepper, and not being shown to be commercially designated otherwise, is dutiable as such under this paragraph. Being ground, it is subject to the additional ad valorem duty of 20 per cent imposed by the paragraph on ground spices. It is not classifiable under paragraph 385 of this Act as a nonenumerated article, unmanufactured, or in whole or in part manufactured. Vandegrift & Co. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 1.

Fluid malt extract in iron drums of 12½ gallons is dutiable as "malt extract, fluid, in casks" under this paragraph. U. S. v. Hirsh & Schofield, (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 163.

"Casks."—In paragraph 385 Congress intended to include all kinds of malt extract, in whatever condition imported and whether in bulk or smaller packages. To effectuate the intent of Congress, the word "casks" in this paragraph will be held to include iron drums. U. S. v. Hirsh & Schofield, (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 163.

Vol. II, p. 791, par. 252. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 84.]

Cotton cloth printed with bedspread designs.—Pieces of cotton cloth 70 to 80 inches wide and 30 yards long, printed with designs about 90 inches long, repeated at regular intervals throughout their length, generally used for making bedspreads by cutting between the designs, but suitable also for making curtains, portières, table spreads, and couch covers, are not dutiable as "articles made from cotton cloth" under paragraph 286 of this Act, but as "cotton cloth . . . printed" under this paragraph. Snow's

United States Sample Express Co. v. U. S., (1977) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 17.

Reliquidation.—Where a protest claiming classification of cotton cloth under this paragraph, according to yarn number, is sustained by the board of general appraisers without any finding as to yarn number or direction to the collector regarding such finding, it is the duty of the collector to find the yarn number as directed by paragraph 253 and the regulations of the Treasury Department, and a protest against his reliquidation at the highest rate provided for in this paragraph, without such findings, will be sustained. Lord & Taylor v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 345.

Vol. II, p. 792, par. 253. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 84.]

Articles made from cotton cloth.—To become an article made from cotton cloth within the meaning of this paragraph and paragraph 266, the cloth, whether in the piece or not, must have been so dealt with by manufacturing processes that it has acquired either special characteristics which do not properly belong to cotton cloth or a form and individuality which identify the product of such processes as a definite, particular article so far advanced that it is committed to a specific use and is no longer available for the general purposes for which the unprocessed cotton cloth was suitable. Snow's United States Sample Express Co. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 17.

Upholstery goods.—The common and usual signification of the term "upholstery goods" includes nets or nettings in the piece. The term has never been proven in this court to have any commercial meaning different from its common meaning. The provision for "Jacquard figured upholstery goods, composed wholly or in chief value of cotton, . . . in the piece or otherwise," in this paragraph, was intended by Congress to cover Jacquard figured cotton nets or nettings in the piece notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph 358 for nets, nettings, laces, etc., of whatever yarns, threads, or filaments composed. U. S. v. Mills & Gibbs, (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 422.

In re-enacting unrestricted in this paragraph the term "upholstery goods" from paragraph 326, Tariff Act of 1909, after having had its attention specifically directed to the decision of the United States Court of Customs Appeals that the term included all the interior textile decorations and fittings of apartments, Congress must be presumed to have used it in this sense. U. S. v. Mills & Gibbs, (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 422.

Curtains and Jacquard figured upholstery.—Regardless of relative specificity of the terms employed, the intention of Congress, in the enactment of this paragraph, was to make the language "curtains, . . . and other Jacquard figured upholstery goods, composed wholly or in chief value of cotton or other vegetable fiber; any of the foregoing in the piece or otherwise," inclusive of all goods falling therewithin and to exclude therefrom all other provisions of the Act. U. S. v. Snow's United States Sample Express Co., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 351.

Scalloped Jacquard figured madras muslin curtains in the piece and otherwise and materials therefor are dutiable under this paragraph and not under paragraph 358 as "articles or fabrics . . . scalloped by hand or machinery . . . by whatever name known." U. S. v. Snow's United States Sample Express Co., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 351.

Jacquard figured nettings.—Jacquard figured nets or nettings, wholly or in chief value of cotton, imported in the piece, are dutiable under this paragraph as Jacquard figured upholstery goods, and not under paragraph 358, as nets or nettings. U. S. v. Mills & Gibbs, (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 422.

Evidence—Relevancy.—Inasmuch as this Act does not classify upholstery goods or fabrics according to the industry which produced them, evidence that the making of nettings and laces is a separate industry from that which produces certain other upholstery goods and tapestries has no relevancy to an issue as to whether Jacquard figured cotton nets or nettings should be classified as Jacquard figured upholstery goods under this paragraph or as nets or nettings under paragraph 358. U. S. v. Mills & Gibbs, (1918) U. S. Cust. App. 422.

"Made of."—The expression "made of" may mean wholly of only or include wholly of and in chief value of, according to the context. Unless it should be construed in this paragraph to mean wholly of only, the provision for fabrics made of cotton or other vegetable fiber would include the next provision of the paragraph for fabrics "of which cotton or other vegetable fiber is the component material of chief value," and reduce it to surplusage. Accordingly the provision of the paragraph for fabrics made of cotton or other vegetable fiber and india rubber means made wholly of such. Steinhardt & Bros. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 372.

"Component material of chief value."—While the rule prescribed by statute, paragraph 336, is that "component material of chief value" shall be held to mean that single component material which shall exceed in value any other single component material in the article or fabric, nevertheless Congress may, and oftentimes does, expressly prescribe that, in the determination of a particular question of chief value, the combined values of one or more single component materials must be treated as one. This is the case with this paragraph, where the component material of chief value may be "cotton or vegetable fiber and india rubber," and with paragraph 319, where it may be "artificial or imitation silk . . . and india rubber." Steinhardt & Bros. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 372.

Artificial silk is not a vegetable fiber within the meaning of those terms as used in this paragraph and paragraph 319. Steinhardt & Bros. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 372.

Cotton and india rubber hat elastics and silk and india rubber sleeve and garter elastics should not be classified as braids, under paragraph 358, but the cotton goods should be classified as "fabrics with fast edges not exceeding twelve inches in width . . . of cotton . . . and india rubber," under this paragraph, and the silk goods to be dutiable as "webbings . . . of which silk and india rubber are the component materials of chief value," under paragraph 316. Calhoun, Robbins & Co. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 360.

Lap robes—Steamer rugs.—Woven woolen spreads of mixed colors, some with fringed ends and some with bound edges, used to cover the legs and body in automobiles, on couches, in carriages at seacoast resorts, and in hospitals and sanitariums, are not dutiable under paragraph 289 of this Act as blankets, but as woolen manufactures, under this paragraph. Riley & Co. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 116.

Vol. II, p. 803, par. 289. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 88.]

"Blanket."—The history of the enactment of successive tariff acts, together with administrative and judicial decisions under them, shows that Congress used the word "blanket" as meaning a heavy cover for a bed or a horse, with a thick, soft nap on both sides. The word should be given that meaning in this paragraph. Riley & Co. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 116.

Vol. II, p. 805, par. 294. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 89.]

Wilton velvet rugs.—Seamless Wilton velvet rugs of various sizes are not classifiable under paragraph 300, Tariff Act of 1913 ("Oriental, Berlin, Aubusson, Axminster, and similar rugs"), or under paragraph 386 covering no enumerated articles, but are dutiable, by virtue of paragraph 303, at the rate imposed on velvet carpeting by this paragraph. U. S. v. Carson, (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 240; U. S. v. Fenton, (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 239.

Vol. II, p. 805, par. 300. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 89.]

Machine-made Axminster rugs are dutiable eo nomine under this paragraph. U. S. v. Gertzen Co., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 428.

Vol. II, p. 805, par. 304. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 89.]

Other like animals.—The expression "other like animals," used in this paragraph and paragraph 307, with reference to wool and hair, regards similarity in the hair, and not in the animals themselves. Bloomingtondale Bros. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 105.

Vol. II, p. 806, par. 305. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 89.]

"Angora goat."—A more or less degenerate goat, known as the "Cape Angora," produced by breeding the original Angora with the Cape Colony goat, whose hair is shown to be dealt in, used, and known as mohair, is an Angora goat" within the meaning of that expression in this paragraph. U. S. v. Beadenkopf Co., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 283.

Cape Angora goatskins with the hair on, imported for leather use, the hair to be removed and sold for use as mohair, are not admissible free as entireties under paragraphs 603, 604, or 650 of this Act, but the hair is dutiable under this paragraph as "hair of the Angora goat, alpaca, and other like animals, and all hair on the skin of such animals." U. S. v. Beadenkopf Co., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 283.

"Other like animals."—The expression "Other like animals," in this paragraph, has reference to resemblance in the growth on the skins and not in the other physical characteristics of the animals. U. S. v. Beadenkopf Co., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 283. See also Crimmins & Pierce v. U. S., (1915) 6 U. S. Cust. App. 137.

Angora rabbit hair yarn.—Yarn made of the hair of the Angora rabbit, commercially known as Angora wool yarn, is not dutiable as a manufacture of fur under paragraph 348 of this Act. It is more specifically described by this paragraph than by the definition of "wool" in paragraph 304 ("wool or hair of the sheep, camel, or other like animals") and is dutiable accordingly. Bloomingtondale Bros. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 105.

Vol. II, p. 808, par. 318. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 90.]

Down-filled silk quilts.—Down-filled silk quilts, silk being the component material of chief value, are dutiable as manufactures in chief value of silk under this paragraph and not as "quilts of down" under paragraph 347. U. S. v. Altman & Co., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 148.

Vol. II, p. 810, par. 319. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 90.]

Webbing of artificial silk, cotton and india rubber.—Webbing, 34.30 per cent artificial silk, 39.31 per cent cotton, and 26.39 per cent rubber in value, is classifiable, not as being made of cotton and india rubber, under paragraph 262, but as being in chief value of artificial silk and india rubber, under this paragraph. Steinhardt & Bros. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 372.

Vol. II, p. 811, par. 324. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 91.]

Surface-coated paper.—Paper known as "Perlmutter" paper, one surface of which has not been treated, the other having been treated with a layer of gelatin and then a layer of lacquer, presenting a shiny, glossy and variegated appearance, is not classifiable under this paragraph as "Papers, wholly or partly covered with gelatin or flock, papers with white coated surface or surfaces," but as a surface coated paper not specially provided for. Bendix Paper Co. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 366.

"Curtains and other articles."—The language "Curtains and other articles" in this paragraph taxing articles made of beads, does not mean that the "other articles" must be ejusdem generis with "curtains." Thus, rosaries composed in chief value of beads are dutiable as articles made of beads under this paragraph. U. S. v. American Express Co., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 157.

Necklaces of paste beads.—Necklaces in chief value of paste beads are not classifiable as jewelry under paragraph 356, but as manufactures in chief value of paste beads under this paragraph. Bloomingtondale Bros. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 314.

Imitation pearl beads, strung temporarily upon flimsy cotton strings, selected and graded as to size so that the beads graduate from the largest in the center to the smallest at either end, are classifiable as "imitation pearl beads . . . strung loosely on thread for facility in transportation only," and not as articles of beads under this paragraph, for however useful for trade purposes may be the selecting and grading, the fact remains that the stringing was done for facility in transportation only, as the beads have to be restrung more durably and fitted with clasps before being practical for use as chains or necklaces. Lorsch & Co. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 246.

Exceptions from application of paragraph.—Under the rule of expressio unius est ex- clusio alterius, it would seem that the expressed exception of articles not embroidered nor appliquéd from the provision of this paragraph, for articles made of beads would leave all other articles made of beads dutiable under the paragraph. U. S. v. American Express Co., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 157.

Vol. II, p. 819, par. 339. [First ed., 1914 Supp., p. 93.]

"Buttons."—A galalith article, shaped like a curling stone, perforated for the reception of a metal shank or wire loop to make it into a shoe button, is not classifiable under the provision for "buttons," but under that for "parts of buttons and button molds or blanks," in this paragraph. U. S. v. Hensel, (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 244.

Agate collar buttons.—Collar buttons, known commercially as "agate buttons," though not made of natural agate, are dutiable as "agate buttons," under this paragraph and not as collar buttons composed wholly of agate. U. S. v. Buss & Co., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 5.

Material composing buttons.—Evidence.—Testimony by a dealer in buttons and not in the materials used in their manufacture, with no testimony tending to show his knowledge of, or familiarity with, the commercial designation of button materials, that certain buttons were "made of a material which is commercially known as agate" falls far short of establishing that the material was definitely, uniformly, and generally, in any wholesale trade dealing therein, known as "agate." U. S. v. Buss & Co., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 5.

Goose skins dressed with the down on, not suitable for millinery ornaments, are dutiable as "downs on the skin, . . . dressed, . . . and not suitable for use as millinery ornaments" under this paragraph, and not, by virtue of paragraph 386, by similitude, as "furs dressed on the skin" under paragraph 348. U. S. v. Herskovits & Son, (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 203, distinguishing Herskovits v. U. S., (1911) 1 U. S. Cust. App. 321.

Millinery ornaments of dyed straw.—Leaves and flowers for millinery ornaments, made of straw which has been dyed, but the fibers of which have not been separated, are excluded by the dyeing from classification under paragraph 368, as manufactures of straw in its natural state, but are dutiable as articles composed in chief value of artificial and ornamental leaves and flowers under this paragraph. U. S. v. Gage Bros. & Co., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 306; U. S. v. International Forwarding Co., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 378; U. S. v. Rosenthal-Sloan Millinery Co., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 380.

Feather wall ornaments.—Colored feathers, fastened upon white cards in the shape of birds, used to decorate walls in the same manner as pictures are, are not dutiable as feathers of any kind, but as articles made of feathers, under this paragraph. U. S. v. Beach, (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 365.

"Artificial and ornamental fruits."—The words "artificial and ornamental," modifying the word "fruits" in this paragraph, refer to the per se character, and not the intended use, of the fruits. This is indicated by the fact that in the same paragraph feathers in various physical conditions are dutiable at one rate and "artificial or ornamental feathers suitable for use as millinery ornaments" at another. Hence, artificial and ornamental pears and apples, chiefly used as pincushions, are dutiable as "artificial and ornamental fruits." Morimura Bros. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 111.

"Fur"—"Hair"—"Wool."—Hair which is so short that it is commercially unfit to be spun into yarn or for the making of textiles, and is chiefly employed in the making of furs or fur garments, or for other fur uses, is that kind of hair which is known as fur, within the meaning of this paragraph, though it be taken from the back of a sheep. Hair which possesses all the characteristics of fur, but is so long and of such quality that it can be spun into yarn and converted into cloth and is chiefly used for that purpose, should be classified as a wool under paragraph 304 or as hair other than fur under paragraph 307. Bloomingtondale Bros. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 105.

Sheepskins devoted to fur uses.—Sheepskins, entire or pieced by sewing in the shapes of rectangles and crosses, with the natural growth thereon and the flesh side dressed, used as ordinary fur skins are used, and not bearing so great an amount of wool as to make it commercially practicable to remove the wool and use it for wool purposes, are not classifiable as wools on the skin under paragraph 650 of this Act, nor as wool advanced under paragraph 286, and are not within the definition of wool in paragraph 304, but are dutiable as "furs dressed on the skin" under this paragraph. Ayres, Bridges & Co. v. U. S., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 87.

"Suitable for use."—The expression "suitable for use," in this paragraph, does not, in the tariff sense, imply or require chief use, but is limited or qualified to susceptibility for the use expressed. Thus, brass and German-silver foxtail chain, valued at less than 30 cents per yard, shown to be used in the manufacture of jewelry, is dutiable under this paragraph, as metal material "suitable for use in the manufacture of any of the foregoing articles," and not under paragraph 167 as metal articles or wares not specially provided for. U. S. v. Lorsch & Co., (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 109.

Leather-cased pocket sets.—Small leather cases, appropriate to be carried in the vest pocket, fitted with pocketknives, penknives or erasers, nail files, wooden lead pencils, and scissors (singly or in various combinations), are not specially designed or intended for the use of the traveler and are not dutiable as cases fitted with traveling sets under paragraph 360 of this Act, but are dutiable as "articles . . . designed to be . . . carried on or about the person" under this paragraph. U. S. v. Glück, (1917) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 12.

Imitation jet and base metal articles.—Articles of personal adornment composed of imitation jet and base metal are not regarded by people in general as jewelry, and are not classifiable as "jewelry, commonly . . . so known," under this paragraph. Bloomingtondale Bros. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 314.

"Yarns, threads, or filaments."—The expression "yarns, threads, or filaments," in this paragraph covers only such materials as are generally known to be for knitting, weaving, or sewing. U. S. v. Veit Son & Co., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 390.

Rubber threads.—The rubber threads which form the framework or foundation about which the cotton or silk threads are worked into elastic braids are within the meaning of the expression "yarns, threads, or filaments," in this paragraph. Calhoun, Robbins & Co. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 360.

Elastics were held administratively and judicially to be braids under the Tariff Act of 1897. Congress presumably used the word braids in that sense in the Tariff Act of 1909 and in this paragraph. Calhoun, Robbins & Co. v. U. S., (1918) 8 U. S. Cust. App. 360.
